The District Judge does not appear to have recorded any finding on the issues, but he refers to the fact that the District Munsif found that the plaintiff's suit was barred by limitation and says: "Were it necessary to give a finding on this point I should be inclined to hold..... .....that the plaintiff's suit would be barred by Article 144 of the II Schedule of the Limitation Act." Then he goes on to say: "The father of defendants Nos. 4 and 5 came into possession of the suit property under a family agreement entered into by the members of the family of the individual who was mutawalli at the time of the inam settlement;" and he refers to Ramanathan Chetti v. Murugappa Chetti (1). In concluding his judgment he says: "I am unable to see how the arrangement made under Exhibit I is prejudicial to the Masjid and I concur in the District Munsif's finding that the plaintiff cannot recover the suit land from defendants Nos. 4 and 5, unless he shows that the agreement entered into under Exhibit I has not been properly carried out." The only finding, therefore, that can be spelt out of the District Judge's judgment is that in his opinion the agreement under Exhibit I is a family arrangement and that it is legal and effective. I can only say that the District Judge is, in my opinion, entirely mistaken in law. There is no power in the mutawalli of a mosque to effect a partition of the lands belonging to a waqf, and, assuming that the District Judge states correctly the effect of the decision in Ramanathan Chetti v. Murugappa Chetti (1), I am unable to see how the rules applicable to arrangements made by co-trustees for the proper management of their trust amongst themselves can affect the question whether a mutawalli can divide up the trust properties themselves and apportion them between more persons than one as if they had been the private property of the mutawalli. Where a mutawalli purports to do this, in my opinion, there can be no doubt that the act is illegal. See Kazi Hassan v. Sagun Balkrishna (2).

(1) 27 M. 192; 13 M. L. J. 341.

The District Judge has not recorded any finding on the question, whether by the operation of the Limitation Act the person who will rightful'y represent the trust can any more claim the properties in the possession of the 4th and 5th defendants on behalf of the trust. Nor has he recorded any finding on the question whether the plaintiff is the person rightfully entitled to represent the trust. The case must, in my opinion, go back for findings on these issues and on all the other issues framed in the suit.

I wish to point out that the questions involved in the first and second issues are entirely distinct. The real question involved in the 1st issue is whether, assuming that the lands which are the subject-matter of the suit are still part of the waqf lands, the plaintiff is entitled to represent the waqf and as such to be in possession of all the waqf lands. The 2nd and 3rd issues involve the question whether, assuming that the plaintiff is entitled to represent the waqf, these lands form part of the waqf lands or whether the title of the waqf to obtain possession of the lands is lost by limitation.

It must be pointed out that any person interested in the due administration of the waqf is entitled to sue for a decree that improper alienations of the waqf property should be set aside and that the property purported to be alienated should be declared to continue to belong to the waqf. If, therefore, the alleged partition-deed, Exhibit I, is in effect an alienation of the waqf property, it can be questioned by the plaintiff though the plaintiff may not be able to establish that he is the present mutawalli or that he is entitled as such to be put into possession of the property belonging to the waqf.

Findings in six weeks and seven days for objections.

WHITE, C. J.—I have read the judgment which has been written by my learned brother and I concur.

In compliance with the order contained in the above judgment, the District Judge of Chingleput submitted the following

FINDING.—In connection with Second Appeal No. 1345 of 1911 on the file of the High Court, I am directed to return findings upon the issues originally in suit as well as upon new issues as follows:

(i) Whether by the operation of the Limitation Act the person who will rightfully represent the trust can any more claim the properties in the possession of the 4th and 5th defendants on behalf of the trust.

(ii) Whether the plaintiff is the person rightfully entitled to represent the trust.

2. The suit property admittedly forms part of that granted as inam for a certain Muhammadan Masjid in the village of Ambi. The extract of the Inam Register, Exhibit A, shows that one Raja Hussain Siddikh was one of the two keepers for the time being in the year 1862. There is no evidence as to what became of the other keeper for the time being. Raja Hussain Siddikh had only two sisters, and in 1867 he partitioned the Masjid inam, giving the plaint land, representing the one-third share of his sister, Khadir Unissa, to her son in-law, Mahomed Apan Sahib, on condition that she got her share of Masjid service performed by the said Apan Sahib. The 4th and 5th defendants are sons of Apan Sahib and admit they hold the plaint land as a trust, the 5th defendant stating in his evidence that each of the three branches has a turn of ten years, that he had his turn fifteen to five years ago, that the plaintiff is doing his turn for the last five years, and that all the three branches together do repairs to the Masjid. There is, however, no evidence to prove this theory of turns, and I quote it merely as an admission against the 4th and 5th defendants that they hold the plaint lands as a trust attached to the office of mutawalli in the Masjid.

3. The plaintiff asserts that he is the sole mutawalli, and as such entitled to hold the plaint lands. He has not shown how he came to be mutawalli or who appointed him, except that he is a grandson of Raja Hussain Siddikh, and that his mother was holding the office for him, through a gumastah during his minority. The original first issue and the new second issue were answered by the District Munsif in the negative. My predecessor did not specifically answer this issue, but he presumably did not find it in the affirmative for he did not decree the suit,

(2) 24 B. 170; 1 Bom. L. R. 649.

I have examined the evidence on record and I am of opinion that the answer must be in the negative.

4. As regards the new first issue the 4th and 5th defendants admit that they hold the property on behalf of the trust, and I, therefore, find that the person who will rightfully represent the trust can claim the properties in the possession of the 4th and 5th defendants on behalf of the trust, and that such claim is not barred by the Limitation Act.

5. The important issues in the suit are the original second and third issues. It is now decided that the partition made by Raja Hussain Siddikh under Exhibits I and II in 1867 was utterly invalid under Muhammadan Law, and that point is, of course, no longer open to question. The fact remains, however, that the partition was actually effected and has continued in force until the present time. That is the finding of the District Munsif and of my predecessor and upon the evidence I cannot but concur. Muhammadan Law is but imperfectly known and understood in the Mofussil of Southern India, and it is not uncommon to find Muhammadans following the Hindu Law of joint family estate and of partition. A very common method of dealing with hereditary services is to partition the inam lands upon the understanding that the various branches of the family shall hold office in rotation for a period proportionate to the share in the estate. That is undoubtedly what was intended by Exhibits I and II, namely, that the family of Khadir Unissa took one-third of the service lands and was to perform one-third of the duties of office. The real question in the suit then is whether the 4th and 5th defendants are entitled to hold one-third of the office, and with it, the plaint lands. The finding of the District Munsif and of my predecessor is that the plaintiff is barred by limitation from recovering the one-third share of office from these defendants. I must concur in this finding. The arrangement is no doubt utterly illegal under Muhammadan Law, but until the situation is dealt with by a suit for a scheme of management or by some such method, it must continue. It does not appear to have been explained how the share of one sister, as against a brother and another sister, was one-third; but this possibly is merely another instance of how Muhammadan Law is misunderstood in the Mofussil.

6. The fourth issue was found against the 6th and 7th defendants and this finding has not been questioned in appeal, so remains good.

7. The other issues require no finding.

This second appeal coming on for final hearing on 13th of October 1914, after the return of the finding from the lower Appellate Court on the issues referred by this Court for trial and having stood over for consideration till this day, the Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT.

TYABJI, J.—The dismissal by the District Munsif of the plaintiff's suit for the recovery of the waqf properties mentioned in the plaint was upheld by the District Judge without any findings as to the necessary facts, on the untenable ground that a mutawalli may validly partition waqf lands and give effect to an arrangement that a person "should enjoy one-third of the inam lands and should do a share of the service due at the Masjid." Neither the waqf property nor the duties of the mutawalli can be lawfully "partitioned." The rights of the mauqufalaih or beneficiaries cannot be affected by such an arrangement, unless by operation of the Indian Limitation Act.

It became necessary, therefore, to ask for findings from the District Court.

The findings now submitted by another learned Judge appear to be: (1) that the parts of the waqf lands now in question are not lost to the waqf by adverse possession; (2) that the plaintiff is not "the sole mutawalli" nor "as such entitled to hold the plaint lands"; (3) that the 4th and 5th defendants are actually in possession of the lands under the "partition" already referred to; (4) that though the arrangement is "utterly illegal," it "must continue until the situation is dealt with by a suit for a scheme of management or by some such method" and (5) that "the plaintiff is barred by limitation from recovering the ½ share of office from" the 4th and 5th defendants.

The expression "sole mutawalli" is used by the learned District Judge not in contrast to a body of co-trustees administering the waqf as one collective possession in their joint capacity, in whom the whole of the waqf property is jointly vested. The expression is evidently used by the learned Judge under the erroneous impression that both the plaintiff and the 4th and 5th defendants have some title to be separately in possession of parts of the waqf property "until the situation is dealt with by a suit for a scheme" or as above stated.

The texts of Muhammadan Law ordinarily contemplate only one mutawalli; but when two or more persons are appointed with the intention that they should jointly administer a single waqf—and there is nothing to prevent such an appointment—their position would be similar to that of any other body of co-trustees. Such a "partition" as is referred to above would not affect their legal position or joint responsibility: Robinson v. Harkin (3); Lewis v. Nobbs (4).

What the District Judge intends to find seems to be that no one person is entitled to claim the whole waqf property without there being a scheme.

There is no necessity, however, for a scheme in a case where there is a waqf and no person is lawfully administering it. For the law relating to waqfs makes it incumbent on the Court to designate the person who, in accordance with the terms of the dedication (or waqfnama), is entitled to act as mutawalli; and if there are no directions by the author of the waqf on this matter, it is for the Court to appoint a mutawalli: Phatmabi v. Haji Abdulla (5). It is also for the Court to insist upon the proper administration of the waqf, and for that purpose it will remove any mutawalli (much more an unauthorised person who is not lawfully clothed with the status of mutawalli) who is guilty of misconduct or whose removal is required for the welfare of the waqf: Chintaman v. Dhondo (6), Damodar v. Bhat Bogilal (7), even though the author of the waqf should have appointed himself mutawalli and even though he should have laid it down as a term of the dedication that the mutawalli should not be liable to be removed: Baillie's Digest, Vol. I, p. 592 (1st edition), Grady's Hedaya, p. 329, and even though the parties themselves by their pleadings do not ask for his removal, Wrightson, In re: Wrightson v. Cooke (8).

This jurisdiction, however, can only be exercised by way of "directions necessary for the administration" of waqfs: Neti Rama Jogiah v. Venkatacharlu (9), under section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code.

The error, therefore, of the District Judge, by which he considers the plaintiff to have made out some show of title to be recognised as mutawalli in regard to what he terms a share of the office, cannot be so utilised as to deprive the 4th and 5th defendants of their possession which has been supported on the same basis.

It is clear that but for the misapprehension of the law by the District Judge his finding would have been as unequivocally against the plaintiff as the District Munsif's. Invoking, therefore, (in so far as necessary) this Court's powers under section 103 of the Civil Procedure Code, the finding may be considered to be that given by the District Munsif. The fact that the basis on which the 4th and 5th defendants' claim is supported is also erroneous, does not affect the decision in a suit which is not instituted under section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code, and in which the plaintiff can only succeed on his own present title irrespective of any appointment by the Court.

The result will be that the appeal will be dismissed.

The defendants have made common cause against the plaintiff on the basis of an utterly illegal arrangement made in breach of trust. They will bear their own costs throughout.

This judgment will be communicated to the Advocate-General and the Collector (sections 92 and 93 of the Civil Procedure Code).

OLDFIELD, J.—I concur in my learned brother's decision and do not oppose the communication of a copy to the Advocate-General and the Collector.

Appeal dismissed.

(3) (1896) 2 Ch. 415; 65 L. J. Ch. 773; 44 W. R. 702; 74 L. T. 777.
(4) 8 Ch. D. 591; 47 L. J. Ch. 662; 26 W. R. 631.
(5) 21 Ind. Cas. 964; 26 M. L. J. 115; 14 M. L. T. 568; (1914) M. W. N. 75.
(6) 15 B. 612.
(7) 22 B. 493.
(8) (1908) 1 Ch. 789; 77 L. J. Ch. 422; 99 L. T. 799
(9) 26 M. 450.

JAHAN KHAN v. CHANDI SHAH.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1540 OF 1913.

June 5, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Chevis and
Mr. Justice Shadi Lal.

JAHAN KHAN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT
versus
CHANDI SHAH—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 132—Suit on mortgage for principal and interest—Mortgagee entitled to sue for arrears of interest—Waiver, omission to sue, whether amounts to.

A mere omission to sue is not sufficient proof of waiver of the right to sue.

Khairuddin v. Atu Mal, 188 P. R. 1883, referred to.

Where a mortgage-bond dated 11th August 1890 provided that the interest on the mortgage-money would be paid yearly and the mortgagee could recover arrears of interest by suit and after 10 years, if the land was not redeemed, he could recover principal and interest by suit and get the land attached and sold in execution, and only a small sum having been paid towards interest in the early years of the mortgage the mortgagee sued the mortgagor:

Held, that, inasmuch as the plaintiff held the option of suing every year, the suit was governed by Article 132 of the first Schedule of the Limitation Act and the plaintiff could not recover interest that had become due 12 years before the institution of the suit.

Second appeal from the decree of the Divisional Judge, Attock, dated the 24th of April 1913 confirming that of the District Judge, Attock, dated the 11th October 1912, decreeing the claim.

Dr. Muhammad Iqbal, for the Appellant.

Mr. Nand Lal, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is a claim based on a mortgaged-deed, dated 11th August 1890, by which defendants mortgaged certain land to plaintiff for Rs. 600. The mortgagors were to retain possession, the money was to carry interest at 12½ annas per Rs. 100 per mensem, interest was to be paid yearly, the mortgagee could recover arrears of interest by suit, and after ten years if the land was not redeemed, the mortgagee could recover principal and interest by suit and get the land attached and sold in execution of decree. Rupees 175-8 was paid towards interest in the early years of the mortgage. Nothing else has been paid. The lower Courts have given the plaintiff a decree for principal and interest calculated from date of mortgage to date of institution of suit, less the Rs. 175-8 paid, with costs and with lien on the land and future interest at 6 per cent. from date of decree of first Court to date of payment. The defendants appeal.

The only questions raised in appeal relate to the interest. First as regards interest which fell due more than twelve years prior to suit. Now the plaintiff had the option of suing for each year's interest as it fell due. No doubt he could have waived his option but there is absolutely nothing on the record to show that he did waive the option. All that can be said is that he omitted to sue, and this is not sufficient proof of waiver, see Khairuddin v. Atu Mal(1). Thus for the year's interest due on 11th August 1899 he could have sued anywhere after 11th August 1899, and applying Article 132 the claim for this year's interest is time-barred as the limitation is twelve years from the time when the money becomes due i.e., when the plaintiff could have claimed it. So we find that all the yearly instalments of interest are time-barred up to and including the interest for the years 1898-1899. But the interest for the years 1899-1900 is within the time as this could not be claimed till 11th October 1900, which is a date within twelve years of institution of suit.

But for the defendants it is urged that the conditions of interest provided in the deed should only hold good for the first ten years of the mortgage. But Counsel for defendants admits that after the first ten years interest can be allowed at a reasonable rate, and we do not regard the rate entered in the deed, which is a rate of 9-6/16 per cent. per annum as unreasonable. We shall, therefore, not interfere except as regards interest for the period up to 11th August 1899, which we hold to be time-barred. Interest after that date to date of institution of suit (thirteen years less a few days) comes to Rs. 730. We so far accept the appeal as to reduce the amount of the decree from Rs. 1,661-9-3 to Rs. 1,330, (Rs. 600, principal and Rs. 730, interest). In all other respects the decree of the lower Courts will stand, except that as regards costs we direct that the parties, each of whom has partially succeeded in appeal, shall bear their own costs in this Court and in the lower Appellate Court. Costs in the first Court to be as ordered by that Court.

Decree modified.

(1) 188 P. R. 1883.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 67 OF 1915.

February 26, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, KT., and Mr. Justice Richardson.

KRISHNA CHANDRA SAHA SARDAR AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

HEM CHANDRA RAI CHOWDHURY—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Interlocutory injunction—Holding of market—Principle to be followed—Equitable grounds—Discretion of Court—No general rule—Substantial question to be investigated—Balance of convenience—Delay without satisfactory reason—Court's duty.

The only thing to be considered by the Court in cases of interlocutory injunctions in aid of the legal right is, if the case is so clear and free from objection on equitable grounds that it should interfere without waiting for the legal right to be established. No general rule can be laid down on the subject by which the discretion of the Court should in all cases be regulated. It is quite sufficient if the Court finds a case showing that there is a substantial question to be investigated and that matters should be preserved in status quo until the final disposal of that question. [p. 856, col. 1.]

Where the plaintiff fails to prove that the damage he might sustain if the injunction is refused and he should ultimately turn out to be right, is likely to be greater than the damage which the defendants would suffer if the injunction were granted and they should finally turn out to be right, the balance of convenience is against the grant of an injunction. [p. 856, col. 1.]

Child v. Douglas, (1854) 2 Jur. (N. S.) 950; 1 Kay 560; 5 De G. M. & G. 739 at pp. 741, 742; 2 W. R. 701; 43 E. R. 1057; 101 R. R. 736, referred to.

A plaintiff making considerable delay without sufficient reason is not to be assisted at the expense of the defendant. [p. 856, col. 1.]

Cooper v. Hubbuck, (1860) 30 Beav. 160; 31 L. J. Ch. 123; 7 Jur. (N. S.) 457; 9 W. R. 352; 54 E. R. 849; 132 R. R. 223 and Hilton v. Granville, (1841) 4 Beav. 130; Cr. & Ph. 283 at p. 292; 10 L. J. Ch. 398; 49 E. R. 288; 54 R. R. 297, referred to.

Appeal against an order of the Subordinate Judge of Dacca, dated the 15th February 1915.

Babus Mohendra Nath Ray, Surendra Nath Guha and Prokas Chunder Pakrasi, for the Appellants.

Dr. Rash Behary Ghose and Babus Dwarka Nath Chakrabarti, Biraj Mohan Mojumdar and Ramani Mohan Chatterjee, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal is directed against an order granting an interlocutory injunction. The case for the plaintiff-respondent is that under an ancient Crown grant, antecedent to the time of the Permanent Settlement, he is entitled to hold a market on every Thursday on his property known as Ram Chandradi and the defendants have maliciously started a new market on their property known as Gopaldi, which is situated at a distance of two miles. The plaintiff accordingly seeks a permanent injunction to restrain the defendants from holding their market on Thursdays, and also asks for an interlocutory injunction during the pendency of the suit. He further claims substantial damages for loss of profit from his market, due to the establishment of the new market.

It is not disputed that the market started by the defendants was opened in February 1912 and the present suit was not instituted till the 18th November 1914. In the interval, there had been attempts at breach of the peace and criminal cases had resulted. On behalf of the plaintiff and his servants, eight criminal cases were instituted against the defendants and their people. The first of these was instituted on the 1st March 1912, that is, within a few days of the establishment of the new market and the last was instituted on the 18th January 1913. Every one of these cases was dismissed, and in some instances, the complainants were prosecuted and were convicted on the ground that they had instituted false cases. On the other hand, there were two counter-cases instituted by the defendants and their men, and in both instances the accused were convicted, on the 30th June 1913 and the 31st July 1913 respectively. Since then, so far as we can gather from the materials on the record, there have been no fresh disturbances. The Subordinate Judge, however, has granted an interlocutory injunction which restrains the defendants from holding their market on Thursdays. On behalf of the defendants-appellants, it has been argued, first, that the Subordinate Judge has in substance prejudged the case and has expressed an opinion on the merits; secondly, that as there has been considerable delay on the part of the plaintiff in the institution of this suit, no interlocutory injunction should be granted; and thirdly, that the application should be refused, as it has not been made bona fide by the plaintiff for the preservation of his right, but rather with a view to secure the destruction of the property of the defendants. We have anxiously considered the circumstances of this case and arrived at the conclusion that the injunction must be discharged.

The principle applicable to cases of this description is well settled and may be briefly stated. In cases of interlocutory injunctions in aid of the legal right, all the Court usually has to consider is whether the case is so clear and free from objection on equitable grounds that it should interfere without waiting for the legal right to be established. This depends upon various circumstances, and it is impossible to lay down any general rule on the subject by which the discretion of the Court should in all cases be regulated. It is not necessary that the Court should find a case which would entitle the plaintiff to relief at all events; it is quite sufficient if the Court finds a case which shows that there is a substantial question to be investigated and that matters should be preserved in status quo until the final disposal of the question. There is no room for doubt that in the present case there is a substantial question to be investigated in the suit; but can it be contended that the interlocutory injunction is sought with a view to preserve the status quo. The defendants have held their market every Thursday now for three years and have incurred expenses in its establishment and maintenance. The injunction as granted by the lower Court, if maintained, will undoubtedly destroy the market started by the defendants. On the other hand, there is nothing to show that if the defendants are not restrained, at this stage, further injury would be caused to the market founded by the plaintiff; no doubt, the loss in income may continue, but in that respect the plaintiff would, if successful, be amply compensated by a decree for damages. There has been considerable delay on the part of the plaintiff for which no satisfactory reason has been assigned, and he should not now be assisted to the serious detriment of the defendants: Cooper v. Hubbuck(1), Hilton v. Granville (2). The balance of convenience is clearly against the grant of the injunction; the plaintiff has failed to prove, as he was bound to do, that the damage he might sustain if the injunction is refused and he should ultimately turn out to be right, is likely so be greater than the damage which the defendants would suffer if the injunction were granted and they should finally turn out to be right. Child v. Douglas(3). It is further worthy of note that the defendants have readily submitted to the terms we imposed on them as a condition of withholding the injunction, and have brought into Court a sum of Rs. 500 for the satisfaction of the claim for damages, should the plaintiff be ultimately successful: Rigby v. G. W. Ry. Co. (4). He will be sufficiently protected, if, in addition, the trial of the suit is expedited and we shall make an order in that behalf.

It has finally been argued on behalf of the plaintiff that an interlocutory injunction should be granted to restrain the defendants from interfering with the traders and customers who might desire to attend the market held on the property of the plaintiff. That, however, would be an injunction for a purpose entirely different from what is contemplated in the injunction granted; we are clearly of opinion that we should not discharge the order of the Court below and substitute for it an entirely different injunction, the grant whereof can be justified only upon proof of facts not yet investigated. There is nothing on this record to indicate that recently there have been such acts and conduct on the part of the defendants as would necessitate the grant of such an injunction as that now proposed.

The result is that this appeal is allowed and the order of the Court below discharged. The record will be sent down at once and the Subordinate Judge directed to take up the suit for early disposal. The costs of this Court as also of the Court below will abide the result of the suit. We assess the hearing fee at two gold mohurs.

The amount deposited by the defendants in this Court will be transmitted to the Court below to be invested in Government securities and retained in that Court till the disposal of the suit.

Appeal allowed.

(1) (1860) 30 Beav. 160; 31 L. J. Ch. 123; 7 Jur. (N. S.) 457; 9 W. R. 352; 54 E. R. 849; 132 R. R. 223.

(2) (1841) 4 Beav. 130; Cr. & Ph. 283 at p. 292; 10 L. J. Ch. 398; 49 E. R. 288; 54 R. R. 297.

(3) (1854) 2 Jur. (N. S.) 950; 1 Kay 560; 5 De G. M. & G. 739 at pp. 741, 742; 2 W. R. 701; 43 E. R. 1057; 101 R. R. 736.

(4) (1846) 2 Ph. 44 at p. 50; 1 Coop. Temp. Cott. 3; 10 Jur. 531; 41 E. R. 858; 15 L. J. Ch. 266; 78 R. R. 12.

GHAUS v. FAJJI.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 919 OF 1913.

March 30, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Shadi Lal and Mr. Justice LeRossignol.

GHAUS—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

Musammat FAJJI alias MARIAM—PLAINTIFF AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Muhammadan Law—Marriage—Apostasy, effect of—Motive, immaterial.

Under the Muhammadan Law the fact of either or both of the parties to a Muhammadan marriage renouncing the Muhammadan religion has the effect of dissolving the marriage ipso facto. [p. 857, col. 2.]

Imam Din v. Hasan Bibi, 85 P. R. 1906; 148 P. L. R. 1906; Amin Beg v. Saman, 7 Ind. Cas. 342; 7 A. L. J. 956; 33 A. 90; Abdul Ghani v. Azizul Haq, 14 Ind. Cas. 641; 39 C. 409; 15 C. L. J. 263; 16 C. W. N. 451; 13 Cr. L. J. 257, followed.

If the apostasy is an accomplished fact and if it is not proved to be a colourable transaction, the Court cannot decline to give effect to it because the underlying motive was not a proper one. [p. 858, col. 2.]

Second appeal from the decree of the Additional Divisional Judge, Shahpur Division at Lyallpur, dated the 14th March 1913, reversing that of the Munsif, first Class, Lyallpur, dated the 21st December 1912, dismissing plaintiff's claim.

Mr. Fazal-i-Husain, for the Appellant.

Lala Durga Das, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The main question, which requires determination in this second appeal and in the connected Appeal No. 920 of 19 3, is whether the conversion of the respondent, Musammat Fajji, to Christianity dissolves her marriage with her Muhammadan husband. Now it is beyond dispute that there is an array of authorities of this Court and High Courts which answer the question in the affirmative, and Mr Fazal-i-Husain frankly admits that he is unable to cite a single judicial dictum in favour of the contrary view. He, however, contends that the law has not been correctly laid down in those judgments and draws our attention to certain passages in the original Arabic text books, the result of which has been stated by Mr. Ameer Ali in the third edition of his book on Muhammadan Law. After giving our careful consideration to the opinion of the learned author and to the arguments advanced before us, we are unable to accept the contention that the rule consistently followed by the Courts in India in a series of judgments and acted upon all along is erroneous and that a different rule should now be laid down.

The case-law on the subject up to 1906 is fully dealt with in the judgment of a Division Bench of this Court reported as Imam Din v. Hasan Bibi (1), and it would be an act of supererogation if we were to repeat here all the cases and the arguments which have been examined in that case in support of the view that the effect of either or both of the parties to a Muhammadan marriage renouncing the Muhammadan religion is to dissolve the marriage ipso facto. It will be observed that the case of 1906 and that reported as Musammat Khan Bibi v. Pir Shah (2) are those of a wife's apostasy and have, therefore, a direct bearing on the matter in issue in this case. In 1910 the same question came up for decision before the Allahabad High Court and that Court after considering the pros et cons, and more especially the opinion of Mr. Ameer Ali referred to above, came to the conclusion that under the Muhammedan Law a wife's conversion from Islam to Christianity effects a complete dissolution of marriage with her Muhammedan husband [vide, Amin Beg v. Saman (3)]. This view is further supported by the principle enunciated by the Calcutta High Court in their judgment in Abdul Gani v. Azizul Haq (4), in which Mr. Justice Sharf-ud-Din after examining the relevant passages from the original Arabic books makes the following observations: "On reference to the different authorities we are of opinion that Musammat Jaitan's marriage with the complainant became absolutely null at the moment he apostatised, and that from the date of his apostasy he was not her husband."

In addition to the above-mentioned judicial authorities we observe that the text-book writers on the Muhammadan Law as obtaining in India have stated the rule in exactly similar terms; Vide, for example, Baillie's Digest of Muhammadan Law, page 182; Hamilton's Translation of Hedaya, page 66; Sir Roland Wilson's Digest of Anglo-Muhammedan Law, 4th Edition, page 164;

(1) 85 P. R. 1906; 148 P. L. R. 1906.
(2) 132 P. R. 1884.
(3) 7 Ind. Cas. 342; 7 A. L. J. 956; 33 A. 90.
(4) 14 Ind. Cas. 641; 39 C. 409; 15 C. L. J. 263; 16 C. W. N. 451; 13 Cr. L. J. 257.

Tyabji's Principles of Muhammadan Law, page 166, section 195; Institutes of Muhammadan Law by Abdur Rahman, page 172, Article 303; and Ameer Ali's Muhammadan Law, first and second Editions, in both of which the learned author definitely states that "Under the Muhammadan Law, if a Muslim husband or a Muslim wife apostatise from Islam, the apostasy has the effect of dissolving the marriage-tie between the parties." In his 3rd Edition, as observed already, he takes a different view and states at pages 431 that "Among the Hanafis some of the old lawyers whose views are reflected in the Hedaya, the Fatawa Alamgiri and other works, considered that apostasy from Islam of either husband or wife, whether it takes place before or after consummation, dissolves, ipso facto, the marriage-tie. This view, however, has been considerably modified in modern times." He then refers to the great divergence of opinion as to the effect of the wife's abjuration of Islam on the status of marriage, and sums up by saying that the opinion of the jurists of Balkh and Samarkand should be preferred to that of the lawyers of Bukhara. It is clear that among the Muhammadan jurists there was a difference of opinion on the subject and it is further clear that the view taken by the jurists of Bukhara has been accepted by the Fatawa Alamgiri and almost all the Indian writers on Muhammadan Law. This exposition of law has been followed by the Courts in India and we are, in the circumstances, bound by the rule contained in the above authorities, and the fact that a rival school of law is in favour of a different opinion does not appear to us to be a sufficient ground for disturbing the long and continuous current of judicial decisions.

It is, therefore, manifest that if Musammat Fajji did actually embrace Christianity, then according to the Muhammadan Law she ceased to be the wife of the respondent Ghano. In regard to her conversion to the Christian religion, the baptismal certificate and the evidence of the witnesses Reverend Beli Ram and Mahbub Masih make it clear that she went through the prescribed form relating to the change of religion. In view of the fact that she adopted the new religion just about the time when her husband wanted her to come back and live with him, we are inclined to think that the motive which prompted her action was her desire to put an end to the matrimonial relationship which was brought about during her minority by her mother and to get rid of her husband whom she did not like for more reasons than one.

The learned Divisional Judge has, however, held that the motive for conversion is immaterial and this finding has not been impugned by the learned Counsel for the appellant. It seems that if the conversion was an accomplished fact and that if it is not proved to be a colourable transaction, the Court cannot decline to give effect to it because the underlying motive was not a proper one.

The evidence of the witnesses referred to above shows that the woman professes the Christian religion and has adopted it not as a device or as a temporary measure, but with the intention of remaining a Christian for ever. In the absence of any evidence to the contrary, we are unable to hold that the conversion should be regarded as a colourable transaction and that it should not be acted upon. The Courts of Law have no other means of finding out a person's intention than that indicated by his acts and conduct, and in the present case though the motive may excite suspicion there is nothing to show that Musammat Fajji's change of faith is not a genuine affair.

For the reasons set forth above, we are of opinion that Musammat Fajji renounced Islam and became a Christian and that according to the Muhammadan Law her conversion ipso facto dissolved the marriage-tie with her Muhammadan husband. We accordingly uphold the decree of the lower Appellate Court and dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

ABDULLA v. KUTBAN.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1376 OF 1895.

May 11, 1897.

Present:—Mr. Justice Rampini.

Sheikh ABDULLA alias CHUNDA—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

Musammat KUTBAN AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Homestead land, recovery of possession of—Landlord, dispossession by—Occupancy raiyat—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 182, Sch. III, Art. 3—Limitation.

Where the plaintiff bought only the house and the homestead land of a person (who had a raiyati holding and some homestead land and house in a certain village) and the plaintiff was dispossessed by the landlord, who claimed the house through some other tenant, and the plaintiff sued to recover possession of the homestead land:

Held, that as the plaintiff did not claim to recover possession either as a settled raiyat or as an occupancy raiyat and did not occupy the disputed plot of homestead land for 12 years and the land was not alleged to be the subject of an occupancy right transferable by custom, the two years' rule of limitation laid down in Article 3, Schedule III, of the Bengal Tenancy Act was not applicable. [p. 859, col. 2; p. 860, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinat Judge, second Court, Bhagalpur, dated 28th June 1895, affirming that of the Munsif, Jamui, dated the 17th September 1894.

Babu Digambar Chatterjee, for the Appellant.

Moulvi Serajul Islam, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—In this case the plaintiff sues to recover possession of a small plot of homestead land. He alleges that this plot of land formerly formed part of a jote, which belonged to an old resident cultivator named Haril Kahar. It devolved on his heir, Khuban, who sold the jote to defendant No. 5, who sold it to defendant No. 6, who sold the homestead land only to the plaintiff. The plaintiff then took possession but was dispossessed by the defendant No. 1 who is one of the landlords of the land—the others being defendants Nos. 1 to 3. Both the lower Courts have found that the plaintiff was dispossessed more than two years before suit, and that the suit, therefore, is barred by the two years' rule of limitation laid down in Article 3, Schedule III of the Tenancy Act. The plaintiff now impugns this finding. The question then is "does the plaintiff sue as an occupancy raiyat"?

I do not think that he does. He does not do so expressly. He is a cultivator, it is true. But the land which he has purchased, and which he seeks to recover possession of, is homestead land. Now, under section 182 when a raiyat holds his homestead otherwise than as part of his holding as a raiyat, the incidents of his tenancy of it shall be regulated by local custom or usage by the provisions of the Act applicable to land held by a raiyat. But the plaintiff does not profess to hold the homestead land in dispute as part of his own jote, if he has any, and it is no longer part of the old jote of Haril Kahar, for the defendant No. 6 retained the agricultural land of that jote in his own possession or at all events, he did not sell it to the plaintiff when he sold him the homestead land. The old jote of Haril Kahar was, it seems, 1 bigha 10 cottahs in extent. That being so, the plaintiff holds his land otherwise than as part of his holding as a raiyat and the incidents of his tenancy of it must be regulated by local custom or usage and, subject to local custom or usage, by the provisions of the Act. In this case no local custom or usage has been set up in the plaint. Therefore the provisions of the Act are applicable to the land. But under the Act the plaintiff can only have an occupancy right in the land if (1) he is a settled raiyat of the village or (2) has occupied the land in suit for 12 years, or (3) the land in question is the subject of an occupancy right transferable by local custom against the will of the landlord. Now (1) the plaintiff in his plaint does not call himself either a settled raiyat or an occupancy raiyat; (2) ex-hypothesi he has not occupied the disputed plot of homestead land for 12 years; and (3) it is not alleged that the land is the subject of an occupancy right transferable by custom. It may be that Haril Kahar had an occupancy right in the jote but it is not alleged, far less proved, that it was one transferable by custom against the will of the landlord. Therefore, the plaintiff can have no occupancy right in the land in suit. He cannot bring this suit as an occupancy raiyat and the two years' rule of limitation laid down in Article 3, Schedule III, of the Act is not applicable.

I accordingly set aside the finding of the lower Appellate Court, and remand the case for a decision on the other issues arising in it. Costs to abide the result.

Appeal allowed; Case remanded.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 669 OF 1913.

October 1, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Napier.

SUBRAMANIA AIYAR—PLAINTIFF—PETITIONER

versus

POOPPARAM LALA—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 12 (4)—Suit to set aside award—Application for copy—Time requisite for obtaining it, whether deducted.

In an application to set aside an award filed in Court the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the award may be taken into account under section 12 (4) of the Limitation Act in calculating the period of limitation provided the attention of the Court is drawn to this.

Petition under section 115 of Act V of 1908, praying the High Court to revise the decree of the Court of the District Munsif of Trichinopoly, in Original Suit No. 278 of 1912.

Mr. T. V. Muthukrishna Aiyar, for the Petitioner.

Mr. C. V. Ananthakrishna Aiyar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The Court gave judgment in a suit in accordance with an award filed. The plaintiff had put in an application to set it aside, which was on the face of it out of time. The Court's attention was not drawn to any application for copy which would have constituted "time requisite" within the meaning of section 12 (4) of the Limitation Act. He, therefore, computed the time as appeared on the record. It is urged that there was such an application and the time should have been excluded. That is the plaintiff's own fault and the Munsif's decision cannot be interfered with under section 115 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

The petition is dismissed with costs.

Petition dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL SIDE APPEAL No. 91 OF 1912.

December 10, 1913.

Present:—Sir Arnold White, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Sankaran Nair.

M. SAMBANDA MUDALIAR—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

A. CHINNASAWMI SAH—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 92—Agreement out of Court to compromise suit—Order of adjournment—Additional evidence, whether legally admissible—Transfer of interest in immoveable property—Registration.

An order of Court adjourning a case and incidentally noting the fact of an agreement made out of Court between the parties as a ground of adjournment does not purport to be and is not a record of the terms of the compromise; and additional evidence to add to the terms of the compromise is not inadmissible under section 92 of the Evidence Act. [p. 861, col. 1.]

Where in a suit for possession of a house the parties arrived at an agreement that the defendant should deliver possession of the house on payment of Rs. 500 by the plaintiff and on the defendant failing to do so, the plaintiff sued on the basis of this agreement:

Held, that the suit was maintainable even though the agreement was not registered inasmuch as

(i) it did not contemplate any transfer of interest in immoveable property; and

(ii) the suit was one for possession and not for a declaration of title. [p. 862, col. 1.]

Appeal from the decree of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Wallis, dated the 26th September 1912, in the exercise of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court and made in Civil Suit No. 352 of 1912.

Mr. K. Naraina Row, for the Appellant.

Mr. S. Varadachariar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

WHITE, C. J.—As regards the question of fact in dispute, namely, what were the terms of the compromise entered into between the Vakils of the parties in Civil Suit No. 155 of 1908, I think it is clear on the evidence that one of the terms of that compromise was that the present defendants were to deliver to the present plaintiff the house, the possession of which is asked for in the present suit. The two Vakils, who appeared for the parties in Suit No. 155 of 1908, gave evidence in this suit and their evidence is in substantial agreement that one of the terms of the compromise in the suit of 1908 was that delivery of the house in question should be given by the present defendants to the present plaintiff.

The point was taken on behalf of the appellant that inasmuch as the compromise in the suit of 1908 was reduced into writing, under the provisions of section 92 of the Evidence Act oral evidence for the purpose of adding terms to the compromise which are not to be found in the written document is inadmissible. The first answer to that contention appears to me to be that the compromise in the suit of 1908 was not reduced into writing. The appellant relies upon an endorsement made by Mr. Justice Sankaran Nair on the plaint in the suit of 1908. That endorsement is in these terms: "It is represented that the matter has been settled by the defendants Nos. 2 and 3 agreeing to withdraw the suit. Adjourned to to-morrow for payment of the money". It seems perfectly clear that that does not purport to be, and is not a record of the terms of the compromise. It is merely a note of the learned Judge as the ground on which he was prepared to make an order of adjournment. In this endorsement, there is no reference either to an undertaking by the plaintiff to pay Rs. 500 or to an undertaking by the defendants to deliver up possession of the house. Then we have a formal order made by the Registrar under the powers conferred on him under the rules allowing the plaintiff in the suit of 1908 to withdraw that suit. There, again, we have no reference either to the Rs. 500 or to the agreement to deliver up possession of the house. Even if there was any writing which recorded this compromise, inasmuch as the settlement was arrived at out of Court, it is not one of the matters which, under section 92 of the Evidence Act, was to be reduced into writing. Mr. Justice Wallis says with regard to this: "It appears to me that what happened really was, in the turn that events took, that the suit was withdrawn upon a settlement made out of Court." Then, he goes on to observe: "It is always open to the plaintiff to withdraw his suit, if he does not ask for permission to bring a fresh suit. The Court cannot prevent him from doing so, but he is liable to have an order made to pay costs of the other side, but subject to that, his withdrawing the suit is a matter in his own control, and so far as I know it is perfectly open to parties to settle a case out of Court and to withdraw the suit in consequence of the settlement."

The real crux of the case arises in connection with the point taken by the appellant, that, inasmuch as the settlement affected immoveable property, the plaintiff who relies on the settlement cannot succeed because there is no registered document in writing. The learned Judge, referring to this, says: "It is contended that this amounts to a transfer of immoveable property, which is invalid for want of registration under the terms of the Transfer of Property Act." It is not suggested that the compromise itself required registration in order to give it validity. But the contention is that, assuming the compromise to be valid, no title vests in the plaintiff by reason of the absence of a registered document as required by section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act. The learned Judge did not think it necessary to consider this question, because he came to the conclusion on the facts of this case that the defendants were estopped from setting up a title in themselves. The learned Judge says: "The whole basis of the settlement was that the plaintiff in that suit had no rights to transfer at all" (the original is 'rights' and the point is 'right'), What the learned Judge means is that the basis of the settlement was that there were no rights of property in the defendants and if there were no rights of property in the defendants, there was nothing to transfer and there was nothing that could bring into play the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act. He goes on to say: "The compromise was that they were to abandon their claim to any rights and the basis of the settlement was that they had no rights". I may put it in this way, that the basis of the settlement was that any rights which the plaintiffs in that suit might claim to set up—that their conveyance to the man Talukana was not an effective conveyance—, or that any rights which they might set up, assuming that the conveyance to Talukana was an effective conveyance, that they had acquired rights by reason of possession as against Talukana or his representatives—the basis of the compromise was that all these rights were abandoned for good consideration. The learned Judge finds in so many words that the defendants were estopped on the facts of the case from setting up a title in themselves. He does not find in so many words that the defendants were estopped from setting up the case that as between them and the plaintiff, the plaintiff was not entitled to possession. But I think that is involved in his finding. I do not say that I do not agree with the learned Judge in his finding as to estoppel on the facts proved. But it seems to me that the decree of the learned Judge may be supported on another ground.

The plaintiff in this case asks for possession of certain property. He does not ask for a declaration of his title to the property. If in this case a plea had been formally raised that the plaintiff had no title because there had been no registered instrument, it seems to me that, as a matter of pleading, it would have been a good reply to that plea for the plaintiff to say: "I admit I have no registered instrument as evidence of my title to the property in question, but the plea that I have no registered instrument is immaterial because I am not asking for a declaration of my title to the property, but for possession of the property by virtue of an agreement between you and me under which you, in consideration of money paid by me to you, undertook to give me possession."

It seems to me that for these reasons we can support the judgment of the learned Judge, and I think that this appeal should be dismissed with costs.

SANKARAN NAIR, J.—I agree.

Appeal dismissed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 2189 OF 1912.

February 17, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Fletcher and Mr. Justice Teunon.

GANDA SINGH—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

CHUNI LAL SHAHA—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Animal—Injury caused by vicious horse—Defendant knowingly keeping vicious horse, liability of—Negligence, if necessary to support action—Damages, suit for.

The defendant knowingly kept a horse which was a vicious animal. The horse injured the plaintiff and he sued for damages:

Held, that the defendant must be held liable notwithstanding that he was not guilty of negligence, as negligence was not necessary to support a suit of this nature. [p. 863, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge, second Court, Burdwan, dated the 20th of May 1912, reversing that of the Munsif, first Court, Katwa, dated the 17th of February 1911.

Babu Surendra Chandra Sen, for the Appellant.

Babu D. N. Bagchi, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

FLETCHER, J.—This is an appeal from a judgment of the learned Subordinate Judge of Burdwan reversing the decision of the Munsif. The suit was brought by the plaintiff, who is the appellant, before us to recover Rs. 200 as damages for the injuries he suffered by reason of his having been bitten by a mischievious animal, to wit, a horse belonging to the defendant. The Munsif decreed the suit and awarded to the plaintiff Rs. 200 as damages. On appeal to the lower Appellate Court, the learned Subordinate Judge reversed that decision.

The first point is whether this was a vicious animal, and whether the defendant had knowledge of the propensities of the animal. The learned Subordinate Judge found that, on the admitted facts of the case, the horse had bitten three people on previous occasions, namely, twice a groom and, on one occasion, an outsider. Against this evidence, the learned Subordinate Judge held that that did not establish the fact that the animal was a vicious animal. That is a finding altogether contrary to the whole body of the evidence. On the admissions of the defendant, it is quite clear that this animal, in fact, was a vicious animal and the learned Subordinate Judge ought to have so found on the evidence before him. The findings he has made are wholly unwarranted by the evidence.

The next point is "did this horse bite the plaintiff?" The learned Subordinate Judge agreeing with the Munsif has found that it did, in fact, bite the plaintiff. But he has come to the conclusion that the defendant was not guilty of negligence. That is not necessary to support a suit of this nature. If the horse was a vicious animal, and if that fact was known to the defendant and knowing this he kept the horse, and if it injured the plaintiff then the defendant must be held liable, notwithstanding that he has not been guilty of negligence. Negligence is not a necessary ingredient of a suit of this nature. Therefore, the finding of the Subordinate Judge that the plaintiff was bitten by the defendant's horse is prima facie sufficient to entitle the plaintiff to damages.

Then the learned Subordinate Judge makes a finding that the plaintiff has been guilty of contributory negligence. What he means is difficult to gather, but I suppose what he means is that the case comes under the maxim volenti non fit injuria, that the plaintiff deliberately placed himself in this position in trying to rescue his horse and, therefore, was bitten by the defendant's horse. There is nothing to show that the plaintiff so placed himself or that he was aware that the horse of the defendant was a vicious animal and that he incurred these injuries in his attempt to rescue his own horse well knowing that, if he did so, he would probably receive these injuries from the defendant's vicious horse. There is nothing to support any such finding and there is nothing to suggest that the plaintiff did, in fact, know that the defendant's horse was vicious. On the findings of fact, the learned Subordinate Judge ought to have, in my opinion, come to the same conclusion as the learned Munsif. We ought, therefore, to set aside the decree passed by the learned Subordinate Judge and restore the decree passed by the Munsif. The appeal will, therefore, be allowed, the decree of the lower Appellate Court will be set aside and that of the Court of first instance restored. The defendant must pay to the plaintiff his costs both in this Court and in the Courts below.

TEUNON, J.—I agree.

Appeal allowed.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 6 OF 1912.

April 6, 1914.

Present:—Sir Henry Hartnoll, KT., Offg. Chief Judge and Mr. Justice Twomey.

AUNG BYU AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

THET HNIN—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Buddhist Law—Marriage—Imprisonment of husband Desertion—Dissolution of marriage—Right to claim divorce—Right to joint property.

Under the Buddhist Law there is no authority for holding that a man sentenced to imprisonment is thereby to be deemed to have deserted his wife. [p. 864, col. 1.]

During the imprisonment of the husband, his wife has no right to take a second husband, and if she does so, her conduct amounts to desertion and adultery, and she cannot claim a divorce by pleading the desertion. [p. 864, col. 1.]

The marriage is not dissolved by the desertion but from the day when the first husband on his release from jail demands the joint property from her. [p. 864, col. 2.]

Where the husband treats the marriage as at an end on the ground of his wife's desertion and adultery he is entitled to all the joint property of the parties. [p. 864, col. 2.]

Mr. Hay, for the Appellant.

Mr. Dantra, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

TWOMEY, J.—The plaintiff-respondent, Maung Thet Hnin, was convicted of murder, and sentenced to transportation for life in 1899: but in 1911 the remainder of his sentence was remitted and he was released. At the time of his conviction he left a wife, Ma Aung Byu, with four young children, and the land and other joint property of the married couple was admittedly sufficient for the maintenance of Ma Aung Byu and the children. About three years after Thet Hnin's conviction Ma Aung Byu took another husband, Kyaw Zan Hla, with whom she has since lived. When Thet Hnin came back from transportation, he demanded the joint property from Ma Aung

Byu. She would agree only to give him a moiety of the joint property. There was a reference to arbitration but nothing came of it, and Thet Hnin brought the present suit against Ma Aung Byu and Kyaw Zan Hla for the recovery of the property acquired during the marriage of Thet Hnin and Ma Aung Byu.

The plaintiff's case is that Ma Aung Byu had no right to take a second husband and that in doing so she was guilty of adultery and desertion. Ma Aung Byu, on the other hand, contends that she was entitled to take another husband when three years had elapsed from the time of Thet Hnin's conviction, and that by taking a second husband she did not forfeit her share in the joint property. There is no authority for holding that a man sentenced to imprisonment is thereby to be deemed to have deserted his wife. The Dhammathats do not provide for such a contingency. But sections 244 to 249 and 390 to 393 of the ex-Kinwun Mingyi's Digest deal with cases in which a husband goes on a journey or goes to war, and they show that the wife must wait indefinitely for her husband's return—at any rate as long as she has adequate means of subsistence from the joint estate. Having regard to the spirit of these rules, I think it is clear that Ma Aung Byu had no right to take a second husband, and I would accept the decision of the District Court that her conduct in doing so amounted to desertion and adultery. It has been held, however, that desertion does not ipso facto and without any further and express act of volition on the part of either party dissolve the marriage-tie, Thein Pe v. U. Pet (1). We have, therefore, to consider when the marriage-tie was actually dissolved. Was it dissolved by the act of Ma Aung Byu in taking a second husband or did it subsist until 1911 when Thet Hnin returned from transportation? The Upper Burma case Ma Thin v. Maung Kyaw Ya (2) is good authority for the view that the deserting party cannot claim a divorce by pleading the desertion, and Sir Harvey Adamson expressed himself in favour of the same view in Thein Pe v. U Pet (1) though the point was not decided in that case. I would follow the interpretation adopted by the learned Judicial Commissioner, Upper Burma, and hold that the marriage-tie between Thet Hnin and Ma Aung Byu was not dissolved by her action in deserting him, but subsisted until Thet Hnin was released from jail and demanded the joint property from Ma Aung Byu. By that express act he took his stand upon the fact of the desertion and treated his marriage-tie with Ma Aung Byu as severed.

It is admitted that in the case of a divorce on the ground of the wife's adultery the husband is entitled to all the property, and where as in this case the husband treats the marriage as at an end on the ground of his wife's desertion and adultery there is no good reason to depart from the ordinary rule.

The District Court has decided that certain property to the value of Rs. 3,675 was in Ma Aung Byu's possession when she took Kyaw Zan Hla as her husband, and a decree has been given against both the defendants-appellants for this property. As regards the Yindaw paddy land and the Payagon paddy land there is no dispute. The Kundaw garden land was admittedly bought in the interval between Thet Hnin's conviction and the second marriage and it was rightly treated as part of the joint estate. The house built by Ma Aung Byu at Kundaw was built before the second marriage and that also was rightly included in the joint property. The moveable property decreed in Thet Hnin's favour consisted of: —

	Rs.
Two tickals of gold valued at ...	60
A cart	30
Cash	600
Eighty baskets of paddy ...	80
Debt paid by Ma To Le ...	500
Interest on this debt	150

As regards the gold and the cart and the paddy I think the value of these may be set against the expenses incurred by Ma Aung Byu in maintaining herself and the children after the second marriage. It is true that they also had the produce of the lands belonging to Thet Hnin. But even if this produce is taken into account, the aggregate amount available for maintenance was not excessive. I would, therefore, disallow these three items of Rs. 60 and Rs. 30 and Rs. 80. Against the amount of cash, Rs. 600, which was admittedly in Ma Aung Byu's hands, should be set off the amount which were given to the two eldest children when they were married. Po Chon received Rs. 150 and Ma Mya got jewellery to the value of Rs. 130, total Rs. 280. The item Rs. 600 should, therefore, be reduced to Rs. 320. I cannot agree with the District Judge that the defendants should pay Rs. 500 plus Rs. 150 in respect of the transactions with Ma To Le. In dealing with this item the learned Judge has relied on Ma Aung Byu's alleged admissions in Exhibit B, a note of evidence taken by a clerk in the course of the abortive arbitration proceedings. Exhibit B was wrongly admitted in evidence. The proper course would have been to question Po Saw, the writer (P. W. No. 2), as to what Ma Aung Byu said at the time. Po Saw could then have refreshed his memory by referring to Exhibit B under section 159, Evidence Act. As the case stands, Exhibit B must be excluded from consideration altogether. According to Ma Aung Byu's evidence she received interest at Rs. 30 per cent. per annum for two years on the loan of Rs. 200 to Ma To Le. In the third year Ma To Le failed to pay interest and gave her land in usufructuary mortgage for Rs. 500, which sum presumably consisted of the original debt of Rs. 200 plus one year's interest, Rs. 60, plus cash, Rs. 240. Subsequently, a further sum of Rs. 300 was paid to Ma To Le who then sold the land outright to Ma Aung Byu and Kyaw Zan Hla. The second sum of Rs. 300 according to Ma Aung Byu was obtained by sale of the produce of her lands. If it were proved that the additional advances paid to Ma To Le came out of the joint estate, it would be reasonable to make Ma Aung Byu, who now has Ma To Le's land, refund the money to Thet Hnin. But there is no satisfactory proof on this point. Moreover, Thet Hnin did not demand these amounts from Ma Aung Byu. He asked only for the original loan of Rs. 200. In the circumstances I would hold Ma Aung Byu responsible only for Rs. 200, the amount of the original loan to Ma To Le, and Rs. 60, the amount of interest which Ma To Le could not pay. Both these amounts were afterwards merged in the sum of Rs. 800, the price for which Ma Aung Byu took over the land from Ma To Le, and I think she should pay these sums, aggregating Rs. 260, to Thet Hnin as part of the joint estate.

(1) 3 L. B. R. 175.
(2) U. B. R. (1892—96) II 56.

I would, therefore, modify the decree of the lower Court by awarding to the plaintiff as against both defendants—

	Rs.
Yindaw paddy land valued at ...	1,600
Payagon paddy land valued at ...	400
Kundaw garden land valued at ...	95
Kundaw house valued at	160
Cash Rs. 320 plus Rs. 260	580

together with costs on the aggregate amount, Rs. 2,835.

I see no sufficient reason to allow the defendants' costs on the difference between the amount decreed and the amount (Rs. 5,595) at which the relief claimed was valued in the plaint. The Court-fee payable on the plaint is Rs. 305 of which, however, only Rs. 170 (Court-fee on the amount now decreed) is payable by the defendants. The difference must be paid by the plaintiff. The Court-fees recoverable from the parties will be a first charge on the property decreed.

HARTNOLL, OFFG. C. J.—I concur.

Decree modified.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 3032 OF 1912.

February 18, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, KT., and Mr. Justice Richardson.

HERA LAL ROY CHOWDHURY—

PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

LOKENATH SHAHA AND OTHERS—

—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Easement—Latrine erected on another man's land—Enjoyment for long series of years—Right of easement, if acquired—Right unknown to law—New easement, if created—Pleadings.

Where the plaintiff along with some of the defendants erected latrines on land which did not belong to them, and used them for a long series of years and thereafter claimed a right of easement:

Held, that no question of easement arose in the case, for an easement of this description was unknown to law and the Court would not create a new species of easement. [p. 866, col. 1.]

Keppell v. Bailey, 2 Myl. & K. 517; Coop. Temp. Brough 298; 39 E. R. 1042; 39 R. R. 264; and Hill v. Tupper, 2 H. & C. 121; 32 L. J. Ex. 217; 9 Jur. (N. S.) 725; 8 L. T. 792; 11 W. R. 784; 133 R. R. 605, referred to.

Where, as in the present case, the act of the plaintiff was in the nature of trespass and it might perhaps have been open to him to contend that he had acquired a good title to the disputed property by adverse possession, but where no such claim was set forth at any stage of the litigation:

Held, that the plaintiff could not be permitted to make a case inconsistent with the title alleged in the plaint and that the relief sought could not be granted [p. 866, col. 2.]

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge, Barisal, dated the 26th June 1912, reversing that of the Officiating Munsif, 7th Court, Barisal, dated the 16th of May 1911.

Babus Mohendra Nath Ray and Brojendra Nath Chatterjee, for the Appellant.

Babus Jogesh Chandra Roy, Biraj Mohan Mozumdar and Asita Ranjan Ghosh, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal by the plaintiff in a suit for enforcement of right of easement of a novel description. The case for the plaintiff is that he, along with some of the defendants, had erected these privies on the disputed property, that they had used the latrines for many years past and that on the 5th February 1908 the latrines were wrongfully demolished by the defendants who also raised an obstruction across the path which led to them. The claim was based on prescription, on implied grant and on necessity. The Subordinate Judge has dismissed the suit on the ground that an easement of this description is unknown to the law; he has also found that no grant can be implied in the circumstances of the case, that the alleged necessity has not been established, and that if the latrines were restored, they would constitute a nuisance to the residents of the neighbourhood. In our opinion, the view taken by the Subordinate Judge is manifestly right.

If, as is alleged by the plaintiff, he along with the defendants erected latrines on land which did not belong to them, and used them for a long series of years, no question of easement arises. An easement of this description is unknown to law, and it is well settled that the Court will not create a new species of easement [Keppell v. Bailey (1), Hill v. Tupper (2); Laws of England, edited by Halsbury, Volume XI, section 500]. In the present case, the act of the plaintiff was in the nature of trespass and it might perhaps have been open to him to contend that he had acquired a good title to the disputed property by adverse possession. No such claim, however, has been set forth at any stage of the litigation, and he cannot now be permitted to make a case inconsistent with the title alleged in the plaint. In our opinion, the relief sought cannot possibly be granted.

An application has finally been made to the Court for leave to withdraw the suit so that the plaintiff may have a fresh chance of litigation. We are of opinion that this application should not be granted. The Subordinate Judge has pointed out that there are Municipal latrines in the neighbourhood, and it is eminently undesirable that the plaintiff should have further opportunity to press an entirely unfounded claim.

The result is that the decree of the Court below is affirmed and this appeal dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 2 Myl. & K. 517; Coop. temp. Brough, 298; 39 E. R. 1042; 39 R. R. 264.

(2) 2 H. & C. 121; 32 L. J. Ex. 217; 9 Jur. (N. S). 725; 8 L. T. 792; 11 W. R. 784; 133 R. R. 605.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

SPECIAL SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 227 OF 1913.

May 8, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Parlett.

RAHIMA BI alias MA TA—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

MAHAMED SALEH—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Muhammadan Law—Marriage between a Hanafi and a Shafi girl—Girl's father not consenting—Marriage, if valid—Siyeeba.

Where the marriage ceremony between a Hanafi and a Shafi girl was hurriedly and clandestinely gone through with the knowledge that the girl's father did not and would not consent to it, and to satisfy the Mullah, should that be necessary, the story of her conversion to the Hanafi sect was invented:

Held, that the circumstances under which and the manner in which the so-called marriage was performed were such that the usual presumption in favour of its validity could not be made; [p. 868, col. 2.]

that it was invalid for want of consent of the girl's father; [p. 868, col. 2.]

that under Shafi Law a woman who under any circumstances had connection with a man became Siyeeba. [p. 868, col. 1.]

Mr. Israil Khan, for the Appellant.

Mr. J. R. Das, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—Plaintiff in this case sued for restitution of conjugal rights. The parties are Muhammadans, plaintiff belonging to the Hanafi sect, defendant to the Shafi. His case is that they eloped together from her aunt's house in Sitkegon, and went to a Burman, Maung Ba Tun's house in Daingwunkwin, where they were married according to Muhammadan custom on 21st July 1911. They then lived together for three weeks in plaintiff's father's house in Moulmein, and thereafter for one and a half months in her aunt's house. Then under her father's and aunt's influence she refused him access and he has not seen her since. Defendant denies that the marriage was valid, as her father was neither present at it nor consented to it. She admits cohabiting with plaintiff for a short time at his parent's house, and says she left him on account of his wife being there, and returned to her aunt's and father's houses; she denies that he visited her there. The District Court held that there was nothing to show that defendant was not a virgin at the time the marriage ceremony was gone through, and consequently by the Shafi Law there could be no valid marriage without the consent of her guardian, in this instance her father, and that admittedly was not obtained. The suit was, therefore, dismissed. On appeal the Divisional Court held that she had lost her virginity by cohabiting with plaintiff for some eight days before the ceremony of marriage, and had thereby become a siyeeba and that, therefore, her father's consent was unnecessary to the marriage, which in other respects was regular. Plaintiff was, therefore, granted a decree. Defendant now appeals on two grounds, first, that intercourse, after elopement with the man with whom the marriage ceremony was subsequently gone through, did not render her a siyeeba within the meaning of the Muhammadan Law, and secondly, that even if it did, her marriage without her father's consent would still be invalid under the Shafi Law.

The facts are that at the time of suit the girl was 19 or 20 years of age; her mother had long been dead, and she had been living with her aunt, Ma Aung. Her father had married again and had a wife and second family at Kyauktalon: when in Moulmein, however, he lived in the same house as Ma Aung and defendant. He had rejected a proposal from plaintiff for his daughter's hand. He says he objects to the match, as plaintiff already had a wife and gave himself out to defendant as a bachelor. The young couple then eloped and went and lived in one Ba Tun's house at Daingwunkwin. Some four days later plaintiff, his father, a maistry of theirs, named Abdulla, and a Pleader, named Abdul Rahim, a brother-in-law of plaintiff and a tenant of his father, went and called the Mullah from a mosque on admittedly false pretences and took him off in a gharry to Ba Tun's house. On the way Abdul Rahim and Abdulla told him he was wanted to perform a marriage ceremony. At the house he did not see the bride, but was told that plaintiff's father was her vakil, and that she was a Shafi but had been converted to the Hanafi, the bridegroom's sect. He performed the ceremony at ten o'clock at night with Abdul Rahim and Abdulla as witnesses, plaintiff, his father, acting as the girl's vakil, and a Burman being the only others present. Not having brought his register he wrote the marriage certificate on a loose sheet of paper which the bride is said to have signed (Exhibit A). The Mullah puts the date a day later than plaintiff, 22nd July 1911. It is admitted that the girl was hidden from her father and aunt and that the marriage was performed without their knowledge, as it was known that the father would not consent and it was feared he would take her away. About four days later the couple moved to plaintiff's father's house and lived there about three weeks. Then the young couple visited her father's and aunt's house. According to the plaint she remained there and plaintiff visited her regularly: defendant in her written statement denied that he so visited her there. In his evidence plaintiff tried to make out that the two of them lived together in her father's and aunt's house: his own witness, Ma Thein, who lives close to Ma Aung, did not, however, bear this out, and there is no doubt it is untrue. The point is unimportant except as showing how unscrupulous plaintiff and his father are. It is clear, therefore, that the marriage ceremony was hurriedly and clandestinely gone through with the knowledge that the girl's father did not and would not consent to it. It is clear too that plaintiff's father, at any rate, had suspicions that a Shafi girl could only marry with her father's consent, and, therefore, he invented the lie that she was converted to the Hanafi sect to satisfy the Mullah, should that be necessary.

It was not denied in this Court that intercourse between the parties took place after the elopement and before the marriage ceremony. No authority was cited for the proposition that such intercourse would not constitute her a siyeeba in the eyes of Muhammadan Law. On the other hand I gather from a passage at page 35 of Hamilton's Hedaya that under Shafi Law a woman who has under any circumstances had connection with a man becomes a siyeeba. On this point I think the Divisional Court was right.

Very little light has been thrown by the arguments of Counsel upon the question whether though defendant was a siyeeba, her father's consent was still indispensable to her valid marriage. No evidence was given as to the source or authority of the various texts quoted in the lower Court on plaintiff's behalf, nor do they all by any means bear out the legal proposition on which he relies. Among them Exhibit B lays down that no guardian has power to compel a siyeeba woman of the Shafi sect to a marriage against her will: but it goes on to say that if she consents to any one else performing her marriage, he can do so as her agent. Exhibit C is against him as it says no Shafi marriage is valid which is contracted without the consent of the guardian and the presence of two upright witnesses. In the present case even the witnesses cannot be called independent. Exhibit E says that the guardian's authority ceases when a Shafi siyeeba woman attains her majority. Though, however, he may be unable any longer to compel her to a marriage, it does not necessarily follow that she can contract one without his consent. Exhibit G points out that a siyeeba being under no one's guardianship is incapable of pronouncing the proposal or acceptance required in a marriage ceremony: she must, therefore, give permission to some man to make the declaration on her behalf, Exhibit H also says that a Shafi siyeeba who has attained her majority can give assent to some one to effect her marriage. As the former text expressly notes that the Hanafi Law does not require her to authorize anyone, it may be that these passages, if authoritative, merely emphasize the difference between the Shafi and Hanafi schools as regards the necessity for the guardian's consent and refer to the case where the woman's natural guardian, i. e., father, is no longer alive, which would frequently happen when the siyeeba had been previously married. Exhibit F alone states that "a virgin girl of the Shafi sect who has attained maturity marries a man of the Hanafi sect or of the Shafi sect and if her father is not willing, even if he desires to nullify the marriage, it will be valid notwithstanding," and this text so exactly fits the present plaintiff's case as to suggest the possibility that it may have been made to do so. Certainly its authority is not shown. On the other hand Sir Roland Wilson, a recognised authority on Muhammadan Law, writes that according to the Shafi doctrines "No woman, whether a virgin or not, can give herself in marriage without the intervention of a guardian" (Anglo Muhammadan Law, 4th Edition Article 392) and again "If a person has been contracted in marriage by an unauthorized agent, the transatcion cannot be rendered valid through the principal's ratification." (Anglo-Muhammadan Law, 4th Edition, Article 394). The circumstances under which and the manner in which the so-called marriage in this case was performed are such that the usual presumption in favour of its validity cannot be made. Authority has not been shown for holding that it was valid notwithstanding the want of defendant's father's consent, whereas there is good authority to show that it was not valid. I, therefore, hold that the validity of the marriage is not made out, and reverse the decree of the Divisional Court and restore that of the District Court with costs throughout, Advocate's fees in this Court two gold mohurs.

Decree reversed.

SHEO NANDAN LAL v. JAINUL ABDIN.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 245 OF 1911.

November 25, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Coxe and Mr. Justice Richardson.

Lala SHEO NANDAN LAL—DEFENDANT No. 2—APPELLANT

versus

Moulvi JAINUL ABDIN AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 55, sub-sec. (4), cl. (b)—Charge, meaning of—Debt and security, if can be transferred.

The charge mentioned in section 55, sub-section (4) clause (b) of the Transfer of Property Act, is not a personal right of the seller himself, and, therefore, can be transferred to an assignee. The debt itself can be transferred and also the security for it. [p. 869, col. 2.]

Hari Ram v. Denaput Singh, 9 C. 167; 11 C. L. R. 339 and Motilal v. Bhagwan Das, 3 Ind. Cas. 497; 6 A. L. J. 645; 31 A. 443, distinguished.

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge, Saran, dated the 24th of September 1910, modifying that of the Munsif, 2nd Court, Chapra, dated the 26th of February, 1910.

Dr. Dwarka Nath Mitter and Babu Satindra Nath Mukherjee, for the Appellant.

Moulvi Muhammad Mustafa Khan, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

COXE, J.—This was a suit for the recovery of Rs. 1,000 said to be a portion of the unpaid purchase-money of Mauza Dumdama and, therefore, charged upon that village. This village was sold in 1902 by Ashraf Hossain and Abdul Haq to the appellant. Out of the purchase-money a sum of Rs. 1,000 was kept by the appellant on the understanding that he should in September 1903 pay it to one Mahomed Kazim in payment of a mortgage by conditional sale of two villages, which may briefly be described as Galile and Katsa. Abdul Haq died and this suit was brought by Ashraf Hossain as one of Abdul Haq's heirs and by the other heirs of Abdul Haq. The facts are not very definitely found by the Courts below, but, if I understand their judgment right, they think that Ashraf Hossain in 1904 gave the right of redeeming Galib and Katsa to his daughter, Bibi Azizan, in order that she might obtain those villages by paying the mortgage-money, viz. Rs. 1,000, from her own pocket; and that in 1905 he gave to Abdul Haq, his son, his interest in the right of recovering the sum of Rs. 1,000 which was in deposit with the appellant. The appellant had not paid the money although it was two years after the due date, and perhaps there seemed little likelihood of his doing so. In 1906 Abdul Haq gave the appellant notice to pay this money, but as he did not do so, the present suit was instituted. After the suit was instituted the appellant bought the equity of redemption of Galile and Katsa from Azizan and asserts that he gave her the sum of Rs. 1,000 to be paid by her to the original mortgagee. This allegation was supported by Azizan. The Court below does not believe that this sum was ever paid and has given the plaintiffs a decree.

On behalf of the appellant it is first contended that the suit cannot be maintained by the present plaintiffs on the ground that the charge mentioned in section 55 sub-section 4, clause (b), of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, is a personal right of the seller himself, and cannot be transferred to an assignee. There is, however, no real authority in support of this view. The cases cited, Hari Ram v. Denaput Singh (1) and Moti Lal v. Bhagwan Das (2), are quite different and do not support the present contention. The debt itself could certainly be transferred and I see no reason why the security for the debt should not also be transferred with it.

Secondly, it is contended that, as the defendant says that he has paid Azizan and is supported by Azizan, the plaintiffs can have no right to the money. The Judge, however, finds as a fact that this payment was not made. And if it is the case, as the Courts below evidently think, that in consequence of the appellant's neglect to pay the money Ashraf Hossain decided to cancel the arrangement under which the appellant had to pay the money to the original mortgagee, and transferred to Abdul Haq his right to recover the money directly from the appellant, the payment to Azizan could not possibly be a valid discharge of the appellant's obligation. Notice was given to the appellant to return the money before the institution of the suit and the alleged payment to

(1) 9 C. 167; 11 C. L. R. 339.
(2) 3 Ind. Cas. 497; 6 A. L. J. 645; 31 A. 443.

Azizan was made long after the suit was instituted.

The only other point that has been pressed is that the plaintiffs are not entitled to the whole of the money. This, however, is not raised in the grounds of appeal, and the other defendants, who are prejudiced by this decision if it is wrong in this respect, do not appeal. The appellant is clearly bound to pay the sum, and it matters nothing to him how the plaintiffs and the other defendants divide it among themselves.

The appeal must be dismissed with costs.

RICHARDSON, J.—I agree.

Appeal dismissed.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 186 OF 1913.

June 24, 1914.

Present:—Justice Sir Henry Hartnoll and Mr. Justice Twomey.

A. J. ROBERTSON—APPLICANT

versus

KO CHEIK AND OTHERS—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Lien—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 171, 217, 221—Barrister—Equitable lien—Money paid into Court—Protest, nature of.

In satisfaction of a decree a large sum was paid into Court, through a Barrister, under protest saying that owing to a mistake in the decree more money was deposited than was actually due under it. This sum was afterwards attached in execution of another decree against the judgment-debtor in the first decree. The Barrister claimed a lien over portion of the sum deposited:

Held, that the Barrister had no lien against the sum under sections 171, 217 and 221, of the Contract Act; [p. 870, col. 2.]

that the rule of Solicitor's equitable lien in England did not apply to the case, the Barrister having obtained no decree in favour of his client, and there being not fruits to obtain a lien on; [p. 870, col. 2.]

that as the Barrister had parted with the possession of the money without making any reference to his lien for fees, the amount of fees could not be regarded as having been paid in under protest. [p. 870, col. 2; p. 871, col. 1.]

JUDGMENT.

HARTNOLL, J.—A mortgage-decree was passed against Mr. Robertson's clients, Maung Kala and Ma Gauk, and in satisfaction thereof it is stated that Rs. 9,395-9-10 was paid into Court. Mr. Robertson states that this included a sum of Rs. 402 over and above what was due, owing to a mistake in the decree, and that it was paid in under protest. This sum has now been attached in execution of a decree obtained in another suit against Maung Kala and has been paid out in pursuance of that attachment; but Mr. Robertson claims a lien over Rs. 217 of it as being due to him on account of his fees.

Firstly, in support of his claim he urges that he has an equitable lien over it, and he relies on what is called the Solicitor's equitable lien in England. The nature of this lien is given at page 23 of Volume XIX of Halsbury's Laws of England, and is stated as follows: "A Solicitor is entitled not only to a common law lien for his charges upon documents in his possession belonging to his clients, but also to a lien of an equitable nature upon the fruits of judgments and orders obtained by him in favour of his clients in the suit in which he was employed for his costs in that suit."

Now apart from the fact that Mr. Robertson is a Barrister-at-Law and a general law agent both acting and pleading for his clients, the above rule cannot be held to apply to this case. He obtained no decree in favour of his clients and there were no fruits to obtain a lien on. The question, therefore, whether the rule should be applied to men like Mr. Robertson in this country need not be considered. He can quote no law nor rule giving such a lien in this country. His claim on the first ground put forward by him must fail.

His next ground is that he has a lien on the Rs. 217 by virtue of sections 171, 217 and 221 of the Contract Act; but he did not retain the Rs. 217 in his possession. He paid it into Court. He says that he paid it in under protest, but explains that his protest was not that he had such a lien as he claims on it but was merely a protest on behalf of his clients that they were paying in Rs. 402 more than was due by them. This protest on behalf of Mr. Robertson's clients was clearly no bar to the attachment of the extra money by the clients' creditors.

No protest was made as to Mr. Robertson's lien for fees, Rs. 217, included in the sum of Rs. 402. Seeing that he parted with possession of the money without making any reference to his lien for fees, I do not think we can regard the amount of the fees as having been paid in under protest.

I would, therefore, dismiss this application.

TWOMEY, J.—I concur.

Application dismissed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 216 OF 1913.

April 22, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Walmsley.

JANAB ALI MIA AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS —APPELLANTS

versus

NAZAMADDIN PRADHANIA AND OTHERS —PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Muhammadan Law—Fosterage—Natural son and foster daughter, marriage between, if legal—Relations of girl, if can question validity of marriage—Factum valet, principle of, how far applicable.

Under Muhammadan Law the prohibition regarding marriage attaching to a woman's natural son and foster-daughter is absolute, and not conditional upon the birth of the one and the suckling of the other occurring within any limited period. [p. 872, col. 1.]

It is not lawful for a female to marry any of the sons of the woman who has suckled her, because they are her brothers by fosterage. [p. 872, col. 1.]

Where the paternal relations of a girl brought a suit questioning the validity of the girl's marriage within four months of the marriage, and it appeared that the guardian of the girl had been abusing his position as guardian:

Held, that there was no error in granting the plaintiffs' prayer and allowing the plaintiffs to question the validity of the marriage. [p. 872, col. 1.]

The principle of factum valet does not render good in law a marriage which ought not in law to have been celebrated. [p. 872, col. 1.]

Sri Balusu Gurulingaswami v. Sri Balusu Rumalakshmamma, 21 A. 460; 26 I. A. 113; 3 C. W. N. 427; 22 M. 398; 9 M. L. J. 67, referred to.

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge, Tipperah, dated the 3rd of October 1912, affirming that of the Munsif, Additional Court, Chandpur, dated the 19th of August 1911.

Babu Gobinda Chandra Dey Roy, for the Appellants.

Dr. Sarat Chandra Bysack and Babu Jatindra Mohan Ghosh, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The principal question in appeal relates to the Muhammadan Law of fosterage. The necessary facts are as follows. The defendant No. 3, Newaz Ali, had a son born to him named Janab Ali, defendant No. 1. A few years later, Newaz Ali's wife, the mother of Janab Ali, took charge of Zohara Banu, defendant No. 2, and suckled her. Zohara Banu was then an infant in arms: the lower Courts have not found exactly what her age was when Newaz Ali's wife began to suckle her, but they have found that she had not been weaned and that she was suckled by the woman, which I regard as a finding that she was certainly less than two years and a half. Subsequently Newaz Ali, as certificated guardian of Zohara Banu, gave her in marriage to his son, Janab Ali. The lower Courts have held that such a marriage was unlawful, because by the law of fosterage the two children were prohibited from marrying.

The appellant, Newaz Ali, contends that the lower Appellate Court has misunderstood the authorities. The text-books on which both sides rely are Sir Roland Wilson's Digest of Anglo-Muhammadan Law, Article 37, Baillie's Digest of Muhammadan Law and Grady's Edition of Hamilton's Hedaya.

The difficulty arises from a clause in the explanation to Article 37 in Sir Roland Wilson's book viz., the clause, "or the suckling of one and the birth of the other as the case may be."

Where the relation established by fosterage is between two children who are both strangers to the foster mother, it may be that the prohibition attaches only if the two foster children partake of the same supply of milk, that is, if they are suckled within the same period of two years from the date when the flow of milk began, and, but for the clause which I have quoted, the explanation would seem to refer to this class of relation by fosterage. The clause, however, suggests by the words "birth of one" that it refers to the relation between the woman's natural child and her foster child. If the words do mean that prohibition between the natural child and the foster child does not attach when there has been a certain interval between the birth of the natural child and the suckling of the foster child then, I think, with all respect to the learned author, he goes beyond the text-books which he quotes. In the Hedaya there is this passage: "Prohibition is attached to the milk of the man (that is to say, to the milk of which he is the cause), if, for example, a woman nurse a female child, the latter is prohibited to her husband and to his father and son, because the husband through whom the woman's breasts have been filled with milk is as a father to the child." Again "it is not lawful for a female to marry any of the sons of the woman who has suckled her, because they are her brothers." Baillie is equally clear: "To the suckling, both his foster parents and their ascendants and descendants, either by natural descent or fosterage, are all prohibited, so that if his nurse should have already borne...a child to the same or to another man whether before the nursing or after it or should have nursed another infant...the whole would be brothers and sisters to the first suckling."

In view of these passages I must hold that the prohibition attaching to a woman's natural son and foster-daughter is absolute, and not conditional upon the birth of the one and the suckling of the other occurring within any limited period. That being so, there could not be a lawful marriage between Janab Ali and Zohara Banu.

It is also urged that the learned Subordinate Judge has erred in allowing the plaintiffs to question the validity of the marriage, because their motive is to escape from the liability to pay rent, and not to safeguard the welfare of Zohara Banu. It is found, however, that the plaintiffs are the girl's paternal relatives: they brought the suit within four months of the marriage; and the learned Munsif refers to various circumstances which suggest that Newaz Ali is abusing his position as guardian. Under these circumstances I cannot hold that there is any error in grantiug the plaintiffs' prayer.

The last suggestion is that as the marriage has been celebrated, and probably consummated, 'factum valet', but that principle does not render good in law a marriage which ought not in law to have been celebrated. [See the case of Sri Balusu Gurulingaswami v. Sri Ramalakshmamma (1)].

The appeal fails and it is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 22 M. 398; 21 A. 460; 26 I. A. 113; 3 C. W. N. 427; 9 M. L. J. 67.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

SPECIAL SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 76 OF 1913.

June 30, 1914.

Present:—Justice Sir Henry Hartnoll and Mr. Justice Ormond.

SIT YIN AND ANOTHER—APPELLANTS

versus

MA SHIN—RESPONDENT.

Lower Burma Towns and Village Lands Act (IV of 1898), s. 41—Jurisdiction of Civil or Revenue Court—Litigation between private persons—Eviction of a squatter by a squatter or of a sub-lessee by a lessee—Encroachment by lessee, whether can enure for benefit of lessor.

Where private persons litigate concerning claims to land not held under grant or lease from Government or under a license from the Revenue Officer, but which is at the disposal of Government, the jurisdiction of the Civil Court is not barred by section 41 (a) of the Lower Burma Towns and Village Lands Act. [p. 874, col. 1.]

Under the said Act the eviction of a squatter by another squatter, or of a sub-lessee by a lessee is not a matter that 'is to be determined by the Revenue Authority', and there is nothing in the Act to oust the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts in cases which do not involve the decision of any rights as against Government. [p. 875, col. 1.]

The benefit of an encroachment by a lessee on a neighbour's land enures for the benefit of the lessor. [p. 875, col. 1.]

Though section 108 B (d) of the Transfer of Property Act is not in force in Wakema, the principle embodied therein should be followed. [p. 874, col. 2.]

Secretary of State v. J. Moment, 18 Ind. Cas. 22; 13 M. L.T. 53; 17 C. W. N. 169; (1913) M. W. N. 45; 15 Bom. L. R. 27; 11 A. L. J. 49; 17 C. L. J. 194; 6 Bur. L. T. 1; 27 M. L. J. 459; 40 C. 931; 7 L. B. R. 10; 40 I. A. 48, distinguished.

Mr. Wiltshire, for the Appellants.

Mr. J. N. Lentaigne, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

HARTNOLL, J.—The appellants bring a suit against respondent for ejectment from certain land. Their case is that they purchased certain house property from one Ma Hnit, the house property including the site on which the structures stand. They allege that at the time of the purchase Ma Shin was in possession of the property as tenant to Ma Hnit, and that Ma Shin refused to pay rent and set up antagonistic claims. Ma Shin's defence is that, as regards a portion of the property, at the time of appellant's purchase from Ma Hnit she had already purchased the same from Ma Hnit and that appellants had notice of the same—that appellants' purchase was, therefore, fraudulent and invalid; as regards the rest of the property she claimed that she owned it and that the site on which the structures stood never belonged to Ma Hnit who had no disposing power over it. Before appellants brought their suit, she had sued Ma Hnit for specific performance of the alleged contract with her. She brought her suit on the 21st May 1910 and appellants brought theirs on the 14th June 1910. On the 16th March 1912 Ma Shin's suit for specific performance was dismissed and on the same day the appellants were given the decree of eviction against respondent that they prayed for. During the pendency of the civil proceedings on the 3rd March 1911 the Deputy Commissioner of Myaungmya cancelled the lease under which Ma Hnit held the property, exclusive of any extensions to it in her possession, for breach of conditions and said: "No action will be taken to evict the present occupants from possession provided that they apply for leases for the areas of which they are in occupation by April 15th." One of the breach of the conditions was the sale to appellants. On the 12th May 1911 the appellants applied for a lease of the portion that they were in possession of and it was granted on the 10th March 1913. Ma Hnit also applied on the 12th May 1911 for a lease of the portion of land remaining with her and was granted such on the 10th March 1913. In the meanwhile on the 21st December 1912 the Divisional Court dismissed the appeal of Ma Shin against the decree of the District Court refusing specific performance and the decree ordering her eviction on the ground that the jurisdiction of the Civil Court was barred by section 41 (a) of the Lower Burma Towns and Village Lands Act. This appeal is laid against the decree of the Divisional Court dismissing the appellants' suit asking for the eviction of Ma Shin. The first ground of appeal is that the Divisional Judge erred in holding that the Civil Courts had no jurisdiction to decide appellants' claim. The Divisional Court relied on the cases of J. Moment v. Secretary of State (1) and Maung Law v. Suppaya Padayachi (2). Section 41 is as follows:—"No Civil Court shall have jurisdiction to determine (a) any matter which, under this Act, is to be determined by the Revenue Officer;

(b) any claim to any right over land as against the Government." The last part of it has been held to be ultra vires according to the Privy Council decision. Secretary of State v. J. Moment (3).

Looking at the case of J. Moment v. Secretary of State (1) it will be seen that the suit was one by the Secretary of State against Moment for possession and it was dismissed as it was held that both clauses of section 41 of the Lower Burma Towns and Village Lands Act were a bar to the suit. That part of the decision which held that the suit was barred by section 41 (b) has been overruled. It remains to consider whether the remaining part of the decision which dealt with section 41 (a) is applicable in the present case. The case of J. Moment v. Secretary of State (1) was one in which the Secretary of State sued Moment for possession and was not one where the litigation was between two private persons, as in the present case. The point, therefore, whether section 41 (a) would be applicable in the case of two private persons litigating was not considered. In the case of Maung Law v. Suppaya Padayachi (2) the learned Judge did not apparently notice the distinction. As regards the words of the judgment in the case of Secretary of State v. J. Moment (3) I am not at all sure that the learned Judges meant them to apply in all cases. Adamson, C.J., said: "Section 18 prescribes the method of recovering possession of State land." It would appear that in this passage the learned Judge was contemplating litigation between Government and another person. In view of the foregoing considerations and especially in view of the fact that the case was one of the Secretary of State proceeding against a private person I am of opinion that we are not precluded by the decision from considering whether section 41 (a) bars the jurisdiction of the Civil Court where those litigating are on both sides private persons litigating about the right to occupy land which is at the disposal of Government. Section 41, clause (a), is "any matter, which, under this Act, is to be determined by the Revenue Officer." I can find no words in the Act laying down

(1) 3 L. B. R. 165.
(2) 3 L. B. R. 256.

(3) 18 Ind. Cas. 22; 7 L. B. R. 10; 13 M. L. T. 53; 17 C. W. N. 169; (1913) M. W. N. 45; 15 Bom. L. R. 27; 11 A. L. J. 49; 17 C. L. J. 194; 6 Bur. L. T. 1; 27 M. L. J. 459; 40 C. 391; 40 I. A. 48.

that all disputes over land at the disposal of Government are to be determined by a Revenue Officer. There are in the Lower Burma Towns and Village Lands Act no provisions corresponding to section 56 (a) read with section 55, first proviso, of the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876. In Chapter V of the Lower Burma Towns and Village Lands Act, I can find no provision that the only person who can evict from land at the disposal of Government is the Revenue Officer, and that no evictions can take place from such lands except by his order. Sections 18, 19 and 20 only lay down liability to eviction. I would, therefore, hold that where private persons litigate concerning claims to land not held under grant or lease from Government or under a license from the Revenue Officer, but which is land at the disposal of Government, the jurisdiction of the Civil Court is not barred by section 41 (a) of the Lower Burma Towns and Village Lands Act.

In accordance with this finding we have heard the appeal on its merits. Ma Shin does not deny that the appellants have brought the land in dispute from Ma Hnit, but she pleads that previous to the doing so Ma Hnit agreed to sell her two of the rooms for Rs. 3,100, earnest-money to the extent of Rs. 600 being paid and that, though appellants knew of this agreement to sell, they nevertheless ignored it and made their own purchase. She also pleads that, as regards the remaining two rooms, the northernmost ones, they never belonged to Ma Hnit and she had no right of disposal over them. As regards her first plea she brought a suit against Ma Hnit and the present appellants for specific performance of her alleged agreement with Ma Hnit. The suit was dismissed by the District Court on the merits. On appeal the Divisional Court dismissed it on the ground that the Civil Court has no jurisdiction. The Divisional Judge also expressed his own opinion on the merits. The evidence taken in that suit was by consent admitted as evidence in the present case. The first point for consideration is whether there was an agreement for sale entered into by Ma Hnit and Ma Shin as alleged by Ma Shin. Both the District and Divisional Courts found in the other suit that Ma Shin did not prove that there was. On studying the evidence I have come to the same conclusion. To find that there was I must come to the conclusion that Ma Hnit is wrongfully retaining the Rs. 600 which Ma Shin says she paid as earnest-money. Ma Hnit appears to be a respectable and aged lady; she also seems to be fairly well-to-do. I think it improbable that she would retain Ma Shin's Rs. 600. There were admittedly negotiations between Ma Hnit and Ma Shin with regard to Ma Hnit's selling the property; but the evidence as to their exact nature is conflicting. Maung Shwe Byaw, Ma Hnit's son, says that the Rs. 600 were taken and returned. There is evidence to show that the negotiations between Ma Hnit and Ma Shin fell through as Ma Hnit would not guarantee to bear any penalties the Government might impose on the owner of the property in respect of unauthorized erections on adjoining Government land. No apparent reason exists for disbelieving Po Twe in what he says in connection with this matter. No receipt was ever given for the Rs. 600. Again there is no good reason apparent for disbelieving Po Saing, who was admittedly the writer of the conveyance conveying the property in dispute to the appellants. His evidence does not corroborate that of Po Shwe when the latter says that he went and protested against the sale, but it does corroborate that of Po Ko who says that Po Shwe came to offer the Chinaman Rs. 1,500 in consideration of their not buying the house and of their allowing respondent to do so.

I am of opinion that Ma Shin has not proved her plea that there was an agreement for sale between her and Ma Hnit.

As regards the two northernmost rooms it appears that they were an extension made to the other two rooms and the panatchut by Ma Hnit's consent, the latter reducing the rent Rs. 10 in consequence. From the evidence it is not clear whether these extensions were made wholly, or partially, on Ma Hnit's land, or on land at the disposal of Government: but this does not seem to me to affect the matter. Though section 108 B (d) of the Transfer of Property Act is not in force in Wakema, it embodies a well-known principle of law that should be followed. If Ma Shin has encroached on Government land, such encroachment enures for the benefit of her lessor, Ma Hnit. She does not ask for compensation for the new erections, and it is clear that she has had her rent reduced Rs. 10 a month for a considerable time.

I would, therefore, set aside the decree of the Divisional Court and restore that of the District Court with costs to the appellants in all Courts.

ORMOND, J.—We are not concerned with the dealings by Government, in connection with the land in dispute since the institution of the suit. The case must be decided according to the circumstances in existence at the time of the institution of the suit. At that time, Ma Hnit's lease had not been cancelled; though, in my opinion, it is immaterial whether she ever had a lease from Government or not. There is nothing in the Lower Burma Towns and Village Lands Act to oust the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts in this case. The eviction of a squatter by another squatter or of a sub-lessee by a lessee is not a matter that "is to be determined by the Revenue Authority"; and the case does not involve the decision of any rights as against Government. Ma Shin, the appellant, admits that she was the tenant, as to the southern portion of the premises in dispute, of Ma Hnit, the plaintiffs' vendor; but she says she had agreed to buy this portion from Ma Hnit and had paid her Rs. 600 as part of the purchase-money. Both the lower Courts have found that there was no such contract for sale and no such payment. My learned colleague has stated the facts and I concur in upholding such finding. As to the northern portion of the premises, it was an extension made by Ma Shin on Government land. She had no license or lease from Government; it was, therefore, an encroachment by a lessee on a neighbour's land and the benefit of such encroachment enures for the benefit of the lessor, Ma Hnit. The plaintiffs, who bough' the premises from Ma Hnit, are, therefore, entitled to evict the respondent, Ma Shin, from the whole premises. I concur in the order proposed by my learned colleague.

Decree set aside.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 2218 OF 1912.

March 22, 1915.

Present.—Mr. Justice Holmwood and Mr. Justice Walmsley.

HANKAR RAI—DEFENDANT No. 1—APPELLANT

versus

KAMTA PROSHAD SAHU AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFF & DEFENDANT—RESPONDENTS.

Mortgage—Subsequent mortgagee, made party to suit on prior mortgage—Failure to appear—Right to raise afterwards plea of payment of prior lien—Test.

A subsequent mortgagee who has been made party to a suit on a prior mortgage but who has failed to appear cannot afterwards raise the plea that he had paid off a prior lien and was, therefore, in the position of a prior mortgagee. [p. 876, col. 1.]

Mahomed Ibrahim Hossein Khan v. Ambika Pershad Singh, 14 Ind. Cas. 496; 11 M. L. T. 265; (1912) M. W. N. 367; 9 A. L. J. 332; 14 Bom. L. R. 280; 16 C. W. N. 505; 15 C. L. J. 411; 22 M. L. J. 468; 39 C. 527 (P. C.), followed.

The test in all such cases is, was the defendant impleaded as a puisne mortgagee and, therefore, a necessary party, if he was, he is bound to set up his prior mortgage as well as his subsequent mortgage. [p. 876, col. 1.]

Mohant Kishen Dyal Gir v. Mahomed Amirul Hussein, 26 Ind. Cas. 673; 19 C. W. N. 942, referred to.

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge, first Court, Shahabad, dated the 27th of June 1912, reversing that of the Munsif, first Court, at Arrah, dated the 30th of June 1911.

Babus Chandra Sikhar Prosad Singh and Moulvi Khurshed Hossain, for the Appellant.

Babu Umakali Mukherji and Sudhasnshu Sikhar Mukherjee, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The simple question which arises in this second apeal is the same as that which was decided in the Court of Appeal below, namely, whether defendant No. 1 not having set up his alleged prior lien in the suit brought by Gopal Sahu to which he was made a party, is precluded from raising the plea in the present suit. On the authorities cited by the learned Judge in the Court below in his judgment and on the further authority of the Judicial Committee in the case of Mahomed Ibrahim Hossein Khan v. Ambika Pershad Singh (1), we are clearly of opinion that the learned Judge in the Court below was right when he says that these decisions clearly lay down that a subsequent mortgagee, who has been made party to a suit on a prior mortgage but who has failed to appear, cannot afterwards raise the plea that he had paid off a prior lien and was, therefore, in the position of a prior mortgagee. The same question was recently discussed at length in Mohant Kishen Dyal Gir v. Mahomed Amirul Hussein (2), which was decided by one of us sitting with Mr. Justice Carnduff on the 16th December 1914, in which we said, the test in all cases we have had laid before us is, was the defendant impleaded as a puisne mortgagee and, therefore, a necessary party, if he was, he is bound to set up his prior mortgage as well as his subsequent mortgage. That being so, we can have no doubt that the decision of the lower Court is correct.

(1) 14 Ind. Cas. 496; 11 M. L. T. 265; (1912) M. W. N. 367; 9 A. L. J. 332; 14 Bom. L. R. 280; 16 C. W. N. 505; 15 C. L. J. 411; 39 C. 527 (P. C.); 22 M. L. J. 468.

As regards any equitable relief which might have been given to the parties on the facts, we do not think that in second appeal we can deal with that question. The only question before us is whether the learned Judge in the Court below was right or wrong in the matter of the law as laid down by him.

The result is that the appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(2) 26 Ind. Cas. 673; 19 C. W. N. 942.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 17 OF 1914.

July 3, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Twomey.

V. V. M. CHETTY FIRM—APPLICANT

versus

R. M. A. R. ARUNACHALLUM CHETTY—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115—Revision—Interlocutory order—Refusal to frame additional issue.

Even if the High Court can deal in revision with an interlocutory order in a suit, the exercise of the power is in the discretion of the Court and the power should not be exercised unless it appears that substantial injury may be caused to the applicant if he is left to wait for the ultimate remedy in appeal from the decree. [p. 876, col. 2.]

There is no precedent for interference in revision with an order declining to frame an additional issue in a suit. [p. 876, col. 2.]

Mr. B. P. Lentaigne, for the Applicant.

Mr. J. R. Das, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—There is the authority of the Calcutta High Court in support of the view that the High Court can deal in revision with an interlocutory order in a suit [Dhapi v. Ram Pershad (1)], but I note that several other High Courts are opposed to this view. At any rate the exercise of this power is in the discretion of the Court and I think it is obvious that the power should not be exercised, unless it appears that substantial injury may be caused to the applicant if he is left to wait for his ultimate remedy in appeal from the decree. There is no precedent, so far as I am aware, for interference in revision with such an order as that now under consideration, viz., an order declining to frame an additional issue in a suit. It is manifestly inexpedient that the progress of a suit should be liable to interruption on such a ground as this, and the most cogent reasons would be necessary to justify it.

The applicants are some of the defendants in a suit brought by the respondent as plaintiff, and the additional issue which they wanted the Court to frame was an issue as to whether certain other persons should not be joined as parties to the suit. Apparently this would depend on whether the plaintiff-respondent sued in his individual capacity or as representing his firm, the other persons referred to being, as it is alleged, co-partners therein. The heading of the plaint is of an ambiguous character and it certainly reads at first sight as if the plaintiff was suing as an individual. But the lower Court has treated the suit as a suit by the plaintiff's firm, and in an order dated after the present application was filed, the learned Judge has decided that it is unnecessary to join the persons referred to. The reason given is that they are merely the legal representatives of deceased partners and are, therefore, not necessary parties under Order XXXIV, rule 4. It further appears from the record that when issues were framed the applicant's Counsel was present and made no application then for an additional issue as to these persons being necessary parties. It cannot be said that they did not then know that Ramaswami was a partner, for this fact was disclosed in the examination of the plaintiff's agent two days earlier (the applicant's Advocate being present).

(1) 14 C. 768.

On the question whether the suit has been rightly treated as a suit under Order XXX, I can express no opinion at this stage. But in the circumstances mentioned above I am of opinion that no sufficient ground has been made out for interference in revision with the District Judge's order of 15th December 1913.

The application is dismissed with costs. Advocate's fee three gold mohurs.

Application dismissed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM ORDER No. 77 OF 1914.

February 26, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice N. Chatterjea and Mr. Justice Greaves.

BADARENNESSA CHOWDHURANI—OPPOSITE PARTY—APPELLANT

versus

ALAM GAZI AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS.

Occupancy holding, if can be sold—Co-sharer landlord decree-holder, position of—Holding not to be sold, if raiyat objects—Transfer, involuntary, of whole or part of holding, how far valid.

An occupancy holding which is not saleable by custom or usage cannot be sold in execution of a decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord for his share of the rent, and in this respect a co-sharer landlord is in the same position as an ordinary executing creditor. [p. 877, col. 1.]

Durga Charan Mandal v. Kali Prasanna Sarkar, 26 C. 727; 3 C. W. N. 586; Jarip v. Ram Kumar De, 3 C. W. N. 747 and Dayamoyi v. Ananda Mohan Roy Chowdhury, 27 Ind. Cas. 61; 20 C. L. J. 52; 42 C. 172; 18 C. W. N. 971 (F. B.), referred to.

A raiyat is entitled to have a sale of his holding in execution of a money-decree set aside after it takes place, and the holding cannot be sold in execution of such a decree where the raiyat objects to the sale before it takes place. [p. 878, col. 1.]

Dayamoyi v. Ananda Mohan Roy Chowdhury, 27 Ind. Cas. 61; 20 C. L. J. 52; 42 C. 172; 18 C. W. N. 971 (F. B.), followed.

A non-transferable occupancy holding is not a saleable property. [p. 878, col. 1.]

The principle deducible from the decision in Dayamoyi v. Ananda Mohan Roy Chowdhury, 27 Ind. Cas. 61; 20 C. L. J. 52; 42 C. 172; 18 C. W. N. 971 (F. B.), is applicable to an involuntary transfer of the whole as well as of a part of the holding. [p. 878, col. 1.]

Dwarkanath Pal v. Tarini Sankar Ray, 34 C. 199; 11 C. W. N. 513; 5 C. L. J. 294, distinguished.

Shukuruddin v. Rani Hemangini Debi, 13 Ind. Cas. 192; 16 C. W. N. 420, not followed.

A co-sharer landlord is not entitled to sell the whole or part of the occupancy-holding of the raiyat in execution of a decree obtained by him against the raiyat. [p. 878, col. 2.]

Appeal against the order of the District Judge, Tipperah, dated the 29th November 1913, affirming that of the Munsif, 5th Court, Comilla, dated the 23rd of August 1913.

Babu Birendra Chandra Das, for the Appellant.

Babu Upendra Kumar Roy, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of an application for execution of a decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord for his share of the rent of an occupancy holding. The judgment-debtor, the raiyat, raised an objection that as the holding was not transferable by custom or local usage, it could not be sold in execution of the decree obtained by the co-sharer landlord.

The Courts below have given effect to the objection, and have disallowed the application for execution. The decree-holder has appealed to this Court.

Now it has been held in a number of cases that an occupancy holding which is not saleable by custom or usage, cannot be sold in execution of a decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord for his share of the rent, and that in this respect a co-sharer landlord is in the same position as an ordinary execution creditor. See Durga Charan Mandal v. Kali Prasanna Sarkar (1), Sadagar Sirkar v. Krishna Chandra Nath (2), Jarip v. Ram Kumar De (3). And the recent Full Bench in the case of Dayamoyi v. Ananda Mohan Roy Chowdhury (4) have laid down that an involuntary transfer, i. e., a sale in execution of a money-decree of the whole or part of an occupancy holding, apart from custom or local usage, is operative against the raiyat, where the raiyat with knowledge fails or omits to have the sale set aside. It is true the questions whether a raiyat is entitled to have the sale set aside, or has the right to object to the sale before it takes place, were not in terms decided by the Full Bench. But

(1) 26 C. 727; 3 C. W. N. 586.
(2) 26 C. 937; 3 C. W. N. 742.
(3) 3 C. W. N. 747.
(4) 27 Ind. Cas. 61; 20 C. L. J. 52; 42 C. 172; 18 C. W. N. 971 (F. B.).

if the raiyat has no right to object to the sale of an occupancy holding in execution of a money-decree before it takes place or has no right to have the sale (after it takes place) set aside, in other words, where the sale is valid, the sale would be operative against him, and it would be immaterial whether he had knowledge of the sale or omitted or failed to have it set aside. The sale however, though invalid, may be operative against the raiyat if he with knowledge thereof omits or fails to have it set aside. The question, therefore, of the omission or failure to set aside the sale with knowledge thereof becomes material only where the sale is invalid, and the raiyat has a right to object to it. We are accordingly of opinion that the Full Bench decision by implication holds that the raiyat is entitled to have a sale of the holding in execution of a money-decree set aside after it takes place, and that the holding cannot be sold in execution of such a decree where the raiyat objects to the sale before it takes place. This view is in accordance with that taken in the cases cited above, and it is to be observed that the Full Bench laid down what had been established by the weight of modern authority.

No doubt, under section 60 of the Civil Proceedure Code, all saleable property belonging to the judgment-debtor, or over which he has a disposing power which he may exercise for his own benefit, is liable to sale in execution of a decree. But a non-transferable occupancy holding is not saleable property, and the Full Bench decision does not hold that the raiyat has a disposing power over the holding. All that it holds is that a voluntary transfer is operative against him.

It is next contended that the decree-holder being a co-sharer landlord to the extent of a 10-annas share is entitled to sell a 10-annas share of the holding. But apart from other considerations, the principle deducible from the Full Bench decision is applicable to an involuntary transfer of the whole as well as of a part of the holding.

There are certain observations in the case of Dwarkanath Pal v. Tarini Sankar Ray (5) to the effect that it is not necessary that the consent of the landlord should be obtained prior to the sale, and that the sale is valid, if the landlord subsequently to the sale recognises the purchaser and receives rent from him. But in that case, the defendants with full knowledge of the execution proceedings and the sale had failed to raise the objection at the time of the sale that the holding was not transferable, and the question was raised after the sale had been confirmed, and after the purchase had been recognised by the landlord.

In the case of Shukuruddin v. Rani Hemangini Debi (6), referred to in the judgment of the Court below, it appears that this Court maintained an order passed by the Court below granting the decree-holder's application for sale of an occupancy holding to the extent of a $15\frac{1}{4}$-annas share, the co-sharer landlords to that extent having consented to the sale. In doing so, however, the learned Judges said that "the non-consenting landlords may give their consent after the sale. In any case the decree-holder takes the risk, and in the present state of the law the purchaser will purchase at his peril. We do not think it necessary to interfere." The decision can no longer be followed having regard to the view taken by the Full Bench.

We are accordingly of opinion that the appellant is not entitled to sell the whole or part of the occupancy holding in execution of the decree obtained by him.

The appeal is dismissed, but we make no order as to costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(5) 34 C. 199; 11 C. W. N. 513; 5 C. L. J. 294.

(6) 13 Ind. Cas. 192; 16 C. W. N. 420.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.
FULL BENCH.

CIVIL MISCELLANEOUS PETITION No. 2602 OF 1914.

April 16, 1915.

Present:—Sir John Wallis, KT., Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Sankaran Nair and Mr. Justice Oldfield.

A VAKIL OF THE HIGH COURT—PETITIONER

versus

THE PRESIDENT OF THE VAKILS' ASSOCIATION, HIGH COURT, MADRAS—RESPONDENT.

Letters Patent (Mad.), cls. 10, 39—Orders in exercise of disciplinary jurisdiction—Leave to appeal to Privy Council, whether to be granted.

Orders passed in proceedings in exercise of the disciplinary jurisdiction of the High Court under section 10 of the Letters Patent are not appealable under clause 39 of the Letters Patent and no special leave to appeal to the Privy Council can be granted.

Hume, Public Prosecutor of Calcutta v. Poresh Chandra Ghosh, 22 Ind. Cas. 324; 41 C. 734; 15 Cr. L. J. 52; 19 C. W. N. 593; Ganesh S. Dandvate v. Government Pleader, 32 B. 106; 10 Bom. L. R. 21; 3 M. L. T. 131; Tetley v. Jai Shankar, 1 A. 726, followed.

In the matter of Sashi Bhushan Sarbadicary, 34 I. A. 41; 11 C. W. N. 273; 29 A. 95 (P. C.); 4 A. L. J. 34; 9 Bom. L. R. 9; 17 M. L. J. 74; 5 C. L. J. 130; 2 M. L. T. 1, distinguished.

Petition praying that in the circumstances therein the High Court will be pleased to grant the petitioner a certificate to enable him to appeal to His Majesty in Council from the order, dated the 20th March 1914, of this Court in Civil Miscellaneous Petition No. 585 of 1914 and to exempt the petitioner from furnishing security for costs.

FACTS.—A Vakil was suspended by the High Court from practising for a period of two months in a proceeding taken under section 10 of the Charter Act for misconduct. He applied for leave to appeal to the Privy Council under sections 109 and 110 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Mr. G. S. Ramachandra Aiyar, for the Petitioner.

ORDER.—The petitioner relies upon the fact that leave to appeal was granted by this Court in a similar case, Civil Miscellaneous Petitions Nos. 595 and 596 of 1912, but on a further consideration of the question we agree with the recent decision Hume, Public Prosecutor of Calcutta v. Poresh Chandra Ghosh (1) that disciplinary proceedings under clause 10 of the Letters Patent are not appealable under clause 39, and that we have no power to give leave to appeal to the Privy Council from an order passed in the exercise of such jurisdiction. This is also the view taken in Ganesh S. Dandvate v. Government Pleader (2). In Tetley v. Jai Shankar (3) also it was held that no such leave could be granted and though in the subsequent case from Allahabad, In the matter of Sashi Bhushan Sarbadhicary (4), it appears that leave was granted by the Allahabad High Court, the reports show that special leave to appeal was obtained from their Lordships before the appeal was heard.

The application is dismissed.

Application dismissed.

(1) 22 Ind. Cas. 324; 41 C. 734; 15 Cr. L. J. 52; 19 C. W. N. 593.

(2) 32 B. 106; 10 Bom. L. R. 21; 3 M. L. T. 131.

(3) 1 A. 726.

(4) 34 I. A. 41; 11 C. W. N. 273; 29 A. 95 (P. C.); 4 A. L. J. 34; 9 Bom. L. R. 9; 17 M. L. J. 74; 5 C. L. J. 130; 2 M. L. T. 1.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1184 OF 1912.

August 6, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Woodroffe and Mr. Justice Coxe.

MOHIM CHANDRA DEY—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

BAIDYA NATH KAPALI AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885) ss. 49 (b), 85 (2)—Lease, perpetual, validity of—Under-raiyat—Rent, acceptance of, if ratification.

Where a raiyat grants a lease allowing the lessee to hold the land from generation to generation, and gets rent therefrom, the lease is a nullity, and the acceptance of rent from the lessee cannot effect a ratification of the lease, which is initially void. [p. 880, col. 1.]

Jarip Khan v. Durfa Bewa, 15 Ind. Cas. 476; 16 C. L. J. 144; 17 C. W. N. 59 and Telam Pramanik v. Adu Sheik, 18 Ind. Cas. 791; 17 C. W. N. 468, followed.

Appeal against the decree of the Officiating Additional Subordinate Judge, Mymensingh, dated the 19th of February 1912, reversing that of the Munsif, first Court, Mymensingh, dated the 19th July 1911.

Babus Jogesh Chandra Roy and Sasanka Jiban Roy, for the Appellant.

Babu Govinda Chandra Dey Roy, for the Respondents.

RAM DEO SINGH v. MOHESWAR PROSAD.

JUDGMENT.—There have been drawn to our notice two decisions, Jarip Khan v. Durfa Bewa (1) and Telam Pramanik v. Adu Sheik (2), which were decided after the date of the judgment under appeal and which, therefore, have not been referred to by the Subordinate Judge. Those cases appear to establish that the lease in this case should not have been admitted for registration under section 85, clause 2, of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and that the lease is a nullity. That being so, although, as the first Court has held, the plaintiff after the death of his guardian accepted rent from the defendants, he could not thereby effect a ratification of the lease which was initially void.

The appellant has undertaken, however, to refund to the defendants the sum of Rs. 85 received by him as a bonus for the lease and to refund that amount before taking possession of the property. This undertaking is recorded and must be given effect to.

The appeal must, therefore, be decreed and the decree of the Munsif restored, subject to the undertaking by the appellant that he will not attempt to get khas possession until he has refunded the money which he has taken from the defendants.

As the appeal is decided upon a question which is one of doubt and upon decisions which have been reported since the date of the judgment under appeal, the order which I think we should make as to costs in this Court and in the lower Appellate Court is that the parties will bear their own costs. The order as to costs of the first Court will stand.

Appeal allowed.

(1) 15 Ind. Cas. 476; 16 C. L. J. 144; 17 C. W. N. 59.

(2) 18 Ind. Cas. 791; 17 C. W. N. 468.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 2936 OF 1914.

February 22, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sharfuddin and Mr. Justice Coxe.

RAM DEO SINGH—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

Babu MOHESWAR PROSAD—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act (I of 1907), s. 31(a), scope of—Rent, enhancement of—"Prevailing rate," meaning of.

Per Sharfuddin, J.—The 'prevailing rate' is not the average rate of rent of neighbouring villages. [p. 881, col. 1.]

Where it is found that there is no prevailing rate in the neighbouring villages, no decree for enhancement can be given. [p. 881, col. 1.]

Where the provisions of section 31 (a) of the Bengal Tenancy Act are not extended, the principles of the prevailing rate cannot be applied. [p. 881, col. 1.]

Per Coxe, J.—Where the great majority of the raiyats are found to pay at the rate of Rs. 4 and over in the neighbouring villages:

Held, that Rs. 4 and over is not a rate at all, much less a prevailing rate, unless the artificial construction contained in section 31 (a) is placed on that expression. [p. 881, col. 1.]

It is not the intention of the Legislature that section 31 (a) should apply in a district to which it is not formally extended, however reasonable the provisions of that section are. [p. 881, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decision of the District Judge of Muzufferpur, dated the 17th June 1911, modifying that of the Officiating Munsif Hajipur, dated the 11th July 1910.

Babus Satis Chandra Ghose and Anilendra Nath Ray Chowdhury, for the Appellant.

Babus Jogesh Chandra Roy and Akhoy Kumar Banerjee, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

SHARFUDDIN, J.—This is an appeal from the judgment of the District Judge of Muzufferpur dated the 17th June 1911. The plaintiff is the landlord and as such he sued the defendant, who is an occupancy raiyat of Mouza Bishunpur, Chandpur Lakhiraj, for enhancement of rent, on the ground that the rate at which the defendant paid rent was below the prevailing rate paid by raiyats for similar lands in neighbouring villages and also on the ground of a rise of price of staple crops. The Munsif gave a decree at the rate of Rs. 5 per bigha for the years in suit and declared Rs. 5 per bigha for future years as the prevailing rate. On appeal, the learned District Judge held that the rent could not be doubly enhanced, both on the ground of the prevailing rate and also on the ground of a rise of prices, and that the prevailing rate should be fixed at Rs. 4 per bigha. He gave a decree for the years in suit at the then existing rate. The defendant appeals to this Court and we are now asked to decide the correctness of the judgment of the District Judge.

The points taken are that the lower Appellate Court was in error in thinking that the average rate of the neigbouring villages is the prevailing rate and that as no one prevailing rate was found, the suit should have been dismissed.

The finding of the lower Appellate Court is that there is really no prevaling rate in the neighbouring villages. It appears that in one village the rate varies from Re. 1 to Rs. 116 per bigha. It is further found that there are 511 tenants in three neighbouring villages, and of these 437 pay rent at the rate of Rs. 4 per bigha and over. This cannot be held to be the prevailing rate. The learned District Judge admits that the provisions of section 31 (a) of the Bengal Tenancy Act have not been extended to Mozafferpore. At the same time he was led, in order to do justice, practically to apply the same principles to the present case. We have to administer the law and we cannot in the circumstances of the present case hold that any one prevailing rate has been ascertained and found and, therefore, no decree for enhancement can be given in this case.

The appeal is decreed and costs to abide the result. The lower Appellate Court having come to no decision on the question of enhancement on the ground of rise in prices of staple crops, the case is remanded for disposal after an inquiry whether the landlord is entitled to enhancement on this ground.

This judgment governs the other appeal No. 3348 of 1911.

COXE, J.—I agree. The finding of the District Judge is that the great majority of the raiyats pay at the rate of Rs. 4 and over and, therefore, the prevailing rate of these villages cannot be said to be less than Rs. 4. In my opinion Rs. 4 and over is not a rate at all, much less a prevailing rate, unless the artificial construction contained in section 31 (a) is placed on that expression.

The fact seems to be that the provisions of that section are so reasonable that the learned District Judge was naturally inclined to apply it in his district, even although it was not formally extended; but as it has not been extended, we must assume that it is not the intention of the Legislature that the section should apply. The question, however, of extending it to the district might very well be considered.

Appeals allowed.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 4 OF 1913.

October 20, 1914.

Present:—Sir Charles Fox, KT., Chief Judge, and Mr. Justice Hartnoll.

MA TIN ME—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

MAUNG MAUNG AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Buddhist Law—Husband and wife—Wife's interest in joint property affected by mortgage executed by husband alone—Wife's conduct and acquiescence—Estoppel.

Where a Buddhist couple jointly owned properties but the business was carried on by the husband in his name only and he alone mortgaged the joint properties but the wife knew of the mortgages created by him and acquiesced in them from the beginning:

Held, that the husband had power to bind and did bind the wife's interest in the mortgaged properties. [p. 882, col. 1.]

Where the leases of the sites of certain mills were in the name of the husband alone and where in his business transactions he alone appeared as the rice mill owner and the wife did not say that she was half owner of the mortgaged properties, although she took part in the negotiation of a mortgage:

Held, that the wife was estopped from pleading that the mortgage decree passed against her husband alone did not affect her interest in the mortgaged property as she was not a party to the suit. [p. 882, col. 2.]

Appeal against the judgment and decree of the District Judge of Pegu, dated 16th December 1912, in Civil Regular No. 28 of 1912.

Mr. Dantra, for the Appellant.

Mr. B. Lentaigne, for the 2nd Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—Messrs. Wightman and Co. admittedly advanced to Maung Maung, the husband of Ma Tin Me the appellant, the sums of Rs. 35,000 and Rs. 25,000. As security for the first loan the mill premises and other properties mentioned in paragraph 2 (A), (B) and (C) of the plaint were mortgaged and as security for the second loan the mill premises and properties mentioned in paragraph 2 (D) of the plaint were mortgaged. The respondents, Messrs. Wightman and Co., subsequently sued Maung Maung to recover the amount due on the two mortgages and obtained the usual mortgage-decree. They subsequently became the auction-purchasers of the mortgaged properties.

Now Ma Tin Me brings this suit to obtain a decree declaring that she is the joint owner of the mortgaged properties, that her share in them is one half, that the mortgage created by Maung Maung does not bind her interest and that the mortgage-decree passed against Maung Maung in favour of respondents does not affect her or her interest in the property. Her suit has been dismissed by the District Judge and she appeals.

The first point for consideration is whether she and Maung Maung jointly own the properties mortgaged by Maung Maung and on a consideration of the evidence it must be held that they do. They are a Burmese Buddhist couple, and the premises mortgaged were acquired after their marriage, the mills being erected after their acquisition. As the Exhibits show, appellant and Maung Maung borrowed heavily from a Chetty firm. It is reasonable to assume that such borrowed moneys had their part in the erection of the first mill. The second mill appears to have been paid for, in great part, with the money advanced by respondents on the second mortgage. Ma Tin Me took a considerable part in the raising of this loan.

The next point for decision is whether Maung Maung in creating the mortgages bound Ma Tin Me's interest in the properties mortgaged. The leading case on the subject is that of Ma Thu v. Ma Bu (1), which has never been dissented from. It is clear from the evidence that Maung Maung has been conducting the paddy and the milling business and that Ma Tin Me's name has not appeared in connection therewith.

The letter, Exhibit I, shows that the business was carried on solely in Maung Maung's name—the business stamp being "Maung Maung, Deiku Rice Mill Owner." The contracts Exhibits 3 and 4 are in the name of Maung Maung only. The evidence clearly shows that Ma Tin Me knew of the mortgages and acquiesced in them from the beginning, for I can see no reason to disbelieve the defence witnesses. In the circumstances it must be held that Maung Maung in executing the mortgages had power to bind and did bind Ma Tin Me's interest in the mortgaged properties.

The last point for decision is whether the mortgage-decree passed against Maung Maung affects Ma Tin Me and her interest in the mortgaged property, in that she was not a party to the suit and the decree was not passed against her. Order XXXIV, rule 1, of the Code of Civil Procedure is relied on. There is no doubt that Ma Tin Me should have been made a party to the mortgage suit; but the question is whether she is not estopped from pleading now that she is not affected by the mortgage-decree. It goes without saying that if the respondents had understood, she was half owner of the mortgaged properties, they would have joined her as a defendant in the mortgage suit and so have avoided future complications. Have they been negligent in not joining her? They are a European firm and would not be likely to know the law of joint ownership of property acquired during the marriage of a Burmese Buddhist man and wife. They dealt with Maung Maung as he ostensibly held himself out as the owner of the sites and mills. Admittedly the leases of the sites were in his name only. In his business dealings he alone appears as the rice mill owner. Ma Tin Me allowed this. Further when Abdul Aziz was conducting the negotiations leading to the first mortgage, Ma Tin Me not only did not object but actively acquiesced. She did not then say that she was half owner of the properties. Abdul Aziz is a native of India other than Burma and may not have known Buddist Law and customs. At the time of the negotiations for the second mortgage Ma Tin Me went personally to Mr. Paton and begged for the loan. She did not then say that she was half owner, but she allowed the mortgage to be in Maung Maung's name only as if he were the only owner. Such conduct could not but fail to mislead the respondents and cause them to think that Maung Maung was the owner and had power to deal with the property. Under such circumstances, can they be said to have been negligent in not joining Ma Tin Me as a defendant when the time came to bring a suit to recover their money? The disclosed conduct of Ma Tin Me is such that it is not open to her now to plead that she is not bound by the decree obtained by respondents against Maung Maung.

The appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) L. B. R. (1872-1892), 578.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 3098 OF 1911.

February 25, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, KT., and Mr. Justice Richardson.

AMBICA CHARAN BEPARI—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

ASWINI KUMAR BANERJEE AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 149 (3), scope of—Arrears of rent, suit for—'Money,' meaning of—Apportionment, question of.

In a suit for arrears of rent against a tenant, the money mentioned in sub-section (3) of section 149 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is the entire sum deposited into Court under sub-section (1) and no question of apportionment between rival claimants to proprietorship of the tenancy is intended to be raised or decided under the section.

Where it is admitted by the tenant defendant that part at any rate of the sum deposited is due to the defendant-landlord but the precise part so due is not determined:

Held, that section 149 of the Bengal Tenancy Act has no application, the question of apportionment being not within the scope of the suit.

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge of Backergunj, dated the 18th July 1911, reversing that of the Munsif of Barisal, dated the 1st October 1910.

Babu Surendra Nath Das Gupta, for the Appellant.

Babus Satis Chunder Ghose and Biraj Mohan Majumdar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal by the plaintiff in a suit instituted under section 149 (3) of the Bengal Tenency Act. The plaintiff was successful in the Court of first instance but his claim has been dismissed on appeal by the Subordinate Judge. The landlord-defendant instituted a suit for arrears of rent against the tenant-defendant in respect of the eleven parcels of land. The tenant pleaded in substance that he was liable to pay rent in respect of nine plots, but that in respect of the other two plots he was not liable to pay rent, as rent had already been recovered from him by the present plaintiff on the allegation that those two parcels were included in a property owned by him. The tenant thereupon paid into Court the entire sum claimed in the suit. Notice was thereafter issued to the present plaintiff, who forthwith instituted this suit under section 149 (3), Bengal Tenancy Act. The question for decision is, whether section 149 is applicable to the circumstances of this case.

Sub-section (1) of section 149 is in these terms: "When a defendant admits that money is due from him on account of rent but pleads that it is due not to the plaintiff but to a third person, the Court shall refuse to take cognizance of the plea, unless the defendant pays into Court the amount so admitted to be due." Sub-section (2) then provides that where such a payment is made, the Court shall forthwith cause notice of the payment to be served on the third person. Sub-section (3) lays down that unless the third person, within three months from the receipt of notice, institutes a suit against the plaintiff and therein obtains an order restraining payment out of the money, it shall be paid out to the plaintiff on his application.

It is plain that the money mentioned in sub-section (3) is the entire sum deposited under sub-section (1) and no question of apportionment is intended to be raised or decided under the section. In the present case, however, it is admitted by the tenant-defendant that part at any rate of that sum is due to the defendant-landlord; what precise part is so due has not been determined, because it involves a question of apportionment not within the scope of the suit. In a case of this description, we are of opinion that section 149 has no application.

The result is that the decree of the Subordinate Judge is affirmed on the ground that the suit is not maintainable under section 149 and the appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 37 OF 1905.

April 23, 1907.

Present:—Sir Charles Fox, KT., Chief Judge, and Mr. Justice Hartnoll.

PADASHIN AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

MAUNG LUN AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Malicious prosecution—Damages, suit for—Proof—Conviction of plaintiff in lower Court, effect of.

In a suit for damages for malicious prosecution the plaintiff must prove the following four things:—

(1) that he was innocent of the crime alleged against him;

PADASHIN v. MAUNG LUN.

(2) that his innocence has been pronounced by a competent tribunal;

(3) that there was a want of reasonable and probable cause for the prosecution; and

(4) that the proceedings against him had been initiated in a malicious spirit.

A conviction in the lower Court of the plaintiff to a suit for damages for malicious prosecution although reversed on appeal is fatal to his suit for malicious prosecution save in very exceptional circumstances.

Mr. Palit, for the Appellants.

Mr. Dantra, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Fox, C. J.—The plaintiffs had been convicted by the first class Magistrate of Kungyangon of obtaining the defendants' property by cheating. Upon appeal to the Sessions Court they were acquitted. They then brought the suit out of which this appeal arises for damages for malicious prosecution.

They had to prove first, that they were innocent of the crime alleged against them, secondly, that their innocence had been pronounced by a competent tribunal, thirdly, that there was a want of reasonable and probable cause for the prosecution, or that the circumstances of the case were such as to be in the eyes of the Court inconsistent with the existence of reasonable and probable cause, and fourthly, that the proceedings against them had been initiated in a malicious spirit, that is, from an indirect motive and not in furtherance of justice. If they failed to prove any one of these matters, their case failed [see Abrath v. The North Eastern Railway Company (1).] The plaintiffs proved to my mind only the second of these matters conclusively. Possibly it may also be said that they also proved the first, for even if they had done all that the complainant said they had done, they were not liable to be convicted of cheating and of obtaining property by cheating. They, however, in my opinion, entirely failed to prove the other two requisites for succeeding in their suit. The whole matter turns upon whether the allegation which the 1st defendant had made against them, that he had paid them Rs. 4,800 as an advance in part payment of paddy which they had sold to him, was utterly without foundation and false. The Magistrate believed that he had paid them the money, and convicted them. Upon the ruling in Soobramony Pillay Chetty v. Maung Po Lu (2), this conviction would be fatal to the plaintiffs' case. Without going as far as adopting the ruling in that case, which I think goes too far, and adopting the rule as stated by Mr. Pollock in section 42 of his draft of a Civil Wrongs Bill viz., "that an action will lie if the plaintiff was ultimately acquitted on appeal by reason of the original conviction having proceeded on evidence known by the complainant to be false or on the wilful suppression by him of material information," the plaintiffs have, in my judgment, failed to establish that the first defendant's prosecution of them was without reasonable and probable cause, and that it was malicious.

The District Judge has dealt with the facts and evidence very fully and carefully. It is unnecessary to repeat them.

There is, first of all, the great improbability of a man in the 1st defendant's position making the allegations he did without any foundation for them, and knowing, as he must have known, that he had not the strongest proof in the shape of a signed receipt that he had paid the Rs. 4,800.

The weakness of the evidence for the plaintiffs strengthens the belief that the 1st defendant did pay them the money.

It is a case in which two Judges who saw and heard the witnesses believed the first defendant and his witnesses. There is, in my opinion, no ground for holding that the District Judge's view was wrong. As against the 2nd defendant there was no substantial case, and the Judge was, I think, right in awarding separate costs. I would dismiss the appeal with costs.

HARTNOLL, J.—I concur.

Appeal dismissed.

(2) 2 L. B. R. 111.

(1) (1886) 11 App. Cas. 247; 55 L. J. Q. B. 457; 55 L. T. 63; 50 J. P. 659.

BROJENDRO KISHORE RAI v. KHALIL NAGARCHI.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.
SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1945 OF 1912.
December 3, 1914.
Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, KT., and Mr. Justice Chapman.
BROJENDRO KISHORE RAI CHAUDHURI—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
KHALIL NAGARCHI AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss. 30, 101, 111, scope of—Rent, enhancement of, alteration of, suit for—Local area, meaning of.

A suit for enhancement of rent under section 30 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and a suit of the nature described in section 52, are included in the expression 'suit for alteration of rent' in section 111. [p. 885, col. 2.]

Under section 101 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, an entire district is included in the meaning of the term 'local area', although an area smaller than an entire estate or country as a whole is usually meant by the term 'local'. [p. 886, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge, Mymensingh, dated the 25th April 1912, reversing that of the Munsif, Iswargunge, dated the 12th May 1911.

Babus Dwarka Nath Chakrabutty and Ramani Mohan Chatterjee, for the Appellant.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal by the plaintiff in a suit for enhancement of rent, instituted under section 30 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. The question in controversy is, whether the suit is barred by the provisions of section 111.

Section 111, we quote only so much thereof as is relevant to the question now before us, is in these terms: "Where an order has been made under section 101 directing the preparation of a Record of Rights, then, subject to the provisions of section 104H, a Civil Court shall not, until three months after the final publication of the Record of Rights, entertain any suit for the alteration of the rent of any tenant in the area to which the Record of Rights applies." It is not disputed that on the 8th December 1908 an order was made by the then Local Government, that is, the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam, under the provisions of clause (1) of section 101. That notification was in these terms: "In the exercise of the powers conferred on him by section 101 (1) of the Bengal Tenancy Act as amended to date, and with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, the Lieutenant-Governor of Eastern Bengal and Assam is pleased to direct that a survey shall be made and Records of Rights prepared in respect of all lands which are comprised within the administrative boundaries of the District of Mymensingh as well as those revenue survey mouzahs which are comprised within the administrative boundaries of the Districts of Rangpore, Pubna, Bogra or Tipperah, but which fall wholly or partly within five miles from the main stream of any river which forms the administrative boundary of the District of Mymensingh." The land in respect of which enhanced rent is claimed is situated within the District of Mymensingh, and it was accordingly argued by the tenant defendants before the Subordinate Judge that the suit was barred under section 111 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. In answer, it was contended on behalf of the plaintiff landlord that the suit was not for the "alteration of the rent of the tenant" within the meaning of section 111. The argument in substance was that a suit for the alteration of rent is a suit of the description contemplated by section 52, which entitles the landlord to claim additional rent for additional land. This contention was very properly overruled by the Subordinate Judge. In our opinion, the expression "suit for alteration of rent" includes not merely a suit of the nature described in section 52, but also a suit for enhancement of rent under section 30. Indeed in this Court no serious endeavour has been made to controvert the view of the Subordinate Judge in this respect.

But it has been argued here that the notification of the 8th December 1908 does not contain an order under section 101 as contemplated by section 111. The argument is that the expression "local area" indicates a smaller area than an entire district. To support this contention reference has been made to the words 'estates, or tenure or part thereof' which were introduced into section 101 by Act VIII of 1898 B. C. In our opinion, these words do not tend to restrict the meaning of the expression 'local area.' The term 'local area' is not defined in the Bengal Tenancy Act, and is obviously comprehensive enough to include an entire district. The term 'local' is frequently applied to an area smaller than an entire estate or country as a whole. We are not called upon to determine in this case, whether the expression 'local area' may include the entire province to which the Bengal Tenancy Act applies. What we have to decide is, whether the expression includes a district, and we feel no doubt that this question must be answered in the affirmative. It has been pressed upon us that in this view, an order of this description is likely to operate to the prejudice of landlords. It has been pointed out that many years may elapse before the operation of survey and settlement may be carried out pursuant to the orders of the Local Government and that during all these years the jurisdiction of the Civil Court to entertain suits for enhancement of rent would remain suspended by operation of section 111. It may be conceded that this may be the possible result of a comprehensive order of the description now before us. But if there is any real hardship to landlords, it may be remedied in one of two ways. In the first place, the hardship may be avoided, if an order under section 111 is made applicable to a smaller tract of land than an entire district. That, however, is a matter for the Local Government to consider if a representation is submitted to them. In the second place, the hardship may be avoided, if section 111 were so modified as to be applicable only in cases where survey and settlement operations have actually been commenced in respect of a particular tract pursuant to an order under section 101. That, however, is a matter for the Legislature to consider. But, so long as section 111 stands as it now does, it is clearly open to the Local Government to issue a notification in terms of the notification of the 8th December 1908; and the effect of that notification is, under section 111, to prevent the trial of the present suit by a Civil Court.

The result is that the decree of the Subordinate Judge is confirmed and this appeal dismissed.

Appeal dismissed.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

SPECIAL SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 146 OF 1913.

November 4, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ormond.

MAUNG YEIK AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

MAUNG PE TO AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Mortgage or sale—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 54, 59 55 (6) (b)—Transaction without registered document when transaction compulsorily registrable, effect of.

Where the defendants were put into possession of two plots of plaintiffs' land, five or six years before the suit, without any registered document on payment of Rs. 100 in respect of each plot and where the transaction was either an abortive mortgage (according to the plaintiffs) or an abortive sale (according to the defendants):

Held, that in either case the plaintiffs were entitled to possession upon payment of Rs. 200 as under the provisions of sections 54 and 59 of the Transfer of Property Act an oral transfer could effect neither a mortgage nor a sale and the defendants were entitled only to a charge on the land under section 55 (6) (b) for the purchase-money paid by them. [p. 887, col. 1.]

Appeal against the judgment and decree of the District Judge of Bassein, in Civil Appeal No. 118 of 1912, reversing that of the Township Judge of Bassein, in Civil Reg. No. 442 of 1912.

Mr. Wiltshire, for the Appellants.

Mr. Israilkhan, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiffs sue to redeem as mortgagors two plots of land at Rs. 100 each of which the defendants are in possession. No registered document or any document was effected. The defendants allege that the transaction was a sale. The Township Court dismissed the suit on the ground that the plaintiffs had not proved their mortgage. The District Court on appeal gave a decree to the plaintiffs for possession on payment of Rs. 200, upon the ground that the defendants had not proved their purchase. It is, no doubt, for the plaintiffs to prove their case; they must show a better title than the defendants; and the defendants being in possession, we start with a presumption in their favour—that they are the owners. The facts are that the defendants were put into possession of the plaintiffs' land, five or six years before the suit, by or with the permission of the plaintiffs; that there was no registered document and that Rs. 100 was paid in respect of each plot of land. Under the provisions of sections 54 and 59 of the Transfer of Property Act an oral transaction could effect neither a mortgage nor a sale. The defendants, by being put into possession by the plaintiffs, either under a contract for a mortgage or under a contract for sale, acquired no interest in the land; their only right being, if their case is true, to a charge on the land under section 55 (6) (b) of the Transfer of Property Act for the purchase-money paid by them.

The cases cited by Mr. Israilkhan for the plaintiff-respondents, namely, Lalchand Motiram v. Lakshman Sahadu (1) and Kurri Veerareddi v. Kurri Bapireddi (2) are authorities for this view.

The plaintiffs were the owners at the time of the transaction; the defendants acquired no title to possession under the transaction, and they have not acquired a title since. It is then contended by Mr. Wiltshire for the defendant-appellants that the suit being one for redemption based on a mortgage, the plaintiffs cannot be awarded possession except on a mortgage. The plaintiffs in their suit for redemption claim possession upon payment of Rs. 200. The facts proved or admitted show that the transaction was either an abortive mortgage (according to the plaintiffs) or an abortive sale (according to the defendants); in either case the plaintiffs are entitled to possession upon payment of Rs. 200. The facts necessarily adduced by the plaintiffs to prove their mortgage, though not sufficient to prove a mortgage, are sufficient to show that the plaintiffs are entitled to the relief claimed; and the case of the defendants shows the same. I think that the Court should, therefore, give the plaintiffs relief in the present suit.

The appeal is dismissed with costs in all Courts, and there will be a decree for possession of these plots of land after the paddy crops have been reaped and upon payment of Rs. 200.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 28 B. 466; 6 Bom. L. R. 510.

(2) 29 M. 336; 1 M. L. T. 153 (F. B.); 16 M. L. J. 395.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 763 OF 1914.

February 10, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Donald Johnstone, KT.

KISHEN SARUP AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—PETITIONERS

versus

Chaudhri TARA CHAND AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Promissory note, sale of—Purchaser bound to make enquiries of executant—Caveat emptor.

A person buying a promissory note must know that he is buying a mere claim and must make enquiries before buying.

Petition, under section 70 of Act IX of 1887, against the decree of the Judge, Cantonment Small Cause Court, Jullundur, dated the 23rd March 1914, decreeing the claim against the petitioners.

Mr. N. C. Mehra, for the Appellant.

Messrs. Raghunath Rai and T. D. Khanna, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—I cannot see that minor sons of the late Bhagirath can possibly be held liable in this case. Deceased held this pro-note for Rs. 50. He died. His widow sold it to plaintiff, very likely in good faith, not knowing it had been paid off (if it was so). The purchaser should have enquired of the executant, Gappu, before buying. He must have known he was buying a mere claim, and in these circumstances he should have made enquiries; it is a case of caveat emptor.

I do not think, indeed, that he has any case against any defendant. Gappu has proved fairly well that he has paid Bhagirath.

Revision allowed and suit dismissed with costs.

Revision allowed.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 49 OF 1913.

November 5, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ormond.

MAUNG PO YIN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

MG. NI AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Gift made in contemplation of death—Possession not delivered, effect of—Better title to be shown by person not in possession.

A gift made in contemplation of death and intended to operate only after the donor's death is inoperative and void.

A person not in possession ought to show a better title to the property from which he seeks to eject the person in possession.

Appeal against the judgment and decree of the District Court, Myaungmya, confirming the judgment and decree of the Township Court, Wakema.

Mr. Dawson, for the Appellant.

Mr. Po Thit, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff sued for possession of a house which formerly belonged to Ma Hla U, who died eight or nine years before suit. The suit was instituted in 1912.

The plaintiff, who is the nephew of Ma Hla U, says that Ma Hla U when she was very old and in bad health, two months before her death, gave the house to him with this condition that Ma Mein (her sister-in-law who had been living with her) should remain in the house as long as she was happy there. One of the plaintiff's witnesses states that the gift was made in the following terms:—"Let Ma Mein take after my death and you (plaintiff) take it outright after Ma Mein's death." The plaintiff apparently lived in the house with Ma Hla U and Ma Mein; and after Ma Hla U's death he went to live in his own fields. Ma Mein lived in the house until her death which was two months before the suit; and after Ma Mein's death the defendant, who claims to be a relation of Ma Mein, took possession of the house.

The defendant's case is that he and Ma Mein jointly bought this house from Ma Hla U a day or two before Ma Hla U's death; that purchase has been disbelieved by both Courts. U San Pye, a son of Ma Hla U's husband by a former marriage, is the heir to the house; and he supports the plaintiff's case. His father predeceased Ma Hla U by about three years. The Township

Judge found that the plaintiff's case of a gift was true. The District Court also found that the gift was true and adds that the plaintiff has other rights of inheritance to the house and his possession thereof, if disputed, could only be disputed by Maung San Pye, step-son of Ma Hla U and son of U Kywet Ni (her husband who had predeceased her). But the plaintiff was not in possession and in order to reject the defendant he must show a better title.

From the evidence I think it clear that the gift by Ma Hla U was made in contemplation of death and was intended to operate only after her death; it was, therefore, inoperative and void and although the rightful heir, U San Pye, may be disposed to support the plaintiff's claim, he has not divested himself of his rights to the house in favour of the plaintiff. The plaintiff, therefore, has not shown any title. The appeal is allowed with costs and the suit is dismissed with costs to the defendant in both the lower Courts.

Appeal allowed.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

MISCELLANEOUS CIVIL APPEAL No 2204 OF 1914.

May 5, 1915.

Present:—Sir Donald Johnstone, KT., Chief Judge.

JAM KHAN—INSOLVENT—APPELLANT

versus

DEVI DITTA AND OTHERS—CREDITORS—RESPONDENTS.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), s. 42—Annulment of adjudication, when and when not allowed.

An adjudication can be annulled only under section 42 of the Provincial Insolvency Act when the conditions mentioned therein are fulfilled. [p. 889, col. 1.]

A Court while annulling an adjudication must find that the adjudication could not legally or properly have been made on the facts as existing at the time of the adjudication. Subsequent misconduct on the part of a petitioner should not lead to annulment of the adjudication. [p. 889, col. 1.]

An adjudication cannot be annulled because:

(i) the petitioner could subsequently pay his debts in full out of his assets;

(ii) a part of his property is subject to the Alienation of Land Act;

(iii) the debtor since his adjudication has not been giving any produce of his lands to the Receiver, or

(iv) he has not made over all his assets to the Receiver. [p. 889, cols. 1 & 2.]

Miscellaneous appeal from the order of the District Judge, Jhang, dated the 27th July 1914, annulling the adjudication of the appellant as an insolvent.

Mr. Nand Lal, for the Appellant.

Mr. Brij Lal, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is a miscellaneous appeal from the order of the District Judge of Jhang, dated 27th July 1914, annulling the bankruptcy of one Jam Khan. It appears that the application of Jam Khan was put in on 29th June 1912, and not on 12th July 1913, as the lower Court states. He was adjudicated an insolvent on 6th June 1913, and a Receiver was appointed the same time. Now on 27th July 1914, the learned District Judge has come to the conclusion that the adjudication should be annulled. An adjudication can be annulled only under section 42 of the Act. There are three conditions which must be fulfilled before an adjudication can be annulled: (1) That the Court must come to the conclusion that the debtor ought not to have been adjudged an insolvent. (2) Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the debts of the insolvent have been paid in full. (3) Where a composition or scheme has been approved by the Court under section 27. In the present case clearly and admittedly the 2nd and 3rd of these conditions are not fulfilled and I cannot help thinking that the Court below has overlooked the wording of the 1st condition. It seems to me that the natural meaning of the words in the 1st condition is that on the facts as existing at the time of the adjudication an adjudication could not legally or properly have been made. The section does not indicate that subsequent misconduct on the part of a petitioner should lead to annulment of the adjudication. Now, looked at in this way, the seven reasons given by the lower Court for annulling this adjudication appear to be open to a good deal of criticism. The first reason given is that inasmuch as apparently the accused could pay his debts in full out of his assets he should not have been adjudicated an insolvent, and the Madras ruling, Koppuravvuri Subbarayudu v. Guntur Cotton Jute and Paper Mills Co., Ltd. (1), is quoted as an authority. For myself I cannot find in the Act any authority for such a proposition. One may think that it would have been a very useful provision in such a statute as this, but I cannot find any provision of the kind. The second reason given is wholly unintelligible. It runs thus:—"The lands are inalienable and can be sold to any agriculturist of the district." I suppose this involves an allusion to the Punjab Alienation of Land Act, but again I can find nothing in the Insolvency Act to warrant the idea that a man should not be declared an insolvent because part of his property is subject to the Alienation of Land Act. The third reason given is something like the first and need not be discussed any further. The fourth reason is stated to be that the District Judge's predecessor-in-office has held the petitioner guilty of an offence under section 43 of the Insolvency Act. The petitioner's Counsel before me absolutely denies this. The respondent's Counsel is unable to point to any proof of it, and I can find no proof on the record. The fifth reason is that the debtor since his adjudication has not been giving any produce of his lands to the Receiver. No doubt, he ought to have been doing that, but can it be said that the Judge, sitting in his Court on 6th June 1913, could have foreseen that the debtor intended to withhold the produce of his lands? The sixth reason is stated to be that the debtor has not made over all his assets to the Receiver. The Receiver, no doubt, says this, but the assertion is flatly denied before me and I can find no proof on the record of the assertion. After the Receiver's report had been considered, the debtor was examined by the Court but was asked no question on this subject. In these circumstances it can hardly be said that the sixth reason is a good one. The seventh reason is also connected with the conduct of the debtor after the adjudication, and, as already seen, that does not appear to be a ground for proceeding under section 42 of the Act.

At the same time there is only too good reason to believe that this man should not have the benefit of the Insolvency Law and I am very unwilling that he should have it. The only course possible seems to me to be this that the file should now be returned to the District Judge who should make a proper enquiry with reference to the above remarks. He should consider carefully the wording of section 42 and after inquiry come to the conclusion as to whether the debtor should have been declared an insolvent or not on 6th June 1913, on the real facts existing at that date. The order annulling adjudication is set aside and the case is remanded for re-trial.

(1) 22 Ind. Cas. 276; 14 M. L. T. 587; (1914) M. W. N. 153.

Case remanded.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 161 OF 1914.

November 13, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Parlett.

MA THEIN ME—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

MAUNG PO GYWE—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Buddhist Law—Husband and wife living separate—Custody of their girl aged seven years—Natural guardian—Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), ss. 9, 17 (1), 19 (b)—Law applicable.

In a suit by the mother of a Burmese Buddhist girl of seven years to recover her from the custody of her father, the plaintiff's husband, who was living separate:

Held, that the provisions contained in sections 254 to 257 of Kinwun Mingyi's Digest, Volume II, providing for the custody of children upon divorce of the parents, did not apply where, though the husband and wife lived separate, the marriage status continued and that as guardianship was not one of the matters mentioned in section 13 of the Burma Laws Act, the personal law of Buddhists was not applicable. [p. 890, col. 2.]

Held, also, that according to section 19 (b) of the Guardians and Wards Act, the father was the natural guardian of the minor child under the circumstances of the case. [p. 891, col. 1.]

Appeal from the decree of the Divisional Court of Tennasserim, confirming the decree of the District Court of Amherst.

Mr. May Oung, for the Appellant.

Mr. Ginwalla, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The parties to this suit are husband and wife living apart and the husband's suit for restitution of conjugal rights was dismissed. This suit has been brought by the wife to recover the custody of their child, a girl now over seven years of age whom the father retained at the separation and refused to give up. The plaintiff claimed to have the natural right to the custody of the child and the Court of first instance held that she had, but dismissed the suit on the ground that the child was as comfortable with the father as she would be with the mother and desired to remain with the former. On appeal the further ground was taken that the father was utterly unfit to bring up his daughter decently. The lower Appellate Court found against the appellant on that point but held that the father, not the mother, was the natural guardian of the daughter.

In this appeal it is urged that the mother and not the father is by law entitled to the custody of the minor daughter, that in this case the father is morally unfit to be in charge of a young girl and that it would be in the girl's interest to be with her mother. It is argued that as section 17 (1) of the Guardians and Wards Act directs a Court in appointing a guardian to act consistently with the law to which the minor is subject, the law to be applied in this case is the personal Burmese Buddhist Law, and that the analogy of the principle contained in sections 254 to 257 of the Kinwun Mingyi's Digest, Volume 2, should be acted on and the mother held to have the right to custody of minor daughters. These sections provide for the custody of children upon divorce of the parents and cannot be held to directly apply, whereas in the present case the marriage status continues.

Section 19 (b) of the Guardians and Wards Act shows that the father of a minor, who is not a European British subject, is, prima facie, the guardian. No doubt both sections 9 and 17 (1) make applicable to such a minor "the law to which the minor is subject." Section 13 of the Burma Laws Act (XIII of 1908), however, does not mention guardianship as one of the matters in which the personal law is expressly required to be administered as among Buddhists and accordingly Burmese Buddhist Law is not applicable to cases under the Guardians and Wards Act. It is true that in the case of Maung Pan Bu v. Ma Nyun (1) it was said that the proper person to have the custody of a daughter is the mother, but that remark must be taken as applicable to the particular facts of that case, and no reasons are given for holding it to be a general rule of law. On the other hand both in Ma Chok v. Maung Po Sin (2) and in Maung Ba Thein v. Ma Me (3), it was held that the father is prima facie guardians of his children according to Burmese Law. I think there can be no doubt of this, since the law applicable is that contained in section 19 (b) of the Guardians and Wards Act. I consider, therefore, that the Divisional Court's decision on this point was correct. I also agree with that Court that the father had not been shown to have lost his right by misconduct or unfitness. "Before the Court can interfere there must be a distinct danger of the child being injured, or contaminated by remaining in the custody of the father" (Trevelyan on Minors, 4th Edition, page 69 . Lastly, the girl is clearly not of such tender years that she cannot be separated from her mother, nor is it shown that on other grounds it would be distinctly in her interest to be handed over to her.

(1) 9 Bur. L. R. 183.

The appeal is dismissed with costs, Advocate's fees two gold mohurs.

Appeal dismissed.

(2) U. B. R. (1892-96) II, 645.
(3) 4 Bur. L. R. 242.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 642 OF 1913.

March 31, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Shadi Lal and Mr. Justice LeRossignol.

RAM LABHAYA—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

GOPAL DAS—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Alienation—Necessity Sale of ancestral property—Objection on ground of immorality of purpose—Onus —Obligation of vendee.

Where a Hindu father sold his ancestral house to a third person and after his death his son sued for recovery of possession, alleging that the sale consideration money was taken for an immoral purpose:

Held, (1) that it lay on the plaintiff to prove the immorality of the transaction if he wanted to free himself from his liability to pay his father's debt; [p. 891, col. 2.]

(2) that the sale could not be maintained as a sale unless the vendee proved necessity; [p. 891, col. 2.]

(3) that as the sale had taken place some 20 years before suit, circumstantial evidence should be considered sufficient to establish necessity. [p. 892, col. 1.]

Second appeal from the decree of the Divisional Judge, Attock Division, at Campbellpur, dated the 20th January 1913, reversing that of the District Judge, Attock District, at Campbellpur, dated the 4th April 1912, decreeing the claim.

Bhagat Gobind Das, for the Appellant.

Mr. Nand Lal, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is a suit brought by a son aged about 20 for recovery of a house sold by his late father, Domoder Das, for Rs. 575 in January 1893.

The plaintiff alleges that the property was ancestral, that his father was addicted to drugs and wine and that the sale consideration money was taken for an immoral purpose i.e., the purchase of drugs and liquor.

It is not now denied that the house was ancestral. The first Court held that the vendor was addicted to drink and drugs and the sale was for immoral purpose; the Divisional Court differed and held that plaintiff has not established the immoral purpose of the sale.

In second appeal it was contended that the Divisional Judge has incorrectly appreciated the first Court's attitude to some of the plaintiff's evidence and that the onus should have been placed on defendant to prove that the sale was for necessity.

We have been referred to Shahabul v. Ganesh Das (1) and Chandra Deo Singh v. Mata Prasad (2) and have no doubt that it lies on plaintiff to prove the immorality of the transaction, if he is to succeed in freeing himself from his liability to pay his father's debts, but that the sale cannot be maintained as a sale unless the vendee proves necessity.

Now in this case only Rs. 52 and 26 or 78 in all were antecedent debts and the balance of the sale price passed in cash.

We have considered the oral evidence on both sides and are of the opinion that though vendor was a person of jovial humour and indulged in liquor and bhang, the plaintiff's evidence in this matter is grossly exaggerated.

The vendor was the son of an army pen-

(1) 53 P. R. 1901; 62 P. L. R. 1901.
(2) 1 Ind. Cas. 479; 31 A. 176 (F.B.); 6 A. L. J. 263.

sioner who himself in 1886 sold a house for Rs. 400 of which Rs. 310 passed in cash.

Vendor first mortgaged this land in 1890 for Rs. 49 and sold it in 1893. He had no source of income but this property and his precarious earnings as an officiating process-server, a post which he secured and held spasmodically. His family consisted of himself, his wife, a daughter and two sons.

We note that some ¾ths of the family property still remains, so that he did not waste the whole of it and had he been a confirmed debauchee, he would not have been retained as a process-server.

Unfortunately defendant was not called upon to prove necessity, and it would be unfair to expect precise evidence on the point, some twenty years after the transaction.

After careful consideration of the case, we agree with the Divisional Judge that all the known circumstances suggest that the vendor was a poor man and that he like his father sold a portion of his immoveable property when forced to do so in order to maintain his family.

We also find that plaintiff's evidence as to his father's debauchery is all of a general type and mentions no specific facts and that the immorality of the transaction is not established, on the contrary we hold it was a bona fide sale to meet the family expenses.

For these reasons we do not interfere and dismiss the appeal, with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 11 OF 1914.

May 17, 1915.

Present:—Sir Charles Fox, KT., Chief Judge.

MA TUN —APPELLANT

versus

MA WAING THA AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS.

Mortgage—Benamidar mortgagee, right of, to sue — Mortgagor, whether can object to mortgagee's right —Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 100—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 92.

A benamidar has a right of suit on a mortgage of immoveable property in his favour and it is not open to the mortgagor to raise any question as to the right of the benamidar to recover the mortgage debt. [p. 893, cols. 1 & 2.]

Ram Bhurosee Singh v. Bissesser Narain Mahata, 18 W. R. 454, followed.

Mr. Chari, for the Appellant.

Mr. Villa, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff is the widow of Shwe Gan who was son of San Bwin and Ma Aung.

Admittedly the original defendant, Moung Pe, whose legal representatives are the respondents in this appeal executed a mortgage bond in favour of Shwe Gan for money lent. Shwe Gan died and the plaintiff obtained a certificate to collect debts due to him. She sued Moung Pe to recover the amount due on the mortgage-bond. He pleaded that the money had been lent to him by San Bwin and Ma Aung and that he had re-paid the amount due to Ma Aung. The latter admitted receipt. Both Courts have held that Shwe Gan was merely a benamidar of his parents and that the plaintiff could not recover in the suit. In an appeal under section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure, this Court is bound by the Divisional Court's decision on the facts. The question of law involved in this case is whether it was open to the defendant to plead that the real mortgagees were San Bwin and Ma Aung although the documents of mortgage stated that Shwe Gan was the mortgagee and made the amount payable to him. On the finding of the Divisional Court it must be taken that Shwe Gan was merely a benamidar and the case of Munshi Basir-ud-din Ahmed v. Mahomed Jalish Patwari (1) has been cited in support of the proposition that a benamidar cannot sue for recovery of a mortgage-debt.

This decision purported to be based upon practically uniform decisions of the Calcutta High Court. There had, however, been decisions of that Court to a contrary effect, see Bhola Pershad v. Ram Lal (2) and Sachitananda Mohapatra v. Baloram Gorain (3). The Allahabad High Court had in Yad Ram v. Umrao Singh (4) expressly ruled to the contrary. It appears to me that this deci-

(1) 12 C. W. N. 409.
(2) 24 C. 34.
(3) 24 C. 644.
(4) 21 A. 380; A. W. N. (1899) 130.

sion is of greater weight than those of the Calcutta High Court which held that a benamidar had no right of suit. In Nand Kishore Lal v. Ahmed Ata (5), Burkitt, J, pointed out an error in the reading of a quotation in the judgment of the Privy Council in Gopeekrist Gosain v. Gungapersaud Gosain (6) made in one of the Calcutta High Court cases, and in Mohendra Nath Mukerjee v. Kali Proshad Johuri (7), Banerjee, J., admitted the error, but adhered to the view that a benamidar had no right of suit for recovery of immoveable property. The Allahabad cases appear to me to show that there is no strong foundation for this rule of law and there is certainly no such foundation for the rule that a benamidar has no right of suit on a mortgage in his favour.

If, as I hold, the plaintiff in this case, although she may be legal representative of a mere benamidar, had a right to sue on the mortgage, the further question arises, whether it was open to the defendant to raise and have tried in the suit the question whether the mortgagee was a mere benamidar. In my opinion it was not. It was not open to him to repudiate his own deed in writing, and to contest that although by the document he promised to re-pay the money to Shwe Gan, he in fact promised o re-pay it to Shwe Gan's parents, San Bwin and Ma Aung. To allow him to do so would be an infringement of the principle, if not of the actual letter, of section 92 of the Evidence Act The dispute between the plaintiff and her mother-in-law, as to who had the right to the mortgage-money, was no concern of the defendant's. He paid the money to Ma Aung's agent knowing full well that the plaintiff claimed it. He did so at his own risk and he has only himself to blame if he has to pay over again to the plaintiff.

To allow a mortgagor, when sued on a mortgage by the mortgagee, to raise questions as to whom the money lent came from, and as to some one other than the mortgagee named in the document being entitled to recover, it would be to allow a course which might throw an intolerable burden on mortgagee-plaintiffs and encourage harassment of creditors by fraudulent debtors.

Following the course taken in Ram Bhurosee Singh v. Bissesser Narain Mahata (8), I hold that it was not open to the defendant to raise any question as to the right of the plaintiff to recover on the mortgage.

The appeal is allowed. The decrees of the lower Courts are set aside.

There will be a mortgage-decree in the plaintiff's favour for Rs. 950, principal, and Rs. 228, interest up to the 13th February at the rate of Rs. 2 per mensem from that date until the 13th day of February 1916, which is the date fixed for payment into Court, together with costs of the plaintiff in all the Courts—in default of payment the property in the mortgage to be sold and the usual consequent orders to be entered in the decree.

Appeal allowed.

(5) 18 A. 69; A. W. N. (1895) 160.

(6) 6 M. I. A. 53; 4 W. R. 46 (P. C.); 1 Sar. P. C. J. 493; 19 E. R. 20.

(7) 30 C. 265; 7 C. W. N. 229.

(8) 18 W. R. 454.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1632 OF 1914.

January 26, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Shadi Lal.

MILKHI MAL AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

GULAB SINGH AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Settlement Records and jamabandis—Presumption of correctness—Gift of produce for charitable purposes—Impropriety of inventing technical names—Malguzar.

In the absence of satisfactory evidence to the contrary entries in the Settlement Records and the annual jamabandis must be accepted as correct. [p. 894, col. 1.]

Where, therefore, the ancestors of the plaintiffs who were originally the absolute owners of the land in dispute made a gift of half the produce of the land to the aecestors of the defendants with the object of charitably supplying them with means of livelihood:

Held, that the plaintiffs having been in physical possession for a very long time and there being no intention of transferring ownership or possession to the defendants, the latter had no right to possession of the land. [p. 894, col. 2.]

Where the rights and liabilities of the parties are perfectly well defined and both the parties have acted in accordance therewith for a long time, it is unnecessary for the Court to invent a legal expression by which the relationship existing between the parties should be described. [p. 894, col. 2.]

Second appeal from the decree of the Divisional Judge, Jullundur Division, dated the 21st day of May 1914, affirming that of the Munsif, first class, Jullundur, dated the 30th January 1914, decreeing plaintiffs' claim.

Rai Bahadur Pandit Shoe Narain, for the Appellants.

Lala Ganga Bishen, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The Courts below have concurred in holding that the ancestors of the plaintiffs-respondents were originally the absolute owners of the land in dispute and that they, on some date prior to 1851, gifted to the ancestors of the defendants, Ishar Das and Lachman Das, some of their rights, by which the latter were allowed to take half the produce from the donors, who were to remain in possession of the property. The donees were in the beginning also the muafidars of the land, but in process of time the Government resumed the muafi, and from that time onwards, the ex-muafidars were responsible for the payment of the land revenue. These findings of the lower Courts are based upon the entries in the Settlement Records and the annual jamabandis which, in the absence of satisfactory evidence to the contrary, must be accepted as correct. The Advocate for the defendants-appellants did not attempt to show why the entries in the Revenue Records should not be acted upon but simply stated a few facts in connection with the muafi and cited some rulings, and then left the Court to argue another case elsewhere. There was, therefore, no reply to the arguments advanced by the respondents' Pleader in support of the decree of the lower Appellate Court. It was contended on behalf of the respondents, and the contention seems to be fully justified, that some of the facts stated on behalf of the appellants were incorrect and that the authorities cited, being based on different sets of facts, had no bearing upon the case before me. In these circumstances I have, after giving my careful consideration to the case, come to the conclusion that the Courts below have taken the correct view and that nothing has been shown which would justify me in upsetting the concurrent findings against the appellants.

Upon the materials before me, it is quite clear that the plaintiffs had, from the earliest times of which we have got any record, been in physical possession of the land until they were dispossessed in 1912 and that the defendants have absolutely no right to the possession thereof. It appears that the gift of half the produce, which was, it is to be noted, made in favour of udasi faqirs, was prompted by charitable feelings and that there was never any intention of transferring to them the ownership or possession of the land. The object of the grant was merely to help the faqirs by supplying them with the means of their livelihood.

The rights and liabilities inter se are perfectly well defined and the plaintiffs have correctly stated them in the plaint. For more than 60 years, both the parties had acted in accordance therewith and it was only in 1912 that the status quo was disturbed. That being so, it is unnecessary for the Court to find out the exact meaning of the term malguzars which has been applied to the defendants Nos. 1 and 2, or to invent a legal expression by which the relationship existing between the parties should be described. As pointed out in Gujjar Singh v. Bawa Uddham Singh (1), the Court has to "look at the thing itself and its incidents without attaching to it a technical nickname of a kind calculated to mislead."

As regards the incidents, I entertain not the slightest doubt. The plaintiffs have, as stated above, given them in their plaint and the defendants have failed to establish anything to the contrary.

I accordingly affirm the decree of the lower Appellate Court and dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 4 Ind. Cas. 626; 86 P. W. R. 1909.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 145 OF 1914.

April 29, 1915.

Present:—Sir Charles Fox, KT., Chief Judge.

MOUNG TE AND OTHERS—APPELLANTS

versus

MOUNG OH—RESPONDENT.

Possession, suit for, by person purchasing from one who had no right to sell—Judgment-debtor, right of, to remain in possession until legally evicted.

DYAL v. HIRDE RAM.

A person in possession of land is entitled to retain possession of it until some one who can show that he has a good title sues him and gets a decree.

A judgment-debtor whose land has been sold in execution can continue in possession of it until removed by due process of law in execution of the decree.

Mr. Harvey, for the Appellants.

Mr. Halkar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

FOX, C. J.—The appellants, although they are judgment-debtors whose land was sold in execution of a decree against them, are entitled to remain in possession of it until removed by due process of law in execution of the decree, or until some one who can show that he has a good title sues them and gets a decree. The plaintiff claimed title by reason of a purchase from L. A. R. Subramaniam Chetty. In execution of the decree against the appellants the land was sold to Kali Mutu. There is nothing to show that Kali Mutu transferred the land to L. A. R. Subramaniam Chetty. The plaintiff bought from a person who had not a title and consequently he acquired no right to the land by his purchase and no right to have the defendant ejected from the land. The appeal is allowed, the decrees of both the lower Courts are set aside, and the suit is dismissed with costs. The plaintiff must pay the defendant's costs in the District Court and in this Court.

Appeal allowed.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1493 OF 1914.

February 22, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Shadi Lal.

DYAL AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

HIRDE RAM AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Appeal, second—Point not taken in lower Courts cannot be raised—Parties bound by case arising on pleadings.

A point not taken in the lower Courts cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal. [p. 895, col. 2; p. 896, col. 1.]

The parties are bound by the case which arises on their pleadings and which has been enquired into by the Court of first instance, and they cannot rely upon a point which has not been raised in that Court and which depends upon facts for its determination. [p. 896, col. 1.]

Second appeal from the decree of the Divisional Judge of Kulu, dated 23rd March 1914, affirming that of the District Judge, Kulu, dated the 25th of July 1913, dismissing the suit.

Bakshi Tek Chand, for the Appellants.

Rai Bahadur Pandit Sheo Narain, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The facts of this case are set out in extenso in the judgments of the lower Courts and need not be repeated here. The plaintiffs are the daughter's sons of one Jawahar, who died on the 15th March 1895. Upon his death, his property came into the possession of his second wife, Dasi. The lower Courts have held that the marriage between Jawahar and Musammat Dasi was valid according to custom and this finding cannot, in the absence of a certificate, be questioned in second appeal. Musammat Dasi who died in October 1912 had by her former husband a daughter, Musammat Kali, whose husband, Hirde Ram, is now in possession of the property which Musammat Dasi received from Jawahar, and the question for determination is whether the plaintiffs are entitled to recover possession from Hirde Ram. The Courts below have dismissed the suit and the plaintiffs have preferred a second appeal to this Court from the decree passed against them.

A preliminary objection has been taken by the Advocate for the respondents that the power-of-attorney in favour of the plaintiffs' agent Nandu does not authorise him to institute an appeal in the Chief Court. I have read the power-of-attorney carefully and I am of opinion that, though it does not expressly mention the institution of the appeal in the Chief Court, there is no doubt that the plaintiffs authorised him to prosecute all the litigation arising out of the suit and thus impliedly conferred upon him the power to lodge and prosecute an appeal in this Court. I accordingly overrule the preliminary objection.

Upon the merits, it is clear that the plaintiffs as daughter's sons have got the right of inheritance to the estate of their maternal grandfather: and the point raised for the first time in this Court that they are not entitled to immediate possession of the property in the presence of their mother, was not taken in the lower Courts and cannot, therefore, be entertained by a Court of second appeal. Moreover the daughter of Jawahar, the mother of the plaintiffs, is a defendant in this case and she has supported the claim of her sons.

The sole ground upon which the learned Divisional Judge has dismissed the suit is that Jawahar settled his self-acquired property absolutely on Musammat Dasi. Now it is clear that the case remained pending in the lower Courts for some time, that the defendant filed two written statements on two different occasions and that there was a remand by the Divisional Judge for further enquiry. During all this time, the defendant Hirde Ram, never asserted that Jawahar had gifted the property to Musammat Dasi and made her absolute owner thereof. I have read the written statements and find that the defendant did not resist the claim of the plaintiffs on the above ground and it is manifest that no issue was framed thereon. The plea that Jawahar acquired the property in Kothi Nagar for the maintenance of Musammat Dasi, cannot obviously be construed as amounting to an allegation of a gift by Jawahar to her of all his property in full ownership: I have no doubt whatever that the plaintiffs had no opportunity to meet the case set up on behalf of the defendant for the first time in the lower Appellate Court and the law is clear that a procedure of that kind is entirely unwarranted. The parties are bound by the case which arises on their pleadings and which has been enquired into by the Court of first instance and they cannot rely upon a point which has not been raised in that Court and which depends upon facts for its determination. Further, it is worthy of note that the vague statements of the three witnesses relied upon by the lower Appellate Court in this connection do not bear out the contention that there was a gift inter vivos of an absolute estate in favour of the woman. There is no document in support of the alleged gift and the evidence as to what took place at the time of her marriage is of the vaguest possible description and does not establish the theory of absolute ownership. I am, therefore, constrained to hold that the defendant has no title to the immoveable property. I allow the appeal, set aside the decrees of the lower Courts, and pass in lieu thereof a decree in favour of the plaintiffs for possession of the immoveable property specified in the plaint. The claim as to moveable property is dismissed and the parties are directed to pay their own costs in all the Courts.

Appeal accepted.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 2213 OF 1912.

February 18, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, KT., and Mr. Justice Richardson.

KALI KRISHNA BAISWAS AND OTHERS—APPELLANTS

versus

RAM CHANDRA BAIDYA AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss. 40, 153, scope of—Appeal, second—Commutation—Occupancy raiyat, advantage of—Revenue Court, decision of, how far affects Civil Court.

The question of Bhowli or Nagdi rent is one the decision whereon may be challenged by way of appeal under section 153 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. [p. 897, col. 1.]

Apurba Krishna Roy v. Ashutosh Dutt, 9 C. W. N. 122, referred to.

The propriety of commutation of rent of a holding or of the amount fixed cannot be called in question in a Civil Court. [p. 897, col. 2.]

A proceeding under section 40 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is founded on the assumption that the tenant whose rent is sought to be commuted is an occupancy raiyat. [p. 897, col. 2.]

A decision in a dispute as to the status of the tenant decided by the Revenue Authorities in a commutation proceeding under section 40 is not final and conclusive between the parties, the Civil Court has jurisdiction to go over it. [p. 897, col 2.]

Lalla Saligram Singh v. Mohunt Ramgir, 3 C. W. N. 311, distinguished.

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge of Backergunj, dated the 18th May 1912, reversing that of the Munsif, Barisal, dated the 27th November 1911.

Babu Surendra Nath Guha, for the Appellants.

Babu Gunada Charan Sen, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal by the plaintiffs in a suit for recovery of arrears of rent. According to the plaintiffs, the defendants hold as under-raiyats under a kabulyat executed on the 1st November 1903. The plaintiffs claim rent at the annual rate of Rs. 30, which is stated in the contract as the price of the paddy payable by the tenant to his landlord. The defendants contend that they are occupancy raiyats and that by a commutation order made under section 40 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, they are liable to pay rent only at the rate of Rs. 13-6-6 a year. The Court of first instance decreed the claim in full. On appeal the contention of the defendants has been allowed to prevail. The plaintiffs have now appealed to this Court.

A preliminary objection has been taken on behalf of the respondents that the appeal is incompetent under section 153 of the Bengal Tenancy Act as the amount claimed in the suit is less than Rs. 100. In our opinion, there is no foundation for this contention. The decree under appeal has decided the question of the amount of rent annually payable, namely, is it Rs. 30 a year as claimed by the plaintiffs or Rs. 13-6-6 a year as alleged by the defendants. This clearly is a question the decision whereon may be challenged by way of appeal under section 153, Bengal Tenancy Act. The view we take is supported by the case of Apurba Krishna Roy v. Ashutosh Dutt (1).

As regards the merits, it is plain that the view taken by the Court of first instance must be upheld. It has not been seriously contested that the defendants are under-raiyats according to the terms of the kabulyat by which the tenancy was created. But it has been argued that the order under section 40 is conclusive between the parties and debars the plaintiffs from asserting that the defendants are not occupancy raiyats. In support of this view, reliance has been placed upon the case of Lalla Saligram Singh v. Mohunt Ramgir (2). That case is clearly distinguishable. There an application for commutation of rent had been dismissed by the Revenue Authorities concerned. The applicant then instituted a suit in the Civil Court for declaration of his status and also for an order to compel the Revenue Authorities to make an order for commutation under section 40. It was ruled that a suit could not be maintained for this purpose. The Court pointed out that the Legislature had given a judicial discretion in this matter to the Revenue Court and to the Revenue Court alone, and did not allow its decision to be hampered either in advance or afterwards by any decision come to by the Civil Court. This view is clearly in accord with the provisions of clause (6) of section 40 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. It may be conceded that the propriety of commutation or of the amount fixed cannot be called in question in a Civil Court. But it is plain that a proceeding under section 40 is founded on the assumption that the tenant whose rent is sought to be commuted is an occupancy raiyat. The Legislature could never have intended that a dispute as to the status of the tenant should be finally decided by the Revenue Authorities in a commutation proceeding under section 40 and should thereafter be conclusive between the parties in the Civil Court. In the case before us, as it has been established that the defendants are under raiyats, no order for commutation could have been made under section 40. The order made by the Revenue Court was consequently without jurisdiction, the essential foundation for the exercise of jurisdiction, namely, that the tenant whose rent was sought to be commuted was an occupancy raiyat, is proved to have been non-existent. If the commutation order is out of the way, there is no room for controversy that the plaintiffs are entitled to realise rent at the rate mentioned in the plaint.

The result is that this appeal is allowed, the decree of the District Judge set aside and that of the Court of first instance restored. This order will carry costs in all the Courts.

Appeal allowed.

(1) 9 C. W. N. 122.
(2) 3 C. W. N. 311.

KALAPPA KAMTHI v. KACHUR SAKHA RAMA RAO.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1962 OF 1913.

April 20, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Coutts-Trotter and Mr. Justice Kumaraswami Sastri.

KALAPPA KAMTHI AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

KACHUR SAKHA RAMA RAO, BY HIS AGENT MAGESHWAR KRISHNAYA —PLAINTIFF AND ANOTHER DEFENDANT —RESPONDENTS.

Construction of document—Sale or mortgage—Test—Suit to cancel reconveyance—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 113.

The question whether a transaction is a mortgage by way of conditional sale or a sale with a provision for re-purchase depends ultimately upon the intention of the parties to be gathered from the instrument and the surrounding circumstances. [p. 898 col. 2; [p. 901, col. 1.]

Per Kumaraswami Sastri, J.—Two tests are generally applied in deciding whether a transaction which is on its face a sale, is only a mortgage, because of the condition to reconvey. One is whether there was a debt subsisting at the time to discharge which the document was executed and the other is whether the value of the land conveyed is so disproportionate to the amount mentioned in the document as the alleged consideration for the sale as to raise a reasonable presumption that the parties intended only a security. [p. 901, col. 1.]

The plaintiff's father and the 1st defendant's father who were brothers, divided their family property, and the 1st defendant's father sold his share, the property in dispute, to the plaintiff's father, the sale-deed containing a provision that if the purchase-money should be re-paid together with the value of any improvements effected, the land should be surrenderd to the first defendant's father. On the death of the plaintiff's father his mother acted as his guardian and conveyed the land back to the 1st defendant's father on his re-paying the purchase-money. The plaintiff sued for a declaration that his mother's release was not binding upon him and that he was entitled to get back the property on paying the original purchase-money:

Held, (1) (Coutts-Trotter, J. dissenting) that the document executed by the 1st defendant's father was a deed of sale and not a mortgage; [p. 901, col. 2.]

(2) that the right which the 1st defendant acquired under the option to re-purchase was in effect a right to demand specific performance of the contract to reconvey, and there being no refusal to perform in this case the question of limitation did not arise. [p. 899, col. 1; p. 901, col. 2.]

Venkappa Chetti v. Akku, 7 M. H. C. R. 219, distinguished.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of South Canara, in Appeal Suit No. 58 of 1912, preferred against that of the District Munsif of Kasaragod, in Original Suit No. 618 of 1910.

Mr. B. Sitarama Row, for the Appellants.

Mr. K. Sundara Row, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

COUTTS-TROTTER, J.—The plaintiff's father and the 1st defendant's father were brothers. They divided their family property in 1879, and on that division the property in question in the suit was allotted to the share of the 1st defendant's father by a deed dated the 22nd of October 1880. The 1st defendant's father sold this property to the plaintiff's father for Rs. 400 and the document contains a provision that if Rs. 400 should be re-paid together with the value of any improvements effected, the land should be surrendered to the 1st defendant's father. The plaintiff's father died and his mother acted as his guardian and managed his affairs. While she was so acting, and while the plaintiff was still a minor, the 1st defendant's father paid the Rs. 400 referred to in the deed of the 22nd of October 1880 and she conveyed the land back to him by a document dated the 16th of February 1905. Both the Courts below have found that this was a perfectly genuine transaction untainted by any fraud and honestly executed for the benefit and supposed benefit of the plaintiff. The plaintiff's suit is brought to declare that the transaction of the 16th February 1905, is not valid or binding upon him and that he is entitled to get back the land on condition of paying the Rs. 400. His case is that the right, if any, of the 1st defendant's father to get back the lands on payment of Rs. 400 was statute-barred in 1905 and that the mother of the plaintiff had no authority to carry out a transaction giving effect to a statute-barred right. The defendant contends, first, that the document of the 22nd October 1880 was, in its true construction, a mortgage or alternatively, that even if it was not a mortgage, the right conveyed by it to re-purchase was not statute-barred in 1905. The lower Courts have decided against the defendant on both issues and against their decision he appeals.

As to the first contention, the line of division between mortgages by conditional sale and sales with provision for re-purchase is a very fine one. It must ultimately depend upon what was the intention of the parties to be gathered from the instrument and a consideration of the surrounding circumstances. As pointed out in Swaminatha Aiyar v. Appasami Aiyar (1), that does not mean that extrinsic evidence is to be admitted to qualify or expand the terms of a written instrument, but only that circumstances in which the contracting parties stood and their relation to one another may be taken into consideration in order to ascertain what the real intention was. The words of the document in this case cannot be said to be conclusive either way. The fact that all the earlier transactions between the parties are set out and the balance due from the 1st defendant's father to his creditor is struck at Rs. 960, a larger sum than the Rs. 400 allocated to the land conveyed, points slightly in the direction of the document being a mortgage. The fact that no time limit is fixed for the exercise of the option to re-purchase also slightly points in the same direction. Much stronger, in my opinion, is the fact that the two parties to the deed were members of a united family who had only recently divided their property and the fact that the land conveyed was part of the share just recently allocated on partition to the 1st defendant's father. On the whole the balance of my opinion inclines, though not strongly, towards regarding the document as a mortgage.

But even if this be not so, I think the defendant is entitled to succeed on another ground. The Courts below have held that the 1st defendant's father's right to obtain a reconveyance was statute-barred on the authority of Venkappa Chetti v. Akku (2). That case was decided under the old Limitation Act, which contained no Article corresponding to Article 113 of the first Schedule of the Act of 1908 now in force. I think the right which the 1st defendant's father acquired under the option of re-purchase was in effect a right to demand specific performance of the contract to reconvey. No date being fixed for the performance, the period of limitation will begin to run "from the time when the plaintiff had notice that the performance was refused". As there was no refusal in this case, no question of limitation arises and the transaction of February 1905 was unimpeachable.

The plaintiff's case, therefore, fails and the appeal must be allowed and the suit dismissed with costs throughout.

KUMARASWAMI SASTRI, J.—The 6th and 7th defendants are the appellants. The plaintiff sued for a declaration that the deed of release executed by his mother in favour of the 1st defendant's father is not binding upon him and for possession of the property specified in the plaint. The case for the plaintiff was that the property specified in the plaint belonged to the ancestor of plaintiff and 1st defendant and fell to the share of 1st defendant's father at partition, that the 1st defendant's father conveyed the property to the plaintiff's father by outright sale on 22nd October 1880 for Rs. 400, that after his (plaintiff's father) death, the plaintiff's mother in collusion with the 1st defendant's father executed a document purporting to be a deed of relase with fictitious recitals and put 1st defendant's father in possession of the property, that plaintiff's mother was not competent under Hindu Law to execute the release and convey the property to 1st defendant's father and that the document is not valid as it is not supported by consideration and is fraudulent. The case for the defendant was that the property was not conveyed to plaintiff's father absolutely but only by way of mortgage, that the deed expressly provided that it should be reconveyed on re-payment of Rs. 400 and that the transaction impeached in the plaint was a bona fide one for consideration and was binding on the plaintiff.

The District Munsif was of opinion that the transaction between plaintiff's father and 1st defendant's father (Exhibit III) was an absolute sale-deed and not a mortgage and that the deed of release impeached in the plaint (Exhibit IV) was not a fraudulent transaction unsupported by consideration. He, however, held that Exhibit IV was not binding on the plaintiff as it was executed after the right of the 1st defendant's father to obtain a reconveyance became barred and as the plaintiff's mother had no power to give up the right to improvements which had been effected on the property. Contrary to the terms of Exhibit III, he gave a decree in favour of the plaintiff, but directed him to re-pay Rs. 572-15-0 being made up of Rs. 400 and the value of the improvements by tenants. On appeal the District Judge held that there was no evidence that plaintiff's mother acted collusively and observed as follows:—"There can be no doubt that the transaction was a reconveyance in accordance with the stipulation in Exhibit III and under the rulings quoted by the District Munsif, the 1st defendant's father's claim for reconveyance had become barred. The fact that Exhibit III does not provide for any period for the purchase does not affect the question (statutory limitation). The Munsif was right in holding that the plaintiff's mother acted beyond the scope of the powers as guardian of the plaintiff in executing Exhibit IV. Her conduct could only be regarded as having been induced by a mistaken impression that the claim was not barred."

(1) 27 Ind. Cas. 305; 27 M. L. J. 686; (1914) M. W. N. 906.

(2) 7 M. H. C. R. 219.

It is argued for the appellants that Exhibit III is on a true construction a deed of mortgage, that both the lower Courts having found on the evidence that Exhibit IV was not fraudulent or collusive, the release which was executed in pursuance of the obligations created under Exhibit III is valid and binding on the plaintiff and that no question of limitation arises having regard to the terms of the document (Exhibit III). As regards the first contention, I am of opinion that Exhibit III has not been shown to be a deed of mortgage. It purports to be a deed of sale executed in consideration of Rs. 400. The material portion runs as follows:—"As mentioned in the said deed of partition above referred to the principal payable by me to you in the matter of sale of Kukkaje property is Rs. 900, the interest due thereon till now is Rs. 95, in all the amount due by me to you is Rs. 995 deducting herefrom the sum of Rs. 35, being the rent due to me till now in respect of the said garden land pertaining to my share, the balance due is Rs. 960. Out of this amount of Rs. 960 a portion (viz., Rs. 400) having been set off by you against this sale-deed you have thereby paid to me the sum of Rs. 400. Rupees four hundred have been paid to me as per particulars noted above. Therefore I have forthwith surrendered to you the garden land, building and all else pertaining to my share and comprised within the boundaries shown below. You may happily enjoy the same hereditarily. You shall yourself pay to the heirs of the wargdar the sum of annas twelve, being the mulgani hereof. Hereafter I and my heirs have no right or interest whatever in the said garden land and house. Further, if this sum of Rs. 400 now set off against the sale-deed in respect of the land and house together by four persons in respect of such improvements as may be effected by you is paid to you out of my self-earning, you shall surrender to me the said land and house belonging to my share. To this effect is this deed of sale executed".

It is argued by the appellants' Vakil that the fact that no time is fixed for the execution of the reconveyance and that the agreement is embodied in the same document as the sale-deed, indicates that the document is a mortgage; reference has also been made to the cases of Palaniappan v. Subbaraya Gounden (3) and Singaram Chettiar v. Kalyanasundaram Pillai (4), where it was held that the presumption in such cases should be that the transaction was a mortgage. Numerous cases have been cited on both sides as to the construction of an agreement to reconvey, but I think that each case has to depend upon its peculiar facts and that no general rule can be laid down in the matter. The points to be taken into consideration in determining the question have been set out by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Balkishen Das v. W. F. Legge (5), where their Lordships observe as follows:—"Their Lordships do not think that oral evidence of intention was admissible for the purpose of construing the deeds or ascertaining the intention of the parties. By section 92 of the Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872) no evidence of any oral agreement or statement can be admitted as between the parties to any such instrument or their representatives-in-interest for the purpose of contradicting, varying or adding to or subtracting from its terms, subject to the exceptions contained in the several provisos. It was conceded that this case could not be brought within any of them. The cases in English Court of Chancery which were referred..... have not, in the opinion of their Lordships, any application to the law of India as laid down in the Acts of the Indian Legislature. The case must, therefore, be decided on a consideration of the contents of the documents themselves with such extrinsic evidence of surrounding circumstances as may be required to show in what manner the language of the document is related to existing facts."

(3) 22 Ind. Cas. 4; 14 M. L. T. 579; (1914) M. W. N. 222; 1 L. W. 80.

(4) 26 Ind. Cas. 1; (1914) M.W.N. 735; 1 L. W. 687.

(5) 22 A. 149; 27 I. A. 58; 4 C. W. N. 153; 2 Bom. L. R. 523.

It is, therefore, unnecessary for me to consider the various cases where Courts have applied the principles of English Law in determining whether a transaction is an out right sale or a mortgage. Two tests, however, have been generally applied in deciding whether a transaction which is on its face a sale is only a mortgage, because of the condition to reconvey. One is whether there was a debt subsisting at the time to discharge which the document was executed, and the other is whether the value of the land conveyed is so disproportionate to the amount mentioned in the document as the alleged consideration for the sale as to raise a reasonable presumption that the parties intended only a security. In the present case there is no satisfactory evidence on either of the above points. On the meagre materials before me, I cannot hold that the District Munsif was wrong in construing Exhibit III as a deed of sale.

The next contention of the appellants is that at the date of Exhibit IV the right to claim the reconveyance under Exhibit III was not barred and consequently both the Courts were wrong in holding that it was beyond the competence of plaintiff's mother to have executed the release. The clause relating to the reconveyance has already been set out by me in dealing with the contents of the document (Exhibit III). There can be little doubt that the contract between the parties was that the plaintiff's father should reconvey the property to the 1st defendant's father on the latter paying the former the sum of Rs 400. The claim for a reconveyance would, therefore, be a claim to enforce specific performance of contract to reconvey and would fall under Article 113 of the 2nd Schedule to the Limitation Act, which provides a period of three years from the date fixed for the performance, or if no such date is fixed when the plaintiff has notice that performance is refused. There is no date fixed for the performance in Exhibit III and there is no evidence that any performance was demanded or refused within three years prior to the date when the plaintiff's mother executed, Exhibit IV. It is difficult to see how it can be said that, when Exhibit IV was executed the right to claim reconveyance was barred. Reference has been made by the lower Court to Venkappa Chetti v. Akku (2). This case was decided before the Limitation Act of 1877 was passed and there was no provision corresponding to Article 113 in that Act. The suit was, therefore, treated as a suit to recover prossession of property and the 12 years' rule was applied. It is argued that even assuming that the claim was not barred by limitation, the plaintiff's mother had no power to give up the value of the improvements and accept Rs. 400. Both the lower Courts found that the mother acted bona fide and so far as the improvements are concerned there is no definite evidence as to what the improvements were. Such evidence as there is as regards the improvements made between the dates of Exhibits III and IV shows that the improvements were about Rs. 20 or Rs. 30 in value. Exhibit IV states that there was no improvement and I do not think it can be said that the plaintiff's mother in taking the principal amount of Rs. 400 and giving up the small sum of Rs. 20 acted in a manner prejudicial to the interests of the plaintiff.

I reverse the decrees of both the lower Courts and dismiss the plaintiff's suit with costs throughout.

Appeal allowed; Suit dismissed.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1369 OF 1914.

February 25, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Shadi Lal.

KALU AND OTHERS—JUDGMENT-DEBTORS—APPELLANTS

versus

BIR SINGH—DECREE-HOLDER—RESPONDENT.

Appeal, second—Omission to consider oral evidence—Material irregularity in procedure—Punjab Courts Act (III of 1914), s. 41 (1) (c).

KALYAN SINGH v. RAM GULAM SINGH.

An omission by a lower Appellate Court to consider the oral evidence and record a finding thereon, is a material irregularity in procedure, and is a good ground for second appeal.

Second appeal from the order of the Divisional Judge, Ambala, dated the 19th May 1914, reversing that of the Munsif, first Class, Ambala, dated the 7th April 1914, allowing judgment-debtors' objections.

Mr. Gulu Ram, for the Appellants.

Mr. Nihal Chand Mehra, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The contention of the judgment-debtor was that there was an adjustment of the decree on the 28th September 1913, when the decree-holder received Rs. 230 in lieu of his decree for restitution of conjugal rights, and Rs. 20 for costs, and that the latter is, therefore, precluded from executing the decree. In support of that contention two documents, Exhibits J D-1 and J D-2, and six witnesses were produced by the judgment-debtor and the Munsif after a full consideration of the evidence came to the conclusion that the due execution of those documents and the adjustment of the decree had been satisfactorily established and he accordingly dismissed the application for execution. Upon appeal the learned Divisional Judge reversed the finding of the Munsif and it appears that he based his judgment practically on two grounds (1) that the thumb-print marked (X) does not tally with the admitted thumb impression of the decree-holder, Bir Singh; and (2) that in the criminal proceedings the appellant Kalu stated on the 14th August 1912 that he had bought the woman of the respondent for Rs. 200 and that if he had so bought the woman in that year, there was no need for him to pay Rs. 230 on the 28th September 1913.

Now the learned Judge has entirely ignored the oral evidence and has not given any reason whatsoever why the stamp-vendor, the scribe and four attesting witnesses, upon whose testimony the Munsif based his judgment, should be disbelieved. As regards the thumb-prints on the documents I notice that no attempt was made to obtain expert opinion on the question of their genuineness and there is no evidence on the record to justify the finding of the learned Divisional Judge that the thumb-print marked (X) does not tally with the appellant's thumb-print.

In regard to the second reason given by the Divisional Judge, it seems to me that it is a matter of inference, pure and simple. The previous statement may or may not be capable of explanation, but it is wholly insufficient for condemning the documents as forged and the witnesses as perjurers. In the presence of direct evidence as to the transaction there is no room for argument based upon its alleged improbability.

The omission to consider the oral evidence and record a finding thereon is a material irregularity in the procedure of the lower Appellate Court and there has been, it appears, no proper trial of the appeal. The question as to the genuineness of the thumb-prints is one of great importance and ought to have been settled by sending the disputed thumb-marks to an expert for his opinion. The judgment as it stands cannot be upheld. The only course open to me in second appeal is to set it aside and remand the case for re-decision. I accordingly accept the appeal and setting aside the decree of the lower Appellate Court direct it to adjudicate upon the appeal of Bir Singh in accordance with law. Costs in this Court shall be costs in the cause.

Appeal accepted; Suit remanded.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 12 OF 1913.

June 4, 1915.

Present: - Mr. Justice Chapman and Mr. Justice Richardson.

KALYAN SINGH AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

RAM GULAM SINGH AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Possession, recovery of, suit for—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. IX, rr. 8 and 9, scope of—Former dismissal of suit, when bar to future suit.

Where the dismissal of a suit takes place under the provisions of section 102 of the old Code (Order IX, rule 8, of the new Code), the plaintiffs are precluded under Order IX, rule 9, (section 103 of the old Code) from bringing a fresh suit on the same cause of action. [p. 903, col. 2.]

Appeal from the decree of the Subordinate Judge of Monghyr, dated the 14th of August 1912.

Babu Kali Kinkar Chakravarti, for the Appellants.

Babus Joges Chandra Roy and Haradhan Chatterjee, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

CHAPMAN, J.—This is an appeal from a judgment of the learned Subordinate Judge of Monghyr, dated the 14th August 1912. The suit was brought by the plaintiffs who are the appellants to this Court, to recover possession of certain lands—a share in a patti called Busi Sing's patti This property was leased out by the plaintiffs by a document dated the 1st March 1889 to one Mr. Hollway for a term of nine years and on the same day Hollway sub-let the property back to the plaintiffs. On the 16th January 1893, Mr. Hollway granted a lease of the property to the defendants, the defendants, therefore, dispossessed the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs then brought on the 27th September 1894 a suit (No. 95 of 1894) asking for possession of the property, the subject-matter of the suit, namely 105 bighas 24 cottas of land. The suit was decreed by the Court of first instance and the plaintiffs then obtained possession of the property in execution. On the 4th September 1896 the defendants preferred an appeal to this Court against that decree. In May 1897 that appeal was allowed and the defendants applied to be restored to possession in execution of the High Court's decree. The plaintiffs objected that the lease under which Hollway held the property had expired; but the Court held that it could not go into such a matter in the execution proceeding. An appeal was then filed to this Court against the latter order and the plaintiffs had also prior to the filing of that appeal instituted a regular suit against the defendants, being Suit No. 359 of 1900. This Court dismissed the appeal against the refusal of the learned Judge to allow this question, which was raised by the present plaintiffs, to be gone into in execution, the Court remarking that the present defendants undertook that neither the proceedings for restitution nor the fact that the previous suit brought by the appellants (No. 359 of 1900) was subsequently dismissed for non-prosecution on the 5th March 1903, should in any sense be treated as a bar to any fresh suit which the present appellants might be advised to institute in relation to the disputed property. The question is whether the Court could place such a condition upon the respondents. It seems to me it could not. The decree in Suit No. 359 of 1900 shows that the case was one where the dismissal took place under the provisions of section 102 of the old Code of Civil Procedure which corresponds with Order IX, rule 8, of the new Code. That being so, the plaintiffs were precluded by law, that is under section 103, from bringing a fresh suit on the same cause of action. No Court in its judgment can say that, in a future suit, section 103 should not operate as a bar to the plaintiffs' suit. The real truth is that the plaintiffs ought to have applied in the manner provided by section 103 of the old Code to set aside the order of dismissal of Suit No. 359 of 1900, and the order of the Court saying that the fact that the suit had been dismissed for non-prosecution should not be treated in any sense as a bar to any fresh suit, is obviously obiter and not binding upon the defendants. It is an unfortunate position no doubt but we cannot give the go-by to section 103 of the old Code of Civil Procedure. That section is manifestly a bar to the present suit.

Whether or not the plaintiffs can now have their appeal revived against the refusal of the learned Judge to go into this question in execution, which was dealt with by the judgment of the 12th February 1906, it is not necessary for us to consider. All that we say in this case is that the former dismissal of Suit No. 359 of 1900 is a clear bar to the present suit brought by the plaintiffs. The result, therefore, is that, though for different reasons, I concur in the result arrived at by the learned Judge of the Court below and dismiss the appeal. As this point is one for which the plaintiffs themselves are not responsible, I think there should be no order for the costs of this appeal.

THAKAR DAS v. SHAH DIN.

RICHARDSON, J.—I agree.

Appeal dismissed.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 167 OF 1914.

April 14, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Rattigan.

THAKAR DAS AND ANOTHER—OBJECTORS —PETITIONERS

versus

SHAH DIN—RESPONDENT.

Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911), ss. 26, 28—Petition for revocation of patent—Burden of proof.

In a petition under section 26 of the Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911) for revocation of a patent, the onus lies heavily on the petitioner to show that the respondent is not the true and first inventor of the invention. [p. 904, col. 2.]

Petition, under section 26, Act II of 1911 (Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911), for the revocation of a patent granted to Shah Din Mistri.

Mr. Bhagat Ram Puri, for the Petitioners.

Lala Hukam Chand, for the Respondent.

ORDER.

RATTIGAN, J.—(April 17th, 1914).—Mr. Hukam Chand, on behalf of the respondent, files a written statement in reply to the allegatioas in the petition.

After questioning the learned gentlemen who respectively represent the petitioners and the respondent and after careful consideration of the allegations in the petition and in the written statement, I am of opinion that the points at issue between them are as follows:—

(1). Are the petitioners the true and first inventors described in paragraph (1) of the petition?

(2). Was the patent granted to respondent by the order of the Controller of Patents, dated 20th February 1914, obtained by respondent in fraud of petitioners' rights?

Under section 28 of Act II of 1911, I direct that the two issues above stated be tried before the District Court at Gurdaspur and that the said Court shall proceed in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (3) of section 28 of the said Act. The trial shall proceed with all convenient despatch, and pending its progress the respondent is to be at liberty to make all legitimate use of the invention. The parties are agreed that it will be in the interests of all concerned if the District Court appoints a responsible person to act as an ad interim Receiver of the profits (if any) accruing from such user of the invention, the said Receiver to keep the usual accounts and from the said profits (if any) to allow, from time to time, such sums of money to the respondent as in the opinion of the Receiver may be reasonable and proper for the efficient working of the invention by the respondent and his servants. I direct the District Court to take action accordingly.

The petitioners must give security, to the satisfaction of the District Court, for payment of any costs which may ultimately be awarded to the respondent. The record of the case will be forwarded as soon as possible to the District Court, Gurdaspur, for favour of compliance with the above orders

JUDGMENT.—A return has now been made to my order dated the 17th April 1914, and the District Judge, in his order dated the 23rd January last, carefully reviews the whole of the evidence produced by the parties before him. In his opinion this evidence clearly shows that the respondent Shah Din is the true and first inventor of the Mill and there is nothing whatever to support petitioners' allegation that Shah Din stole his idea from them. After perusal of the evidence taken on remand, I entirely agree with the District Judge's conclusions. The onus heavily lay upon the petitioners and the evidence adduced by them is of the vaguest and most unconvincing character, while a very strong point against them is that neither of them ventured to go into the witness-box to testify on oath to the truth of their assertions. As a result I must (as I hereby do) reject this petition with costs.

Petition rejected.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL SIDE APPEAL No. 102 OF 1914.

April 15, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Napier.

N. GOVINDA CHETTY—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

N. DORAISWAMI CHETTY—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Partition, suit for—Collection of rent by one of defendants subsequent to suit—Account—Procedure—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 47 (2).

Where in a partition suit it is alleged that one of the defendants collected rents of houses, the subject of suit, subsequent to the suit and the application is made to include that amount in the accounts between the parties, the proper course is not to treat the application as one for execution of the partition decree, but to treat it as a suit under section 47 (2) of the Code of Civil Procedure and to levy additional Court-fee thereon and to direct the parties to submit a true and correct account of the rents and profits collected.

Appeal from the order of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Bakewell, dated the 10th November 1914, in ordinary original civil jurisdiction of this Court, in Civil Suit No. 6 of 1908.

Mr. W. V. Rangaswami Aiyangar, for the Appellant.

Mr. K. Ramachandran, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—We are unable to agree with the learned Judge that it must be assumed that if the 1st defendant "had collected any rents, they were taken into account in the proceeding upon which" the decree was passed.

If any such sums had been so taken into account, it lay upon the 1st defendant to prove that fact as a defence to the plaintiff's claim.

The plaintiff's claim for rents of the house purchased by him from April 1910 was not a matter (so far as we could see) which could have been or was intended to be gone into in the suit for partition.

We think that the most appropriate course is (in discharge of the learned Judge's order)

(a) to direct under section 47 (2) of the Code of Civil Procedure this application by Judge's summons to be treated as a suit, the appellant to pay the additional Court-fees within two weeks;

(b) to direct the appellant to file in Court an additional statement in which the necessary additional allegations should be made (in addition to the allegations contained in the affidavit filed in support of the Judge's summons), showing particulars as to the actual collections of rents and profits made by the respondent and also indicating, where any portion of the claim is prima facie barred by limitation, how it is not barred.

The additional statement ought to be filed in four weeks. The case is remanded for final disposal as suit, the costs hitherto being costs in the cause.

Appeal allowed; Suit remanded.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEALS NOS. 163 AND 164 OF 1913.

March 26, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Richardson and Mr. Justice Mullick.

IN APPEAL No. 163

AMBICA CHARAN DAS—DEFENDANT No. 1—APPELLANT

IN APPEAL No. 164

PRIYA NATH DAS—DEFENDANT No. 2—APPELLANT

versus

HARINATH DAS AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS IN BOTH.

Principal and Agent—Joint property of brothers—Some brothers taking management of property—Relation created—Managers, duty of—Government Revenue, payment of, if for upkeep of estate.

Where by agreement two of the five brothers agreed to take over the management of their joint property for a period of five years for the improvement and upkeep of the estate:

Held, that the relationship of principal and agent created by the agreement must not be overlooked and that the managers are under a legal duty to exercise reasonable care and diligence in the management of the estate. [p. 906, col. 2.]

A payment on account of the Government revenue of an estate is a payment for the upkeep of the estate. [p. 906, col. 2.]

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge, Khulna, dated the 28th November 1912, affirming that of the Munsif, second Court at that place, dated the 26th of March 1912.

Babu Surendra Chandra Sen, for the Appellants in No. 163.

Babu Hemendra Chandra Sen, for the Appellan in No. 164.

Dr. Nares Chandra Sen Gupta, for the Respondents in Nos. 163 and 164.

JUDGMENT.

RICHARDSON, J.—By an agreement, dated the 17th Chaitra 1315 B. S., two of five brothers agreed to take over the management of their joint property for a period of five years from the 1st Baisakh 1316 to Chaitra 1320. The case was argued before us with sole reference to clause 8 of the agreement. In that clause the management is expressed to be for the "improvement and upkeep" of the estate. The managers were to take two-fifths of the profits and to be liable for two-fifths of the profits and expenses, the remaining three-fifths of the profits and expenses being respectively payable to and by the other three brothers who renounced their rights of management during the period in question. The clause ends as follows:—"If for the protection of the property the managers are required to pay any money in advance they shall make such payment and protect the property and they will be afterwards entitled to recover the same with interest; if the managers fail to pay the profits in proper time they shall be bound to pay the same with interest."

The plaintiff in this suit is one of the two managers and the defendant No. 2 is the other. It appears that the estate stands in the Collectorate in the name of the plaintiff, and that a certificate having been issued against him he was compelled to pay the sum of Rs. 1,256-6-0 on account of arrears of Government revenue due in respect of the year 1910. The payment was made on the 28th March 1911 and on the 19th April following he brought this suit for contribution against his brothers. He obtained a decree in the Court of first instance which was confirmed by the learned Subordinate Judge in the Court of Appeal below. Two of the brothers, the defendant No. 1 and the defendant No. 2, have preferred appeals (Nos. 163 and 164 of 1913) to this Court.

For the defendant No. 1 it is argued in effect that the Government revenue was payable in the first instance by the plaintiff and the defendant No. 2 as managers out of collections which they made or ought to have made from the estate and in the circumstances a claim for contribution is untenable. There is undeniable force in this argument. It is not suggested that the agreement of 17th Chaitra 1315 was for any reason invalid. As the suit is framed, the plaintiff can only succeed by bringing his case within the terms of section 69 of the Contract Act:—"A person who is interested in payment of money which another is bound by law to pay, and who, therefore, pays it, is entitled to be re-imbursed by that other." No doubt in a sense all the brothers were responsible for the Government revenue and the payment made by the plaintiff was made on behalf of them all. But the relationship of principal and agent created by the agreement must not be overlooked. The managers were under a legal duty to exercise reasonable care and diligence in the management of the estate. As both Courts below have held, a payment on account of Government revenue is a payment for the upkeep of the estate and it is difficult to see how the managers or either of them can recover anything on account of such a payment unless and until they or he shows that he is entitled as agent to charge his principals. The plaintiff has not attempted to prove anything of the kind. He has simply ignored his obligations under the agreement, as to which the plaint is entirely silent. As between the plaintiff and the defendant No. 1, therefore, it is not shown that the latter was legally bound to make the payment in respect of which contribution is sought. On the contrary the presumption is that as between the parties, the plaintiff and the defendant No. 2 are the persons primarily responsible and no attempt has been made to displace that presumption.

As to the concluding part of clause 8 of the agreement it is obvious that the payment of arrears of Government revenue cannot be regarded as a payment in advance, at any rate until it is shown that there were no assets from which a payment could have been made in the ordinary course. What seems to have been contemplated by advances was expenditure on account of improvements.

As to the case of defendant No. 2, here again it is difficult to see how a claim for contribution can be maintained on the footing adopted in the plaint. It is impossible to say what the relative rights and obligations of the plaintiff and the defendant No. 2 may be, without reference to what took place under the agreement and such questions as the actual control which both or either had over the assets.

In my opinion no claim for contribution can be maintained in the suit as framed. The appeals, therefore, succeed and the suits must be dismissed with costs here and in the Courts below.

MULLICK, J.—I agree.

Appeals allowed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 2266 OF 1912.

March 22, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ayling and Mr. Justice Tyabji.

M. K. VEERARAGHAVA CHARIAR—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

A. KRISHNAMACHARIAR—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Madras Survey and Boundaries Marks Act (IV of 1897), s. 13—Adverse possession—Starting point of limitation.

Where an original order of a Survey Officer, adverse to the plaintiff, was dated 31st October 1908 but both parties' cross-appeals were heard together and disposed of by a single order dated the 18th January 1909:

Held, that the date of the latter order was the starting point of limitation for the plaintiff's suit for possession. [p. 908, col. 2.]

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of Chingleput, in Appeal Suit No. 598 of 1911, preferred against that of the District Munsif of Chingleput, in Original Suit No. 66 of 1910.

Mr. N. B. Doraisawmy Aiyangar, for the Appellant.

Mr. P. V. Ramachandra Raju, for the Respondent.

This second appeal coming on for hearing on the 18th August 1914, the Court delivered the following JUDGMENT.—There is no finding by the District Judge on the plea of adverse possession set up by the defendant, and embodied in issue No. 3, though this was made the 7th ground of appeal before him. It appears to have been overloked. We must call for a finding on this point.

As regards limitation, the appellant's Vakîl urges that the original order of the survey officer adverse to the plaintiff was dated 31st October 1908, and that Exhibit C is only an order on his (appellant's) appeal and will not give the respondent a starting point for limitation under section 13 of Madras Act IV of 1897. The respondent has now been allowed to file a public copy of an appeal petition filed by him against the Survey Officer's order (Exhibit D) and he represents that this appeal also was disposed of by Exhibit C.

As the facts are not clear, we must call for a finding: "Was there any decision of an appellate authority adverse to the plaintiff within the meaning of section 13 of Madras Act IV of 1897, which he might take as a starting point of limitation under that section, and if so, of what date?"

On this issue, both sides may adduce further evidence if they so desire.

The findings should be submitted within two months from this date and seven days will be allowed for filing objections.

In accordance with the order contained in the above judgment the District Judge of Chingleput submitted the following FINDING.—The first issue on which the High Court has called for a finding is, "whether the suit is within time." This is issue No. 3 in the suit.

2. The plaintiff deposes that till two or three years prior to the suit he had a shed on the suit site and was tying cattle therein. P. W. No. 2 corroborates him, P. W. No. 3 says in general terms that the site is in the enjoyment of the plaintiff.

3. None of the defendant's witnesses says that either he or his vendor was even in enjoyment of the suit site. In Exhibit B the defendant acknowledged the plaintiff's right to the suit site. The District Munsif finds for these reasons that the suit is within time. On the evidence this is the only conclusion possible, and I find that the suit is within time.

4. The next issue on which a finding is called for is, "was there any decision of appellate authority adverse to the plaintiff within the meaning of section 13 of Madars Act IV of 1897 which he may take as a starting point of limitation under that section, and if so, of what date."

5. The defendant's contention is that the order, of which Exhibit C is a copy, was passed on his appeal petition, Exhibit B, and not on any petition presented by the plaintiff to the Survey Department. For the plaintiff it is urged that he put in an appeal petition of which Exhibit D is a copy and that the order Exhibit C was received by him from the Survey Department as having been passed on his appeal. From the application put in by the plaintiff for copies of his appeal petition and the order passed thereon and the reply received from the Survey Department—Exhibit D series—it is clear that the appeals presented by him and the defendant were both heard together and that a single order—the original of Exhibit C—was passed. This is not improbable. It may be observed that from Exhibit C it appears that the plaintiff was also heard. I do not think there is much importance in the contention raised on behalf of the defendant that the plaintiff should have preferred his appeal under section 12 of Act IV of 1887 to the Sub-Assistant Surveyor who is the immediate superior to the Survey Officer, and not to the Assistant Director. I find the first part of this issue in favour of the plaintiff. The date of the order, Exhibit C, is 18th January 1909 and I find that it is the starting point of limitation for plaintiff's suit.

This second appeal coming on for final hearing after the return of the finding of the lower Appellate Court upon the issue referred by this Court for trial, the Court delivered the following JUDGMENT.—We accept the findings and dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

REFERRED CASE No. 7 OF 1913.

March 3, 1915.

Present:—Sir John Wallis, KT., Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Ayling and Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar.

RAJAMMAL—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

NARAYANASAMY NAICKER AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 63—Claim Proceedings—Suit to establish right—Jurisdiction of Small Cause Court—Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), s. 19 (s).

A suit to establish a right given to the unsuccessful party in claim proceedings under the Code of Civil Procedure involves in every case a prayer for the setting aside of a summary order of a Civil Court. Such a suit cannot be regarded as a suit for a mere declaration and is not excluded from the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court under section 19 (s) of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act. [p. 916, col. 1.]

Case stated under section 69 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, XV of 1882, by the Registrar of the Court of Small Causes, Madras, in Suit No. 3117 of 1913.

Mr. P. Sambandam, for the Plaintiff.

Mr. C. Pattabirama Iyengar, for the Defendants.

FACTS of the case appear from the following judgment of Oldfield and Tyabji, JJ., who referred the case to a Full Bench:

JUDGMENT.

"OLDFIELD, J.— The facts, as submitted, are that the 1st defendant in execution of his decree attached moveable property as belonging to the 2nd defendant, his judgment-debtor. The plaintiff claimed unsuccesfully and then brought the present suit for the return of the property or payment of its value by the 1st defendant. The property is in the custody of the Court. The questions referred are:—

(1) Is the suit maintainable?

(2) Is the plaintiff bound to ask for an express declaration of her right to the property?

(3) Is the suit one contemplated by Order XXI, rule 53, of the Small Cause Court Rules and is it cognizable by the Small Cause Court?

It is to be observed first that questions 1 and 2 may, for the purpose of the reference, be treated as alternative. The object is to determine the form in which the plaintiff should ask for relief and the Court, to be determined with reference to that form, which can give it. If she is bound to ask for a declaration and cannot obtain one in a Small Cause Court, she will not be able to alter the latter fact by asking also for a decree for possession which such a Court ordinarily could give, because she either is obliged or chooses to do so.

The 1st defendant's objection to the suit as framed is shortly that the plaintiff's claim for recovery of property from a person who is not in possession of it, is meaningless and not maintainable. Contra, it is urged that in fact the 1st defendant is in possession of it through the attaching Court, since the Court holds it on his behalf, either generally or as his agent. This view is not tenable. Two aspects only have been referred to in which the possession of the Court resembles that of an agent, that (1) its officers would be liable to the 1st defendant in case the property were lost or damaged through their negligence, (2) the 1st defendant can at any time terminate the Court's possession by withdrawing his attachment. But as regards (1) the liability to the 1st defendant would be only for such proportion of the value of the property, not exceeding the amount of his decree, as might have been recoverable by its sale, the 2nd defendant being entitled to recover also, in case the 1st defendant's claim did not exhaust the whole value; and as regards (2), though the 1st defendant could terminate the Court's custody at his option, he could not himself obtain possession, since it would revert to the person from whom it was taken. In other respects, the attempt to represent the Court's possession as that of the 1st defendant's agent fails entirely. The property is not the 1st defendant's and did not come into the Court's possession as his; and he would not suffer, except indirectly and in the event of his not being able to recover his decree amount otherwise, by its loss or deterioration in circumstances in which no compensation could be claimed. Nor, the analogy with agency falling, is the contention that the Court's custody is in some less specific way equivalent to the 1st defendant's better established. For the distinctions drawn between the former and the custody of an agent are equally applicable to any more general relation which can be suggested. The difficulty in the plaintiff's way is still that attachment does not affect ownership and that the Court, though it holds the property at the creditor's instance, holds it in no way at his direct disposal or more for his benefit than for that of the debtor, to whom it belongs and whose debt it is to discharge. It is not necessary to decide whether the Court's custody is sui generis or is covered by any of the general legal descriptions of possession. It is sufficient that the property has not been shown to be in the possession of the 1st defendant. He, therefore, cannot be sued for its recovery. The alternative is that the plaintiff must establish her right against him by a suit for a declaration.

The Madras cases are consistent with this. The first referred to here, Jankiammal v. Vithenadien (1), is, no doubt, in plaintiff's favour. Its authority is, however, doubtful because the report does not refer explicitly to the Court's custody of the property and because the case was not argued. The next, Kundeme Naine Booche Naidoo v. Ravoo Lutchmeepaty Naidoo (2), is not in point, because the Court's custody had ceased on the sale of the attached property to the 2nd defendant, from whom possession or the value was claimed. Kolasherri Illath Narainan v. Kolasherri Illath Nilakandan Nambudri (3) was decided under the Code of Civil Procedure, and the property being immoveable, the Court's custody was not in question. The decision, however, laid down generally that an unsuccessful claimant cannot ask for the discharge of the order of attachment in his suit, but must obtain a declaration and carry it to the attaching Court which will act on it. The point actually decided was that the plaintiff was not bound to ask for specific relief in the shape of a discharge of the attachment, besides a declaration regarding it or the ownership of the property; and it is to be presumed that any contention regarding specific relief at the hands of the defendants would have been similarly negatived. In Naranayyan v. Nageswarayyan (4), the Court, no doubt, said generally that a plaintiff in a suit under section 283 of the Civil Procedure Code could ask for specific relief as well as a declaration. But this statement had no bearing on jurisdiction or the facts of the case, which do not appear to have included possession by an attaching Court. The two next decisions are greatly relied on by the plaintiff. In Mahomed Koya v. Kasmi (5), decided under the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, it was held consistently with the 1st defendant's present argument that the plaintiff was not bound to sue for recovery of the moveables under attachment and had sued rightly for a declaration. But reliance has been placed on the words "if plaintiff had sued for recovery of the property, the suit would be cognizable by a Court of Small Causes." They are, however, followed immediately by others, which show that this statement was conditional on the circumstances enabling the plaintiff to sue for possession at all and that they in fact did not do so, because the property was in the possession, not of any private person, but of the Court, which could not be sued. Next in Ambu v. Kellilamma (6), immoveable property was in question and there was, therefore, no possession by an attaching Court, the property being in fact in possession of an auction-purchaser. The plaintiff had already sued once under section 283 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and the question was whether she could sue again after the sale for possession. The observations of Muthusami Aiyar, J., regarding the claimant's right to sue once only after her title has been declared are, therefore, not now relevant. They were disapproved in Kunhiamma v. Kunhunni (7), but finally approved in the Full Bench case of Kristnam Sooraya v. Fathma Bee (8). But the last-mentioned decision really did no more than endorse the learned Judge's opinion that section 42 of the Specific Relief Act does not take away the plaintiff's right to sue only for a declaration under section 283 of the Code of Civil Procedure and in no way authorised the principle, on which the plaintiff's argument depends, that independently of the circumstances of the case and the nature of the possession in which the disputed property is, a suit for possession with or without a prayer for declaration is the proper remedy. As to that, the current of Madras authority is in the 1st defendant's favour.

(1) 5 M. H. C. R. 191.
(2) 8 M. H. C. R. 36.
(3) 4 M. 131.

So also in Calcutta and Allahabad. In Shiboo Narain Singh v. Mudden Ally, Natabar Nandi v. Kali Das Pali (9), section 283 of the Code of Civil Procedure was in question and the Court was dealing directly with a suit against a purchaser in possession. It, therefore, held that a suit for possession or the value of the property would lie. But in doing so, it distinguished between such a case and one similar to Ram Dhun Biswas v. Kefal Biswas (10) or that now before us, in which no sale had taken place and a declaration had, therefore, to be asked for. This decision is explained by the Allahabad High Court in the Full Bench case of Godha v. Naik Ram (11). In it a claim to property in the possession of the Court was in question, and a conclusion consistent with that already based on Madras authorities was reached. The expression of dissent at the end of the judgment from the Madras view can be accounted for by the fact that only the two earliest cases above referred to were considered and the facts in the later were misunderstood.

On the other hand, the plaintiff is, no doubt, entitled to rely on the most recent case in Bombay. The earlier cases, Nathu

(4) 17 M. 389.
(5) 9 M. 206.
(6) 14 M. 23.
(7) 16 M. 140.
(8) 29 M. 151 (F. B.).
(9) 7 C. 608; 9 C. L. R. 8.
(10) 10 W. R. 141; 1 B. L. R. (S. N.) 10.
(11) 7 A. 152 (F. B.); A. W. N. (1883) 349.

Ganesh v. Kalidas Umed (12) and Gordhan Pema v. Kasandas Balmukundas (13) are also in her favour, though they are of small weight, since neither was decided after argument. But in Raghunath Mukund v. Sarosh K. R. Kama (14), the Court held that a suit for possession would lie against the attaching creditor although a claim had been made and failed and that no declaration need be asked for. It was regarded as conclusive that "the direct object of a claimant whose goods have been attached by the Sheriff is to get his goods released from attachment and not merely to have it declared that they are his." It can only be replied that this is irreconcilable with the view taken by this Court in Kolasherri Illath Narainan v. Kolasherri Illath Nilakandan Nambudri (3) and the procedure laid down therein as appropriate.

In these circumstances in accordance with general principles and the balance of authority including that of this Court, question 1 must be answered in the negative and question 2 in the affirmative.

This decision renders it unnecessary to answer question 3 as it stands. For the suit, as brought, is not such as Order XXI, rule 53, and the facts authorise. It may, however, be observed that there is no reason why the suit for a declaration contemplated by Order XXI, rule 53, should not be covered, like other suits for declaration, by section 19 (s) and excluded from the Court's jurisdiction. It is not necessary to go through the different Codes, Small Causes Court Acts and Rules, since they all provide in practically identical terms for a suit to establish the claimant's right. It would be useless to follow the learned Judges in their conjectures as to the intention of the Legislature in using those words, since no certain basis for such conjectures has been suggested. A more legitimate ground of decision is the fact that in the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act in force before 1887, suits for declaratory decrees were excepted generally from the small cause jurisdiction, whereas in Act IX of 1887 suits for declarations other than suits under sections 283 and 332 of the Code of Civil Procedure were excepted by Schedule II, Article 19, and suits under those sections were excepted specifically by Article 20. This is not significant, as the plaintiff contends, as a special treatment of such suits for the provincial Courts, but rather as indicating the manner in which the term "suits for declaratory decrees" should be understood, with reference to its use in a similar enactment. It would serve no useful purpose to go through the authorities again with regard to this point. In those in which conflict between ordinary and small cause jurisdiction is in question, the decision depends on the presence or absence of an obligation to ask for a declaration and to get the adverse order on the plaintiff's claim petition set aside. It is with reference to the existence of that obligation that a conclusion must be reached, Order XXI, rule 53, providing only for the suit, but not specifying the forum in which it should be brought. If, therefore, question 3 is really whether a person in plaintiff's position can sue in the Small Cause Court, it must be answered in the negative.

As my learned brother differs, the case must be placed before a Full Bench for disposal.

TYABJI, J.—The present suit must, it seems to me, be considered, by reason of the allegations in the plaint, as set out in the reference to us, to be one for "the establishment of a right" under Order XXI, rule 53 of the Small Cause Court Rules (corresponding to Order XXI, rule 63 of the Civil Procedure Code). It does not appear whether the Order and rule are specifically mentioned in the plaint, but the circumstances alluded to in rule 53 are set out and there seems no doubt that the plaintiff and all concerned considered the suit to be instituted under the said rule. In none of the numerous reported cases where similar allegations were made, has any question been raised about the suit being for the establishment of the right, under the rule or the corresponding sections. See for instance, prayer (d) in Kishori Mohun Rai v. Hurscok Das (15) affirmed in Kishorimohun

(12) 2 B. 365.
(13) 3 B. 179.
(14) 23 B. 266.
(15) 12 C. 696.

Roy v. Harsukh Das (16) and the prayers in Phul Kumari v. Ghanshyam Misra (17).

The attachment and unsucessful claim affect the rights of the parties not only as to limitation, but also, it seems to me, by giving rise to a new cause of action "to establish the right which he" (the unsuccessful claimant) "claims to the property in dispute." See Godha v. Naik Ram (11) (Straight, Oldfield, Broadhurst and Tyrell, JJ.), Phul Kumari v. Ghanshyam Misra (17).

Though this cause of action is similar to that on which a suit for a declaratory decree is based [Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, section 19 (s)], yet it is different in the following and perhaps other respects:—

(1) The granting of a declaration, falling as it does under section 42 of the Specific Relief Act, is discretionary; establishing the right is not discretionary. Raghunath Mukund v. Sarosh K. R. Kama (14) (Farran, C. J., and Strachey, J.).

(2) A suit for "establishment of right" is not subject to the rule contained in the last cited section that if the plaintiff, being able to seek further relief than a mere declaration, omits to do so, the declaration cannot be granted: Narayanrav Damodar Dabholkar v. Balkrishna Mahadev Gadre (18) (Westropp, C. J., M. Melvill, J., F. D. Melvill, J.), Krishnam Sooraya v. Fathma Bee (8) (White, C. J., Subramania Aiyar and Davies, JJ.), adopting Muthusami Aiyar, J.'s view in Ambu v. Ketlilamma (6) and overruling Collins, C. J., and Wilkinson, J., in Kunhiamma v, Kunhuni (7), though further and consequential reliefs may be prayed for and granted: Sadu bin Raghu v. Ram bin Govind(19), Naranayyan v. Nageswarayyan (4).

(3) "A suit for establishing a right of the kind contemplated" in the section or rule in question "seeks not only a declaration of the plaintiff's right, but also substantial consequential relief in the setting aside or restoration of the attachment:" Dayachand Nemchand v. Hemchand Dharamchand (20) (see the question referred to the High Court at page 517); and the suit to establish a right has been considered as distinct from one for a declaration, (though as the result of a strict construction of a fiscal enactment like the Court Fees Act, the stamp duty on the two suits may be the same): Dhondo Sakharam Kulkarni v. Govind Babaji (21) Phul Kumari v. Ghanshyam Misra (17).

(4) "The direct object of a claimant whose goods have been seized by the Sheriff is to get his goods released from attachment, and not merely to have it declared that they are his goods. In substance the suit is for the goods, though as a matter of form the decree may contain a declaration. * * * * It would be an error to call a suit intended to have such a result a suit for declaration:" Raghunath Mukund v. Sarosh K. R. Kama (14). Such a suit, therefore, though it may not be "a suit for possession of personal property pure and simple"—Makund Lal v. Nasiruddin (22); Ilahi Bakhsh v. Sita (23)—yet it differs from it merely by reason of the attachment, and may, therefore, "be properly regarded as a suit for personal property:' " Chhaganalal Nagardas v. Jeshan Rav Dalsukhram (24) (Melvill and Pinhey, JJ.), Pagi Partap Hamir v. Varajlal Mulchand (25) (Sargent, C. J., and Kemball, J.). Nor does the section (or rule) "prevent a tribunal, before which such a party (i. e., "against whom an order upon an application under that section has been made") "might have brought his suit, if there had not been any application made' under that section from entertaining it," per Westropp, C. J., and Melvill, J., Nathu Ganesh v. Kalidas Umed (12), Gordhan Pema v. Kasandas Balmukundas (13) (Melvill and Kemball, JJ.).

(5) The suit to establish the right supplies the absence of any provision by which a Court other than a Court of Appeal or a High Court may discharge an order for attachment. "It is, in substance, to reverse the order of the Court out of which the execution issued:" Alexander Mitchell v.

(16) 17 C. 436 at pp. 437, 441 (P. C.); 17 I. A. 17; 13 Ind. Jur. 452; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 472.
(17) 35 C. 202 (P. C.); 12 C. W. N. 169; 35 I. A. 22; 7 C. L. J. 36; 5 A. L. J. 10; 17 M. L. J. 618; 2 M. L. T. 506; 10 Bom. L. R. 1.
(18) 4 B. 529.
(19) 16 B. 608.
(20) 4 B. 515 at p. 521.
(21) 9 B. 20.
(22) 4 A. 416; A. W. N. (1882) 93.
(23) 5 A. 462.
(24) 4 B. 503.
(25) 8 B. 259.

Mathura Das (26). The effect of a judgment in such a suit is "to supersede" the order on the claim petition, and "to render it altogether inconclusive:" Kishori Mohun Roy v. Harsukh Das (16). Lord Watson speaks of the "decree of the Subordinate Judge dismissing the respondent's claim." I have substituted "order;" Sadu bin Raghu v. Ram bin Govind (19). This jurisdiction may be exercised according to Kolasherri Illath Narainan v. Kolasherri Illath Nilakandan Nambudri (3) by a Court whose jurisdiction is inferior to that of the Court which issued the order for attachment; see also Krishnappa Chetty v. Abdul Khader Saheb (27). The Allahabad High Court, on the other hand, considered that this would be so inconvenient as to justify their differing from the Madras and Bombay High Courts. Godha v. Naik Ram (11).

(6) Attachment of moveable property is for the purposes of suit to "establish the right" not equivalent to dispossession, Pagi Partap Hamir v. Varajlal Mulchand (25) following Chhaganlal Nagardas v. Jeshan Rav Dalsukhram (24). The attaching creditor is responsible for the property while it is under attachment: Kishori Mohun Roy v Harsukh Das (16).

(7) The phrase "suit to establish his right" construed in its narrowest sense does not exclude a suit in which reliefs consequential upon a declaration are expressly prayed for. If the phrase is more largely construed, even a suit to obtain partition and separate possession may not inaptly be described as a suit to establish his right: Sadu bin Raghu v. Ram bin Govind (19). This case refers to the various reliefs which have been either actually granted in a suit to establish a right, on the ground that the other reliefs (though not expressly prayed for) are included in or flow from the establishment of the right; or have been considered as capable of being asked as consequential reliefs; e. g.,

(a) setting aside the sale: Bank of Hindustan v. Premchand Raichand (28),

(b) directing the money to be restored: Bank of Hindustan v. Premchand Raichand (28),

(c) recovery of the attached property from the purchaser: Jetti v. Sayad Husein (29),

(d) setting aside or restoration of the attachment: Dayachand Nemchand v. Hemchand Dharamchand (20),

(e) re-placing the plaintiff in possession of the property in question: Narayanrav Damodar Dabholkar v. Balkrishna Mahadev Gadre (18),

(f) protection from sale: Ram Prasad v. Sukh Dai (30),

(g) partition and separate possession: Sadu bin Raghu v. Ram bin Govind (19).

In the result (A) a series of the most distinguished Judges of the High Court of Bombay have consistently held that where a suit is instituted under the circumstances referred to in Order XXI, rule 53 of the Small Cause Courts Rules, its maintainability in that Court is affected neither by section 19 (s) of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act nor by section 42 of the Specific Relief Act, but depends on the character and value of the property, provided that the plaintiff is the person who alleges that his goods have been wrongly attached. The distinction where the suit is by a decree-holder who asks for his judgment-debtor's rights to be established is very clearly pointed out in Chhaganlal Nagardas v. Jeshan Rav Dalsukhram (24). But I need not express any opinion as to a decree-holder's suit and I do not intend to do so, nor in any way to conclude myself with reference to a suit different from the present one, either as regards the plaintiff's position, or the forum, or the cause of action. (B) The same view is the only one that seems to me to be reconcilable with the decisions of the Madras High Court in Janakiammal v. Vithenadien (1), Kundeme Naine Booche Naidoo v. Ravoo Lutchmeepaty Naidoo (2) and Daud Beg v. Kullappa (31). There is one other decision of this Court to which I shall refer later. (C) In Calcutta the cases of Woomesh Chunder Bose v. Muddun Mohun Sircar (32) (per Steer and Jackson, JJ.) and Ram Dhun Biswas v. Kefal Biswas (10) (per Peacock C. J. and Mitter, J.) together

(26) 8 A. 6 at pp. 9, 11; 12 I. A. 150; 4 Sarasvati's P. C. J. 663.
(27) 25 Ind. Cas. 11; 26 M. L. J. 449 at p. 455.
(28) 5 B. H. C. R. 83 at p. 93.
(29) 4 B. 23 note.
(30) 2 A. 720.
(31) 11 M. 264.
(32) 2 W. R. 44.

contain the same principles as prevail in Bombay; though a third decision, Moozdeen Gazee v. Dinobundhoo Gossamee (33) (L. S. Jackson and Glover, JJ.,) misapplied the 2nd decision, as was pointed out in Shiboo Narain Singh v. Mudden Ally, Natabar Nandi v. Kali Das Pali (9). There may, however, be some doubt as to the applicability of the last case to the present question, as, though the observations seem directly in point, the property there concerned was no more under attachment, but was being followed in the hands of the execution purchaser; and the Court held that the judgment-debtor and decree-holder were not proper parties to the suit. See, however, the cases cited in paragraphs numbered (4) and (6) above. (D) The Allahabad High Court has expressly dissented from the view taken in Bombay and Madras and held that such a suit as the present is not cognizable by the Small Cause Court: Godha v. Naik Ram (11).

With reference to the case last cited, I may point out (a) that the Allahabad Court has no original civil jurisdiction and there is no Presidency Small Cause Court; and (b) that its decision is now embodied in Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, IX of 1887, Schedule II, Articles 19 and 20. It seems to me that neither the decision nor the Articles furnish a safe guidance in the present case. I refer first to the wording of the Articles, and contrast them with section 19 (s) of the Small Cause Courts Act. I refer also to the fact that the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act of 1882 was not amended so as to make its terms conform to the said Articles. Lastly to hold that the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, section 19 (s), is synonymous with the said Articles 19 and 20 read together, would (in the case of a person whose moveable property of small value has been wrongly attached) ordinarily cause a denial of justice by cutting off all remedy except the remedy furnished by the prohibitively expensive suit on the original side of the High Court, or perhaps the somewhat less expensive suit in the City Civil Court, Madras. The cases that have been taken to the Privy Council above referred to seem to lend some support to the trend of view taken by the Bombay High Court.

(33) 13 W. R. 99.

It may, no doubt, be argued that this consideration has not induced the Courts to permit a decree-holder "to establishing his right to attach and sell certain property as belonging to his judgment-debtor" in the Small Cause Court: Chhaganlal Nagardas v. Jeshan Rav Dalsukhram (24). But this consideration may perhaps apply in a stronger degree in regard to a person who claims that the property belongs to himself, and has been wrongly attached for the liabilities of a stranger. The Legislature may not have desired to place both plaintiffs in the same position.

In any case, it seems to me difficult to conceive that the original side of the High Court should have been intended to try a suit for establishing rights as regards moveable property worth Rs. 53. No precedent has been cited to us of its ever having done so. And if the enactments are so worded that any suits for such a relief can be brought in the High Courts, it seems to me that that anomalous result should be restricted within as narrow limits as the canons of construction will allow.

I must now deal with the Madras decision to which I alluded above.

In Mahomed Koya v. Kasmi (5) Muthusami Aiyar and Hutchins, JJ., held that a Small Cause Court could not make a declaration that moveable property "which had been attached in execution of a decree" was not liable to be sold for the judgment-debt created by the decree. The ratio decidendi seems to have been that the suit was one merely for a declaration, that section 42 of the Specific Relief Act was not in the plaintiff's way because section 283—the equivalent to Small Cause Court Order XXI, rule 53—permitted him simply "to establish his right." It is expressly stated that if "he had sought recovery of the property, there is no doubt that the suit would be cognizable by a Court of Small Causes." The present suit is for the recovery of the property. It is true that it is also stated that "the property was not in the possession of any private person; and he could not sue the Court which attached it." This sentence taken by itself is opposed to the view that the plaintiff can sue for possession while the property is under attachment. But its rigour is somewhat modified by the remark a little before: "We do not think he was bound to sue for possession" —which might imply that he could have sued for possession. See also the cases cited in paragraphs numbered (4), (6) and (7) above.

It must, however, be admitted that the remark that the property after attachment is not in the possession of any private person and the Court could not be sued, is opposed to the suit being treated as one for possession. But if that remark is to be given its full effect to the extent of disallowing the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court in the present case, it seems to me to be opposed to the decisions in Janakiammal v. Vithenadien (1), Kundeme Naine Booche Naidoo v. Ravoo Lutchmeepaty Naidoo (2) and to the trend of the decisions of the Privy Council and of all the Courts except that of Allahabad. I do not think any such result was intended to be imported into the remark. It may be that the decision merely permitted remedies in either Court, the choice depending upon the relief sought, a result which was contemplated with equanimity in Davud Beg v. Kullappa (31) in a matter not so di similar as to offer no analogy. The decision was perhaps not unaffected by the principle which is now embodied in the last words of section 21 of the Civil Procedure Code.

It may be, on the other hand, that if the Judges had heard the arguments based on their remark, they would have been not unwilling to adopt the language of a very distinguished Judge who once said: "An extrajudicial remark by himself does occur in that case, and to that remark the District Judge has assigned too much importance. The remark would have been better unmade." Dayachand Nemchand v. Hemchand Dharamchand (20) per Westropp, C. J.

I shall now deal with the arguments in the learned 3rd Judge's judgment which I am unable to agree with my learned brother in endorsing. If, he says; (1) the suit is for possession, it must fail because the defendants are not in possession; (2) if it is for a declaration, it is not cognizable by the Small Cause Court; (3) if it is for the value of the property, it must fail, because a decision in favour of the plaintiff would keep the attached property for ever in suspense, inasmuch as it would be obviously improper to let the plaintiff have both the property itself and its value, and it would be equally against principle and good conscience to let a person other than the plaintiff take away or deal with property which has been established to be the plaintiff's.

The answer to the first two alternatives seems to me that the suit is neither exactly for possession nor purely for a declaration; it is a suit on a special cause of action and according to the decisions of that and of the Bombay High Court, its maintainability and forum are governed by somewhat special rules.

With reference to the third alternative.—

(a) The learned Chief Judge and the 2nd Judge shrewdly suspect that if the decree is given, as prayed, for the return of the property or in the alternative its value, then the defendants will somehow procure delivery of the property to the plaintiff. The learned Judges support their surmise by the experience of what has happened in the case of other defendants in a similar plight.

(b) Nor do I see any great difficulty in the plaintiff's being enabled (should she succeed in establishing her right) to make the same use of the decree as is referred to in Kolasherri Illath Narainan v. Kolasherri Illath Nilakandan Nambudri (3) (per Turner, C. J. and Muthusami Aiyar, J.).

(c) In this connection, I do not see what difference is made by the forum in which the right is established; nor why the property should remain in suspense only if the Small Cause Court passes the decree.

(d) Sir Charles Farran, C. J., and Strachey, J., thought the decree of the Small Cause Court, as a matter of form, might contain a declaration: Raghunath Mukund v. Sarosh K. R. Kama (14) but if that is obnoxious to section 19 (s), a clause may be inserted in the decree "establishing the plaintiff's rights." The form of the decree rests with the Court.

For these reasons, I would answer the reference by saying (1) that the suit as framed is maintainable; (2) the plaintiff is not bound to ask for an express declaration of her rights, but that the decree may contain a declaration to that effect; and (3) the suit falls under Order XXI, rule 53, and is cognizable by the Small Cause Court.

The reference will be referred to a Full Bench as my view differs from that of my learned brother."

Mr. P. Sambanda Mudaliar, for the Plaintiff.

Mr. C. Pattabhirama Aiyangar, for 1st Defendant.

OPINION OF THE FULL BENCH.

We think that this suit is not excluded from the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court under section 19 (s) of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act as a suit for a declaratory decree. Their Lordships of the Judicial Committee have recently pointed out in Phul Kumari v. Ghanshyam Misra (17) that the statutory suit to establish his right given to the unsuccessful party in claim proceedings under the Code involves in every case a prayer for the setting aside of a summary order of a Civil Court. This being so, such a suit cannot, in our opinion, be regarded as a suit for a mere declaration. The Small Cause Court Rules reproduce the provisions of the Code as to claim petitions and cases under them must be governed by the same considerations. We may further observe that our decision is in accordance with the well-established practice under which suits of this nature arising out of orders made by the Presidency Small Cause Court have always been brought in that Court and not in the High Court or the City Civil Court.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

CIVIL RULE No. 5864 OF 1912.

April 23, 1913.

Present:—Justice Sir Harry Stephen, KT., and Mr. Justice Mullick.

DENO NATH DEY SARKAR—PETITIONER

versus

KALI KUMAR ROY—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Mortgage—Non-transferable occupancy holding—Rent-sale, effect of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 89, scope of—Decretal amount, who may deposit in Court.

Where the mortgagee of a non-transferable occupancy holding, which was brought to sale in execution of a rent-decree and purchased by the landlord decree-holder, sought to deposit in Court the decretal amount and compensation under Order XXI, rule 89, Civil Procedure Code:

Held, that the mortgagee had not any interest under the rule in question, and so his deposit could not be accepted by the Court.

Nalini Behari Roy v. Fulmani Dasi, 13 Ind. Cas. 487; 15 C. L. J. 388; 16 C. W. N. 421, followed.

Rule against the order of the Munsif, second Court, Kishoregunge.

Babu Gobind Chandra Dey Roy, for the Petitioner.

Babu Sasadhar Roy, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.

STEPHEN, J.—The petitioner before us is a mortgagee of a non-transferable occupancy-holding which was brought to sale in execution of a rent-decree and purchased by the landlord decree-holder. Subsequently he sought to deposit in Court the decretal amount and compensation under Order XXI, rule 89, but the Court refused to accept it on the ground that he had not any interest under the rule in question. A Rule has been granted to show cause why the order should not be set aside on the ground that he had such an interest. We are, however, of opinion, that the case is covered by the authority of Nalini Behari Roy v. Fulmani Dasi (1) on which the lower Court relied; and the Rule is accordingly discharged with costs. Hearing fee one gold mohur.

MULLICK, J.—I agree.

Rule discharged.

(1) 13 Ind. Cas. 487; 15 C. L. J. 388; 16 C. W. N. 421.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 244 OF 1912.

April 15, 1915.

Present:—Sir John Wallis, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar.

ARUMUGASUNDARA MAHARAJA PILLAI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

K. NARASIMHA IYER AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS AND DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Mortgage—Equity of redemption purchased by mortgagee—Merger—Incumbrances in favour of mortgagee, effect on—Extinguishment of mortgage—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 101, scope of—Question of intention in each case—Proof of intention.

A purchase by a mortgagee of the equity of redemption extinguishes the mortgage, unless circumstances exist at the time of the purchase which show an intention to prevent the merger. [p. 921, col. 1.].

A mortgagee-purchaser of the equity of redemption of his mortgage can use his previous mortgage only as a shield if there are mesne incumbrances and only in respect of the properties which are covered by such incumbrances, but he is not entitled to sue upon his mortgage. [p. 921, col 2.]

Musammat Bhawani Kumar v. Mathura Prasad Singh, 16 Ind. Cas. 210; 40 C. 89; 16 C. W. N. 985; 23 M. L. J. 311; 12 M. L. T. 352; (1912) M. W. N. 944; 14 Bom. L. R. 1046; 16 C. L. J. 606 (P. C.); and Laxman v. Mathurabai, 23 Ind. Cas. 121; 38 B. 369; 16 Bom. L. R. 26, followed.

ARUMUGASUNDARA v. NARASIMHA IYER.

Per Wallis, C. J.—The word 'absolutely' in section 101 of the Transfer of Property Act, cannot mean that there are no mesne incumbrances. [p. 918, col. 1.]

Per Seshagiri Aiyar, J.—In cases where a subsequent clause in a deed is inconsistent with the operative portion of it, the cardinal principle of construction which should guide Indian Courts is to ascertain the intention of the parties. Technical rules of construction should, as far as possible, be avoided. [p. 921, col. 1.)

Section 101 of the Transfer of Property Act leaves untouched the general rule of law that when a mortgagee purchases the equity of redemption, the incumbrance in his favour is extinguished. It only enacts that where there are other mortgages on the property, an intention will be imputed to the mortgagee-purchaser that he intended to keep alive his own mortgage as a protection against subsequent claimants. [p. 921, cols. 1 and 2].

Appeal against the decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Madura, in Original Suit No. 115 of 1910.

Mr. K. Srinivasa Aiyangar, for the Appellants.

Messrs. C. Padmanabha Aiyangar, C. T. Venkatachariar and A. Srinivasa Aiyangar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

WALLIS, C. J.—In 1882 the 1st defendant executed a mortgage, Exhibit A, of the suit properties in favour of one Mahalinga Aiyar, who transferred it on 15th August 1892 by Exhibit B to the father of the 1st plaintiff, whose son, the 1st plaintiff, was married to the 1st defendant's daughter. On 13th February 1893, the plaintiff's father obtained a lease, Exhibit E, of the suit properties from the 1st defendant at a rent of Rs. 300, which would appear to have been an undervalue. On 9th February 1897 the 1st defendant executed a fresh mortgage, Exhibit F, in favour of the 1st plaintiff's father for the amount found due on the mortgage Exhibit A. Subsequently in December 1899, the 1st defendant's equity of redemption was sold in execution by a decree-holder (see Exhibit K) and except as regards 9-5/8 cawnies was purchased at the Court sale for Rs. 182 by one Sundara Raja Aiyangar, who a few days later by Exhibit 3 transferred the interest he had acquired to the 1st plaintiff for the same sum of Rs. 182. Between four and five years later, the 1st plaintiff re-conveyed the suit properties except the 9-5/8 cawnies to the 1st defendant for Rs. 185. The document reads at first sight like an out-and-out sale but beneath the signature of the vendor and his witnesses there is a further statement signed by the 1st plaintiff alone, to the effect that the sale was subject to two mortgages one of which was the suit mortgage. In 1910 the 1st plaintiff and his sons instituted the present suit on the mortgage so reserved and obtained a decree and one of the main contentions raised by the present appellants, who represent subsequent alienees from the 1st defendant, is that the suit mortgage was extinguished when under Exhibit 3 the 1st defendant's equity of redemption in the suit properties was acquired by the 1st plaintiff. This acquisition must be considered to have been made on behalf of his joint family, which included a younger brother since deceased and the 1st plaintiff's sons who are co-plaintiffs with him in this case, and it was treated as joint family property in Exhibits 10 and 11. It may, therefore, be said that by Exhibit 3 the mortgagees acquired the equity of redemption except as regards 9-5/8 cawnies. The owners of these items are not parties to the present suit and though the items acquired by them may be liable for their proportionate share of the mortgage-debt, that does not appear to affect the question whether there has been a merger as regards the items of the mortgaged properties which have been acquired by the mortgagees.

This question of merger has recently been considered by the House of Lords in Whiteley v. Delaney (1) and by the Privy Council in Bhawani Kumar v. Mathura Prasad Singh (2). As pointed out in the former case by the Lord Chancellor, where the mortgagor himself has purchased the interest of the 1st mortgagee he cannot derogate from his own bargain by setting up the mortgage so purchased against the 2nd mortgage created by himself: Otter v. Lord Vaux (3). Next there is the case of a third party purchasing the mortgaged property and paying off a prior mortgage out of the purchase-money as in Toulmin v. Steere (4). The Privy Council have held that

(1) (1914) A. C. 132; 83 L. J. Ch. 349; 110 L. T. 434; 58 S. J. 218.

(2) 16 Ind. Cas. 210; 40 C. 89; 16 C. W. N. 985; 23 M. L. J. 311; 12 M. L. T. 352; (1912) M. W. N. 944; 14 Bom. L. R. 1046; 16 C. L. J. 606.

(3) 2 K. & J. 650, affirmed 6 DeG. M. & G. 638; 26 L. J. Ch. 128; 3 Jur. (N. S.) 169; 5 W. R. 188; 69 E. R. 943; 106 R. R. 235.

(4) 3 Mer. 210; 17 R. R. 67; 36 E. R. 81.

decision to be inapplicable to India in Gokaldas Gopaldas v. Puranmal Premsukh Das (5) and the Lord Chancellor in the case just cited, whilst refraining from expressing any opinion as to whether or not it was correctly decided, observed that it amounted to no more than this that in such circumstances the presumption was that the purchaser did not intend to keep the mortgage alive. So that even here the question was treated as one of the intention of the purchaser. Lastly we have cases like the present where it is an encumbrancer who acquires the equity of redemption [see Hayden v. Kirkpatrick (6)] and to these cases section 101, Transfer of Property Act, expressly applies. The section is as follows:—"Where the owner of a charge or other incumbrance on immoveable property is or becomes absolutely entitled to that property, the charge or incumbrance shall be extinguished, unless he declares, by express words or necessary implication, that it shall continue to subsist or such continuance would be for his benefit". The word "absolutely" cannot mean that there are no mesne incumbrances outstanding, as the very object of the exception to the section is to protect the prior mortgagee against such incumbrances. When, as in the recent cases of Bhawani Kunar v. Mathura Prasad Singh (2) and Laxman Ganesh Rajendra v. Mathurabai Narayan Govind (7), there are no such incumbrances, there can scarcely be any room for the exception, and there is a merger under the section. In the former case where under the local revenue law, land was sold for arrears of revenue subject to any mortgage subsisting at the date the arrears fell due, and it appeared that the arrears fell due between the date when the mortgagee purchased the property under his mortgage-decree and the confirmation of the sale to him, it was held that the mortgage-debt was extinguished as from the date of the purchase and that there was consequently no mortgage subsisting at the date when the arrears fell due. The only mortgage of any of the suit properties effected by the 1st defendant subsequently to the suit mortgage and before he parted with his interest in the equity of redemption under Exhibit K was in favour of the father of the 31st defendant of items 53 and 56 for Rs. 160 under Exhibit 19. The 1st defendant whose evidence must be received with caution deposes that subsequently to the original mortgage, Exhibit A, which was renewed by the suit mortgage, Exhibit F, he executed two mortgages in favour of one Ramasami Iyer, a District Registrar, and these mortgages if are still outstanding on the date of Exhibit 3 would have been postponed to the suit mortgage. It appears, however, from Exhibits 43 and 44 that on the 7th December 1889 the 1st defendant sold two villages for Rs. 30,000 to one Thimma Reddy, who undertook to discharge these mortgages out of the purchase-money and as we find no reference to them either in Exibits F, L or 19—the mortgage-deeds have not been produced—I think it is not shown that these mortgages were outstanding at the date of Exhibit 3 as to afford any ground for supposing that it was the intention of tha 1st plaintiff to keep the suit mortgage alive as a protection against them or to bring the case within the exception to section 101 of the Transfer of Property Act.

The subsequent mortgage of two items only for the small sum of Rs. 160 under Exhibit 19 could not affect the mortgagee's intention as regards the other items. We find the 1st plaintiff and his brother in 1901 pleading in the plaint, Exhibit 11, that by virtue of Exhibit 3, the entire interest in the suit lands, which were included in the properties mortgaged under Exhibit F, belonged exclusively to them and in 1903 by Exhibit 10, they mortgaged the suit properties for Rs. 2,000 without any reference to any subsisting mortgage on them. In these circumstances and apart from Exhibit L, I do not think it is shown that there was not a merger under the terms of section 101, Transfer of Property Act, when the mortgagees acquired the equity of redemption under Exhibit 3. As to Exhibit L, I cannot agree with the Subordinate Judge that the reservation of the suit mortgage inserted out of its proper place in that document is sufficient evidence of an intention, on the part of the mortgagees at the date of the purchase of the equity of redemption some five years previously, to keep alive the suit mortgage: it might be otherwise if the purchaser of the equity of redemption under Exhibit 3 by the 1st plaintiff was benami for the 1st defendant, but that is not the plaintiffs' case and is negatived by the way in which the plaintiffs subsequently dealt with the property as full owners.

(5) 11 I. A. 126; 10 C. 1035; 8 Ind. Jur. 396; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 543.

(6) 34 Beav. 645; 11 Jur. (N. S.) 836; 13 L. T. 56; 13 W. R. 1010; 55 E. R. 784; 145 R. R. 717.

(7) 23 Ind. Cas. 121; 38 B. 369; 16 Bom. L. R. 26.

If there was a merger under Exhibit 3, the suit mortgage was discharged and the suit as framed must fail. The Subordinate Judge has dismissed the suit as regards some of the subsequent alienees for value from the 1st defendant, on the ground that the 1st plaintiff attested the conveyances under which they claim, but has overruled that plea in the case of the present appellants in the absence of such attestation. Even if the facts do not amount to an estoppel, the conduct of the 1st plaintiff in executing Exhibit L in a form which at first sight represents the 1st defendant as purchasing free from incumbrances and his subsequent conduct in treating the 1st defendant as full owner and attesting alienations by him to third parties, would appear to have misled the present appellants and having regard to these and to other suspicious circumstances going to the foundations of the plaintiffs' claim, I think it sufficient to say that that claim fails as laid and that the appeal must be allowed and the suit dismissed with costs throughout.

SESHAGIRI AIYAR, J.—I entirely agree with my Lord. The 1st defendant was the owner of the properties in the suit. He mortgaged them to the father of the 33rd defendant in 1882 (Exhibit A). The 1st plaintiff's father obtained an assignment of that mortgage (Exhibit B) in 1892. Some payments were made towards the debt. Finally in 1897, the 1st defendant executed Exhibit F for the debt remaining unpaid under Exhibit A to the 1st plaintiff's father. Previous to it a lease (Exhibit E) was granted to the mortgagee for a period of 10 years from 1893. The 1st plaintiff's father was in possession under that lease. The rent reserved was only Rs. 300 a year, which on the evidence was far below what the 1st defendant could have got as income from the mortgaged property. It was suggested that this low rent was paid as the arrangement was that the 1st plaintiff's father should pay himself the amount due under the mortgage from the surplus income. But there is no clear evidence of this agreement. While the 1st plaintiff's father was in possession, a money decree was obtained against the 1st defendant by a third party, and in execution of that decree the equity of redemption in the mortgaged properties was purchased by one Sundara Raja Aiyangar for Rs. 185. It was said that this purchase by Sundara Raja Aiyangar was really benami for the plaintiff. There are recitals in some of the documents which show that Sundara Raja Aiyangar was only a name-lender for the 1st plaintiff; but it is not necessary to pursue this matter further, because nothing turns upon it. Sundara Raja Aiyangar conveyed the equity of redemption purchased by him to the 1st plaintiff by Exhibit III in 1900. The 1st plaintiff sold to the 1st defendant all his right, title and interest in the properties subject to a reservation, which I shall refer to later on, under Exhibit L on the 30th of June 1905. It is proved that after this purchase by the 1st defendant, he either sold or mortgaged the properties as if he were absolute owner thereof. On the 20th March 1906 he mortgaged to the 6th defendant some of the properties which were covered by Exhibit L for Rs. 1,000 (Exhibit XX). This was attested by the 1st plaintiff. By Exhibit IV on the 27th April 1906 the 1st defendant transferred to his daughter another portion of the property. This again was attested by the 1st plaintiff. By Exhibit II of the 13th May 1906, he transferred to his wife some property. On the 26th November 1906 he mortgaged to certain persons another portion of the property under Exhibit IX. Both these alienations were similarly attested by the 1st plaintiff. I will now refer to transactions which were not attested by the 1st plaintiff. On the 7th April 1907, the 1st defendant by Exhibit XV mortgaged to the 8th defendant some properties included in Exhibit L. By Exhibit XIII on the 10th May 1907, he mortgaged to the same person, the 8th defendant, another property for Rs. 600. On the 15th August 1907 by Exhibit XVI, he sold other properties to the 12th defendant. In all these documents, whether attested by the 1st plaintiff or not, there are recitals which were calculated to induce the transferee to believe that the 1st defendant was the absolute owner of the properties he was dealing with. The 1st plaintiff instituted the present suit to enforce his mortgage rights under Exhibits A and F. No claim is put forward in respect of the reservation contained in Exhibit L. The basis of the 1st plaintiff's claim is that the mortgage of 1892 and of 1897 is still subsisting, and that he is entitled to proceed against the properties for the debt due to him. The 1st defendant is the original mortgagor and the transferee of the rights of the 1st plaintiff in the equity of redemption. The other defendants are the alienees of the mortgaged properties from the 1st defendant. The defence of these alienees was, the right of the 1st plaintiff under the mortgages was extinguished by the transfer which he obtained from Sundara Raja Aiyangar of the equity of redemption. The Subordinate Judge came to the conclusion that as against those alienees whose conveyances or mortgages were attested by the 1st plaintiff, the 1st plaintiff is not entitled to rely on his mortgage to bring the properties in their possession to sale, but that the 1st plaintiff was entitled to proceed against the properties of the other defendants whose alienations were not attested by him (1st plaintiff). These latter defendants have preferred this appeal.

Before dealing with the questions of law argued by Mr. K. Srinivasa Aiyangar, it is well to point out that the 1st plaintiff is the son-in-law of the 1st defendant, and that the appellants are strangers to both the 1st plaintiff and the 1st defendant. The result of the conclusion at which the Subordinate Judge has arrived is to throw on the property in the hands of these appellants the whole burden of the mortgage-debt amounting to Rs. 23,000 and odd. It is clear that these properties are not worth more than Rs. 16,000 or Rs. 17,000 at the utmost. There is the question that these appellants were bona fide purchasers for value. I am unable to accept the contention of the appellants that the 1st plaintiff is estopped by his conduct in attesting the sale-deeds in favour of his wife and mother-in-law from now disputing that the 1st defendant had not an absolute interest in the properties. There is unfortunately no clear evidence that these appellants took the properties on the faith of the conduct of the 1st plaintiff. Although I have come to the conclusion, I feel little hesitation in saying that this is an iniquitous attempt on the part of the 1st defendant to charge the whole mortgage-debt upon properties in the hands of strangers after having secured to his relations with the concurrence of the 1st plaintiff a large slice of the property originally mortgaged.

One other circumstance may be mentioned. This suit is not based upon Exhibit L, which is a conveyance from the 1st plaintiff to the 1st defendant and which also contains a reservation in 1st plaintiff's favour in respect of his mortgage. It was argued by the learned Vakil for the appellants that the clause in this document which says "the amount due to the said Visvanatha Aiyar is Rs. 2,000. This sum of rupees two thousand and the hypothecation right which I have and which is mentioned on the first page hereof are not discharged from the deed", can have no effect as against the clear and unambiguous recital in the operative portion of the document. It has to be noticed that, while the first portion of the document was signed and attested, this latter portion is not attested. It has been suggested that this latter clause was a memorandum made at the time of registration to enable the executant to pay less stamp duty upon the document than he would have been obliged to do if the property was conveyed free of encumbrances. This suggestion receives support from the fact of the so-called reservation not being attested and also from the fact that subsequently the Collector to whom the document was sent by the Registrar levied the full stamp duty on the document, treating apparently the new clause as of no effect. It has also been argued before us that if in a deed the subsequent clause is inconsistent with the operative portion of it, effect should not be given to it. Norton on Deeds, page 80, and the observations of Tindal, C. J., in Durham and Sunderland Railway Co. v. Walker (8), were quoted for the proposition. It is not necessary to give a decision whether the highly artificial rules of construction regarding deeds drawn up by solicitors fully conversant with con veyancing can be applied to documents executed in this country. The cardinal principle which should guide Indian Courts in such matters is to ascertain the intention of the parties. Technical rules of construction should as far as possible be avoided. Therefore, I do not rest my decision upon the construction to be placed on Exhibit L. This suit was not based upon that document; it is not necessary in the view I am taking to decide whether by this memorandum, made at the end of the document, the 1st plaintiff reserved to himself the right to proceed against the properties. Exhibit L will be relevant in considering whether the alienees, who must be deemed to have had constructive notice of its contents, understood the document to convey only a limited interest to the 1st defendant. This document and the other evidence bearing on the question will be considered in that connection.

(x8) 2 Q. B. 940 at p. 967; 2 G. & D. 326; 11 L. J. Ex. 442; 114 E. R. 364; 57 R. R. 842.

The main point for decision is whether, by the purchase of the equity of redemption from Sundara Raja Aiyangar, the 1st plaintiff's mortgage-debt was extinguished. Mr. Srinivasa Aiyangar contended that if there are intervening incumbrances, the purchaser of the equity of redemption may use his mortgage as a shield to protect himself against them, but that he could not sue upon his mortgage. There is no document from the 1st defendant to the 1st plaintiff which secures any right to proceed against the property in the hands of the former. Section 101 of the Transfer of Property Act was relied upon very strongly by Mr. Venkatachariar for the respondent. That section was intended to introduce with some limitations the rule of law enunciated in Toulmin v. Steere (4). That decision has been the subject of considerable adverse criticism in the English Courts. Quite recently, the House of Lords in Whiteley v. Delaney (1) discussed that judgment. Some of the observations of the learned Lords who delivered their opinions indicate that this case is no longer a binding authority. However that may be, Courts in India are governed by the statutory provisions contained in section 101 of the Transfer of Property Act. It is clear that section contemplates the existence of puisne encumbrances. Unless that may be the object, the clause relating to the subsistence of the encumbrance being for the benefit of the purchaser can have no meaning. The person who becomes absolutely entitled to the property cannot reserve in his favour and as against himself his own mortgage. As I read the section, it leaves untouched the general rule of law that when a mortgagee purchases the equity of redemption the incumbrance in his favour is extinguished. It only enacts that where there are other mortgages on the property, an intention will be imputed to the mortgagee-purchaser that he intended to keep alive his own mortgage as a protection against subsequent claimants. The discussion in the House of Lords in the case already referred to shows that the rule enabling the purchaser to fall back on his mortgage is an infringement of legal rights. Consequently a strict construction should be placed on this provision of law. I am of opinion that the mortgagee-purchaser can use his previous mortgage only as a shield if there are mesne encumbrances, and that also only in respect of the properties which are covered by such encumbrances. I shall deal with the questions whether there were any subsisting encumbrances at the time the equity of redemption was purchased later on. Even if there are such encumbrances, I am of opinion that the mortgagee-purchaser is not entitled to sue upon his mortgage. I am also of opinion that the 1st plaintiff did not intend to keep alive the 1st mortgage for his benefit. The clause in Exhibit L reserving such right is suspicious. The relationship of the parties (son-in-law and father-in-law) suggests that the 1st plaintiff parted with his absolute rights. It is true that the low price for which the sale was effected is an element for consideration. As against this, there is the fact that upon the properties of the value of over Rs. 50,000 the 1st defendant recovered only Rs. 300 a year for 10 years. It may be that the son-in-law parted with his full rights in view of his having enjoyed the large income from the properties. There is the further fact that after the transfer under Exhibit L absolute conveyances attested by the 1st plaintiff were effected of the properties. The 1st plaintiff could not have intended to reserve his mortgage rights when he knew that these properties were to be sold to his own wife and his mother-in-law. To my mind the relationship of the parties, the enjoyment of a large income by the 1st plaintiff without accounting for it to the 1st defendant and the subsequent conduct in attesting conveyances, all show unmistakably that the 1st plaintiff never intended to keep his mortgage alive. Further, the 1st plaintiff before the sale to the 1st defendant conducted proceedings as absolute owner. See Exhibits XI, S, X and Q 4. It is clear from these documents that it was not for his benefit to regard himself as a mortgagee.

The contention that the purchaser has two distinct and separate interests in the property in all cases where there are mesne incumbrances found favour with Mookerjee, J., in the case reported as Bhawani Koer v. Mathura Prasad (9), but the Judicial Committee reversed this decision. See Bhawani Kumar v. Mathura Prasad Singh (2). The observations of their Lordships leave no room for doubt that where there are no encumbrances, there is an extinguishment of the right under the mortgage when the equity of redemption is acquired. Laxman Ganesh Rajendra v. Mathurabai Narayan Govind (7) and Munna Lal v. Munnu Lal (10) are to the same effect. In Ramu Naickan v. Subbaraya Mudali (11), it was decided by this Court that the mortgage right can only be used as a shield against puisne encumbrances. Considerable stress was laid on behalf of the respondent upon the decision of the Full Bench in Mulla Veetil Seethi v. Korambath Paruthooli Achuthan Nair (12). In that case there was first a simple mortgage, then the mortgagor granted a usufructuary mortgage. The first mortgagee became the owner of the equity of redemption by purchasing it at a sale in execution of a decree in a suit on his mortgage to which the usufructuary mortgagee was not a party; and then brought a suit to recover possession of the property from the usufructuary mortgagee. The learned Judge held that he was not entitled to possession, the ground of decision being that the 1st mortgagee can only claim to stand in the shoes of the mortgagor, and as the mortgagor had given a usufructuary mortgage the first mortgagee-purchaser acquired no right to sue for possession. There can be no question that this conclusion is correct. But the respondent's Vakil relies upon certain observations in the judgment for the position where there are puisne encumbrances, the first mortgagee-purchaser can never get an absolute title to the property. In page 225 it is stated: "Merger, on principle, is impossible, for the case of first mortgagee acquiring the equity of redemption, when a second mortgage is still outstanding, is not one of the rights and correlative objection coalescing in the same person, or of a smaller interest getting absorbed by a larger, or of two contiguous interests carved out of property combining to form a larger whole." No authority is quoted for this broad proposition excepting an extract from Lindley's Jurisprudence, Appendixes 57 and 58 I may mention that the term merger is not appositely used in this connection. The rights of puisne encumbrancers are neither lost nor merged in the title acquired by the mortgagee-purchaser. They would be outstanding—See section 55, clause (d) of the Transfer of Property Act. The only question is whether the first mortgage is capable of enforcement as such in a suit founded on it. If it was intended to lay down that it is open to a mortgagee-purchaser to sue on his mortgage to foreclose the latter mortgages, I respectfully dissent from the conclusion. In my view the mortgage was extinguished when the 1st plaintiff acquired the equity of redemption and it is not open to him to sue upon it, whatever may be his rights to use the mortgage as a defence against puisne encumbrancers. See Syed Ibrahim Sahib v. Arumugathayee (13). Moreover, there is no satisfactory evidence in this case of any subsequent mortgages having subsisted at the time the equity of redemption was purchased from Sundara Raja Aiyangar. This question was not argued before the Subordinate Judge; the documents creating these mortgages have not been exhibited. But reliance is placed upon two judgments in which reference is made to them. Those judgments do not show that the mortgages were valid and subsisting at the time when the equity of

(9) 7 C. L. J. 1 at p. 32.
(10) 23 Ind. Cas. 559; 36 A. 327; 12 A. L. J. 457.
(11) 7 M. H. C. R. 229.
(12) 9 Ind. Cas. 513; (1911) 1 M. W. N. 165; 21 M. L. J. 213; 9 M. L. T. 431 (F. B.).
(13) 16 Ind. Cas. 877; 38 M. 18.

redemption was acquired by the 1st plaintiff and his predecessor. On the other hand Exhibits 43 and 44 show that the previous encumbrances were intended to be paid off in 1889. Non constat, they have not been discharged.

I would, therefore, allow the appeal and dismiss the suit against these defendants with costs here and in the Court of first instance.

Appeal allowed; Suit dismissed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1168 OF 1914.

June 29, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Chamier.

JWALA PRASAD RAI AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

RAM SARUP RAI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Mortgage—Occupancy holding and fixed-rate holding mortgaged together for lump sum—Whole transaction, if illegal.

Where an occupancy holding and a fixed-rate holding are mortgaged together for a lump sum, and the contract is one and indivisible the whole transaction is void.

Second appeal from the decision of the Subordinate Judge, Ghazipur, dated the 19th June 1914.

Mr. Bajpai, for the Appellants.

Mr. M. L. Agarwala, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—Musammat Jhiria, represented in this suit by her heir Deoki, who was at first plaintiff No. 1 but subsequently became defendant No. 13, mortgaged five plots of land to Sukhdeo Rai in July 1877. Shortly before this suit was brought Deoki transferred to Jwala Prasad and Siri Kishun, the present appellants, 9 or 10 plots which are said to include the five plots covered by the mortgage. The appellants on the strength of the sale-deed sued the representatives of the original mortgagee for redemption of the five plots mortgaged. The Munsif decreed the claim, but his decision was reversed by the Subordinate Judge who held that as the deed of sale in favour of the present appellants included plots which were part of an occupancy holding and, therefore, not legally transferable, the deed of sale was void and conferred no title upon the appellants. There is no definite finding and Counsel in this Court are not agreed as to which of the plots are part of the occupancy holding and which are part of a fixed-rate holding. Counsel for the respondents maintains that all five plots mortgaged were held by the mortgagor as an occupancy tenant. The learned Vakil for the appellants maintains that Nos. 167 and 169/1 mentioned in the sale-deed correspond with No. 129 mentioned in the mortgage. If Counsel for the respondents is right, there can be no doubt whatever that this appeal should be dismissed for the appellants as transferees of an occupancy holding have clearly no right to maintain this suit. I will assume, however, that one of the plots covered by the mortgage (No. 129) was part of a fixed-rate holding and that the transfer to the appellants covered an occupancy holding and also part of a fixed-rate holding. It is contended that the transfer was valid as regards plot No. 129 and conferred upon the appellants at least a right to redeem that plot. The respondents, on the other hand, objected to the redemption of one plot only. It appears to me that the Subordinate Judge was right in dismissing this suit. Regarded in the light most favourable to the appellants, the transfer was a transfer of parts of an occupancy and of fixed-rate holding for a lump sum. The contract was one and indivisible, and it seems to me that as the transfer of an occupancy holding is void the whole transfer failed. But apart from that, it appears to me that the appellants are not entitled to pick out one of the plots in possession of the respondents and redeem, that leaving them with the other plots. The appeal is dismissed with costs, including fees on the higher scale.

Appeal dismissed.

SESHAGIRI AIYANGAR v. SADACHI.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEALS NOS. 752 TO 754 OF 1913.

April 8, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Oldfield and Mr. Justice Tyabji.

SESHAGIRI AIYANGAR—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

SADACHI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Evidence—Written statement—Admission by one defendant, when admissible against others.

An admission of one defendant in a written statement in a suit will not be evidence against others unless it is made evidence at the trial by examining that defendant who made the statement. [p. 924, col. 2.]

Appavu Chettiar v. Nanjappa Goundan, 20 Ind. Cas. 792; 14 M. L. T. 117; 25 M. L.J. 329, followed.

Second appeals against the decrees of the District Court of Trichinopoly, in Appeal Suits Nos. 462, 463 and 464 of 1912 respectively, preferred against those of the District Munsif of Kulitalai, in Original Suits Nos. 270, 179 and 188 of 1911.

Messrs. T. Rangachariar and K. Parthasaradhy Aiyangar, for the Appellant.

Mr. T. Natesa Aiyar, for the Respondents.

These second appeals coming on for hearing on the 15th September 1914, the Court delivered the following JUDGMENT.—We are not prepared to hold that the lower Appellate Court's treatment of Exhibits D and K would justify interference.

The learned District Judge has, however, made no reference to Exhibits F and H series, and in view of the description of their purport in the District Munsif's judgment, we cannot assume that the District Judge considered them. In these circumstances we must ask him to submit revised findings on the questions raised in the appeals with reference to them.

He has also made no reference to the fact that 2nd defendant in Original Suit No. 179 of 1911 (2nd Respondent in Second Appeal No. 753 of 1913) admitted plaintiff's claim fully in her written statement. The importance of this seems to have been recognized in neither Court. For no issue was framed with reference to it, though on this pleading plaintiff was clearly entitled to a decree against 2nd defendant for any portion of the suit site found to be in her exclusive possession; and it was, therefore, necessary to ascertain the extent of such site, if any.

It is further urged that 2nd defendant's admission should have been considered as evidence against her co-defendants and against the defendants in the other suits tried with Original Suit No. 179 of 1911 and now under appeal. As regards 2nd defendant's co-defendants we adopt the reasoning contained in the judgment delivered by one of us in Appavu Chettiar v. Nanjappa Goundan (1) and hold that, as 2nd defendant's plea was not made evidence at the trial by examining her or otherwise, it cannot be considered except with reference to the determination of the extent, if any, recoverable from her. A fortiori it cannot be considered against the defendants in the other suits.

There must, therefore, be a remand in order (1) that the lower Appellate Court may submit fresh findings on the questions raised in the appeals with reference to Exhibits F and H series, (2) that it may frame, try and find on any issues involved by 2nd defendant's admission, taking any fresh evidence relevant to them which may be adduced, and (if necessary) considering any supplementary written statements which it may think it advisable to call for from the other defendants. It is because it appears advisable to give the parties an opportunity for filing such statements that we do not frame additional issues in this Court. Findings should be submitted within six weeks from the date of this order and seven days will be allowed for filing objections.

In compliance with the order contained in the above judgment, the District Judge of Trichinopoly submitted the following FINDING.—Plaintiff sued various alleged tenants in three suits and got decrees that plaint property belonged to plaint devasthanam, to recover possession thereof after removing certain buildings and for certain arrears of rent.

2. On appeal, my predecessor, while upholding plaintiff's title, found that Exhibits D and K series of accounts did not help plaintiff in any way, there was no evidence that, defendants ever paid rent to plaint devasthanam and their possession was adverse to plaintiff and the 12 years' rules. He, therefore, allowed the appeal.

(1) 20 Ind. Cas. 792; 25 M. L. J. 329; 14 M. L. T. 117.

3. On second appeal, the High Court upheld this Court's rejection of Exhibits D and K series, but asked me for revised findings on the question raised in the appeals with reference to Exhibits F and H series and also to frame, try and find on any issues involved by the admission of 2nd defendant in Original Suit No. 179 of 1911 of plaintiff's claim. I have, therefore, framed an issue, "was 2nd defendant in exclusive possession of any, and what, portion of the property in suit in Original Suit No. 179 of 1911 at the time of suit."

4. The parties have taken no steps beyond argument on the existing record. The points raised on appeal are that defendants are not shown to be tenants of plaintiff and plaintiff has not shown possession within 12 years.

5. Exhibit F is a delivery attakshi showing delivery of plaint Kadaimli tope to plaintiff in 1902. Plaintiff admittedly did not dispossess the tenants of the houses therein which are plaint houses. There is, however, no evidence since Exhibits D and K series are ruled out, that defendants ever attorned to plaintiff as landlord or paid him rent.

6. Exhibit H series shows that plaintiff leased the trees in the tope. Defendants concede this and it is clear from plaintiff's oral evidence that he leased all the trees, even those that stand in land used rightly or wrongly as backyard of some of the defendants. But H series throws no light on the question of whether defendants were ever tenants under plaintiff and paid him rent. It may easily be that they built houses long ago on vacant village site—as people do in natham lands and the Inamdar is claiming rent for houses on village-site because the whole village is inam.

7. I, therefore, find the defendants are not tenants of plaintiff and that since the long possession is admitted, it is adverse to plaintiff.

8. As regards 2nd defendant, beyond her written statement that she occupied a site as tenant of plaintiff there is no evidence. She did not go into the box and her husband, 1st defendant, did and denied it.

9. I find, therefore, that the 2nd defendant was not really in possession of any portion of the property in Original Suit No. 179 of 1911.

These second appeals coming on for final hearing this day, after the return of the findings of the lower Appellate Court upon the questions referred by this Court for trial, the Court delivered the following JUDGMENT.—The objections to the findings raise no question of law. We accept the findings. The second appeals are dismissed with costs.

Appeals dismissed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1253 OF 1913.

May 12, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice D. Chatterjee and Mr. Justice Chapman.

SANATAN CHAKRAVARTI alias AMRITA LAL CHAKRAVARTI AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

Srimati KAURI MANI DASI AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Mortgage, redemption of—Husband's mortgage, if widow can redeem unconditionally.

In a case where the wife wants to recover the property which is found to have been mortgaged by her husband for debts for which her husband's property in her hands would be justly liable:

Held, that to allow her to recover her property without any condition is not equitable. [p. 926, col. 2.]

Appeal against the decree of the Additional District Judge, 24-Perganas, dated the 14th of March 1913, reversing that of the Munsif, 3rd Court at Alipur, dated the 16th of December 1910.

Babu Atul Krishna Roy, for the Appellants.

Babus Sib Chandra Palit and Jogesh Chandra Bose, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The admitted facts of the case are that one Kala Chand Naskar died leaving three sons, Gopinath, Hem and Uma Charan and a widow, Muktakeshi. Uma Charan was a minor at the time. Gopinath, Hem and Muktakeshi on behalf of the minor mortgaged 16 annas of certain property to defendant No. 5. Defendant No. 5 sold the mortgage to the grandfather of the appellants, defendants Nos. 1, 2 and 3. Jadunath, the father of the appellants, brought a suit on the mortgage against Hem alone, as Muktakeshi, Gopinath and Uma Charan were all dead at the time. It appears, however, that Gopinath left a widow, who is the plaintiff and who was not made a party to the mortgage suit. A decree was made in favour of Jadunath, and Jadunath in execution of his decree purchased the mortgaged property. One Gopal Chandra Ghose having obtained a money-decree against Jadunath sold the right, title and interest of Jadunath in execution and purchased it himself. Gopal Chandra then sold the right so purchased by him to defendant No. 7, Hari Das, and defendant No. 7 let out the property to Jadunath, the father of the appellants. After this, the widow of Gopinath brought a suit for recovery of an 8-annas share to which her husband was entitled. Upon the admitted facts of the case, the plaintiff was not bound by the mortgage-decree. She was, therefore, entitled to redeem the mortgage of Jadunath which would be vested in defendant No. 7; and the Court of first instance made a decree in favour of the plaintiff for possession of her 8-annas share upon redemption. The order was—"The plaintiff be put in joint possession of the property to the extent of her half share in it, on her payment of Rs. 200, towards the redemption of the mortgage as found in the judgment, to defendants Nos. 1—3 and defendant Haridas Ghose. After the redemption either party may sue for partition." There was an appeal to the learned District Judge by the plaintiff and we understand that there was also a cross-appeal by the appellants. The learned Judge in dealing with the appeal has made a mistake with regard to the law applicable to the case. He has held that the purchaser in execution of the mortgage-decree purchased the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor Hem Chandra and nothing else.

There is no dispute in this Court that that judgment is not right. The point, however, which is disputed is that the appellants who were the lessees of Hari Das have not the same rights as Hari Charan had and as Hari Das has not appealed, the decree as made by the Court of Appeal below, that the plaintiff should recover her 8-annas share of the property unconditionally, ought to remain, subject in future to the working out of any rights which Hari Das or anybody claiming under him may have. Ordinarily that may be the right mode of looking at the facts of the case. This, however, is a case in which the plaintiff wants to recover the property which, upon the finding, was mortgaged by her husband for the debts for which her husband's property in her hands would be justly liable. To allow her, therefore, to recover her property without any condition would not be equitable. At the same time the appellants claiming merely as lessees would not be entitled to the same rights as Hari Das. But Hari Das is a party respondent before us, and under Order XLI, rule 33, of the Civil Procedure Code, we can pass a decree that ought to be passed. We think the most proper decree in this case would be something like what was passed by the learned Munsif in this case, that is, that Hari Das must be redeemed, and that the plaintiff will recover possession upon payment of Rs. 200 to Hari Das or anybody that may establish a title to the rights of Hari Charan.

It is alleged that Hari Charan has executed a conveyance in favour of the appellants pending this appeal. But that document is not before us, and we leave that to be worked out during the execution of the appellants' claim under their conveyance from Hari Das.

In the circumstances of the case, we make no order as to the costs in this appeal.

Ordered accordingly.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1324 OF 1914.

July 8, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Tudball.

KATWAROO SINGH—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

DHARAM DEO SINGH AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Joint family—Suit against all adult members—Subsequent suit by a minor member to set aside decree on ground that he was no party to former litigation—Burden of proof—Legal necessity.

KATWAROO SINGH v. DHARAM DEO SINGH.

A suit was brought against all the adult male members of a Hindu joint family on the basis of a mortgage-deed executed by all the adult male members and a decree was obtained. In execution of the decree, the mortgaged property was foreclosed and the decree-holder obtained possession of it. Subsequently, a minor member of the family brought a suit to set aside the decree on the ground that he was not a party to the suit in which the decree had been obtained:

Held, that he was fully represented in the former litigation; that he was not entitled to any relief on the mere ground that he was no party to the former suit, and that it was necessary for him to prove in the present case that the loan was not taken for a family necessity. [p. 928, col. 1.]

Second appeal from the decision of the Subordinate Judge of Ghazipur, dated the 16th July 1914.

FACTS of the case appear fully from the judgment.

Mr. Hameedullah, for the Appellant:—The minor plaintiff was made no party to the suit on the mortgage nor was he represented in any way. In fact the interests of his brother were adverse to his. He can be in no way bound by any acts of the other adult members of the family, who did not execute the bond in their capacity as managers of the family. Nor is there anything to show that there was any legal necessity. It was for the defendants to prove that they advanced money for the use of the family. The decree not being against the plaintiff he can question it by way of a separate suit. He relied on Baldeo Sonar v. Mobarak Ali Khan (1).

Mr. Parmeshwor Dyal, for the Respondents, was not heard in reply, but he referred to Jaddo Kuar v. Sheo Shankar Ram (2), Hori Lal v. Niman Kunwar (3), Bhagwati Prasad v. Bhagwati Prasad (4).

JUDGMENT.—The facts of this case are very simple. The plaintiff in the year 1903 was a minor member of a joint Hindu family. There were three branches of this family in existence; that of the plaintiff, which was represented by the plaintiff's brother, Charitar Singh, and himself; that of Hanuman Singh and Sita Ram Singh, and the third branch of Chatursal Singh. In the year 1903 on the 16th of July, Hanuman Singh, Sita Ram Singh, Charitar Singh and Chatursal Singh, that is, all the then adult male members of the family, combined together to borrow the sum of Rs. 99-8-0 on a mortgage of some of the family property. In the deed it is set out that the money was taken for the purpose of purchasing bullocks. The family was a family which depended upon agriculture for its subsistence. The plaintiff's name does not appear in the bond. A suit was brought and a decree obtained on the 23rd of August 1912. The four executants of the bond, and all their sons and grandsons, in fact all the members of the family except the plaintiff, were made parties to that suit. The plaintiff was still a minor. The decree was obtained and on the 2nd of June 1913, there was a final decree for foreclosure. Possession was taken by the mortgagee on the 14th of June 1913. On the 26th of November 1913, the present suit was brought in the name of the plaintiff to set aside the whole transaction and to recover possession of the property on the one ground only that he was not a party to the previous suit. Among other defences the defendants pleaded that the sum of Rs. 99-8 was taken for family necessity. The Court of first instance framed an issue as to whether or not the money had been taken for family necessity. The learned Munsif in writing down the issue in his judgment omitted certain words, but this omission was only in the judgment and not in the issue which was drawn up in the vernacular. The Munsif held that the loan had been taken for family necessity, that the plaintiff had been fully represented at the trial in the former suit and dismissed the suit. The Court below stated in its judgment that there was no evidence whatsoever to show that the money had been borrowed for family necessity but it went on to hold that the plaintiff was effectively represented in the former suit by the adult male members of the family, and that it was for him to prove that the loan had not been taken for any family necessity, and as the plaintiff had failed to prove any such thing, the suit was bound to be dismissed. The main point pressed before me is that it was for the defendants to prove that the loan was taken for family necessity and was binding on the plaintiff and that the defendants not having proved it the

(1) 29 C. 583; 6 C. W. N. 370.
(2) 7 Ind. Cas. 902; 33 A. 71; 7 A. L. J. 945.
(3) 15 Ind. Cas. 126; 34 A. 549; 9 A. L. J. 819.
(4) 17 Ind. Cas. 846; 35 A. 126; 11 A. L. J. 76.

plaintiff was entitled to a decree at least as to his $\frac{1}{8}$th share of the estate, if not of the whole of the mortgaged property. The plaintiff in his plaint had asked for possession of $\frac{1}{8}$th (his own share) of the property without payment of any sum and for the remaining $\frac{7}{8}$ths on payment of what had been found due from the other members of the family. It seems to me that it is clear that the adult members of the family who took this loan were acting as the managing members of the family. There were no other adult male members at all. They were sued by the mortgagee. The latter took the precaution of making all their sons and grandsons parties to the suit. He apparently was unaware, though this is by no means clear, of the existence of the present plaintiff. It is difficult to understand why if he had been aware of his existence, he should not have made him a party to the suit. Be that as it may, it is quite clear that the four adult male members of the family who contracted the mortgage were also sued and were the managing members of the family. There is no allegation of fraud or of any dishonesty in the matter. The plaintiff came into Court and asked for relief on the sole ground that he had not been made a party to the former suit. He did not even allege that the mortgage was not binding upon him or that it was incurred for other than family necessity. In the circumstances of this case it seems to me that the plaintiff was fully represented in the former litigation; that he is not entitled to any relief on the mere ground that he was no party to the former suit, and it will be necessary for him to prove in the present case that the loan was not taken for family necessity. This he did not attempt to do. In my opinion he is not entitled to any relief and the Court below has properly dismissed the suit. The appeal, therefore, fails and is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 32 OF 1912.

December 21, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Pratt, J. C., and Mr. Fawcett, A. J. C.

ALLAHRAKHIO AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

Musammat NANJI—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Hindu Law—Khojas—Khoja widow's right to maintenance.

As in matters of succession and inheritance khojas are governed by the the Hindu Law a khoja widow is entitled to claim maintenance from the person succeeding to her husband's estate, as this right is an essential part of the Hindu Law of inheritance and succession. [p. 929, col. 1.]

Jan Muhammad v. Datu Jaffar, 22 Ind. Cas. 169; 15 Bom. L. R. 1044; 38 B. 449, distinguished.

Appeal against the decree of the Additional Judicial Commissioner of Sind.

Mr. C. M. Lobo, for the Appellants.

Mr. Kalumal Pahumal, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—Plaintiff-respondent is the widow of one Tharu, a Khoja Muhammadan, who died in 1903 and defendants-appellants are the sons of Tharu's two brothers, Meherali and Abdulla, who are also dead.

Plaintiff alleged that the family formerly constituted a joint one governed by Hindu Law in matters of inheritance and succession, and claimed maintenance from the two appellants at the rate of Rs. 40 a month, which she asked should be made a charge on her husband, Tharu's one-third share in certain immoveable property at Karachi. This claim has been partially awarded, and appellants dispute her right to any maintenance or at any rate to the amount actually awarded.

The trial Judge held that Tharu did own an undivided one-third share in the equity of redemption of one-half of the property mentioned in the plaint. This land was originally purchased by Meherali and one Chagla in equal shares, and in 1887, Meherali mortgaged his half share to Chagla. In 1898, Chagla's son transferred his half share of the land as well as his right, title, and interest as mortgagee in the other half share to Abdulla, the father of defendant No 1. The latter is, therefore, owner of half the land and mortgagee of the other half. The purchase of this other half by Meherali has been held by the Judge to have been on behalf of the family generally, and he has also held that Tharu had rights of ownership over it. These findings have been disputed by Mr. Lobo, but the grounds on which the findings are based clearly justify them. There is the evidence of a reliable witness called by the defendants that during the life-time of the father of the three brothers the earnings went into a joint fund; Tharu himself erected an upper storey to the building on the land and lived in it with his family until his death, while after that his widow, the plaintiff, continued to live in it for about seven years, until she was turned out, and finally this property was shown in the Revenue Records in the names of Tharu, Abdulla and Meherali. Defendant himself admits that no other property stood in Tharu's name; and the entry of his name appears, therefore, to be deliberate, and not merely fortuitous. We see no reason to differ from the Court below on this finding as to Tharu's interest in the property.

In his opening arguments Mr. Lobo contended that the Hindu Law as to joint property did not govern Khojas, and that plaintiff, therefore, could have no right to maintenance under that law, but he subsequently withdrew this contention. It is not necessary, therefore, to consider the point; but it may be remarked that the views expressed by Beaman, J., in Jan Mahomed v. Datu Jaffar (1) are not directed against the exclusion of widows and daughters from sharing in a succession to joint family property, but against sons claiming a share in their father's property on the ground that there is a nucleus of ancestral property (see at pages 503 and 509 511) and that, if in matters of succession and inheritance it is to be taken as established that Khojas are governed by the Hindu Law, this must almost necessarily also cover the case of the right of a deceased brother's widow to maintenance, which is an essential part of the Hindu Law of inheritance and succession. If this law does not apply in this case, the plaintiff would be entitled to a share; and it was on this account that Mr. Lobo dropped his contention.

The only remaining question is whether the rates of maintenance allowed the plaintiff are excessive, as contended by appellants. The rate of Rs. 5 per mensem allowed for arrears of maintenance up to 1st May 1912 is certainly not excessive. The rate of Rs. 15 a month allowed for future maintenance after that date is based on an estimate of the value of Tharu's share in the equity of redemption, which the learned Judge estimates at Rs. 5,000 to Rs. 6,000. This estimate does not appear to be excessive, and the rate is only 3 per cent. on Rs. 6,000. We do not see any sufficient reason for interfering on this point.

The appeal is accordingly dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 22 Ind. Cas. 195; 15 Bom. L. R. 1044; 38 B. 449.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

CIVIL APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL DECREE NO. 464 OF 1912.

August 27, 1914.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, KT., and Mr. Justice Beachcroft.

MANMATHA NATH MOOKERJEE—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

SARAT CHANDRA ADDY—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 171, scope of—Construction—Sum paid to avert rent-sale not considered part of mortgage-money—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s 83, scope of—"Money remaining due on mortgage", what includes.

Whatever construction may be put on section 171 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, it cannot mean that the sum paid for the protection of the property becomes part of the mortgage-money. [p. 930, col. 1.]

In view of the specific provisions of section 171 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the money paid to avert the rent sale does not become part of the mortgage-money so as to entitle the mortgagee to treat it as included in the amount remaining due on his mortgage under section 83 of the Transfer of Property Act. [p. 932, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decision of the Subordinate Judge of Hooghly, dated the 16th September 1912.

Babus Sib Chandra Palit, Chandra Sekhar Banerjee and Sahayram Bose, for the Appellant.

Babus Mahendra Nath Ray and Manmatha Nath Ray, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal by the sixth defendant in a suit brought by a mortgagee to enforce his security. The mortgagee also seeks to recover two sums of money paid by him in satisfaction of the dues of the superior landlord. The mortgage was granted by the first defendant on the 14th July 1909 for a loan of Rs. 2,500, which carried interest at 15 per cent. per annum with quarterly rests. The first of the two payments was made by the mortgagee on the 17th March 1910, under section 174 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, to set aside a sale of the mortgaged property held at the instance of the superior landlord in execution of a decree for arrears of rent. The second payment was made on the 15th June 1910, under section 171 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, to protect the mortgaged property from a sale which had been advertised to take place at the instance of the landlord in execution of another decree of rent. The appellant, the sixth defendant, acquired the equity of redemption under three conveyances from the other defendants, the original owners of the property, executed on the 3rd November 1910, 6th September 1911 and 9th September 1911. The contesting defendant argued in the Court below that the claim for interest on the mortgage should be disallowed, as there had been a valid deposit, under section 83 of the Transfer of Property Act, of the amount remaining due on the mortgage when the deposit was made in Court. He further contended that no decree should be made in favour of the plaintiffs as against him for either of the sums alleged to have been paid in satisfaction of the dues of the superior landlord. The Subordinate Judge has overruled the first contention and has in part allowed the second. On the present appeal, the decree of the Subordinate Judge has been assailed on three grounds, namely, first, that there was a valid deposit of whatever was due on the mortgage within the meaning of section 83 of the Transfer of Property Act, and that, consequently, the interest on the mortgage-money ceased to run under section 84; secondly, that the plaintiff is not entitled to a mortgage-decree for the sum paid by him on the 15th June 1910, inasmuch as it was not a deposit made in accordance with section 171 of the Bengal Tenancy Act; and thirdly, that the appellant is not personally liable for the money deposited by the plaintiff on the 17th March 1910.

The first contention raises a question of considerable importance. It is not disputed that the appellant deposited in Court a sum of Rs. 3,205 on the 16th March 1911 under section 83 of the Transfer of Property Act. This sum, it is conceded, represented the amount due from the mortgagor at that date if accounts were taken on the basis of the mortgage alone. The mortgagee, however, refused to accept the money, on the ground that the defendant was bound to deposit, not merely the sum calculated to be due on the mortgage, but also the sums paid by the mortgagee in satisfaction of the claim of the landlords together with interest thereon, inasmuch as, by operation of law, these sums had become assimilated with the mortgage-money. Consequently, the question arises, whether the sum deposited by the mortgagee to save the property from sale was included in "the amount remaining due on the mortgage" within the meaning of section 83 of the Transfer of Property Act. On behalf of the mortgagee, reliance has been placed upon the cases of Anandi Ram v. Dur Najaf Ali Begum (1), Upendra Chandra Mitter v. Tara Prosanna Mukerjee (2) and Rakhohari Chattaraj v. Bipra Das Dey (3), in support of the proposition that when a mortgagee has spent money for the necessary protection of his security, he is entitled to add the sums so spent to the mortgage-money. We may here observe parenthetically that in respect of the sum paid on the 17th March 1910 under section 174 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the Subordinate Judge has held that the mortgagee has no charge on the property for the realization thereof. It is not necessary for us to decide whether this view is or is not well-founded, because the mortgagee has not taken exception to the decree of the Subordinate Judge on this ground. The only question for consideration is, whether the sum deposited by the mortgagee on the 15th June 1910 under section 171 of the Bengal Tenancy Act became part and parcel of the mortgage-money and must be deemed included in the amount remaining due on the mortgage on the 16th March 1911 when the appellant made his deposit under section 83 of the Transfer of Property Act.

(1) 13 A. 195; A. W. N. (1890) 228.
(2) 30 C. 794; 7 C. W. N. 609.
(3) 31 C. 975.

Sub-section 1 of section 171 of the Bengal Tenancy Act provides that when any person having, in a tenure advertised for sale under Chapter XIV, an interest which would be voidable upon the sale, pays into Court the amount requisite to prevent the sale, the amount so paid by him shall be deemed to be a debt, bearing interest at 12 per cent. per annum and secured by a mortgage of the tenure to him. His mortgage shall take priority over every other charge on the tenure, other than a charge for arrears of rent, and he shall be entitled to possession of the tenure as a mortgagee of the tenant and to retain possession of it as such, until the debt, with the interest due thereon, has been discharged. Sub-section 2 then provides that nothing in the section shall affect any other remedy to which any such person would be entitled. It is plain from the terms of sub-section 1 that the sum paid to prevent the sale is secured by the mortgage of the tenure and that such mortgage takes priority over every other charge on the tenure other than a charge for arrears of rent. The terms of this section may be contrasted with those of section 72 of the Transfer of Property Act, which is applicable only to the case of a mortgagee in possession of the mortgaged property. That section provides that where, during the continuance of the mortgage, the mortgagee takes possession of the mortgaged property, he may spend such money as is necessary for its preservation from sale, and may, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, add such money to the principal money, to carry interest at the rate payable on the principal, and, where no such rate is fixed, at the rate of 9 per cent. per annum. Consequently, in a case where section 72 applies, the mortgagee who spends money for the preservation of the mortgaged property from sale, is entitled to add such money to the principal money. The sum so added carries interest at the rate payable on the principal, except where no such rate is fixed, in which event the interest is 9 per cent. per annum. Section 171 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, on the other hand, provides that the amount paid to prevent the sale carries interest at 12 per cent. per annum, regardless of the rate at which interest is payable upon the principal money. Section 171 further provides that the statutory mortgage, created thereunder in favour of the person who makes the payment and saves the property from sale, shall take priority over every other charge on the tenure other than a charge for arrears of rent. Consequently, where the payment under section 171 has been made by a mortgagee, the statutory mortgage which he acquires is entitled to priority even over the charge which he himself holds. It is, in our opinion, impossible so to construe section 171 as to entitle us to hold that the sum paid for the protection of the property becomes part of the mortgage-money. If the contention of the respondent were well-founded, the additional money would carry interest at the same rate, and would be realisable in the same manner, as the principal. The mortgagee would be deprived of the special advantage conferred upon him by clause (1) of section 171, namely, priority over every charge other than a charge for arrears of rent. The view we take, is in no way opposed to the decisions upon which reliance has been placed. In the case of Anandi Ram v. Dur Najaf Ali Begum (1) the payment was made by a usufructuary mortgagee in possession, to whom the provisions of section 73 of the Transfer of Property Act would be applicable. It was in these circumstances that the Court held that when money is paid by a mortgagee to protect the mortgaged property from sale for arrears of revenue, the mortgagee is entitled to add the amount to the principal money due under the mortgage, and the mortgage cannot be redeemed without payment of this money. In the case of Upendra Chandra Mitter v. Tara Prosanna Mukerjee (2) the payment was made by a mortgagee, who was also a co-proprietor in the estate, to prevent a sale for arrears of revenue. The provisions of section 171 of the Bengal Tenancy Act were obviously inapplicable, nor was the case covered by the terms of section 73 of the Transfer of Property Act. The Court held that, on general principles, the mortgagee who had made a payment to save the property from a sale, which, had it taken place, would have destroyed his security, was entitled to a lien for the money paid by him; and, in support of this proposition, reliance was placed upon the decisions in Leslie v. French(4) and Perianna Servaigaran v. Marudainayagam Pillai (5). In the case of Rakhohari Chaltaraj v. Bipra Das Dey (3) the payment was made to set aside a rent sale under section 310A of the Civil Procedure Code of 1882 and the Court held that the mortgagee, who had made the payment, was entitled to a charge upon the property on principles of justice, equity and good conscience. It is plain that the question now raised for decision was neither raised nor considered in any of the cases mentioned. The case before us is clearly governed by the terms of section 171 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and we feel no doubt whatever that in view of the specific provisions of that section, the money paid to avert the sale did not become part of the mortgage-money so as to entitle the mortgagee to treat it as included in the amount remaining due on his mortgage under section 83 of the Transfer of Property Act. It has been ingeniously argued, on behalf of the respondent, as a last resort that section 171 is not exhaustive, that notwithstanding its provisions, the mortgagee who has made a payment to avert a sale for arrears of rent, is entitled, on principles of justice, equity and good conscience, to claim a charge on the mortgaged property, and that he may from this standpoint treat the money paid as part of the mortgage-money. This contention is of no real assistance to the mortaggee in this case. Assume that the mortgagee is entitled to repudiate the statutory benefit conferred on him by section 171 and to fall back on the position he would have occupied independently thereof. Assume also that a mortgagee who has made a payment to save the mortgaged property from sale is, on general principles of equity independently of covenants in the mortgage and of statutory provisions, entitled to a charge upon the mortgaged p emises, additional to the original mortgage lien, but of the same grade and rank and to be enforced with and through the mortgage (Jones on Mortgages Volume II, section 1174). It is plain that, in the present case, the mortgagee has not elected between the two remedies. The election must be made at the time when the right originates, that is, when the payment was made by him under section 171. On the other hand, the very fact that he has claimed interest at the contract rate (15 per cent. per annum) on the principal amount and at 12 per cent per annum on the sum paid under section 171, indicates clearly that he relies upon the Statute, which, as we have already explained, does not entitle him to treat the additional sum as amalgamated with the principal. Consequently, the first ground taken by the appellant must prevail. We hold that there was a valid deposit of the sum due on the mortgage on the 16th March 1911, and that interest on the mortgage ceased to run from that date under section 84 of the Transfer of Property Act.

As regards the second ground, it is plain that the contention of the appellant cannot possibly prevail. The case was argued in the Court below on the assumption that the payment was properly made under section 171 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Under that section a payment can be made only by a person who has such an interest in the tenure as would be voidable upon the sale. It is now sought to be argued that the interest of the mortgagee was not liable to be avoided upon the sale, because the execution proceedings had not been taken in conformity with the provisions of Chapter XIV of the Bengal Tenancy Act. To support this contention the appellant invites us to receive evidence of the nature of those proceedings. The application obviously comes too late, for if we were to accede to his request, time would have to be allowed to the respondent to give rebutting evidence. No good reason has been assigned for the grant of this indulgence to the appellant at this stage. The second contention accordingly fails.

As regards the third ground, which relates to the sum paid on the 17th March 1910, it has been argued that a personal decree should not be made against the appellant. No doubt, as the purchaser of the equity of redemption, he is prima facie under no present obligation to satisfy the claim of th mortgagee, but i transpires that, under the conveyances which are the foundations of his title, he assumed responsibility for the dues of the landlord to the extent of Rs. 5,648, exclusive of Rs. 3,200 which was kept in his hands by the transferors for the satisfaction of the mortgage. In the case of two out of the three conveyances, reference is expressly made to the liability likely to be imposed on the appellant as the result of the present litigation. The appellant has failed to satisfy us that he has spent the whole of the sum of Rs. 5,648; in other words, that the personal liability imposed upon him by the Court below is in excess of the amount for which he assumed responsibility. The third contention, therefore, fails.

(4) (1883) 23 Ch. D. 552; 52 L. J. Ch. 762; 48 L. T. 564; 31 W. R. 561.

(5) 22 M. 332; 9 M. L. J. 166.

The result is that this appeal is allowed in part, and the decree of the Subordinate Judge modified in the manner following. Instead of a decree for Rs. 3,331-12 on account of the mortgage-bond, there will be a decree for Rs. 3,205, and the following passage will be expunged from the decree: "And that interest do run at the rate mentioned from the date of suit to three months after the date of the decree; if the defendants Nos. 1—6 do not pay up the decretal amount within the time fixed, the plaintiff will get an order absolute for sale of the mortgaged property and interest will run at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum on the decretal amount with costs." The decree will also be varied in respect of the amount of costs payable by the appellant to the respondent. In the view we take the plaintiff should not have sued for recovery of the sum due on the mortgage. Consequenly he cannot be allowed any amount for the Court-fees or Pleader's fees payable on that part of the claim. This means a reduction of Rs. 355 in the amount of costs as tabulated in the schedule to the decree. The costs payable by the appellant to the respondent in the Court below will thus be Rs. 248-10 instead of Rs. 603-10. Subject to variation in this respect the decree of the Court below will stand confirmed. As the appeal has failed upon two of the principal points urged before us, the appellant must pay the respondent his costs in this Court. We assess the hearing fee at five gold mohurs.

Appeal partly allowed.

SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

MISCELLANEOUS CIVIL APPEAL No. 15 OF 1914.

January 25, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Pratt, J. C.

MESSRS. FORBES, FORBES, CAMPBELL AND COMPANY—APPELLANTS

versus

THE OFFICIAL RECEIVER OF THE ESTATE OF MITHAMAL DWARKADAS —RESPONDENT.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 74, 107—Right of re-sale by vendor where property not passed to purchaser—Re-sale commission and brokerage when goods not re-sold—Agreement to pay, unreasonableness of.

The right of re-sale after the breach of contract to purchase may be allowed as a means of ascertaining damages subject to the rule of reasonable compensation contained in section 74 of the Contract Act and is not limited to cases where property has passed to the buyer. [p. 934, col. 2.]

Moll Schutte & Co., v. Lachmi Chand, 25 C. 505; 2 C. W. N. 283, followed.

Where the property in the goods re-sold has not passed to the buyer, a re-selling commission cannot be allowed. [p. 934, col. 2.]

Re-selling brokerage and commission for goods not actually re-sold cannot be allowed as they are unreasonable and not justified by section 74 of the Contract Act, being imaginary and fictitious. [p. 935, col. 1.]

Appeal against the order of the Official Receiver.

Mr. Dipchand Chandumal, for the Appellants.

Mr. Rupchand Bilaram, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal by a creditor against the order of the Official Receiver rejecting a part of his debt. The petition of insolvency was filed on 21st October 1913 and the debtor, Mithumal Dwarkadas, was adjudicated as insolvent on 23rd January 1914.

The appellants, Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co., had entered into contracts with Mithumal Dwarkadas for the sale to him of goods to be imported from abroad. The material clauses of the contract are:—

"2. Goods to be removed by me direct from the Bunder of Mansfield Import Yard and any charges incurred for demurrage, godown rent, etc., to be paid by me.

"3. Should the goods be not paid for by me within seven days of arrival, interest shall be charged at 6 per cent per annum. But Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co. Ld.'s responsibility as to loss in weight, damage or deterioration shall cease, and they may at any time thereafter dispose of the goods on my account and risk either by auction or private bargain and I agree to make good any loss or expense sustained or incurred thereby together with a net commission of $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on such re-sale.

"In the event of my committing any act of insolvency before paying for all the goods under this contract whether in stock or to arrive, Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co., Ltd., are at liberty by notice in writing to cancel this contract at any time as regards any goods for which payment has not been made and damages shall be assessed at the market rate on the cancellation whether the goods are in fact re-sold or not and Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co., Ld., shall be entitled to charge commission and brokerage on such cancelled goods whether re-sold or not."

Now, if the goods are not ascertained, then, so long as they are at Mansfield Import Yard they are the property of Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co., for they are not appropriated to the contract, nor is such appropriation assented by Mithumal (sections 82 and 83, Indian Contract Act). On the other hand if the goods are ascertained, the result is the same, for property in goods not paid for does not pass until delivery (section 73, Indian Contract Act). The property in the goods undelivered, therefore, remains in the vendors appellants, although the risk by the expressed term of the contract is transferred to the buyer. The dates for taking delivery were prior to the filing of the petition of insolvency.

The appeal relates to two classes of such goods:—

A. Goods which the appellants re-sold on Mithumal's failure to take delivery, and

B. Goods which the appellants had not so re-sold.

As to A the appellants filed proofs for damages calculated at the difference between the contract price and the price realized by the sales plus interest on the contract price plus brokerage on the re-sales plus commission of $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. The Official Receiver has allowed the whole claim with the exception of commission. The appeal is for this item of commission.

Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co. never gave notice in writing to cancel the contract and the claim is not based on the market rate at the date of cancellation. The second part of clause 3 of the contract does not apply and the claim for damages is made under the first part of clause 3. But as I have already shown, the goods belonged to Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co. The provision that Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co. should dispose of them on account of the buyer, proceeds on the mistaken view that the goods were the property of the buyer and that Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co. were acting as buyer's agents in selling them. It is for this agency that a commission of $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. is charged whereas, as a matter of fact, there is no such agency, for Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co. were selling their own goods. The right of re-sale after breach of contract to purchase may be allowed as a means of ascertaining damages and is not limited to cases where property had passed to the purchaser. This was decided in Moll Schutte & Co. v. Lachmi Chand (1). But this is subject to the rule of reasonable compensation contained in section 74 of the Contract Act. The claim for commission is based on a mistaken view of the right of the parties and is altogether unreasonable. The Official Receiver has rightly disallowed it.

As to B, Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co. claim the difference between the contract rate and the market rate on the 17th of August 1914, plus interest plus re-selling commission plus re-selling brokerage. The Official Receiver has disallowed commission and brokerage, and the appeal is for these two items.

The goods were not re-sold and so damages are assessed under the second part of clause 3 of the contract. Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co. never gave notice of cancellation, but I may presume they rescinded the contracts on the 17th of August, which was about the date on which the Official Receiver called for proof of debts. That being so, there is nothing unreasonable in the provision that damages should be assessed according to the difference of the rates of that day and the contract rate. But how is it possible to justify the further stipulation that damages should be enhanced by purely imaginary and fictitious charges for brokerage and commission on sales which had never taken place? The sales not having taken place the sums on which these charges would be calculated never had existence and, therefore, their amounts are not even ascertainable. The Official Receiver has rightly disallowed these two items as being altogether unreasonable and not justified by section 74 of the Indian Contract Act.

(1) 25 C. 505; 2 C. W. N. 283.

I confirm the order of the Official Receiver and dismiss this appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

FULL BENCH.

APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL DECREE NO. 107 OF 1914.

April 12, 1915.

Present:—Sir Lawrence Jenkins, KT., Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Woodroffe, Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, KT., Mr. Justice Holmwood and Mr. Justice D. Chatterjee.

RUP KESHWAR LAL—OBJECTOR—APPELLANT

versus

JAIJAI BIBI AND OTHERS—APPLICANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Jurisdiction—District Judge, power of, to transfer particular case to Additional Judge—Bengal, N.-W. P. and Assam Civil Courts Act (XII of 1887), s. 8, sub-sec. (2)—Letters of Administration.

Under section 8, sub-section (2) of the Bengal, N.-W. P. and Assam Civil Courts Act it is competent to a District Judge to transfer a particular case to an Additional Judge. [p. 936, col. 2.]

Rakhal Chandra Tewari v. Secretary of State for India in Council, 8 C. L. J. 34; 10 C. W. N. 841, approved.

Muhammad Musa v. Abdul Hassan Khan, 22 Ind Cas. 951; 41 C. 866; 18 C. W. N. 612, overruled.

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge of Shahabad, dated the 9th March 1914.

FACTS of the case appear from the following Order of Reference made by Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ., dated the 12th August 1914:—

This appeal is directed against the grant of Letters of Administration, with a copy of the Will annexed, to the estate of one Musammat Mohan Koer. The application was presented to the District Judge on the 16th July and registered in his Court on the 1st August 1913. After various interlocutory orders, to which reference is not necessary for our present purpose, the case was transferred to the Additional Judge for disposal on the 18th December 1913. The record does not show that any objection was taken to the order of transfer or to the trial of the case by the Additional Judge; but it has been stated before us that an objection was taken verbally and was overruled. It is immaterial, however, whether such objection was taken or not, because the question is one of jurisdiction, and, if the order of transfer was made without jurisdiction and if the Additional Judge was incompetent to try the case, it is open to the appellant to challenge the legality of his order on that ground.

On behalf of the appellant it has been contended that, under section 51 of the Probate and Administration Act, the District Judge alone has jurisdiction in granting Letters of Administration in all cases within his district. The expression "District Judge" is defined in section 3 of the Probate and Administration Act to mean the Judge of a principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction. An Additional Judge is prima facie Judge of this description. Our attention is invited, however, to section 8, sub-section (2), of the Bengal Civil Courts Act, 1887, which provides that an Additional Judge appointed under sub-section (1) shall discharge any of the functions of a District Judge which the District Judge may assign to him, and, in the discharge of those functions, he shall exercise the same powers as the District Judge. The appellant argues that as the District Judge transferred only this particular case for trial to the Additional Judge, and did not assign to him his functions as a District Judge in respect of any specified class of cases, the Additional Judge was not competent to hear the case. In support of this contention, reliance has been placed upon the decision of Muhammad Musa v. Abdul Hassan Khan (1) which apparently supports the argument of the appellant. The view taken in this case, however, is opposed to that adopted in the case of Rakhal Chandra Tewari v. Secretary of State for India in Council (2). In that case, it was contended on behalf of the appellant, that under section 8 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act, the District Judge had power only to assign certain functions to the Additional District Judge, that is to say, that he could assign to him particular classes of cases but could not transfer to him any particular case for decision. Rampini, J., in answer to this contention, stated that he was unable to accede to this view of the matter, and Woodroffe, J., expressed his concurrence with Rampini, J. But it has been suggested that the case of Rakhal Chandra Tewari v. Secretary of State for India in Council (2) is distinguishable, inasmuch as there the question arose in relation to the transfer of an appeal, as to which provision is made in sub-section (2) of section 22 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act. The distinction, however, is really not material because, under sub-section (2) of section 22, a District Judge is competent to transfer an appeal to a Court under his administrative control competent to dispose of it; and whether the Additional Judge is or is not competent to dispose of an appeal transferred to him by the District Judge, must depend upon the interpretation to be placed upon sub-section (2) of section 8. Consequently, there is a clear conflict of judicial opinion as to the true scope and effect of sub-section (2) of section 8.

(1) 22 Ind. Cas. 951; 41 C. 866; 18 C. W. N. 612.
(2) 8 C. L. J. 34; 10 C. W. N. 841.

We may add that we feel no doubt that the view taken in the case of Rakhal Chandra Tewari v. Secretary of State for India in Council (2) gives effect to the true intention of the Legislature. It appears to us to be fairly clear that, if it is competent to a District Judge under sub-section (2) of section 8 to assign his functions to an Additional Judge in respect of a class of cases, there is no intelligible reason why he should not do so in respect of a particular case comprised within that class. We may further observe that the case of Rakhal Chandra Tewari v. Secretary of State for India in Council (2) was not brought to the notice of the Divisional Bench which decided the case of Muhammad Musa v. Abdul Hassan Khan (1).

In these circumstances, we are constrained, under paragraph 1 of Chapter V of the Rules of the High Court, to refer this case for decision by a Full Bench. As the question arises in an appeal from original decree, under rule 3 the question of law alone is referred. The question is—whether in view of the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 8 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act (XII of 1887), it is competent to a District Judge to transfer a particular case to an Additional Judge.

Babu Kulwant Sahai, for the Appellants.

Babus Umakali Mookerjee, Raghu Nath Singh and Sudhansu Sekhar Mookerjee, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT OF THE FULL BENCH.

The question proposed for our determination is, whether in view of the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 8 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act (XII of 1887), it is competent to a District Judge to transfer a particular case to an Additional Judge. We answer the reference in the affirmative, the reasons which induce us to adopt that conclusion are sufficiently set forth in the order of reference and we need not repeat them.

The case will go back to the Divisional Bench for final disposal. The Divisional Bench will deal with the costs of this reference.

Case sent back.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 130 OF 1914.

March 29, 1915.

Present:—Sir Charles Fox, KT., Chief Judge.

VITHALDAS KHANDAS—APPELICANT

versus

S. N. INDRAVELLU—RESPONDENT.

Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881), ss. 9, 32, 56, 59—Promissory note, maker of, liability of—Continuing security—Indorsements, effects of—Fraud, person liable for.

The maker of a promissory note undertakes and is bound to pay at its maturity according to its apparent tenor. [p. 937, col. 1.]

A promissory note payable on demand is regarded as a continuing security. [p. 937, col. 1.]

Indorsements of payment may be made on a negotiable instrument under section 56 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, (XXVI of 1881) and the note then becomes negotiable only for the balance due but if no indorsement is made, the note remains negotiable for the full amount expressed on it. [p. 937, col 2.]

If the payee commits fraud by transferring the note for the full value without informing the indorsee that some payments have been made, the person to suffer by the fraud is the person who by his omission to insist on his payments being indorsed on the note enabled the fraud to be committed. [p. 937, col. 2.]

Glasscock v. Balls, (1889) 2 Q. B. D. 13; 59 L. J. Q. B. 51; 62 L. T. 163; 38 W. R. 155; Nash v. De Freville, (1900) 2 Q. B. D. 72; 69 L. J. Q. B. 484; 82 L. T. 642; 48 W. R. 434; 16 T. L. R. 268, referred to.

Mr. Israel Khan, for the Applicant.

JUDGMENT.—On the 19th August 1912 S. N. Indravellu executed a promissory note for Rs. 50 payable on demand in favour of Ramsamaj Singh or his order, bearing interest at 6 per cent. per mensem. Ramsamaj Singh indorsed the note in blank and delivered it to the plaintiff for value.

On the 2nd March 1914 the plaintiff sued S. N. Indravellu for the principal and Rs. 5 1-6 interest from 19th August to the 23rd February 1914. The defence was that the amount due on the note had been paid in full to Ramsamaj Singh by instalments. The learned Judge found that all the payments alleged by the defendant had been made but the last had been made after the 2nd June 1912, the date on which the note was indorsed and delivered to the plaintiff. He held that the plaintiff-indorsee could recover only the amount unpaid on the note on that date, which was Rs. 5-5. To this he added Rs. 3 for interest since the last payment and gave a decree for Rs. 8-5 with costs. What had to be dealt with was a negotiable instrument, an instrument on which not only the payee but also anyone to whom he might deliver the note after indorsing it could recover.

The maker of a promissory note undertakes and is bound to pay at its maturity according to its apparent tenor—section 32 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881. A promissory note payable on demand is regarded as a continuing security: Borough v. White (1). There was no evidence to show that demand for payment had been made by the payee before the indorsement and delivery of the note to the plaintiff. Consequently the provisions of the 1st paragraph, section 59, of the Act did not apply. I understand the Judge to have held that the plaintiff was a holder in due course as defined in section 9 of the Act, that is to say, he had become the possessor of the note for consideration before the amount mentioned in it became payable, without having sufficient cause to believe that any defect existed in the title of the payee from whom he derived his title. No indorsements of payments had been made on the note; consequently there was nothing on it to show any one accepting it as a security or buying it that it was not negotiable for the full amount expressed on it. Indorsements of payments may be made on a negotiable instrument under section 56 of the Act, in which case the note becomes negotiable only for the balance due, but if no endorsement is made the note remains negotiable for the full amount expressed on it.

The payee, Ramsamaj Singh, committed a fraud by transferring and negotiating the note for the full value without informing the plaintiff that payments had been made in respect of it. Either the plaintiff or the defendant must suffer by the fraud. The one to suffer must be the defendant, because by his omission to insist on his payments being endorsed on the note he enabled the fraud to be committed. Instances of the right of a bona fide indorsee to recover in such a case are to be found in Glasscock v. Balls (2) and Nash v. De Freville (3).

The decision of the learned Judge was not according to law, in that it was opposed to one of the essential principles of the law relating to negotiable instruments.

The decree is set aside, and in lieu thereof there will be a decree for the plaintiff for the full amount claimed with costs, the amount decreed to carry interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum. The defendant must pay the plaintiff's costs of this application, two gold mohurs allowed as advocate's fee.

Decree set aside.

(1) (1825) 107 E. R. 1030; 4 B. & C. 325 at p 327; 6 D. & R. 379; 3 L. J. (o. s.) K B. 227; 2 Car. & P. 8.

(2) (1889) 2 Q B. D. 13; 59 L. J. Q B. 51; 62 L. T. 163; 38 W. R. 155.

(3) (1900) 2 Q. B. D. 72; 69 L. J. Q. B. 484; 82 L T. 642; 48 W. R. 434; 16 T. L. R. 268.

HARJAS RAI v. NARAIN SINGH.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.
FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 238 OF 1914.
November 5, 1914.
Present:—Mr. Justice Chevis and
Mr. Justice Shadi Lal.
HARJAS RAI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS
versus
NARAIN SINGH—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XVII, r. 3, scope of—Party's default after time has been granted to him—Court responsible for effecting service.

The stringent provisions of Order XVII, rule 3, cannot be invoked unless time has been granted to a party specifically for performing any of the acts mentioned therein and that party has committed a default in performance thereof. [p. 938, col. 2.]

Where a party has paid the process fee for summoning witnesses the Court and its officers are responsible for effecting service, and an adjournment caused by the non-attendance of witnesses for want of service is an adjournment in the ordinary course and does not amount to time granted to one party within the meaning of rule 3, Order XVII, Civil Procedure Code. [p. 939, col. 1.]

When an adjournment had already been rendered necessary by the non-appearance of the witnesses the fact that it was, at the same time, utilized for another purpose does not convert it into time granted to the defendants within the purview of rule 3 of Order XVII. [p. 939, col. 1.]

Miscellaneous first appeal from an order of the District Judge, Amritsar, dated the 6th January 1914.

Bakhshi Tek Chand, for the Appellants.

Mr. Bahadur Chand, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—We have heard the appeal fully argued by Mr. Tek Chand for the appellants and Mr. Bahadur Chand for the respondent and, after giving our best consideration to the facts of the case and the law bearing thereupon, we are of opinion that the requirements of Order XVII, rule 3, have not been complied with and that the appeal must succeed. The relevant facts are that the District Judge framed on the 22nd of October 1913 three issues; the onus of the first issue was laid on the plaintiff, that of the second on the defendants and the third was an issue of a general character. The case was then adjourned to 12th November 1913 for the evidence of both the parties. It appears that both of them paid process fees for summoning two witnesses each, but the witnesses of neither party were served for 12th November 1913. The result was that on that day the Court adjourned the case to 3rd December 1913 and also ordered the defendants to pay by the 17th of November 1913 the cost of appointing a Commissioner for examining, at Delhi, the plaintiff and two other persons whom the defendants wanted to produce as their witnesses. The defendants did not, however, pay the expenses of the Commission which was not, therefore, issued and when the case came on for hearing on the 3rd of December 1913, they were absent and the plaintiff, after giving up his claim in issue 1, requested the Court to proceed with the decision on the merits. The Court, thereupon, decided to take action under Order XVII, rule 3, and passed a decree in favour of the plaintiff.

The defendants, treating the decree as an ex parte one, made an application under Order IX, rule 13, for an order to set it aside, but the District Judge dismissed it on the ground that the decree had been passed, not under Order XVII, rule 2, but under Order XVII, rule 3, and could not, therefore, be regarded as having been passed ex parte. The defendants have preferred to this Court an appeal from the order dismissing the application, and the question which we have to determine is whether the decree of the 3rd of December 1913 should, in the circumstances of the case, be treated as one passed under Order XVII, rule 2, or under Order XVII, rule 3.

It is an established principle of law that the stringent provisions of Order XVII, rule 3, cannot be invoked unless time has been granted to a party specifically for performing any of the acts mentioned therein and that party has committed a default in performance thereof.

Now, in this case, can it be said that the adjournment on the 12th of November 1913 was for the benefit of the defendants or at their instance, so as to bring the case within the purview of the above rule?

As stated above, it was the duty of each party to establish one issue, the onus of which had been placed on him. Both had, for that purpose, applied for summoning their witnesses, but the witnesses of neither party appeared on the 12th of November 1913 and, therefore, an adjournment became necessary in the interests of both. It will be observed that, on that day, the plaintiff had not given up his witnesses and it cannot, therefore, be said that the adjournment to the 3rd of December 1913 was solely for the benefit of the defendants. The law is clear that unless time has been granted at the instance of one party only, the provisions of Order XVII, rule 3, cannot be brought into operation, vide, inter alia, Ram Nath v. Mamraj (1) and Kale Shah v. Shahalal Shah (2) This ground alone is sufficient for deciding the appeal in favour of the defendants.

But there is another aspect of the case which leads us to the same conclusion. When a party has paid the process fee for summoning witnesses, the Court and its officers are, in our opinion, responsible for effecting service, and an adjournment caused by the non-attendance of witnesses for want of service is an adjournment in the ordinary course and does not amount to time granted to one party within the meaning of rule 3. We have no hesitation in holding that the rule does not apply to a case in which an adjournment to enforce its processes is made by the Court; vide Pearee Mohun Bera v. Shama Churn Mytee (3).

We may remark that the fact that the defendants made default in paying the expenses of the Commission in accordance with the order of the Court, does not make any difference in the decision on the point before us. The adjournment to the 3rd of December 1913 had already been rendered necessary by the non-appearance of the witnesses and the fact that it was, at the same time, utilized for another purpose did not convert it into time granted to the defendants within the purview of order XVII, rule 3.

In view of the above decision, it is unnecessary for us to determine the question whether in a case in which there is a default of appearance under Order XVII, rule 2, and there is at the same time a default within the meaning of Order XVII, rule 3, the Court should proceed under rule 2 or rule 3.

For the aforesaid reasons, we are of opinion that the decree of the 3rd of December 1913 must be construed as an ex parte decree and that an application under Order IX, rule 13, is competent. We accordingly accept the appeal, quash the order refusing to adjudicate upon the application of the defendants to set aside the ex parte decree, and return the case to the Court of first instance, which is directed to decide whether there was sufficient cause for the non-appearance of the defendants on the 3rd of December 1913 and pass necessary orders on their application. The costs of this appeal shall be costs in the cause.

Appeal accepted.

(1) 139 P. R. 1884.
(2) 80 P. R. 1899.
(3) 19 W. R. 34 at p. 35.

SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 5 OF 1913.

January 28, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Pratt, J. C., and Mr. Fawcett, A. J. C.

HIROMAL AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

FARIDKHAN—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code Act (V of 1908), O. II, rr. 2, 4—Res judicata—Suit for mesne profits of land—Subsequent suit for possession of the same land, if maintainable.

Where the plaintiff on being dispossessed of land filed a suit for mesne profits only which was decreed in his favour and subsequently filed another suit for recovery of possession of the land:

Held, that the subsequent suit was barred by the former suit under the provisions of Order II, rule 2, of the Civil Procedure Code. [p. 941, col. 1.]

Ganesh Dutt Thakoor v. Jewach Thakorain, 31 C. 262 (P. C.); 31 I. A. 10; 8 C. W. N. 146; 14 M. L. J 6; 6 Bom. L. R. 1, referred to.

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge, Sukkur-Larkana.

Mr. Isardas Oodharam, for the Appellants.

JUDGMENT.

PRATT, J. C.—This is a suit for the recovery of the possession of land. The facts found by the District Judge are that the plaintiffs-appellants were dispossessed by the defendant-respondent at some time prior to 1903 (probably in May 1899 when the defendant went under the protection of the Manager). The plaintiffs filed suits for mesne profits in 1903 and in 1905. The first was for mesne profits of part of the land and the second for mesne profits of the whole of the land now in suit. Both suits were decided in plaintiffs' favour and it was held that they had proved their title to the land as against the defendant.

The lower Courts have held that the plaintiffs not having sought recovery of possession of the land in the former litigation, the present suit is barred under Order II, rule 2.

For the appellant it is urged that Order II, rule 4, makes it clear that a claim for mesne profits is a separate cause of action to a claim for recovery of possession of land.

This rule follows closely the wording of the English rule—Order XVIII, rule 2, Rules of the Supreme Court. There the use of the word claim as synonymous with cause of action is probably due to the fact that in the phraseology of the English Law a plaint is called a statement of claim. The word claim, therefore, denotes not only the demand for relief, but the basis on which that demand is made. Rule 4, if literally interpreted, might lead to the inference that a claim for mesne profits involved a separate cause of action to a claim for the land, but section 44 (a) of the Civil Procedure Code of 1882 to which the rule corresponds, was interpreted by the Privy Council in the case of Gunesh Dutt Thakoor v. Jewach Thakorain (1). In that case the cause of action was the refusal of the defendants to recognize the right of the plaintiff, a widow, to succeed to her deceased husband's share in the family property under a partition which had not been completed at her husband's death. It was contended that section 44 (a) barred the claim to recover the moveable with the immoveable property, the subject of the partition in the same suit. Their Lordships said: "The rule, i. e., section 44 (a), is not very happily expressed, but there can be nothing irregular in seeking to recover in one suit immoveable and moveable property if the cause of action is the same in both." I understand their Lordships' adverse criticism of section 44 (a) to mean that the provision as to mesne profits should not have been stated as an exception, but taken as a proviso or as an explanation. Being stated as an exception, it implied that no other claim for moveable property could be joined in a suit for recovery of land. But the intention that should have been expressed was that claims for mesne profits and rent being on the same cause of action were not within the rule. It is this judgment of the Privy Council which has undoubtedly led to the new clause (e) of the rule. This clause relates to claims on the same cause of action and is clearly no exception. So that the defect to which the Privy Council referred has been repeated instead of being corrected. In my opinion, clause (a) and clause (e) of the rule are of the same character. They are not exceptions but provisos added with a view to explain that the rule does not forbid the joinder of claims to moveable property when they arise out of the same cause of action.

Section 10 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1859 enacted that a claim for the recovery of land and a claim for mesne profits of such land "shall be deemed to be distinct causes of action" within the meaning of the sections referring to joinder of causes of action. The use of words "shall be deemed to be" shows that the Legislature was conscious that the rule was an artificial one. This section has been omitted in the subsequent codes and it would be very surprising if the present rule was intended to preserve this artificial distinction, for the object of the amendments made in Order II, rule 2, was to check multiplicity of litigation and to remove restrictions on the comprehensiveness of the suit.

It is difficult to see any distinction between dispossession of land and its profits and the dispossession of immoveable and moveable property, which was the subject of the judgment of the Privy Council in the case already referred to.

I need not refer to the various definitions of the phrase 'cause of action' that have been given in England. Some are more appropriate when the phrase is used with reference to local jurisdiction, e. g., Read v. Brown (2), when it is used with reference to the Law of Limitation, Reeves v. Butcher (3). For the present purpose the best definition is that of the Privy

(1) 31 C. 262 (P. C.); 31 I. A. 10; 8 C. W. N. 146; 14 M. L. J. 8; 6 Bom. L. R. 1.

(2) (1888) 22 Q. B. D. 128; 58 L. J. Q. B. 120; 60 L. T. 250; 37 W. R. 131.

(3) (1891) 2 Q. B. 509; 60 L. J. Q. B. 619; 65 L. T. 329; 39 W. R. 626.

Council in Chand Kour v. Partab Singh (4): "It refers entirely to the grounds set forth in the plaint as the cause of action or, in other words, to the media upon which the plaintiff asks the Court to arrive at a conclusion in his favour." Here the media or the grounds of the suit of 1905 and of the present suit are the same, e. g., title and dispossesion.

If the cause of action were not the same, plaintiff, even if he had failed to establish his right to mesne profits, would have been entitled to file a fresh suit to recover the land. But this he could not have done, for he would have been barred by the plea of res judicata as to his title. Order II, rule 2, is part of the law of res judicata or estoppel by record. As said in Nelson v. Couch (5): "Where the cause of action is the same, and the plaintiff has had an opportunity in the former suit of recovering that which he seeks to recover in the second, the former recovery is a bar to the latter."

I would, therefore, confirm the decree of the lower Court and dismiss this appeal with costs.

FAWCETT, A. J. C.—I concur. In my opinion rule 4 of Order II must be read with the provisions of rules 1 and 2, and construed consistently with them so far as possible. If this is done, I think it amounts to nothing more than saying "No claim shall, unless with the leave of the Court, be joined with a claim, for the recovery of immoveable property, except" the claims specified in clauses (a), (b) and (c). It is, of course, possible that a person might have a cause of action to sue for mesne profits or arrears of rent, when he had no cause of action to sue for recovery of possession, e. g., a landlord suing to recover rent from a tenant whose lease had not expired; and in such a case he would not, of course, be debarred from bringing a subsequest suit for possession (unless his suit failed on the question of title), but when (as here) the cause of action for recovery of possession was identical with the cause of action for recovery of mesne profits — then, for the reasons given in the learned Judicial Commissioner's judgment, I think that clause (3) of rule 2 necessarily comes into operation:

The suggestion that there was a new cause of action because defendant Faridkhan had previously recognized plaintiffs' title, is opposed to the statement of facts contained in the lower Court's judgments, and no evidence to support it was brought to our notice.

Appeal dismissed.

(4) 16 C. 98; 16 I. A. 156; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 243; 12 Ind. Jur. 33.

(5) (1863) 15 C. B. (N. S.) 99 at p. 103; 33 L. J. C. P. 46; 10 Jur. (N. S.) 366; 8 L. T. 577; 11 W. R. 964; 143 E. R. 72 at p. 724; 137 R. R. 413.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

FULL BENCH.

CIVIL REFERENCE NO. 3 OF 1915.

July 5, 1915.

Present:—Sir Charles Fox, KT., Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Ormond and Mr. Justice Twomey.

MG. MRA TUN—APPELLANT

versus

U KAING—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 58—Mortgage-decree—Attachment of property—Claims, investigation of—Procedure.

Proceedings by way of attachment are not applicable to mortgage-decrees, but if the decree-holder applies for and obtains an order for attachment and property is attached, claims and objection to the attachment can be brought under Order XXI, rule 58, of the Civil Procedure Code, and such claims and objections must be dealt with under that rule and the following rules prescribing the procedure for investigation of claims and objections. [p. 942, col. 2.]

S. R. M. A. N. Muthappa Chetty v. S. A. R. M. Pallathappa Chetty, 2 L. B. R. 138; Gobalu v. Po Hla, 4 L. B. R. 82, referred to and explained.

FACTS of the case appear from the following Order of Reference made by

Fox, C. J. - In the Regular Suit No. 22 of 1914 of the Township Court of Kyauktan, U Kaing obtained a decree against Pan Aung and Mg. Sein Bu on a bond by which they mortgaged or hypothecated to him 10 buffaloes. The decree directed that if the defendants failed to pay the amount found to be due the buffaloes should be sold. It amounted to a mortgage-decree. Four days after the date of the decree U Kaing applied for attachment of the buffaloes, and nine were attached. The report of the Deputy Bailiff is silent as to whose possession they were in when he attached them, and in what manner he did it. He reported merely that he attached the buffaloes and left them in the possession of Mra Tun, Thugyi of Thawingaing village, for him to look after them. Mra Tun applied for removal of the attachment, alleging that the cattle had been made over to him before the attachment for a debt which Pan Aung owed him on a bond mortgaging the cattle to him.

The Township Judge held on the authority of S. R. M. A. N. Muthappa Chetty v. S. A. R. M. Pallathappa Chetty (1) that he was precluded from going into Mra Tun's application. The ruling of Birks, J., justified this part of the Township Judge's order. It appears to me that the matter requires reconsideration. U Kaing's decree being tantamount to a mortgage-decree, his application for attachment of the cattle was unnecessary and inapplicable according to the ruling. Assuming that at the time of this attachment the cattle were in the possession of Mra Tun, the latter is by the ruling deprived of the right which is given by the Code to a person in whose possession property is, when attached, to move the Court to remove the attachment. If the ruling is correct, a holder of a mortgage-decree may wrongly obtain an attachment which may be wrongly executed against property not in possession of the judgment-debtor at the time, yet the person in whose possession the property was when attached has no remedy except the regular suit. The position appears to me to be anomalous. The mortgagee decree-holder obtains an advantage which he was not entitled to by adopting a wrong procedure, yet the person who may be injured by this wrong procedure is deprived of the remedy provided in case the procedure of attachment is properly followed.

Possibly this Court might set aside the order for attachment and all proceedings subsequent thereto as materially irregular, but before a claimant could get this done the attached property may have been sold to a third party, and a claimant might have much difficulty in recovering it.

I agree with the judgment referred to in so far as it holds that procedure by attachment is not appropriate in a mortgage-decree. Courts should be careful not to issue attachments under such decrees except under ultimate final personal decrees. When, however, a mortgagee decree-holder wrongly obtains attachment of property under such a decree, it appears to me that it should be open to any person objecting to the attachment to adopt the procedure of rule 58 of Order XXI and following rules to obtain removal of the attachment.

As the Courts are at present precluded by the ruling of Birks, J., from hearing a case in such a case, I refer to a Bench the following questions:—

"When a holder of a mortgage-decree applies for and obtains an order for attachment and property is attached thereunder, is the Court, which issued the order, precluded from investigating a claim or objection to the attachment under rule 58 and following rules of Order XXI of the Civil Procedure Code".

OPINION OF THE FULL BENCH.

FOX, C. J.—We agree with Birks, J.'s judgment in S. R. M. A. N. Muthappa Chetty v. S. A. R. M. Pallathappa Chetty (1), and Hartnoll, J.'s judgment in Gobalu v. Po Hla (2), in so far as they hold that proceedings by way of attachment are not applicable to mortgage-decrees, but the decisions quoted in those judgments do not appear to us to be authorities supporting the rule that if a mortgagee attaches property under a mortgage-decree a claim under section 278 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1882 could not be brought or admitted.

It appears to us that in all cases of property being attached, claims and objections to the attachment can be brought under the corresponding provision of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, namely, Order XXI, rule 58, and that such claims or objections must be dealt with under that rule and the following rules prescribing the procedure for investigation of claims and objections.

ORMOND, J.—I concur.

TWOMEY, J.—I concur.

Reference answered.

(1) 2 L. B. R. 138.

(2) 4 L. B. R. 82.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.
FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 21 OF 1914.
April 30, 1915.
Present:—Mr. Justice Twomey and
Mr. Justice Ormond.
RAMDAYAL—APPELLANT
versus
KUMAR GANGADHAR BOGLA AND ANOTHER—RESPONDENTS.

Stamp Act (II of 1899), Sch. I, Art. 1—Account book entries, if required to be stamped—Admissible in evidence.

The account book entries are not liable to stamp duty and are admissible in evidence for what they are worth.

Galstaun v. Hutchison, 15 Ind. Cas. 979; 39 C. 789; 16 C. W. N. 945; Brojender Coomar v. Bromomoye Chowdhrani, 4 C. 885; 3 C. L. R. 520; 2 Shome L. R. 177, referred to and followed.

JUDGMENT.

TWOMEY, J.—The learned Judge on the original side has held that if the clerk or cashier, Jagganath, made entries in Ramcharan's account books in respect of sums advanced to Jagganath and if Jagganath had authority to make entries on behalf of his employer, Shoshi, agent of Mohori Bi, the entries should be construed each as an acknowledgment of a debt and would, therefore, be liable to a stamp duty of one anna for each entry under Article 1, Schedule I, Stamp Act, and being in fact unstamped the entries are admissible in evidence.

We are unable to concur in this view. From the reasoning in Galstaun v. Hutchison (1) and the earlier case of Brojender Coomar v. Bromomoye Chowdhrani (2), cited therein, we have arrived at the conclusion that a book entry such as described may be an acknowledgment that the amount stated therein has been advanced, but it is not an acknowledgment of a debt. Whether the sum noted as advanced is due, depends on the state of the account between the parties. We are of opinion, therefore, that the account book entries are not liable to stamp duty and are admissible in evidence for what they are worth. We are unable to say how far the learned Judge's decision has been affected by the exclusion of Ramcharan's account book entries and in order that this evidence may be admitted and taken into consideration, we deem it necessary in the interests of justice to remand the case, although it may be argued that a remand in such circumstances is not strictly covered by the provisions of Order XLI, rule 25.

(1) 15 Ind. Cas. 279; 39 C. 789; 16 C. W. N. 945.
(2) 4 C. 885; 3 C. L. R. 520; 2 Shome L. R. 177.

The plaintiff will be at liberty to prove the entries and it will be open to the defendant to rebut this evidence by showing, for example, that there are no corresponding entries in the account books of the deceased Mohori Bi.

The learned Judge will then record fresh findings on the issues already found and will return the additional evidence with the findings and the reasons therefor in order that this appeal may be finally disposed of.

ORMOND, J.—I concur.

Case remanded.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.
FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 281 OF 1912.
March 9, 1915.
Present:—Mr. Justice Heaton and
Mr. Justice Shah.
DALPATSINGJI NAHARSINGJI—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
RAISINGJI NAHARSINGJI AND ANOTHER DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENT.

Hindu Law—Adoption—Adoption by widow in presence of natural son—Invalid adoption—Ceremonies, effect of—Maintenance—Performance of declaration during negotiations, value of.

In the presence of a natural son of a deceased Hindu, his widow cannot be presumed to have any authority from him to adopt, and if she does adopt a boy, the adoption will be invalid. [p. 944, col. 2.]

A boy whose adoption is found to be invalid, has no right to be maintained out of the estate of the adoptive family. The mere fact that ceremonies were properly performed and that the widow thought that she had authority to adopt would not affect the question. [p. 944, col. 2.]

A declaration or statement marking a stage in the negotiations as to the proposed amicable settlement between the parties, while admittedly a document giving effect to the declaration or statement was to be executed later on, is an undertaking, which, unless completed, may be broken off at any time by either side. [p. 945, col. 2.]

First appeal from the decision of the Joint Judge, Ahmedabad, in Suit No. 6 of 1911.

Mr. H. C. Coyaji, (with him Messrs. G. N. Thakor and H. V. Divatia), (for Mr. T. R. Desai), for the Appellant.

Messrs. G. K. Parekh, D. A. Khare and U. K. Trivedi, for Respondent No. 1.

Mr. S. S. Patkar (Government Pleader), for Respondent No. 2.

JUDGMENT.

SHAH, J.—The facts which have given rise to this appeal are briefly these. Narsingji, Thakor of Mehelol, died in the year 1883, leaving two widows, Dariaba and Bajirajba. Bajirajba gave birth to a son named Raisingji, whose legitimacy was disputed by Dariaba. Bajirajba filed Suit No. 967 of 1886 to establish that Raisingji was the natural son of Narsingji. She succeeded in the suit, but in appeal the High Court reversed the decree of the trial Court and held that Raisingji was not the son of Narsingji. There was an appeal, however, preferred by Bajirajba to Her Majesty in Council, with the result that the decision of the High Court was reversed and that of the trial Court restored in 1898. The High Court decided the appeal on the 25th July 1892. A few days after that Dariaba adopted Dalpatsingji, the present plaintiff, on the 8th August 1892, before the application for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council was made on the 17th November 1892. The estate was managed by the Collector after 1895 as the guardian of Dalpatsingji, and after 1898 on behalf of Raisingji. Even after Raisingji attained majority, the management of the estate remained with the Collector of the Panch Mahals under section 26 of the Gujarat Talukdars' Act (Bom. Act VI of 1888). The estate among other things consists of Talukdari estate and certain wanta lands. The Collector continued to give varying sums by way of maintenance to Dalpatsingji even after the judgment of the Privy Council. In September 1909, Dalpatsingji made an application to the Collector requesting him to bring about an amicable settlement between him and Raisingji. In this application he put forward his claim to a part of the estate as the adopted son of Narsingji. In 1910 it is said that Raisingji agreed to give to Dalpatsingji certain land known as Kankanpur wanta by way of jivai (maintenance). But Raisingji failed to carry out this agreement, and Dalpatsingji filed the present suit to enforce his rights as Narsingji's adopted son. He claimed one-fifth share in the estate and, in the alternative, the Kankanpur wanta, both according to law as well as under the agreement of 1st June 1910. The defendant, Raisingji, who is the really contesting party, resisted the claim on various grounds. The learned Joint Judge, who heard the suit, decided against the plaintiff on the material issues, and dismissed his claim.

The plaintiff has now appealed to this Court. Mr. Coyaji on his behalf has argued two points only in support of the appeal. Firstly, it is contended that even if the plaintiff's adoption be invalid he has a right of maintenance on his adoptive family according to Hindu Law, and secondly, that under the agreement the plaintiff is entitled to the Kankanpur wanta. It is conceded by Mr. Coyaji—and I think very properly conceded—that after the finding of the Privy Council as to the status of Raisingji, the plaintiff's adoption by Dariaba cannot be maintained as valid. Narsingji having a natural son, according to the finding of the Privy Council, at the date of adoption, Dariaba could not be presumed to have any authority from her husband to adopt. The fact that the adoption was made by her at a time when the High Court had decided in her favour and against Raisingji's status, and before an application for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council was made in November 1898, cannot affect the question. It is not necessary to deal with this point any further, as it is not contended before us that the adoption of the plaintiff by Dariaba is valid according to Hindu Law.

As regards the contention that a boy whose adoption is found to be invalid has a right to be maintained out of the estate of the adoptive family, there is neither text nor precedent in support of it. Dariaba had no authority to adopt. The mere fact that ceremonies were properly performed and that Dariaba thought that she had authority to adopt would not affect the question. As pointed out by Sir Michael Westropp, C. J., in Lakshmappa v. Ramava (1), "An invalid adoption works nothing. It leaves the alleged adoption precisely in the same position which he occupied before the ceremony, no matter how formally it may have been celebrated." The Madras High Court has taken the same view in Bawani Sankara v. Ambabay Ammal (2), which is referred to with approval by Westropp, C. J., in Lakshmappa v. Ramava (1). Mr. Coyaji relied upon certain observations in Ayyavu v. Niladatchi (3). But they were not necessary for the decision of the case. It is difficult on principle to allow the contention that even though the adoption may be invalid, the adoptee has a legal right to maintenance in the adoptive family. I say this strictly with reference to the facts of this case. There is no question of acquiescence here on the part of Raisingji, apart from the agreement of June 1910. The plaintiff is not proved to have lost his right in the family of his birth. It may be that in consequence of the Mehelol Estate being far more valuable than the estate of his natural father he may have preferred to take his chance, whatever it may be, in the adoptive family. Mere omission on his part to assert his right to a share in the estate of his natural father cannot enhance his rights in the family of adoption. It is not necessary to consider whether the plaintiff would have any right of maintenance in his adoptive family, if it were proved that he had in fact lost his status in the family of his birth, though even then it would be difficult to accept the plaintiff's contention. I hold that having regard to the facts of the case, the plaintiff's adoption is invalid and that he has no legal rights in his adoptive family.

(1) 12 B. H. C. R. 564 at p. 397.

Coming to the argument based on the agreement, it is necessary to state a few facts relevant to the point. I have already mentioned the plaintiff's application to the Collector for an amicable settlement. The Collector consulted the Government Pleader of the District, who happened to know the case of Dalpatsingji. The Government Pleader advised that "in justice, equity and good conscience as well as according to law the petitioner (i. e., Dalpatsingji) had a good cause." It is not unlikely that the Collector and the Assistant Collector were influenced by this opinion, Raisingji was persuaded to settle the matter. Accordingly he undertook on the 1st June 1910 in the presence of the Assistant Collector to give his Kankanpur wanta by way of maintenance to Dalpatsingji and his direct lineal heirs. It is not denied by the plaintiff, in fact it is his case, that a document conveying the wanta to him was to be executed and registered later on by Raisingji and that he (Raisingji) never appeared to execute the document. It is the declaration or the statement made by Raisingji before the Assistant Collector that is relied upon by the plaintiff as an agreement to give him the Kankanpur wanta. There are various difficulties in accepting the said declaration as a final and binding agreement. In the first place, it is clear that the declaration marks a stage in the negotiations as to the proposed amicable settlement. A document giving effect to the declaration or statement was to be executed later on, though it is not mentioned in the declaration. Raisingji refused to execute it, and after giving an undertaking never expressed his willingness to carry it out. In form the document is not an agreement. It is neither stamped nor registered. If in effect it creates an interest in immoveable property, it must be registered. The plaintiff contends, however, that it is merely an agreement to convey, and does not by itself create any interest in his favour in the property and that it should be specifically enforced as embodying a fair settlement of the dispute between the parties. The whole conduct of the defendant, Raisingji, shows that he was ready at the time of the declaration to give the Kankanpur wanta, and that he changed his mind when it came to the stage of giving effect to the settlement. Apparently the plaintiff had given no correlative undertaking at the time, and I am unable to see anything in the case which restricted his liberty in the eye of law to assert his claim to a fifth share in the estate, as he has done in the present suit. Of course it may be that, having regard to his own interests, he may not in fact have cared to do so. But that is not the test. Having regard to these considerations it seems to me that it was quite open to the plaintiff, Raisingji, to change his mind. There was no completed contract. An undertaking of this kind marks only a stage in the negotiations, which, unless completed, may be broken off at any time by either side.

(2) 1 M. H. C. R. 363.
(3) 1 M. H. C. R. 45.

Secondly, it is clearly an undertaking which no Court would enforce against Raisingji. He was admittedly a man of weak intellect. His estate was managed by the Collector under section 26 of the Gujarat Talukdars' Act, probably because he was incapable of managing his own estate as stated by the witness (Exhibit 52). He would be under a disability to enter into any agreement with reference to any part of his property without the sanction of the Managing Officer under section 29A of the Act. I do not desire to express any opinion on the question whether this agreement, even if otherwise good, is not invalid for want of the necessary sanction under section 29A, as the point is not argued and as it is not quite necessary to come to any definite conclusion on the point. But these facts clearly render it necessary to examine closely the promise made by such a man. The promise made by him is practically without any consideration to support it. I am not sure that the defendant fully realised the effect of the expression referring to the direct lineal heirs of Dalpatsingji in the statement, which would apparently include daughters. It is a matter of common knowledge that persons in the position of the Thakor of Mehelol would be ordinarily unwilling to give jivai lands on terms, which would make it possible for the property to go out of the hands of the male members of the family. The wanta land was selected because, as stated by the Assistant Collector in his evidence, it was not possible to alienate the Talukdars' estate under section 29A of the Gujarat Talukdars' Act. It was hardly realised that the sanction under section 29A would be necessary not only for the alienation of the Talukdar's estate but also for the alienation of wanta lands (i.e., for non-Talukdari estate). Even if the reason for selecting the wanta land was to avoid the necessity of a sanction of the Governor-in-Council under section 31 of the Act, which is held by this Court to relate to the Talukdar's estate of a Talukdar and not to any property of the Talukdar held on non-Talukdari tenure, the result was that wanta land was to be given up by the defendant. It is obvious—and in fact it was not denied by Mr. Coyaji—that, generally speaking, the tenure of the wanta land would be more favourable to the holder than the Talukdari tenure. These are several considerations which render it necessary in the interests of justice to hold that Raisingji is not bound by a promise of this character. I would certainly decline to specifically enforce an agreement of this kind, even if the suit were treated as being substantially one for the specific performance of the agreement.

Lastly, it may be stated that Mr. Coyaji has discussed the oral evidence relating to the so-called agreement fairly and fully before us, and we have not found it necessary in this case to hear the Counsel for the defendant, Raisingji. It is clear that the Revenue Authorities acted fairly and honestly. They were persuaded by the Government Pleader to believe that Dalpatsingji had a good claim, and the Assistant Collector states that in bringing about this result he did use persuasion but no pressure. I do not think that the learned Judge below means to hold anything more than this, viz., that a man of Raisingji's intellect, if persuaded by the Assistant Collector and Collector, is likely to yield even against his own real wishes, and that a consent given as the result of such persuasion should not be acted upon, if in fact it happens to be against the interests of the consenting party and if he has retracted it almost immediately after giving it. This appears to be a fair inference from the evidence on the point; and as I have already stated, the defendant cannot be bound by a bare promise of that character.

The result, therefore, is that the decree of the lower Court is affirmed with costs. Each respondent is to have a separate set of costs.

HEATON, J.—I wish to add only a few words in the matter of the conduct of the Revenue Officers which has been brought to our notice. I wish to say that, in my opinion, these Officers acted with perfect propriety. They obtained the legal opinion of their local advisers. They then endeavoured on the strength of that opinion to persuade this young Talukdar to make some provision for a very unfortunate man and in so doing, it seems to me, that they were acting very properly. But the document which this young Thakore signed was, it seems to me, merely a written record of a declaration. It was not in its true sense an agreement at all. In so far as it had any formal character, it was merely a declaration made before the Collector. Obviously it was not intended to be a final declaration, because a more formal deed was to follow.

I agree in the order proposed by my learned colleague.

Decree affirmed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL SIDE APPEAL No. 18 OF 1914.

March 8, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Napier.

A. AHMED ALLY AND COMPANY—RESPONDENTS—APPELLANTS

versus

OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE OF MADRAS—RESPONDENT.

In the matter of MESSRS. M. MAHOMED ALLY JEEVAJEE & Co.—INSOLVENTS.

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909), ss. 52, 56—Sale by insolvent of stock in trade a few days before his insolvency—Possession of goods with insolvent—Sale, validity of—Fraudulent and void transaction.

Where the goods sold by an insolvent prior to his insolvency are allowed to remain in the shops of the insolvent, until the date of his insolvency, they are "in the possession, order and disposition" of the insolvent within the meaning of section 52 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act. [p. 947, col. 2.]

Where the sale by an insolvent is to a thick friend of his, only a few days before his insolvency and consideration for the sale consists of moneys borrowed both by the insolvent and the vendee from a third person, the transaction must be looked upon with great suspicion, and where the goods sold are not removed from the insolvent's premises till the date of the insolvency, the sale must be deemed to be fraudulent and void under section 56 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act. The fact that there were other sales by the insolvent prior to the insolvency is immaterial. [p. 948, cols. 1 & 2.]

Quære.—Where the sale by an insolvent is for a sum already due to the vendee, whether the vendee could rank as a secured creditor? [p. 948, col. 1.]

Appeal from the judgment and order of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Bakewell, dated the 22nd January 1914, in the insolvency jurisdiction of this Court, in Petition No. 125 of 1913.

Messrs. M. D. Devadoss and S. Subbiah Chetty, for the Appellants.

Messrs. Short, Bewes and Co., for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

NAPIER, J.—This is an appeal from the judgment of Mr. Justice Bakewell sitting in insolvency on a motion by the Official Assignee, calling on the respondents before him to show cause why an order should not be made declaring that the sale to them of the entire stock of the insolvent's girders, alleged to have been made on the 20th May 1913 for a sum of Rs. 23,608-11-4, should not be set aside on the ground that it was a fraudulent preference or that it was not made in good faith and for valuable consideration.

The learned Judge has held that the transaction was not a genuine sale but was a nominal one and was not intended to be an out and out sale; and that even if it was a sale the property was in the possession, order and disposition of the insolvent within the meaning of section 52 of Act III of 1909. On the latter point I am quite clear. There is no evidence worth the name that any attempt was made by the respondents to take possession of this property until after the act of insolvency and I entirely disbelieve the story of their having had their name painted up at the stores where the insolvent kept these girders prior to that date.

As to the transaction itself my own opinion is that it was not intended by both partiss to be a complete transaction taking effect from that time. Whether at a subsequent date the transaction might have been made complete would have depended on the course which the insolvent's affairs took and the extent to which he was able to meet his liabilities. I have no doubt that the first payment of Rs. 8,000 by cheque and Rs. 1,500 in cash on the 19th May was made prior to this transaction with respect to the girders; and that it was only later on the 19th or possibly on the 20th that the girder transaction was put through. I cannot accept the story that the bills for Rs. 7,500 were given as part payment for the girders. That story is negatived most clearly by the evidence in the case. The hundis, which were promissory notes, were signed by the insolvent and drawn in favour of one Champa Lal, while the respondents also signed them as drawers; defence third witness says, "Champa Lal said he would lend money on joint signatures, so we went to insolvent's office and Allibhoy brought the hundis signed by Ahmed Ally." I have no doubt that this was an ordinary transaction under which the insolvent borrowed the money from Champa Lal, who at that time possibly having some doubt of the financial standing of the insolvent insisted on the second name. It is impossible to suppose that, if this was an ordinary transaction of purchase of girders and payment for them by the respondents, the hundis would have been drawn in this form.

A great deal was made of the fact that there appeared to be one or two small transactions in girders by the respondents after the 20th of May. These may be transactions of the nature which it is shown that the respondents entered into prior to the insolvency; that is to say, when they got an order for a small number of girders, they were in the habit of selling the girders and procuring them from the insolvent.

Mr. Devadoss has invited our attention to the whole of the evidence and has made as much as he could of the small points in his favour. But I am perfectly satisfied in my own mind that this was, as Mr. Justice Bakewell puts it, not intended to be an out and out sale and in that view I would dismiss this appeal with costs on the original side scale.

Mr. Devadoss raised the question whether the respondents would not be entitled to rank as secured creditors, on the view that the girders were mortgaged with them at the time that the insolvent procured their name to the promissory note. I express no opinion on this point as I do not think it is before us.

SADASIVA AIYAR, J.—It seems to me that the appellants and the insolvents were not only of the same "caste" as stated by the senior partner of the appellants' firm (namely, Abdul Husain, the defence sixth witness) and belonged to the same place (Sidpur), but they were also very thick friends. Defence 6th witness admits that he had known Jeevajee all his life. I do not believe that anything took place about the girders in dispute on the 19th May 1913, when Rs. 9,500 was lent by the appellants to the insolvents who must have been very hard up for money even on that date. The appellants, because they were such friends of the insolvents, drew all the money in deposit in their Bank and gave that sum of Rs. 8,000 and the balance of Rs. 1,500 in cash to the insolvents on the 19th of May. On the 20th May the insolvents were still very hard up for money. They then requested the appellants to help them by an accommodation signature to a promissory note for Rs. 7;500 and the appellants consented. The evidence of the 7th witness on the defendants' side (Fazi Ally) shows that the appellants must have known on the 20th May that the firm of Jeevajee has become very shaky. It was then that bill of sale Exhibit E was executed in favour of the appellants. The goods, however, were left in the office of the insolvents till (as I gather from the evidence) the morning of the 5th June 1913, the insolvents having committed their act of insolvency on the evening of the 4th June. On these facts, the bill of sale is clearly, in my opinion, fraudulent and void as against the Official Assignee under section 56, clause (1), of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, III of 1909, whether the sale was an out and out sale, or whether it was only intended as security for the prior debt of Rs. 24,000 and as security against the loss which the appellants might be put to in future by reason of their having accommodated the insolvents with their signature to the promisssory note in favour of Champa Lal. The learned Judge is, therefore, right in declaring the sale void and this appeal should be dismissed.

As regards the question whether the appellants could not rank as secured creditors in respect of the Rs. 24,000 which was due to them before the 20th May 1913 or in respect of the Rs. 7,500 or any lesser sum they lost after the date of the insolvency through the insolvents' inability to meet the promissory-note to Champa Lal on the due dates, that claim is not before us and it is unnecessary, as my learned brother said, to express any opinion on that question.

The appeal is dismissed with costs on the original side scale.

Appeal dismissed.

KHATIJA v. ADAM HUSENALLY VASI.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 23 OF 1914.

March 31, 1915.

Present:—Sir Basil Scott, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Batchelor.

KHATIJA—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

Sheikh ADAM HUSENALLY VASI—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Court Fees Act (VII of 1870), ss. 7 (iv) (f), 11—Suit for accounts and administration—Valuation in the discretion of plaintiff.

The plaintiff gave in the plaint all the facts and circumstances regarding her want of knowledge of the various interests, their nature, and state of accounts of the estate of her deceased ancestor, which obliged her to bring her suit in the form she did, and, therefore, sued for accounts and administration of the said estate and claimed her share therein. The suit was valued at Rs. 130 for purposes of Court-fees and at Rs. 30,00,000 for purposes of jurisdiction:

Held, that the suit was for an account and was properly valued under section 7 clause (iv) (f) of the Court Fees Act. [p. 950, col. 2.]

First Appeal from the decision of the District Judge of Surat, in Appeal No. 4 of 1913, rejecting the memorandum of appeal against the order passed by the first Class Subordinate Judge, Surat, in Suit No. 159 of 1912.

Mr. Manubhai Nanabhai, for the Appellant.

Mr. G. S. Rao, for the Respondent No 1.

Mr. N. K. Mehta, for the Respondent No. 4.

Mr. B. D. Mehta, for the Respondents Nos. 2, 22, 23 and 24.

JUDGMENT.—In this suit the plaintiff, a Muhammadan female, prays that accounts may be taken of the properties and business of the deceased Tyebally Sheikh Adam and his firm, and their claims and liabilities may be ascertained, and an order may be passed for its administration by the Court, and the claims of the claimants to the said estate and effects according to Muhammadan law applicable to the Ismaili Daoodi Shiah Sect and according to the custom of the said Daoodi Bohora community may be ascertained, proper direction may be given for that purpose and her share according to the claim that may be ascertained may be separated from the said properties and handed over to her; and that an order may be passed for the appointment of a Receiver for the management of the properties and business of the deceased Tyebally Sheikh Adam and his firm pending this suit.

The suit was valued at Rs. 130 for purposes of Court-fees. In the 39th paragraph of the plaint she says that "although it is not possible to fix the exact value of the property of the firm of Tyebally Sheikh Adam or of his any other property, according to my belief it must come to Rs. 3,000,000. For the purpose of the jurisdiction of the Court the claim has, therefore, been valued at Rs. 30,00,000".

It is argued on behalf of the defendants that the suit has not been properly valued for the purpose of Court-fees, and that the plaint should, therefore, be rejected. That contention has found favour with the lower Courts in Surat. The learned District Judge from whom this appeal is preferred says that "the appellant has treated her suit as an administration suit. It is not an administration suit. This is clear from the plaint. She claims her share in the property. The value of her share is Rs. 67,968-12-0, and stamp duty should be paid on this amount. Deficiency to be made good within ten days". As the stamp duty was not paid the appeal to the District Court was rejected.

It is not disputed that the plaintiff's ancestor under whom she claims carried on business, and that the firm started by him known as Tyebally Sheikh Adam is still continuing. It is, however, disputed by the defendants that any of the immoveable properties in which it is suggested that plaintiff claims a share belonged to the firm of Tyebally Sheikh Adam or to Tyebally himself, and it is suggested to us in argument by the respondents' Pleader that their contention will be that all immoveable properties to which the plaintiff is supposed to lay claim belonged to a firm named Abdul Kader Hassanally, and that she has no interest in the same. The statement is of value in this appeal, because there is always the possibility that in suits of this nature the plaintiff is professing ignorance as to specific properties where she has certain knowledge and could specify definite properties in which she is entitled to a share of a definite value. But in view of the position taken up by the defendants there is ground for supposing that the statement in paragraph 34 of the plaint represents the true position as far as the plaintiff is concerned. In that paragraph she says: "Since the accounts of the said estate and effects and of the business have not been made-up, and many of the heirs of Tyebally Sheikh Adam have died leaving heirs behind them, and several out of them have been removed from the property of the firm, I have no means of knowing whether they have come to any understanding with the manager of the said firm. For that reason also, I have no means of knowing who the claimants are who can at present legally get their shares, and which of the heirs now desire to put forward their claims, and what property and claims and liabilities there are, and whose and of what nature the claims and interests in the firm's property there are at present, and what amount of property may be found on taking the accounts of the business. Similarly, as it is necessary to examine the accounts from the books of the firm, in order to know all this definitely, the value of this claim cannot be ascertained. For this and other reasons I am obliged to file this suit for taking accounts and for getting the estate administered."

There being then no apparent ground for distrusting the statement in that paragraph, the dictum of the learned District Judge that this is not an administration suit cannot be supported. According to the provisions of the Court Fees Act, if the plaintiff succeeds in showing upon the accounts that she is entitled to a share in the property and assets of Tyebally Sheikh Adam, she will not be able to obtain execution of any decree that may be passed in her favour by reason of the provisions of section 11 of the Court Fees Act, until the difference between Rs. 130 and the fee which would have been payable had the suit comprised the whole of the amount decreed has been paid to the proper officer. That being so, there does not appear to be any reason why this should not be treated as a suit for account and for the share which may be found due to the plaintiff upon taking of such account, and if it is a suit for an account falling under section 7, clause (iv) (f) of the Court Fees Act, the plaintiff is at liberty to value it at Rs. 130 or any other sum she pleases.

For these reasons we are unable to accept the decision of the learned District Judge. We set aside the rejection of the plaint and direct that it be taken on the file, and the plaintiff be allowed to proceed with the suit. The plaintiff must have from the defendants her costs in the three Courts referable to the question of Court-fee.

Decree reversed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 50 OF 1915.

July 8, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Tudball.

BANARSI DASS AND Co.—DEFENDANTS APPELLANTS—APPLICANTS

versus

LULLA MAL—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT OPPOSITE PARTY.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 92—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 73, 75—Contract, breach of—Plaintiff, liability of, to prove damages—Written contract— Inconsistent contract, if can be proved.

It is not open to a party to a written contract to prove a contract the terms of which are clearly inconsistent with the terms of the written contract [p. 951, col. 2.]

Sections 73 and 75 of the Contract Act make it compulsory on the plaintiff to show that he has suffered and the extent to which he has suffered, before a Court can award him damages for a breach of contract. [p. 952. col. 1.]

P. R. & Co. v. Bhagwandas Chaturbhuj, 10 Bom. L. R. 1113, referred to.

Petition for revision against the order of the Small Cause Court Judge of Agra, dated 7th December 1914.

Mr. S. K. Dar, for the Applicants.

Mr. Narain Prasad, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.—This is an application for revision arising out of a suit brought in the Court of Small Causes at Agra to recover the sum of Rs. 150 as damages for breach of contract. The plaintiff's case put briefly was, that the appellants had agreed to deliver to him certain goods at certain price in a certain month at Agra, that they had failed to fulfill their contract, that they had subsequently tendered the goods after considerable delay, and that these goods were not up to sample, and he, therefore, by reason of a breach of contract had suffered damage to the extent of Rs. 150. Many pleas were taken in defence. One raised the question of jurisdiction, namely, that the suit was not cognisable in the Court at Agra; another was that under the terms of the agreement made between the parties, the dispute had to be settled by arbitration and, therefore, the jurisdiction of the Court had been ousted; the third was that the plaintiff had suffered no damages. There were many other pleas which it is unnecessary to mention. The Court held that it had jurisdiction, that both parties had thrown on one side the agreement to settle their disputes by arbitration and, therefore, that agreement was no longer binding. In regard to damages it held that though the plaintiff had failed to prove what damage he had suffered, still he was entitled, to some damage and awarded "nominal" damages. The defendants have come here in revision and most of the legal points have been again pressed before me.

In so far as the question of arbitration was concerned. it seems to me that the Court below was quite right for it is clear that both parties had thrown over so much of their agreement as related to arbitration. Neither side had attempted to enforce that clause and both sides, as a matter of fact, had gone into Court to enforce their rights. The question of jurisdiction depends entirely upon the contract which was made between the parties. The defendants were agent of an English firm. That English firm manufactured cloth in England, and sold its goods on certain terms which are embodied in a document which has been described in this suit as an "indent" and which has been signed by the plaintiff in the present suit. According to the terms of that document the goods were to be delivered in Bombay, and the payment was to be made by the plaintiff at Delhi. The Court below came to the conclusion that because the conditions in question were all set out in English, and the plaintiff did not know that language, therefore, it must be presumed that they did not understand what they were signing. Further, it has come to the conclusion that the plaintiff received an assurance that the goods would actually be delivered to him at Agra on payment by him of the value into the Bank at Agra, and that this assurance was made at the time that the defendant invited the plaintiff to purchase the goods. It would be somewhat difficult, I must admit, to accept the inference drawn by the Court below that as the conditions of the document were in English, therfore, the plaintiff did not understand it. As a matter of fact such documents are very common indeed in this country, and those persons who habitually deal in cotton goods as a rule fully understand all that is set out therein. The document clearly and distinctly sets forth that the goods shall be shipped to Bombay and the meaning clearly is that the purchaser must make his own arrangements to take delivery from Bombay and convey to his own shop. Lastly, the lower Court has held that the contract was not completed on the 16th of December 1912, that on that date the plaintiff signed the document which constituted an offer to purchase on these terms, that the offer was communicated to the firm in England, accepted by it, and then the acceptance of the offer was sent by the defendants from Delhi by post to the plaintiff at Agra. The contract, therefore, was completed at Delhi and the verbal assurance of a dalal, on the 16th of December 1912, could form no part of the contract. It may be that a firm, like that of the defendants, does, as a matter of fact, assist purchasers in getting their goods cleared at Bombay and conveyed to their place of business, although it is no part of the contract entered into between the parties. On the lower Court's own finding the plaintiff purchased on the conditions entered in the document, and the offer to purchase on these conditions was subsequently accepted. It is not open, in my opinion, to the plaintiff to prove a contract the terms of which are clearly inconsistent with the terms of the written contract. Therefore, in my opinion, no portion of the cause of action arose at Agra and the Court at Agra had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit. The contract was not made at Agra; no portion of it had to be carried out in Agra; delivery was to be at Bombay and payment was to be made at Delhi. It, therefore, seems to me that the decision of the Court below cannot be allowed to stand. But there is another point which clearly affects the plaintiff's case. The lower Court in its judgment was clearly of opinion that the plaintiff had failed to prove what damage he had suffered. It was clearly of opinion that the plaintiff refused to take delivery of the goods because, as a matter of fact, the price had considerably fallen and it was to his advantage to refuse to take delivery. Section 73 of the Contract Act clearly lays down that when a contract has been broken, the party who suffers by such breach is entitled to receive from the party who has broken the contract compensation for any loss or damage caused to him thereby. If section 73 applies and not section 75, as has been urged on behalf of the defendants, even then it was for the plaintiff to show that he had suffered from the breach of contract and the extent of his suffering. The finding of the Court below is that the plaintiff had actually gained instead of suffered, and it has awarded to the plaintiff not the damage which was caused to him by the breach of contract, but what it was pleased to call nominal damages to the extent of Rs. 75. If section 75 applied to the present case (and I would note that the plaintiff had stated that he did rescind the contract) it is clear that the person who rescinds a contract is entitled to compensation for the damage which he has actually sustained through the non-fulfilment of the contract. Whatever the English Law on the subject may be it is quite clear, in my opinion, that sections 73 and 75 make it compulsory on the plaintiff to show that he has suffered and the extent to which he has suffered, before the Court can award him damages for the breach of contract. The point was considered in P. R. & Co. v. Bhagwandas Chaturbhuj (1). Mr. Justice Knight who decided that case remarked as follows:—

"Studied in the light of this illustration, I am convinced that the Indian Act does not sanction or permit an action for breach of contract of sale save where specific damage is proved to have resulted from that breach. Section 73 not only confines the right of relief to the party who suffers, but provides how his loss is to be measured, what it is to include and what to exclude and what circumstances the Court must take into account in estimating the loss. For the party who does not prove that he has suffered it provides no relief whatever." In my opinion on both these points the plaintiff's case ought to have failed and should have been dismissed. I allow the application. I set aside the decree of the Court below and the plaintiff's suit will stand dismissed with costs in both Courts.

Decree set aside.

(1) 10 Bom. L. R. 1113.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEALS NOS. 1001 OF 1913 AND 80 OF 1914.

March 30, 1915.

Present:—Sir Basil Scott, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Batchelor.

KESHAV HARGOVAN—

APPELLANT

versus

BAI GANDI—RESPONDENT.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 23—Marriage—Divorce—Custom—Payment to caste—Repugnant to Hindu Law.

A custom by which the marriage tie can be dissolved by either husband or wife, against the wish of the divorced party, and for no reason but out of mere caprice, the sole condition attached being the payment of a sum of money fixed by the caste, is opposed to public policy within the meaning of section 23 of the Contract Act and is also repugnant to Hindu Law, and, therefore, cannot be judicially recognised. [p. 953, col. 2.]

Second appeals from the decision of the District Judge of Ahmedabad, in Appeals Nos. 335 and 336 of 1913, confirming the decree passed by the Joint Subordinate Judge at Ahmedabad, in Civil Suits Nos. 267 and 603 of 1912.

Mr. G. N. Thakor, for the Appellant.

Mr. G. K. Parekh for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—These appeals are brought in two suits, the one being a suit for the restitution of conjugal rights, and the other a suit for dissolution of marriage. The plaintiff in the suit for restitution is the adult husband of the defendant, a minor who has attained the age of puberty. The duty is imposed by Hindu Law upon the wife to reside with her husband: see Tekait Mon Mohini Jemadai v. Basanta Kumar Singh (1). There is no evidence that he has been guilty of such conduct as would justify his wife in claiming the protection of the Court. The defence is that the defendant is no longer the plaintiff's wife and it is to obtain a declaration to that effect that the cross suit has been brought in her name. It is claimed that by virtue of a caste custom, the minor wife can by the expression of her desire so to do accompanied by a payment of money, the greater part of which goes to the caste and a small portion to the unwilling husband, free herself from the marriage tie. Whether such a custom could be recognised by the Court in the case of an adult wife will be discussed later in this judgment. The plea in the wife's written statement is that the marriage is a contract subject to a condition sanctioned by custom, that it may be put an end to at the wish of the wife subject to a payment of money. We cannot accept the position that marriage among Hindus is only a contract, but even if it were so, it could only be a contract when concluded between adults capable of contracting. That is not the case here, and it is probable that the child wife who is put forward as paying money for the caste and for the repudiated husband is merely a pawn in a game between those who are the real instigators of her suit and the opposite party in the caste who dispute the existence of the alleged custom.

The parties are Hindus of the Pakhali caste. It appears that, factions having broken out in the caste and the husband and his father-in-law taking different sides, the wife is anxious to divorce the husband. She claims to be entitled to do so by virtue of a caste custom which authorizes either spouse to divorce the other, against that other's will and with or without any assignable reason, on payment of a sum of money fixed by the caste from time to time. The lower Courts have passed a decree in the wife's favour, holding that the custom set up was proved, and that it is not opposed to public policy. Having regard to the recency of the caste resolutions purporting to affirm this custom, to the incompetence of the caste to pronounce marriages void, and to the recitals in various deeds to the effect that these farkats were executed with the consent of both spouses, we doubt very much whether the inference that the alleged custom is legally established can be supported by the evidence on the record. But we prefer to put our judgment on the broader ground that the alleged custom, assuming it to be proved, must be regarded or opposed to public policy within the meaning of section 23 of the Indian Contract Act. In our opinion this view is apparent from a consideration of the mere character of the custom set up, and it is also to be supported by the decisions of this Court.

The custom pleaded is, as we have said, a custom by which the marriage tie can be dissolved by either husband or wife against the wish of the divorced party, and for no reason but out of mere caprice, the sole condition attached being the payment of a sum of money fixed by the caste. That sum admittedly is liable to alteration from time to time at the will of the caste: Rs. 55 to-day, it may be Rs. 5 to-morrow. We need only say that, in our opinion, it is impossible for the Court to recognise any such custom as this; it is opposed to public policy as it goes far to substitute promiscuity of intercourse for the marriage relation, and is, we think, equally repugnant to Hindu Law, which regards the marriage tie as so sacred that the possibility of divorce on the best of grounds is permitted only as a reluctant concession. The requirement of the payment of a sum of money, on which the learned District Judge relies, seems to us to be immaterial, and we can see no substantial distinction between the recognition of this custom and the declaration that the tie of marriage does not exist among Hindus of the Pakhali caste.

As to the cases, it was laid down as early as 1876 in Reg. v. Sambhu Raghu (2) that "the Court does not recognise the authority of the caste to declare a marriage void, or to give permission to a woman to re-marry." It is true that this ruling was not followed in Jukni v. Queen-Empress (3), but there the learned Judges found that the husband had relinquished his wife, so that this decision is of no authority on the present facts. In Reg. v. Karsan Goja (4), which were criminal cases, the question was whether a woman of the Talapda Koli caste was punishable under section 494, Indian Penal Code, or whether she could successfully plead a caste custom under which a married woman was permitted to leave her husband and contract a second marriage without the husband's consent; and the Court said that "such a caste custom, even if it be proved to exist, is invalid, as being entirely opposed to the spirit of the Hindu Law." That decision was given in 1864, and, so far as we are aware, has never since been doubted. It is, we think, direct authority in favour of the view that the custom which is set up in the present appeal, and which in essentials is indistinguishable from that pleaded in the cases of 1864, cannot be recognised by the Court. The decision in Reg. v. Karsan Goja (4) was approved and followed by Sir M. Westropp, C. J., and Melvill, J., in Narayan Bharthi v. Laving Bharthi (5). We may refer also to Uji v. Hathi Lalu (6), decided in 1870, where it was held that a custom which authorised a woman to contract a second marriage without a divorce, on payment of a certain sum to the caste, was an immoral custom which should not be judicially recognised. The custom in the present case seems to stand on no higher position; for if the mere payment of money to the caste cannot serve to validate a re-marriage without a divorce, the same reasoning would make it insufficient to validate a divorce without the consent of the other spouse, as the effect in the dissolution of the marriage bond would be substantially the same in both cases.

(1) 28 C. 751; 5 C. W. N. 673.

(2) 1 B. 347.

On these grounds we are of opinion that in the wife's suit for dissolution of marriage the appeal must be allowed and the suit dismissed with costs throughout. Mr. Gokuldas for the wife has read affidavits declaring that since the lower Court's decree the wife has contracted a second marriage with another man, but that fact appears to us to have no relevance to the only question raised in the appeal, the question, namely, whether she was entitled to divorce her first husband by virtue of the caste custom.

In the husband's suit for restitution of conjugal rights, the only defence now made is the divorce based on the alleged custom, and, since that fails, the suit must be decreed with costs throughout.

Appeals allowed.

(3) 19 C. 627.
(4) 2 B. H. C. R. 117 at p. 124.
(5) 2 B. 140.
(6) 7 B. H. C. R. 133.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

CIVIL EXTRAORDINARY JURISDICTION APPLICATION No. 273 OF 1914.

April 9, 1915.

Present:—Sir Basil Scott, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Batchelor.

SONU JANARDAN KULKARNI — PLAINTIFF—APPLICANT

versus

ARJUN BARKU KUNBI—DEFENDANT—OPPONENT.

Mamlatdars' Courts Act (Bom. Act II of 1906), s. 23—Collector, whether includes District Deputy Collector—High Court's power to revise.

A District Deputy Collector has no authority to pass an order under section 23 of the Mamlatdars' Courts Act of 1906. [p. 956, col. 1.]

Where a District Deputy Collector has assumed to act judicially, he will be treated as a Court under the superintendence of the High Court whose proceedings can be revised under the extraordinary jurisdiction. [p. 956, col. 1.]

Petition against the decision of the District Deputy Collector, East Khandesh.

Mr. P. V. Kane, for the Applicant.

Mr. P. B. Shingne, for the Opponent.

JUDGMENT.—This is a petition, under section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code, by the plaintiff in the Mamlatdar's Court at Erandol in East Khandesh who sued for possession of certain lands under the Mamlatdars' Courts Act. The Mamlatdar of Erandol after recording evidence ordered possession to be given to the applicant. An application was then preferred purporting to be in revision under section 23 of the Mamlatdars' Courts Act to the District Deputy Collector of East

Khandesh, who reversed the decision of the Mamlatdar of Erandol. The petitioner contends that the District Deputy Collector had no authority to act under the Mamlatdars' Courts Act. That Act is Bombay Act II of 1906. Section 23 provides: "(1) There shall be no appeal from any order passed by a Mamlatdar under this Act. (2) But the Collector may call for and examine the record of any suit under this Act, and if he considers that any proceeding, finding or order in such suit is illegal or improper, may, after due notice to the parties, pass such order thereon, not inconsistent with this Act, as he thinks fit."

Now unless the term "Collector" includes "District Deputy Collector" in that section, the District Deputy Collector has no authority to act under the Mamlatdars' Courts Act. The expression "Collector" is not defined in the Act itself, but it is defined in the previous Bombay General Clauses Act (Bombay Act I of 1904) for the purpose of all Bombay Acts made after the 30th May 1904. Section 3 of that Act provides that: "In this Act, and in all Bombay Acts made after the commencement of this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context, 'Collector' shall mean, in the city of Bombay, the Collector of Bombay, and elsewhere the chief officer in charge of the revenue administration of a district." It is not contended that the District Deputy Collector is the chief officer in charge of the revenue administration of the District of East Khandesh. But it is argued that by reason of certain powers having been delegated to the District Deputy Collector by the Collector under section 10 of the Land Revenue Code, the District Deputy Collector is, a Collector within the meaning of section 23 of the Mamlatdars' Courts Act of 1906. The Land Revenue Code, section 10, provides that "Subject to the general orders of Government, a Collector may place any of his Assistants or Deputies in charge of the revenue administration of one or more of the talukas in his district, or may himself retain charge thereof. Any Assistant or Deputy Collector thus placed in charge shall, subject to the provisions of Chapter XIII, perform all the duties and exercise all the powers conferred upon a Collector by this Act or any other law at the time being in force, so far as regards the taluka or talukas in his charge." The powers of a Deputy Collector would, therefore, not extend beyond the taluka or talukas of the District which shall have been placed specially in his charge, and he could not be the chief revenue officer in charge of the revenue administration of a district. Chapter XIII, to which reference is made in section 10, provides that "In the absence of any express provision of this Act, or of any law for the time being in force to the contrary, an appeal shall lie from any decision or order passed by a revenue officer, under this Act or any other law for the time being in force, to that officer's immediate superior, whether such decision or order may itself have been passed on appeal from a subordinate officer's decision or order or not". If, therefore, the argument for the opponent is correct, and "any law for the time being in force" includes the Mamlatdars' Courts Act of 1906, an appeal would lie from the decision of the Deputy Collector under section 23 to the Collector, and from the Collector to the Commissioner, because there is no express provision to the contrary in the Act. The absurdity of this conclusion suggests that the words "any law for the time being in force" must relate to any law ejusdem generis with the Land Revenue Code and would not embrace the special law relating to Mamlatdars' Courts such as we have in the Act of 1906.

We have, however, been referred to a decision of a Bench of this Court in Keshav Dhondi v. Jairam (1) in which it was held that by virtue of the Land Revenue Code, section 10, an Assistant Collector in charge of portions of a District was entitled to exercise the revisional powers of the Collector under section 23 of the Mamlatdars' Courts Act. It is apparent from the report that the provisions of the Bombay General Clauses Act of 1904 were not brought to the notice of the Court, particularly the words "unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context" of the Act to be construed, for Mr. Justice Beaman in his judgment states that, on a first view, it would appear that an Assistant Collector could not be authorised to exercise the revisional powers under section 23. In view of the express definition in section 3 of General Clauses Act we feel bound to decide that the District Deputy Collector had no authority to pass any order under the Mamlatdars' Courts Act of 1906. He has, however, assumed to act judicially, and is, therefore, according to the ruling in Collector of Thana v. Bhaskar Mahadev Sheth (2), to be treated as a Court under the superintendence of the High Court whose proceedings can be revised under the extraordinary jurisdiction. The question then is, what order should be passed under section 115? We declare that the order of the District Deputy Collector is a nullity as being without jurisdiction of any kind, and direct that the application of the defendant for revision under the Mamlatdars' Courts Act be taken on the file of the Collector, and be disposed of by him according to law. Having regard to the decision in Keshav Dhondi v. Jairam (1) we think that there should be no order as to costs of this application.

(1) 12 Ind. Cas. 709; 36 B. 123; 13 Bom. L. R. 1031

Ordered accordingly.

(2) 8 B. 264 at p. 268.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 3909 OF 1910.

April 28, 1913.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, KT., and Mr. Justice Beachcroft.

UMES CHANDRA BANERJEE—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

DINABANDHU MAHANTI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 45—Mortgage—Several mortgagees—Payment by mortgagor to one mortgagee, if valid.

A payment of the mortgage-debt by the mortgagor to one of the several joint mortgagees is not a valid payment as against the other mortgagees. [p. 956 col. 2.]

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge of Cuttack, dated the 17th August 1910, affirming that of the Munsif, Cuttack, dated the 24th November 1909.

Babu Haradhone Chatterjee, for the Appellant.

Babu Sures Chandra Chuckerbutty, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal by the plaintiff in a suit to enforce a mortgage granted to him and Dina Nath Acharji on the 16th July 1897. The suit was commenced on the 29th July 1909 and was defended by the purchasers of the equity of redemption, who contended that the mortgage-debt had been satisfied by payments made on behalf of the mortgagor to the co-mortgagee of the plaintiff on the 27th July 1899. The question, therefore, arose, whether the payment made by the mortgagor to one of the joint mortgagees was a good payment as against the other mortgagee. The Courts below have answered this question in the affirmative on the authority of the decisions in Barbar Maran v. Ramana Gounden (1); Bhup Singh v. Zain-ul-Abdin (2) and Kari Chengamma v. Jatti Kristnammah (3). On behalf of the plaintiff, this decision has been challenged and reliance has been placed upon the cases of Harihar Pershad v. Bholi Pershad (4); Husainara Begum v. Rahmannessa Begum (5); Peary Lal Daw v. Madhoji Jiban (6); Sitaram v. Shridhar (7); Tamman Singh v. Lachhmin Kunwari (8) and Brij Lal Singh v. Bhawani Singh (9). In our opinion, the alleged payment was not a good payment as against the plaintiff. The principle of law applicable to cases of this description was fully explained in the case of Husainara Begum v. Rahmannessa Begum (5) and we see no reason to take a different view. We observe that although the contrary opinion expressed in Barbar Maran v. Ramana Gounden (1) was recently adopted by the majority of the Judges who decided the case of Mannava Annapurnamma v. Uppala Akkayya (10), there was a weighty dissent by White, C. J., which appears to us to enunciate the correct rule on the subject. We are fortified in the view we take also by the terms of the mortgage instrument before us, which states explicitly

(1) 20 M. 461; 7 M. L. J. 269.
(2) 9 A. 205; A. W. N. (1886) 279.
(3) 1 Ind. Cas. 219.
(4) 6 C. L. J. 383 at p. 394.
(5) 8 Ind. Cas. 837; 13 C. L. J. 3; 38 C. 342.
(6) 19 Ind. Cas. 865; 17 C. L. J. 372.
(7) 27 B. 292; 5 Bom. L. R. 91.
(8) 26 A. 318; A. W. N. (1904) 22.
(9) 7 Ind. Cas. 115; 32 A. 651; 7 A. L. J. 821.
(10) 19 Ind. Cas. 12; 24 M. L. J. 333; 36 M. 544; 13 M. L. T. 268; (1913) M. W. N. 328.

that the mortgagors would re-pay the loan to the two mortgagees and obtain a return of the mortgage instrument. They were thus under an obligation to tender the money to both the mortgagees. This they did not do. Consequently, the plaintiff is not bound by the alleged payment to his co-mortgagee.

The result is that this appeal is allowed, the decree of the Court below set aside and the suit decreed for half the sum claimed. The plaintiff will have his costs throughout the litigation on the amount decreed. The usual mortgage-decree will be drawn up in this Court and six months' time allowed for redemption.

Appeal allowed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL SIDE APPEALS NOS. 63 AND 71 OF 1914.

February 26, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Napier.

IN No. 63 OF 1914

THE SOUTH INDIAN EXPORT Co., LTD., —APPELLANTS

versus

T. SUBBIER AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS.

IN No. 71 OF 1914

T. N. P. VISWANATHA AIYAR AND ANOTHER—APPELLANTS

versus

THE SOUTH INDIAN EXPORT Co., LTD. —RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Hindu widow, right of, to continue family trade—Debts incurred by her to continue such business—Legal necessity—Reversioner, right of, to question such debts—Minority—Representation as major—Consent by reversioner—Estoppel.

Where a reversioner himself was a consenting party to a fraud, put forward a minor as a major and on the faith of such representation, induced third parties to enter into a transaction, it is not open to him afterwards to impugn the transaction as invalid and avoid it on the ground that the widow was a minor on the date of the transaction. [p. 960, col. 2; p. 965, col. 1.]

Sarat Chunder Dey v. Gopal Chunder Laha, 20 C. 296; 19 I. A. 203 Hari Kishen Bhagat v. Kashi Parshad Singh, 27 Ind. Cas. 674; 17 M. L. T. 115; 19 C. W. N. 370; 13 A. L. J. 223; 2 L. W. 219; 21 C. L. J. 225; 28 M. L. J. 565; 17 Bom. L. R. 426; Bijoy Gopal Mukerji v. Girindra Nath Mukerji, 23 Ind. Cas. 162; 18 C. W. N. 673; 12 A. L. J. 711; 19 C. L. J. 620; 16 Bom. L. R. 425; 16 M. L. T. 68; 1 L. W. 533; 41 C. 793; 27 M. L. J. 123; (1914) M. W. N. 430, followed.

Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—A trade and its good-will are valuable property and when they are inherited by a widow, she has power to manage that particular business as heir in the same manner as she has authority to manage a zemindari estate inherited by her from her husband. [p. 958, col. 1.]

Vembu Iyer v. Srinivasa Iyengar, 17 Ind. Cas. 609; 12 M. L. T. 547; 23 M. L. J. 638; Sakrabhai Nathubhai v. Maganlal Mulchand, 26 B. 206; 3 Bom. L. R. 738, referred to.

Debts incurred on re-drafts to carry on a family business are debts of necessity binding on a reversioner. [p. 958, col. 2.]

Vembu Iyer v. Srinivasa Iyengar, 17 Ind. Cas. 609; 12 M. L. T. 547; 23 M. L. J. 638, followed.

Consent by a reversioner to an alienation made by a Hindu widow, by itself makes the transaction valid, and is not merely presumptive and rebuttable evidence of necessity. [p. 960, col. 1.]

Nachiappa Gounden v. Rangasami Gounden, 26 Ind. Cas. 757; (1915) M. W. N. 53; 28 M. L. J. 1; Bajrangi Singh v. Manokarnika Bakhsh Singh, 30 A. 1; 3 M. L. T. 1 (P. C.); 12 C. W. N. 74; 9 Bom. L. R. 1348; 6 C. L. J. 766; 5 A. L. J. 1; 35 I. A. 1; 17 M. L. J. 605; Hari Kishen Bhagat v. Kashi Parshad Singh, 27 Ind. Cas. 674; 17 M. L. T. 115; 19 C. W. N. 370; 13 A. L. J. 223; 2 L. W. 219; 21 C. L. J. 225; 17 Bom. L. R. 426; 28 M. L. J. 565; Rangappa Naik v. Kamti Naik, 31 M. 366 at p. 378; 18 M. L. J. 309; 3 M. L. T. 355; Collector of Masulipatam v. Cavaly Vencata Narrainapah, 8 M. I. A. 529 at p. 537; 9 W. R. (P. C.) 61; 1 Suth. P. C. J. 476; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 820; 19 E. R. 631, referred to.

Appeal from the decree of the Hon'ble Sir John Wallis, Chief Justice (then the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Wallis), dated 2nd March 1914, in Civil Suit No. 90 of 1912 in the ordinary original civil jurisdiction.

IN O. S. No. 63 OF 1914.

Messrs. Branson and Branson, for the Appellants.

Mr. A. Doraisamy Aiyar, for the Respondents.

IN O. S. No. 71 OF 1914.

Mr. D. Chamier, Dr. Pandalai, Messrs. Short and Bewes and Co. and Mr. C. P. Ramaswami Aiyar, for the Appellants.

Mr. N. Grant, with him Messrs. Branson and Branson, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

SADASIVA AIYAR, J.—I have had the great advantage of a perusal of the judgment just now delivered by my learned brother and though I agree practically throughout both in his conclusions and reasons, I think it not inappropriate to say a few words on one or two questions of law which were elaborately argued on both sides.

On the question whether a Hindu widow is entitled to carry on the trade business which she inherited from her husband, their Lordships of the Privy Council have made the following observations in the case of Amarnath Sah v. Achan Kuar (1): "On this point" (that is, the point whether the deceased Khairati's widow and heir was under a necessity to borrow money in order to ward off total insolvency) "their Lordships agree with the High Court in thinking the effect of Hira Lal's evidence to be that that at Khairati's death the business was solvent on paper, but that there were bad debts the losses on which were never recovered, though the business struggled on for a good many years. The view of the High Court is that the widow ought to have wound up the business at once, and that not having done so, she could not allege necessity to mortgage the inheritance in order to keep the money business going. But they do not lay down any general rule for such cases, and they feel the difficulty of a decision in the entire absence of authority. Their Lordships also feel great difficulty, and they would require to know much more about the nature of the business in question, and of the condition and fluctuations of this particular business, before venturing to endorse the opinion of the High Court." A trade and its good-will are valuable property and when they are inherited by a widow, I do not see why she should not manage that particular business as heir in the same manner as she has authority to manage, say, a zemindari estate which she might have inherited from her husband. In the present case, the deceased Krishna Aiyar and his elder brother, Narayana Aiyar, carried on a large skin trade as if it was their family business, though it does not appear that it was an ancestral business. It was really a business which Pattammal's husband adopted as his occupation in life. I am not aware of any law which obliges a widow inheriting her husband's trade business to wind up the business as soon as her husband dies. Hindu ladies in the south of India are not generally ghosha or pardanashin. A large proportion of Brahmin ladies are literate in the vernacular and their average business ability is not appreciably, if at all, inferior to that of the average male Hindu. The facts in this present case seem to me clearly to show that the condition in which the deceased Krishna Aiyar had left his business and his affairs at the time of his Peath in March 1909 was such that everybody connected with that business, or in a position to give valuable opinion as to the necessity or otherwise of carrying on that business, was strongly and unhesitatingly of the view that unless the business was carried on by the widow, it was impossible to save anything out of it for her as the heir or for the contingent reversioner, the 1st defendant. The debts then amounted to about Rs. 1,60,000 and the estate, if realised without forced sales, was worth about Rs. 1,40,000 (say, just sufficient to clear the debts). This is clearly established by the evidence of the plaintiff's 3rd witness. Swaminatha Aiyar. The business was no doubt subject to fluctuations, but there is nothing to show that at Pattammal's death the estate had drifted into a worse position than the position bordering between bare solvency and insolvency in which it was left by her husband, Mr. Krishna Aiyar. The mere fact that the indebtedness to the plaintiffs (one only of the numerous creditors) was about Rs. 15,000 at Krishna Aiyar, death and was Rs. 25,000 at Pattammal's death affords no criterion by which the relative positions of the estate on the two dates could be safely judged, as we do not know how far the debts to other creditors which amounted to nearly a lac of rupees at Krishna Aiyar's death had been paid off or added to during Pattammal's life-time. I further respectfully agree with the trial Judge for the reasons stated by him that a Hindu widow is entitled to carry on the business left by her husband under certain stated circumstances, and the circumstances of this case show that it was a proper thing for Pattammal to have so carried on her husband's business. As the very nature of the business requires borrowings for capital and owing to fluctuations in price results in the case of some of the transactions in the incurring of debts on re-drafts, the incurring of such business liabilities by the widow ought to be treated as debts of necessity binding on the reversioner. When the touchstone of necessity is satisfied, the question whether the managing male member of a Hindu family carrying on a business has greater powers of charging the property in certain cases than a widow who succeeds to her husband's business, becomes a rather academical question. That the word "necessity" should be given a liberal interpretation even when a guardian acts on behalf of a minor has been decided in Vembu Iyer v. Srinivasa Iyengar (2), and a Hindu widow who is the sole owner of her husband's estate (though a qualified owner) cannot have a more restricted authority than the guardian of a minor owner, the guardian having no right at all in the property.

(1) 14 A. 420 at p. 428; 19 I. A. 196; 6 Sar. P. C. J. 197.

On my above view of the facts and the law it is perhaps unnecessary in this case to consider the other question elaborately argued in this case, namely, whether the next reversioner's consent to and concurrence in the widow's carrying on the trade and incurring the liabilities in the ordinary course of carrying on the trade prevent him, when he succeeds as reversioner at the widow's death, from questioning the validity of the debt. As, however, the question was strenuously argued I shall state my views very briefly. The case-law on this point is rather concerned with alienations by way of sale or mortgage made by the widow and consented to and concurred in by the next reversioner than with the incurring of debts with his consent. I think that the principle underlying the bar in one case must apply in the other case also. In the present suit the 1st defendant did give his consent not only to the incurring of debts, but also to the creation of the charge for these debts on the plaint properties except the Sembium tannery purchased by Pattammal after the date of Exhibit F.

The conflict of views as to the legal basis on which the consenting reversioner is held bound has been very acute. In the recent Full Bench case Nachiappa Gounden v. Rangasami Gounden (3); decided by the learned Chief Justice, Seshagiri Iyer and Kumaraswami Sastri, JJ., it cannot be said that any views common to all the members of the Full Bench have been formulated which are binding on a Division Bench. On the question of the effect of the consent and concurrence of the next reversioner, it is, no doubt, true that the view taken by me in two cases (namely, that it is conclusive as to the validity of the widow's acts done with such consent and concurrence) is not accepted by my learned brothers Seshagiri Iyer, J., and Kumaraswami Sastri, J., the majority of the Full Bench. Seshagiri Iyer, J., says that the judgment of the Privy Council in Bajrangi Singh v. Manokarnika Bakhsh Singh (4) is not an authority for the contention that the assent of the reversioner is anything more than presumptive evidence of justifiable alienation. Kumaraswami Sastri, J., says: "The effect of the decisions of the Privy Council no doubt gives to the assent a high evidentiary value, but they do not make it conclusive proof." I need not say that out of the great respect which I naturally have for the opinions of my two learned brothers I would have hesitated to act upon the different opinion which (following the learned Chief Justice) I have long held on this question, if it were not for the latest pronouncement of their Lordships of the Privy Council which is found in Hari Kishen Bhagat v. Kashi Pershad Singh (5). This decision of their Lordships is dated 2nd December 1914 after the opinions of my learned brothers in the above case, namely, Nachiappa Gounden v. Rangasami Gounden (3), had been pronounced on the 20th November 1914. Their Lordships of the Privy Council treat the consent of the next reversioner not merely as presumptive evidence of the necessity for the alienation made by the widow, but as a "stringent equity" which "fulfils the requirements" of the law as to proof of necessity. I shall just quote the very words of their Lordships: "The requirement of the law" (as to establishing necessity) "may, however, be fulfilled by

(2) 17 Ind. Cas. 609; 23 M. L. J. 638; 12 M. L. T. 547.

(3) 26 Ind. Cas. 757; 28 M. L. J. 1; (1915) M.W. N. 63.

(4) 30 A. 1; 3 M. L. T. 1 (P. C.); 12 C. W. N. 74; 9 Bom. L. R. 1348; 6 C. L. J. 766; 5 A. L. J. 1; 35 I. A. 1; 17 M. L. J. 605.

(5) 27 Ind. Cas. 674; 17 M. L. T. 115; 19 C. W. N. 370; 13 A. L. J. 223; 2 L.W. 219; 21 C. L. J. 225; 28 M. L. J. 565; 17 Bom. L. R. 426.

proving the consent or concurrence of the reversioners to or in transactions." The phrase "stringent equity" (which can be enforced against the consenting reversioner) is taken by their Lordships from the words used by Lord Hobhouse in Jiwan Singh v. Misri Lal (6), during the course of the argument of the Counsel in that case. I think I am bound by the opinion of their Lordships that the consent and concurrence of the reversioner is not only presumptive evidence but it is further a "stringent equity" binding on the reversioners, so as to prevent them from contending that necessity has not been sufficiently proved and, therefore, that the transaction is not valid. In this connection I might be permitted to state that the same view of the Privy Council decisions as to the effect to be given to the consent of the reversioner seems to have been taken by Sankaran Nair, J., in the case in Rangappa Naik v. Kamti Naik (7). The learned Judge referring to the dictum of their Lordships of the Privy Council in Collector of Masulipatam v. Cavaly Vencata Narainapah (8), says: "On the other hand, an alienation which would not otherwise be legitimate may become so if made with the consent of the husband's kindred, or in other words, an alienation not for necessity may be valid in certain cases, if made with the consent of the husband's kindred. The consent by itself makes the alienation, not otherwise legitimate, valid." It is very difficult, therefore, in my opinion, to hold that the consent is only presumptive and rebuttable evidence of necessity, and not a thing which creates an equity against the reversioner even if necessity is negatived.

In the present case, not only did the 1st defendant who was the sole presumptive reversioner (and who became the sole actual reversioner on the death of the widow) consent to the incurring of the debts and the giving of the properties by the widow as security to the plaintiff (Company), but he it was that, took an active part in the negotiations and induced the plaintiff Company to help Pattammal to carry on the business. The facts proved in this case as showing the 1st defendant's consent and concurrence were almost the identical facts which have been proved in a similar suit brought by another creditor of Pattammal and the appeal (Appeal No. 76 of 1913), therefore, was decided by Sankaran Nair and Spencer, JJ. The same facts were also alleged in that case as regards the representation by conduct made by the 1st defendant in respect of Pattammal being a major (the present 1st defendant was the 7th defendant in that other suit). I might further add that the plaintiff in that suit has been examined as P. W. No. 2 in the present case. The learned Judges, Sankaran Nair and Spencer, JJ., in their judgment in the above appeal state as follows: 'The plaintiff swears that the 7th defendant and certain other defendants begged him hard after Krishna Aiyar's death to lend money to the widow, He says they (the present 1st defendant and others) told him that the creditors of Krishna Aiyar were threatning to attach Krishna Aiyar's properties and that they would suffer great loss if he did not help." The learned Judges further state that as the 1st defendant led the plaintiff to believe that money could be safely advanced directly to Pattammal, such representation involves also the representation that Pattammal was not a minor and that there was very little doubt that the 1st defendant must have represented to the world that Pattammal was of an age competent to enter into contracts with others, especially by his having himself taken a power-of-attorney and a sale-deed from her and by having made her execute other bonds as a major. The l arned Judges further say that it would not be open to the 1st defendant afterwards to say that Pattammal was not a minor. As on the same facts and almost the same evidence those learned Judges have held that the 1st defendant had estopped himself, against the creditors who lent only to Pattammal to carry on her business, to deny that the loans from those others were required to discharge the debts of Krishna Aiyar or to deny that Pattammal was a major, that decision and the question of estoppel seems to be a decision on a question of law and I am prepared to follow it.

In the result the Appeal No. 71 will be dismissed with plaintiff's costs. Appeal

(6) 23 I. A. 1 (P. C.); 18 A. 146; 6 M. L. J. 47; 6 Sar. P. C. J. 675.

(7) 31 M. 363 at p. 378; 18 M. L. J. 309; 3 M. L. T. 355.

(8) 8 M. I. A. 529 at p. 537; 9 W. R. (P. C.) 61; 1 Suth. P. C. J. 476; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 820; 19 E. R. 631.

No. 63 was not pressed and will also be dismissed with costs.

NAPIER, J.—These are two appeals from the judgment of the Chief Justice (then Mr. Justice Wallis) in Civil Suit No. 90 of 1912. The plaintiffs were the South Indian Export Company, who sought to have a charge declared on certain properties specified in the schedules to the plaint with consequential reliefs. The properties had been mortgaged by deposit of title-deeds by one Pattammal, the widow and heir of one T. Krishna Aiyar. The defendants Nos. 1 to 8 and Nos. 10 to 12 were persons claiming, or thought entitled to, interests in the properties, while the 9th defendant was a mortgagee of the properties from one of the reversioners, the 1st defendant, who has since been found to be the reversioner entitled. The principal appellants before us are the 1st defendant and Messrs. Shaw Wallace and Co., the 9th defendant. The learned Judge has found that the widow was in fact a minor at the time of the alienations but that the 1st defendant was estopped from setting up that defence. He also found that, if she was a major, she would have been justified in carrying on the business of tanning, it having been her husband's business. The appellants contend that as a minor and a Hindu widow she could not carry on the trade and alienate the properties. They argue that the advances were not made on the representation of the 1st defendant, even if he did represent the widow to be a major, which they also deny. They further contend that even if the 1st defendant is estopped with reference to the period of two months during which he held a power-of-attorney from the widow to manage the business, the plaintiff Company were put on notice by the proceedings which he took within six months to oppose the widow's application for succession certificate on the ground of her minority. Another contention is that even if she was entitled to carry on the trade, she was not entitled to extend it, and that loss having occurred through the extension of business the property in the hands of the 1st defendant is not liable.

We have examined the evidence as to her age minutely, and agreeing with the learned Judge, are satisfied that she was a minor. Mr. Grant for the respondents objected to two letters and an entry in an account which have been used as evidence of minority; but even if these were excluded, there remains enough evidence to make the matter clear from doubt. Indeed Mr. Grant did not press his appeal which raised this point.

The important question then arises as to whether the 1st defendant was in fact aware of her minority at the time of the agreement, Exhibit F. I do not think it necessary to refer to the evidence in detail. It has all been read to us and commented on; but I am satisfied that not only the 1st defendant but her father and the working partners of her late husband were perfectly well aware of her minority and conspired to keep their knowledge of that fact from the plaintiff's agent, Ramanjulu Naidu, when he went down to Trichinopoly on the death of T. Krishna Aiyar in March 1909 to see what arrangements could be made with reference to the deceased's business. The truth comes out in the evidence of D. W. No. 2, one Sadasiva Aiyar. This man is a broker in the employment of the 9th defendant, the holder of the mortgage from the 1st defendant. He was employed by T. Krishna Aiyar, the husband of the widow, and before him by T. Narayana Aiyar, his brother who started the business. He knew the whole business and he knew the family intimately. He proves the minority of the widow and states that he knew all along that she was a minor. He was asked: "Why did you choose to keep secret the question of Pattammal's minority? His answer was: "When all the principal people were keeping it secret, why should I publish it? This was undoubtedly the truth; and he was equally undoubtedly a party to the conspiracy. He endeavours to sheild the 1st defendant by pretending that he does not know whether Viswanatha Aiyar was aware of the fact. This is obviously false, and the statement is made in the interests of Messrs. Shaw Wallace and Company, so as to protect the mortgage given to them by the 1st defendant. Much light is thrown on the conduct of the parties by Exhibit S, a letter written on the 29th of March 1909 by the Company's agent, Ramanjulu, to his principals. After the 1st defendant and Ponnusawmy Pillai, one of the former working partners, had taken a power-of-attorney from the widow to carry on the business, the agent writes:

"The power-of-attorney is delayed in registering owing to the age question of Krishnier's widow. Doctor's certificate is required to satisfy the Registrar and it will be done to morrow."

There is no suggestion here that there was any doubt in the minds of any of them whether she was a minor or not. They could not help the fact of the difficulty coming to the knowledge of the agent, but they obviously told him that the Registrar's objections were unfounded and that the matter would be put right at once. They did in fact procure the certificate from a doctor of the name of Mr. McCau'ly who was deceived by the lady's appearance, as it appears that she was an unusually well grown woman for her age.

It is urged by the appellants that the plaintiffs relied on this representation by the Registrar. But this contention cannot be accepted. The procuring of the certificate to satisfy the Registrar was in fact the last stage in the conspiracy.

Mr. Chamier has addressed a long argument to us to establish that it was not the 1st defendant who put forward the lady as a major originally but Ramu Aiyar, her father, and Swaminatha Aiyar, the deceased Krishna Aiyar's son-in-law and one of the working partners. This argument is based on the letters written by the agent to his principals at the time of the negotiations. Those letters, it is true, lend some support to that contention. But when the oral evidence is examined it is perfectly clear that Viswanatha Aiyar, the 1st defendant, took part in the negotiations. P. W. No. 2, a merchant dealing with the deceased Krishna Aiyar, proves conclusively that the 1st defendant was at that time endeavouring to get help from others and to pacify creditors on the ground that Pattammal was going to carry on the business. It is impossible to suppose that, when it was arranged on the 22nd March that the 1st defendant should hold the power-of-attorney with Ponnusawmi Pillai, he had not been a party to the prior negotiations. Bearing in mind that he claimed to be the adopted son of Narayana Aiyar, which claim had been admitted by Krishna Aiyar in 1903 (Vide Exhibits B and C), it is perfectly clear that he was of all persons the most anxious that the business should be carried on, so that in the event of anything happening to the widow the business would come to him. His own letter to the Company, Exhibit JJ, written on the 28th March 1909, practically puts him out of Court. The words are: "With regard to the business of my uncle, late Mr. T. Krishna Aiyar, I beg to state that myself and Mr. Ponnusawmi Pillai have the power-of-attorney from Mrs. Krishnier....In conclusion I beg to state that you will render me your help in the affair of Mr. Krishnier, since his business has been a long standing one which I do not like to give up." On a review of the whole evidence I am satisfied that from the first he was perfectly well aware of the fact that the lady was a minor, that he deceived the Company's agent and that his action was guided by what he thought to be his own interest in the matter. After the registration of the power-of-attorney arrangements were perfected for carrying on the business and were embodied in an agreement, Exhibit F, of the 17th of May 1909 of which, of course, the 1st defendant holding the power-of-attorney was fully cognizant. I shall have to refer to this letter, Exhibit JJ, on other point.

The next stage was the cancellation by the widow of her power-of-attorney to the 1st defendant. This was on the 2nd of June 1909 (Exhibit XVI). After this date Ponnusawmi Pillai alone acted as her agent. We now come to the proceedings to obtain the succession certificate, on which the appellants rely as putting an end to the representation if there was any. It appears that on the 15th October 1909, Pattammal applied for a succession certificate, and the 1st defendant put in a counter-petition (Exhibit HH), alleging that she was a minor. Judgment was given by Mr. Pinhey, the District Judge, on the 7th of March 1910 rejecting the application on the ground of her minority. The plaintiffs' Solicitors have made an admission in this suit that they were aware of those proceedings (Vide Exhibit VII). The admission is that "in or shortly after the latter part of October 1909 our clients knew that there were proceedings pending between Pattammal and Viswanatha Aiyar in which he raised the question as to her age and alleged that she was a minor." It further appears that the plaintiffs produced before that Court the agreement of the 17th of May 1909 made between them and Pattammal.

The notice is, therefore, clear, but it is to be observed that there is no admission that the plaintiffs knew of the judgment in the case and, what is most important, it is clear that the 1st defendant did not himself notify the plaintiffs of either the proceedings or the result. The learned trial Judge has taken the view that "the fact that the nearest reversioner asserted that the widow was a minor was of no probative value whatever," the plaintiff Company having no means of knowing whether she was a minor or not. And it is of importance that in proceedings taken as late as 1913 the Subordinate Judge of Trichinopoly found that she was a major. I can only attribute the failure of the 1st defendant to infrom the Company to one motive, namely, that he did not wish the business to be stopped, but desired to be in a position to do exactly what he has done, namely, to allow the business to go on in the hope that it would be remunerative but in the event of the early death of the widow, to be in a position to challenge the alienations.

The question now arises, what is the effect of this notice? Mr. Chamier contends that it is not constructive notice from outside, but a direct notice from the 1st defendant to the Company. I cannot accept this contention. The learned trial Judge has held that as the 1st defendant was not in a position to make restitutio in integrum he cannot claim that the notice operated to terminate the representation. Mr. Grant has invited our attention to a number of cases on this point, and relies on passages in Spencer Bower on Actionable Misrepresentation. The proposition is stated on page 202: "Moreover actual and personal knowledge must be proved. Constructive or imputed notice is entirely out of the question. There is absolutely no exception to this rule. Thus it is of no avail to show merely that the representee had the means of knowledge within his reach." The knowledge must be clearly proved to have been full and complete. Partial and fragmentary information or mere suspicion will not do. The case of Frederick Bloomenthal v. James Ford (9) is an authority very much in point. There the appellant lent money to a limited Company upon the terms that he should have as collateral security fully paid-up shares. The Company handed certificates for 10,000 shares to the appellant, the certificates stating that they were fully paid up. The Company having gone into liquidation, the appellant was placed on the list of contributories. It was held that since the Company had obtained the loan by a representation that the shares were fully paid up, which the appellant believed and acted upon, the Company and the Liquidator were estopped from alleging that the shares were not fully paid up. The Lord Chancellor deals with the argument put forward in these words: "You should have inquired. You should have observed certain circumstances; and if you had done that...you would have known that 'fully paid-up shares' did not mean what on their face they purported to mean," and declines to accept this as a defence. On page 165 his Lordship uses these words: "The evidence of the appellant goes uncontradicted that he did not know, and had no reason to know, that the representation made to him was not perfectly true." It is to be noted that the word used is "know" and it seems clear that in his Lordship's view circumstances raising a doubt as to the truth of the representation are not sufficient. Lord Herschell's judgment is also to the same effect; and the other learned Lords agree. It cannot, I think, make any difference that the representation was made not by the person who originally took the benefit. In this case the Liquidator was held bound, and it was put on the ground of estoppel. This is exactly the position here. The representation was made by the 1st defendant and it is he who is estopped by it. In Redgrave v. Hurd (10) Jessel, M. R., states the law as follows:

"If a man is induced to enter into a contract by a false representation it is not a sufficient answer to him to say: 'If you had used due diligence you would have found out that the statement was untrue. You had the means afforded you of discovering its falsity, and did not choose to avail yourself of them.'" And on page 21: "If it (the representation) is a material representation calculated to induce a person to enter into the contract, it is an inference of law that he was induced by the representation to enter into it, and in order to take away his title to be relieved from the contract on the ground that the representation was untrue, it must be shown either that he had knowledge of the facts contrary to the representation, or that he stated in terms, or shewed clearly by his conduct, that he did not rely on the representation." It is to be noted that here again the language used is knowledge of the facts, not suspicion or reason to doubt. Arnison v. Smith (11) is a case in which certain Directors made an absolutely false statement in a prospectus which they issued, but subsequently sent a circular which, if examined carefully, showed the falsity of the statement. The Court of Appeal held that the circular did not contain an admission of the misrepresentation, nor did it inform the allottees that they could retire and get back their moneys, and that, therefore, it was of no avail to the Directors. Lord Halsbury states as follows on page 370: "I do not agree that the circular put any one in the position of knowing the true facts of the case. .....Assuming a fraud to have been committed it obviously lies on those who rely on a subsequent explanation to show that such explanation was quite clear." Cotton, L. J., uses the same language, and both he and the Lord Chancellor reserve their opinion as to what would have been the position if the persons who made the representation admitted the falsity of the representation and offered to refund the money paid. It is to be noted that in the above case notice was given directly by the person who had made the false representation, but even then it was held not sufficient as there was no specific admission of the falsity. This case supports the view taken by the learned trial Judge that there being no restitutio in integrum the notice is of no avail.

(9) (1897) A. C. 156; 66 L. J. Ch. 253; 76 L. T. 205; 45 W. R. 449.

(10) (1881) 20 Ch. D. 1 at p. 13; 51 L. J. Ch. 113 45 L. T. 485; 30 W. R. 251.

The appellants relied on the case of Dunston v. Paterson (12). This was an action of false imprisonment against a Sheriff. The defendant pleaded that the plaintiff at the time of the arrest represented herself to be the person against whom the warrant was issued. The plaintiff admitted that that was so, but relied on the fact that at a later stage she gave notice that she was not the person. The Court held that there were two periods of imprisonment, one commencing after the date of her notice, and that as to that second imprisonment she having given notice and it must be assumed having established that she was not the person against whom the warrant had been issued, she was not estopped by her admission. This case does not assist the appellants, as the false representation was definitely withdrawn by the person who had made it and the representee had not altered his own circumstances in consequence of the representation.

I have examined the English cases, because we have the authority of the Privy Council in Sarat Chunder Dey v. Gopal Chunder Laha (13) for the proposition that the law enacted in the Indian Evidence Act does not differ from the English Law on this subject, and it seems to me clear that if we are to find limitations to the right of the representee to claim an estoppel, we cannot go beyond what is to be found in the English cases, there being nothing in section 115 on the subject. On a strict reading of that section it can only be a question of fact whether a person has, by his declaration, act or omission intentionally caused or permitted another person to believe a thing to be true and to act upon such belief. The section says nothing about the representation only operating for one act done in consequence of it, nor does it provide that suspicion, doubt or constructive notice will terminate the representation. As long as a person is acting upon such belief, so long does the estoppel operate.

For these reasons I am unable to accept the argument of Mr. Chamier that the cases above referred to would only apply to the first advance made by the plaintiff Company. In my view the intention of the representation is the determining factor. The 1st defendant put forward the deceased as a major not for the purpose of getting one single advance, but with the intention that the plaintiffs should carry on business with her. He was himself engaged in a similar business; he knew that the terms of the business required a standing advance from the Company; and he also knew the terms of the agreement, Exhibit F. He intended his representation to induce the plaintiffs to carry on business with the widow with a standing advance of Rs. 45,000 and he knew at the time when he opposed her proceedings before the District Judge that her property was mortgaged to cover the standing advance, the stock and the general debit of her account. The representation was, therefore, a continuous one, and the plaintiff Company must be deemed to have made every advance and given every credit to the widow on the faith of that representation. That being so, the case falls entirely within the decisions above referred to, and their being no withdrwal of the representation and no attempt to put the plaintiffs in the position they would have been in but for the representation, the 1st defendant is estopped in respect of all advances and payments made to her.

(11) (1889 41 Ch. 348; 61 L. T. 62; 37 W. R. 739; 1 Meg. 388.

(12) 26 L. J. (N. S.) C. P. 267; 2 C. B. (N. S.) 495; 3 Jur. (N. S.) 982; 140 E. R. 509; 109 R. R. 771.

(13) 20 C. 296; 19 I. A. 203.

The next objection raised is that the widow had no right to take up this trade and mortgage the properties as no necessity has been proved, and that the trade was itself of a speculative nature. With regard to the necessity the evidence establishes that at the time of her husband's death the general liabilities of his estate were little less than the assets. This is, however, what one would expect in a trade of this nature, which must be carried on with borrowed capital. The extent of the trade dealings must always be proportionate to the security available for obtaining working capital. The estate may, perhaps, not be called insolvent but if the business had been suddenly closed down, it is clear on the evidence that after realising the properties on a forced sale to pay creditors, there would practically have been nothing left for the widow. By continuing the business she could make a profit, which would of course, vary according to the value of the skins in the European market, and there is nothing to show that at the date of her death the estate was not as solvent as it was when she began business. The fact that she was able to pay off one large debt and build a new tannery points the other way. The amount of her debit with the plaintiffs at the date of her death, roughly Rs. 25,000, is less than the standing advance of Rs. 45,000 which her husband was allowed and was continued to her. It is true that a witness speaks of the business as speculative, but he means nothing more than that the value of skins is not constant but rises and falls in the European market, a condition which is common to the whole of the exports from this country. To say that a family business of this nature is not to be continued by the widow is practically to confine trade by a widow to petty shop-keeping.

Our attention has been called to a number of cases, including well-known decisions of the Privy Council, on the extent to which a widow may carry on an existing business and the meaning of the word necessity: undoubtedly there are observations in some of the older cases which would debar a widow from continuing a business of this nature. I am, however, very doubtful whether in the altered conditions of the present day, such limitations would be upheld. I have read the judgment of my learned brother sitting with the late Mr. Justice Sundara Aiyar in Vembu Iyer v. Srinivasa Iyengar (1), where all the older cases are examined and, as it seems to me, the doctrine of necessity is merged in that of benefit to the estate. If that is an extension of the law as hitherto understood, I can only say that I am in entire sympathy with it. It is practically the view taken by the Chief Justice of Bombay in the case of Sakrabhai Nathubhai v. Maganlal Mulchand (14), which was followed by the learned trial Judge. I entirely agree with him in adopting the reasoning of the Bombay case, and I see no reason why a different standard should be applied to widows in this Presidency.

A small point is taken that the widow increased the business and should not have done so. The fact is not established, the argument being due to a misunderstanding of Exhibit F and a confusion between the standing advance and the amounts credited to her on the discounting of her bills on the firm in England. But even if the stricter limitations of a Hindu widow's rights were to prevail, I am of opinion that they could not avail the 1st defendant or through him the 9th defendant. Just as he is estopped from denying the minority, so also he cannot be heard to raise this latter plea. His consent is established beyond doubt. Indeed his first act on her behalf was to write and ask the Company to advance money not to be utilised in the purchase of skins, but to clear outside debts (vide Exhibit JJ), and the request is founded on the reason that the business was a long-standing one which he did not like to give up. In the decision of the Privy Council already referred to, Sarat Chunder Dey v. Gopal Chunder Laha (13), the widow, who held the property benami for her husband during his life, mortgaged the property after his death, her son representing her in the transaction. Their Lordships used the following words on page 308: "There was a distinct representation by Ahmed (that is the son) professing to act as his mother's attorney, that she was owner in possession, having a good title to create a valid mortgage affecting the lands.....And it is equally clear that the transaction was concluded on the footing of that representation, and that the creditor was thereby induced to lend the money on the security of the mortgage. In this state of the facts the terms of section 115 of the Evidence Act directly apply to the case.....and neither Ahmed nor his representative, the plaintiff, can be allowed to deny the truth of what was thereby represented, believed and acted upon." It is in my opinion impossible to distinguish that case from this, bearing in mind the knowledge of the 1st defendant that the carrying on of this business entailed the mortgaging of the properties. In this view I think it is unnecessary to decide whether consent by a reversioner is evidence of necessity or a complete answer as against another reversioner who actually becomes entitled on the death of the widow. But I would observe that the language of the latest decision of the Privy Council in Hari Kishen Bhagat v. Kashi Pershad Singh (5) seems to indicate that it is something more than evidence of necessity, that it is an equity in favour of the alienee. If so, their Lordships have gone a step further than in the case of Bijoy Gopal Mukerji v. Girindra Nath Mukerji (15).

(14) 26 B. 206; 3 Bom. L. R. 738.

One point remains.

The account shows that three sums of Rs. 6,000, Rs. 1,000 and Rs. 1,000 were paid to Ponnusawmi Pillai for the purposes of the trade very shortly after the death of the widow and it is urged that these amounts should be excluded from the account. It is proved, however, by Mr. Simpson that these moneys were advanced for the purpose of preparing the skins for the market (Exhibit ZZ). The account kept by Ponnusawmi Pillai from the date of the death shows that these amounts were expended on the trade, and there is a large credit given to the deceased on 31st May, more than two months after her death, of Rs. 29,420. This represents the value of skins of about Rs. 37,000 and it is a perfectly fair inference that the value of that Rs. 8,000 is to be found in that consignment of skins. No attempt was made to show that the money was misapplied and in those circumstances I am clearly of opinion that the Rs. 8,000 is properly chargeable to the mortgages. The amount of Rs. 1,521, rent of the tanneries, does not appear in the account filed in the suit. Mr. Simpson, P. W. No. 1, states that this amount was kept in a suspense account and should have been credited. That sum will, therefore, be deducted from the amount claimed. With this exception the appeal will be dismissed with costs. Appeal No. 63 will also be dimissed with costs.

Appeals dismissed.

(15) 23 Ind. Cas. 162; 27 M. L. J. 123; 18 C. W. N. 673; 12 A. L. J. 711; 19 C. L. J. 620; 16 Bom. L. R. 425; 16 M. L. T. 68; 1 L. W. 533; 41 C. 793.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 490 OF 1908.

August 20, 1914.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, KT., and Mr. Justice Beachcroft.

Mohunt GOPAL DAS—DEFENDANT SECOND PARTY—APPELLANT

versus

Maharaja RAMESWAR SINGH AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANT No. 1 AND PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENTS.

Practice—Order by a Judge—Successor of Judge, if bound by that order.

Mohunt GOPAL DAS v. RAMESWAR SINGH.

An order made by a Judge is binding on his successor till set aside in due course of law. [p. 967, col. 2.]

Brojo v. Juggut Chundr, 21 W. R. 199; Kharag Prasad v. Durdhari Rai, 14 A. 348; A. W. N. (1892) 25 and Jammalamadaku Subbalakshmamma v. Jammala Venkatarayadu, 2 Ind. Cas. 525; 32 M. 318; 5 M. L. T. 75, referred to.

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge of Darbhanga, dated the 31st August 1908.

Babus. Joges Chunder Dey and Chandra Sekhar Banerjee, for the Appellant.

Babus Ram Charan Mitra, Jogendra Nath Mukherjee and Shoroshi Charan Mitter, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal by the second party defendant against the final decree in a suit for partition of joint property. According to the plaintiff, he i interested in the property to the extent of two-annas share. The first defendant, the Maharaja of Darbhanga, has ten-annas share and the second defendant four-annas share. The plaintiff prayed that a partition might be effected and separate allotments made in proportion to the shares held by the parties. The first defendant did not dispute the extent of the shares, but stated that the land might be partitioned in proportion to the ten-annas share owned by him and a separate allotment made in his favour. The second defendant also took up a similar position. In these circumstances, on the 15th July 1907 a preliminary decree was made in these terms: "There is no dispute about the shares. The defendants in their written statement allege that they have no objection to the partition being effected. It is, therefore, ordered that a Commissioner be appointed to make the partition of the estate according to the shares of the parties in the estate stated in the plaint and found above." Against the decree, no appeal was preferred by any of the parties. When the matter went to the Commissioner, on behalf of the Maharaja it was argued that in respect of the raiyati lands the partition should be made, not according to the shares, but according to possession. To enable one to appreciate the full effect of this contention, it is necessary to state that the total rent payable by the tenants in respect of the raiyati lands is approximately Rs. 1,038. The sum payable out of this amount to the Maharaja, according to his share in the estate, would be Rs. 648, that payable to the plaintiff would be Rs. 129 and to the second defendant Rs. 259. As a matter of fact, it has been proved that the Maharaja has for some time past collected more than what was payable in respect of his share, namely, Rs. 749 instead of Rs. 648. The plaintiff and the second defendant have collected less than the amount realisable in their shares. The contention before the Commissioner was that the partition of the raiyati lands should be effected not according to the shares, but according to possession. The Commissioner overruled this contention, on the ground amongst others that it was not open to the parties, so far as he was concerned, to take up a position inconsistent with that determined by the preliminary decree. When the matter came before the Subordinate Judge, he held that the view taken by the Commissioner was erroneous and that in respect of the raiyati lands the partition should be made according to the possession actually held by the parties. He, therefore, set aside the report of the Commissioner in this respect and ordered a partition according to the directions given by him. The Commissioner has submitted his final report based on these directions of the Subordinate Judge and the final decree has been made thereon. In our opinion, the view taken by the Subordinate Judge is erroneous.

It was clearly not open to the successor of the Subordinate Judge who made the preliminary decree in 1907 to set aside in substance that decree. The preliminary decree was binding on the Court at all subsequent stages of the suit, and the only question open for consideration was, whether that decree had been fairly and justly carried out by the Commissioner. If authorities are needed for the obvious position, that an order made by a Judge is binding on his successor till set aside in due course of law, reference may be made to the cases of Lukut Pandey v. Byjnath Singh (1); Bodun Burooah v. Abdool Gunny (2);

(1) 14 W. R. 285.
(2) 19 W. R. 281.

Brojo v. Juggut Chunder (3); Gujraj Singh v. Bijai Singh (4); Suraj Din v. Chattar (5); Kharag Prasad v. Durdhari Rai (6); Jammalamadaku Subbalakshmamma v. Jammala Venkatarayadu (7).

An attempt has finally been made to interpret, as it has been said, the preliminary decree of the 15th July 1907. But no question of construction arises. It is plain that the parties at that stage were perfectly agreed that the partition should be effected according to their shares. It was only subsequently that a new position inconsistent with the preliminary decree was taken up by one of the parties. There is thus no escape from the conclusion that the view taken by the Subordinate Judge is erroneous and his decree must be set aside.

The appeal is allowed, the decree of the Subordinate Judge discharged and the case remanded to him in order that partition may be made on the basis of the first report of the Commissioner dated the 10th May 1908. The appellant is entitled to his costs in this Court from the Maharaja respondent. We assess the hearing fee at five gold mohurs.

Appeal allowed; Case remanded.

(3) 21 W. R. 199.
(4) 6 N. W. P. H. C. R. 114.
(5) 3 A. 755; A. W. N. (1881) 55.
(6) 14 A. 348; A. W. N. (1892) 25.
(7) 2 Ind. Cas. 525; 32 M. 318; 5 M. L. T. 75.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 941 OF 1914.

July 3, 1915.

Present:—Sir Henry Richards, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Piggott.

Mirza QASIM BEG—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

MUHAMMAD ZIA BEG—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 91, 120—Cancellation of document—Limitation, from when begins to run.

The limitation for a suit for declaration that a mortgage deed executed by the plaintiff was without valid consideration and ineffectual and that the defendant had no right under it, begins to run from the date of the execution of the document. [p. 968, col. 2; p. 970, col. 1.]

Second appeal from the decision of the Additional Judge of Moradabad, dated the 28th of March 1914.

Mr. A. Haider, for the Appellant.

Mr. B. E. O'Conor, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

RICHARDS, C. J.—This appeal arises out of a suit in which the plaintiff sought a declaration that a bond, dated the 5th of October 1904 and executed by him, mortgaging certain property being without valid consideration is ineffectual, and that the defendants had no right under it. The Court of first instance decreed the claim. The lower Appellate Court allowed the appeal and dismissed the suit.

The plaintiff's own case is that the bond in question was executed in favour of the defendant, who was a relation of his, for the purpose of defeating actual or possible creditors. The present suit was not instituted until the 26th of July 1913, that is to say, about nine years after the execution. The lower Appellate Court has dismissed the suit solely on the ground that it is barred by limitation.

Article 91 provides that "a suit to cancel or set aside an instrument not otherwise provided for shall be brought within three years from the time when the facts entitling the plaintiff to have the instrument cancelled or set aside became known to him." If Article 91 is appropriate, it seems to me that the facts which entitled the plaintiff to bring the present suit were that no consideration had passed and that the bond was only executed for the purpose of defeating his creditors. These facts were known to the plaintiff the day he executed the bond.

Article 120 provides that "Where no period of limitation is provided elsewhere in the Schedule, the suit must be brought within six years from the time when the right to sue accrues."

If Article 120 is appropriate, it seems to me that it is clear that what gave the plaintiff a right to bring the present suit was that there was no consideration paid or intended to be paid. His right to sue, therefore, accrued at the very time when he executed the bond and his suit had to be brought within six years. If it were necessary to decide which Article of the Limitation Act applies, I am inclined to think Article 91 is the appropriate Article. If the bond was altogether fictitious, it ought to be cancelled and a note made of its cancellation in the Registration Office as provided by section 39 of the Specific Relief Act. Cancellation of the bond was the real relief to which the plaintiff was entitled, if he proved his case and the suit was brought within time.

There are many cases in which a party might be entitled to a declaration that a deed did not bind him, while he would not be entitled to have the deed cancelled.

It is contended that whether we apply Article 91 or Article 120 the fact which entitled the plaintiff to have the instrument cancelled or the time when his right to sue accrued, was when he apprehended a suit would be brought against him. It seems to me that though his apprehension may have been a reason for bringing the suit, it was neither the fact which entitled him to have the instrument cancelled within the meaning of Article 91, nor was it by reason of his apprehension that the right to sue accrued to him within the meaning of Article 120.

There have been a number of cases cited none of which seem to me to be very much in point, except the case of Singarappa v. Talari Sanjivappa (1). The learned Judges seem to have suggested that the right to have a document set aside was when the party had reasonable apprehension that such instrument if left outstanding would cause him serious injuries, and they referred to section 39 of the Specific Relief Act. In my opinion section 39 merely states under what circumstances a plaintiff can bring a suit for the setting aside of a document. The section is clearly subject to the provisions of the Limitation Act. In my opinion the decision of the Court below was quite correct and ought to be confirmed. I wish to say in conclusion that I am deciding the case on its own facts and circumstances.

PIGGOTT, J.—In concurring with the decision of the learned Chief Justice in this case I wish to add a few remarks, principally because of the authorities which have been quoted on the other side, and I would mention the case of Vithai v. Hari (2) in addition to the Madras case referred to by the Hon'ble Chief Justice. I mention that case as the type of a number of others in which the essential relief sought by the plaintiff was the recovery of possession, or in which at any rate a cause of action was afforded by actual interference with the plaintiff's possession. I think all cases of this sort are easily distinguishable from the one now before us. On its facts even the case reported in Singarappa v. Talari Sanjivappa (1) is distinguishable from the present, on the ground that the deed sought to be set aside was a deed of sale and that it was an essential part of the plaintiff's case that he had continued in possession in spite of the execution of that deed, and that he got his cause of action owing to an attempt on the part of the defendant to interfere with his possession. The line of reasoning, however, adopted by the learned Judges of the Madras High Court in that case is in favour of the contention of the appellant now before us. With all respect to the learned Judges, I can only say that a general application of the principles suggested in this decision, and in particular their application to the present case, would amount to something like a reductio ad absurdum of the relief intended to be allowed by the Legislature by means of declaratory suits. In a case like the present the plaintiff, the executant of the disputed document, was fully entitled to wait quietly at home until the defendant brought a suit to enforce the mortgage. As against such a suit all the pleas put forward in this case would have been available as a defence. The period of limitation for a suit on the mortgage-deed had barely three more years to run when the plaintiff came into Court with the present suit. The object of allowing a declaratory suit to be brought at all in such circumstances as the present is for the prepetuation of testimony, when the plaintiff is apprehensive that, if he waits for the opposite party to take action against him, evidence at present readily available would become difficult or impossible to obtain. I think that is why a narrow period of limitation was prescribed for suits to which Article 91 of the Indian Limitation Act applies. There is no doubt that attempts are frequently made to secure a longer period of limitation by drafting the plaint so as to evade all reference to section 39 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877) and to claim a mere declaration instead of the full relief prescribed by that section. It is open to question how far litigants should be encouraged to claim the benefit of the general Article 120 of the first Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act by going out of their way to ward their plaint so as to escape the application of Article 91. Regard should undoubtedly be had to the essence of the suit rather than to the particular colouring sought to be put upon it by the plaintiff. I am content, however, to deal with this case on the assumption that Article 120 applies. If so, the test which I would suggest is, whether the present suit could or could not have been instituted prior to what the plaintiff alleges to be the origin of his cause of action, namely, the day on which the defendant, in some way not clearly specified, showed an intention to institute a suit in respect of the money apparently due on the face of this bond. In my opinion, if the plaintiff had come into Court within a year, or within a month, or within a week of the execution of this deed, alleging that he had been induced to execute it as a matter of policy, and (as his witnesses have deposed) in order to protect the property therein referred to from the attack of creditors whom the plaintiff feared, but that he had repented of his conduct and realised that, so long as the deed was in existence, the defendant might make a dishonest and improper use of it against him, he would have had a proper and valid cause of action for the very declaration which he seeks in the present case. On this ground, therefore, it seems clear to me that the right to sue for a declaration in respect of this bond accrued to the plaintiff on the day on which it was executed and that time was always running against him. I, therefore, concur in the finding that the present suit was rightly dismissed by the learned District Judge.

(1) 28 M. 349; 15 M. L. J. 228.

(2) 25 B. 78; 2 Bom. L. R. 638.

BY THE COURT.—The order of the Court is that we dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEALS NOS. 135 AND 194 OF 1910.

August 17, 1914.

Present:—Sir John Wallis, Offig. Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar.

VAITHINATHA AIYAR—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

VAITHINATHASAWMY AIYAR AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDANTS.

Benami transaction—Ostensible vendee paying off debts and making ready cash payment—Burden of proof.

Where an ostensible vendee pays off the debts due by the transferor and makes an advance of ready cash on the date of sale, there is a strong presumption that the transaction is not benami and the burden lies heavily on the party who alleges that the transaction is benami. [p. 971, cols. 1 & 2.]

Appeals against the decrees of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Negapatam in Original Suits Nos. 2 of 1907 and 14 of 1908, respectively

Mr. T. R. Venkatarama Sastri, for the Appellant.

Messrs. C. V. Ananthakrishna Aiyar and S. Viswanatha Aiyar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—These two appeals and Appeal No. 134 of 1910 are against the decision of the Subordinate Judge of Negapatam in three different suits. Considerable inconvenience has been caused by their joint trial and by separate judgments not having been written in each of the cases. Original Suit No. 44 of 1906 was instituted by one Vaithinathasawmi Aiyar against his uncle, Vaithinatha Aiyar, to recover certain sums of money on two documents. The Subordinate Judge gave a decree in favour of the nephew. Appeal No. 134 of 1910 is against that decision. The uncle has appealed. Original Suit No. 2 of 1907 was by the uncle against the nephew for a declaration that the sale-deed of certain properties in the name of the nephew was benami for him, and for recovery of the properties. The nephew was the first defendant in this case and the vendee from the nephew was the 2nd defendant. The Subordinate Judge dismissed this suit. Appeal No. 135 of 1910 is the appeal against it by the uncle. In Original Suit No. 14 of 1908 the nephew sued the uncle with respect to a portion of the properties covered by the alleged nominal conveyance on the ground of trespass. The Subordinate Judge dismissed this suit. Appeal No 194 of 1910 has been preferred against that decision.

Thus, in all these three appeals, the uncle Vaithinatha Aiyar is the appellant. The nephew, Vaithinathasamwy Aiyar, is the sole respondent in Appeals Nos. 134 of 1910 and 194 of 1910. He is the first respondent in Appeal No. 135 of 1910, the second being the vendee.

I shall deal with Appeals Nos. 135 and 194 of 1910 first. The facts are these :— The uncle had a divided brother who died leaving behind him his widow and a daughter, named Nagalakshmi Ammal. During the life-time of the widow some of the properties now in dispute were conveyed to the father-in-law of Nagalakshmi Ammal. After the death of the widow, on the 27th September 1900 the father-in-law and Nagalakshmi Ammal sold the plaint properties by Exhibits A and B respectively to the nephew, Vaithinathasawmy Aiyar. In 1904 there were original proceedings under section 145 in the Magistrates's Court between the uncle and the nephew regarding possession. The order of the Magistrate in these proceedings led to the two suits from which these appeals have been preferred.

The burden lies heavily upon the uncle to establish that the sale to his nephew was benami for him. The circumstances relied upon by Mr. Venkatarama Sastri are these :—

(1) the nephew has no properties at the village ;

(2) the nephew admits that he did not make any inquiries regarding the necessity for the sale nor about the existence of the debts ;

(3) the sale-deed was executed in the house of the uncle;

(4) the uncle looked after the cultivation ;

(5) the properties were sold for a very low price; and

(6) the uncle was the nearest reversioner to Nagalakshmi Ammal.

From these circumstances we are asked to infer that it was never intended to confer any rights of property upon the nephew by the sale to him and that the uncle out of confidence allowed the property to be conveyed to the nephew, as he was then the nearest reversioner and did not desire it to be known that he had himself purchased the property. There is positive evidence in this case, which I see no reason to disbelieve, that the nephew paid Rs. 4,000 to the vendee at the time of the conveyances. The balance of the purchase-money had to be paid to the creditors mentioned in the sale-deeds. The evidence shows that in the majority of cases the nephew discharged these debts, although some were paid by the uncle. That is explained on the ground that the uncle had the income of the property to account for. I see no reason to doubt that at the time of the sale the uncle and the nephew were friendly towards each other. It is also proved that the uncle was indebted to the nephew to a large extent, although a suit to recover the amount would have been time-barred. Further the uncle had no children. I conclude from these facts that the uncle intended the nephew to be the real purchaser of the property in order that his own indebtedness may be wiped off by this transaction. It is only when the nephew claimed payment of the barred debt in 1903, that the uncle thought of setting up a rival claim to the properties covered by Exhibits A and B. The circumstance to which the learned Vakil for the appellant has drawn our attention cannot, in the face of the positive facts proved in this case, lead to the inference that the sale was benami for the uncle. I agree with the Subordinate Judge in the conclusion at which he has arrived. The appeals will be dismissed with costs.

Appeals dismissed.

GAYA PRASAD v. SARFARAZ CHAUDHRI.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.
SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 982 OF 1914.
June 12, 1915.
Present:—Mr. Justice Piggott.
GAYA PRASAD—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
SARFARAZ CHAUDHRI—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 41—Discretion—Minor's mortgage, cancellation of, suit for—Decree—Consideration paid, if to be allowed.

The discretion conferred upon the Court by section 41 of the Specific Relief Act must be so interpreted and exercised as only to impose upon a plaintiff seeking relief by way of cancellation of an instrument such conditions as the law would impose upon him if the position of the parties were reversed and he were the defendant in a suit brought to enforce the instrument according to its terms. [p. 974, col. 1.]

Where the plaintiff brought a suit for setting aside a mortgage-deed executed by him while he was a minor and his mother, who was his certificated guardian, and a decree was passed conditional on his paying the full consideration of the deed in suit:

Held, that as a minor's contract was void the plaintiff's suit should have been decreed as brought. [p. 974, col. 2.]

Second appeal from the decision of the District Judge of Gorakhpur, dated the 5th February 1914.

FACTS of the case appear fully from the judgment.

Mr. Parmeshwor Dayal, for Mr. Iswar Saran, for the Appellant:—A person who was a minor when he made a mortgage is not estopped from pleading minority simply because he represented himself to be of full age.

I rely on Kanhaya Lal v. Girdhari Lal (1). A mortgage by a minor is void to all intents and purposes and nothing can make the contract binding in law.

No mutuality arises in a contract of this kind.

I rely on Mir Sarwarjan v. Fakhruddin Mahomed (2) and Mohori Bibi v. Dharmodas Ghose (3).

He then discussed about the finding as regards consideration.

Mr. Aga Haidar, for the Respondent:—The facts of this case are peculiar. The plaintiff's case was that the defendant knowing him to be a minor fraudulently got the mortgage executed. Defendant denied this. The Courts below have found the allegation of the plaintiff to be false.

The learned Judge has also found that plaintiff was over 18 years but was a minor because a certificate of guardianship was obtained.

The case in Mohori Bibi v. Dharmodas Ghose (3) is a leading case.

I submit that a Court of Justice and Equity should make an order, as the lower Court did, in view of the circumstances of the case.

The Courts have exercised a discretion in a particular manner and this discretion should not be disturbed in second appeal. Kamta Prasad v. Sheo Gopal Lal (4).

This was also the case in Mohori Bibi v. Dharmodas Ghose (3). Courts had exercised a discretion and the discretion was not interfered with.

The minor must pay the benefit which he had received. Section 41, Specefic Relief Act, applies when discretion is being exercised to cancel an instrument.

JUDGMENT.—On the 25th of February 1909 the plaintiff, Gaya Prasad, being at that time just over 18 years of age, executed in favour of the defendant, Sarfaraz Chaudhri, a mortgage-deed for Rs. 349-13-6, hypothecating a 6-pie zemindari share of his own in village Lohraula. Out of the consideration only Rs. 56 was paid in cash at registration, and the balance was said to represent principal and interest on two older bonds executed by Gaya Prasad. As a matter of fact the two older bonds in question, one for Rs. 99 and the other for Rs. 81, were produced and apparently purported to have been executed jointly by Gaya Prasad and his mother. It has been found that Gaya Prasad's mother had obtained a certificate of guardianship under the Guardians and Wards Act prior to the date of the execution of the mortgage-deed in suit. Under the law, therefore, Ga a Prasad was a minor on the 25th of February 1909. He brought the present suit for a declaration that the document in question is null and void and not binding on the plaintiff and of no effect as regards the property therein hypothecated. The first Court decreed the claim; but, acting under the discretion conferred by section 41 of the Specific Relief Act I of 1877, made this decree subject to

(1) 13 Ind. Cas. 956; 9 A. L. J. 103.
(2) 13 Ind. Cas 331; 9 A. L. J. 33; 21 M. L. J. 1156; 16 C. W. N. 74; (1912) M. W. N. 22; 15 C. L. J. 69; 14 Bom. L. R. 5; 39 C. 232; 29 I. A. 1.
(3) 30 C. 539; 5 Bom. L. R. 421; 7 C. W. N. 441; 30 I. A. 114.
(4) 26 A. 342; A. W. N. (1904) 41.

payment by the plaintiff of the sum of Rs. 56, found to have been paid at the time of registration. Both parties appealed to the District Judge. There had been allegations of fraud on both sides. The plaintiff on the one hand denied that any consideration had passed, and over and above pleading his minority alleged that he had been induced to execute the mortgage-deed in suit by fraud; while the defendant alleged that he had been deceived by the plaintiff and that he knew nothing about the certificate of guardianship but believed the plaintiff to be of full age, as in fact he would have been but for the existence of that certificate. The learned District Judge has found that there was constructive fraud on the part of the plaintiff, in that he was bound to have informed the defendant, Sarfaraz Chaudhri, of the fact of his minority but did not do so. He has not found that there was any actual false representation on the part of the plaintiff in regard to his age, nor does he purport in any way to apply the principle of estoppel so as to debar the plaintiff from asserting that he was in fact a minor on the date of the execution of the mortgage-deed. He has nevertheless passed a decree to the effect that the plaintiff do pay Rs. 349-13-6, the full consideration for the deed in suit, with Rs. 108-2 interest, and the costs incurred by the defendant in both Courts. The decree does not provide for the event of this payment being made, unless such provision is considered to be implied from the words: "The decree of lower Court be modified and a conditional decree be passed." No doubt the learned District Judge had sufficient reason for feeling certain that the plaintiff will in no case make the payment in question. In the event of payment not being made, the suit for cancellation of the mortgage-deed was to stand dismissed with costs in both Courts. Against this decree the plaintiff appeals.

He contends that there is no legal basis for a finding that the consideration for the mortgage-deed in suit had been paid in full, and further that the suit should in any case be decreed. The case-law on the subject seems to me in a somewhat unsatisfactory condition. The later law on the subject is all based on the decision of their Lordships of the Privy Council in Mohori Bibi v. Dharmodas Ghose (3). It was there laid down in the plainest terms that a mortgage made by a minor is void. The head-note* represents their Lordships as further deciding that a money-lender who has advanced money to a minor on the security of a mortgage is not entitled to re-payment of the money on a decree being made declaring the mortgage invalid. As a matter of fact their Lordships refer to the discretion vested in the Courts by section 41 of the Specific Relief Act, without definitely deciding whether or not it would be a reasonable exercise of that discretion to refuse to declare a document void, which was really void in law, unless and until some payment were first made by the plaintiff. They content themselves with holding that on the facts of the case before them the Courts below had exercised a wise discretion in refusing to direct any such payment to be made. In Kamta Prasad v. Sheo Gopal Lal (4), a suit very similar to the present, in which the cancellation of a mortgage-deed executed by a minor had been unconditionally decreed by the Court below in spite of a finding that a sum of over Rs. 500 had been received by the plaintiff, the decision of the Court below was affirmed by a Bench of this Court. According to the head-note the case would be absolutely decisive on the question now before me; but it would seem from the body of the judgment that the learned Judges did not desire to commit themselves to any positive decision as to the limits of the discretion exercisable under section 41 of the Specific Relief Act, in cases where cancellation of a deed is sought on the ground of minority. In Jagar Nath Singh v. Lalta Prasad (5) the question was as to the recovery of possession over land which had been conveyed by a deed of sale executed by a minor. The two learned Judges who heard that case differed as to the facts; but the learned Judge who was of opinion that the equities of the case were in favour of the vendees was prepared to make a decree in favour of the plaintiff subject to re-payment of the sale price. There seems to me in any case a distinction between a case for recovery of possession and a suit like the present, which is in reality a mere suit that a document which is void in law may be declared to be so. I was also referred to the case of Kanhai Lal v. Babu Ram (6), in which a suit upon a p omissory note executed by a minor was dismissed. The question of the possible application of section 41 of the Specific Relief Act was referred to in the judgment but did not require to be determined. On the authorities it appears beyond question that, if the defendant were suing to enforce this mortgage-deed, his suit would be dismissed. Even supposing I were to dismiss this appeal and leave the decree of the lower Appellate Court as it stands, and that decree were to result in the dismissal of the plaintiff's suit for a declaration, there would still remain on record the finding between the parties that the plaintiff was a minor when he executed this mortgage. No suit could, therefore, be brought by Sarfaraz Chaudhri on this deed with any hope of success. It appears to me, therefore, that to refuse the plaintiff a declaration that this deed is void in law, except on condition of his paying to the defendant, Sarfaraz, the mortgage-money, is logically equivalent to trying to compel the plaintiff to pay what he is not bound in law to pay. There might be something to be said for such a decree as was passed in this case by the Court of first instance; but the lower Appellate Court has in effect held that the plaintiff is not entitled to a declaration that this mortgage-deed is void unless he first pays into Court the entire amount due under it including interest up to date and the whole costs of the defendant, that is, everything which the defendant could possibly claim in a suit brought by him as plaintiff to enforce the provisions of this void contract. I incline to the opinion that the discretion conferred upon the Courts by section 41 of the Specific Relief Act must be so interpreted and exercised as only to impose upon a plaintiff seeking relief by way of cancellation of an instrument such conditions as the law would impose upon him if the position of the parties were reversed and he were the defendant in a suit brought to enforce the instrument according to its terms. It seems to me impossible in any case to affirm the decree of the learned District Judge, and my own view of the law as at present advised is that the plaintiff's suit should have been decreed as brought I set aside the decrees of both the Courts below and decree the plaintiff's suit for a declaration as brought with costs through out.

(5) 1 Ind. Cas. 562; 31 A. 21; 5 A. L. J. 674; A. W. N. (1908) 267.

*See 30 C. 539—Ed.

Appeal allowed

(6) 8 Ind. Cas. 888; 8 A. L. J. 1058.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL SIDE APPEAL No. 37 OF 1913.

December 2, 1914.

Present: - Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Napier.

VISALAKSHI AMMAL—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

DORASINGA PILLAI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Dancing sisters living together—Property standing in name of one of them—Presumption of jointness—Statements by deceased mortgagor in mortgage-deed as to ownership of property—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 32 (7).

The ordinary presumption, that property standing in the name of one member of a Hindu co-parcenary is the property of all, does not apply to dancing sisters living together, as their mode of acquisition of property and life, are entirely distinct and different [p. 975, col. 1.]

Statements in mortgage-deeds made by a deceased mortgagor as to the ownership of the property comprised in the mortgage are admissible in evidence under section 32 (7) of the Indian Evidence Act and can be acted on if corroborated by other oral evidence in the case. [p. 975, col. 1.]

Quære.—Whether an adoption by a dancing girl is valid? [p. 975, col. 2.]

Guddati Reddi Obala v. Ganapati Kandanna, 17 Ind. Cas. 422; 12 M. L. T. 467; 23 M. L. J. 493; (1912) M.W. N. 1138, followed.

Appeal from the judgment of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Wallis, dated the 3rd March 1913, in the Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of this Court, in Civil Suit No. 118 of 1911.

Messrs. Venkatasubba Rao and Radhakrishnayya, for the Appellant.

Messrs. M. A. Tirunarayanachari and P. V. Doraisamy Mudaliar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

SADASIVA AIYAR, J.—The contentions argued in this appeal are

(a) that the learned Judge below ought to have held that the statements in the mortgage-deed, Exhibit I, about one of the properties having been purchased by Rangammal and the other property by Sundar Grammani, Rangammal and their sons were unreliable (7th ground of the appeal memorandam):

(b) that the learned Judge did not give due weight to the legal presumption that properties in the name of one of two dancing-girl sisters are the common property of both and

(c) that he did not give sufficient weight to the oral evidence on the plaintiff's side.

I think that the statements in the mortgage-deed, Exhibit I, which are admissible in evidence under section 32, clause 7, read with section 13 of the Evidence Act (Rangammal being dead) were rightly treated as reliable by the learned Judge, as they are corroborated by the oral evidence of the defendants' side showing that Rangammal and her sons solely received the rents of one of the properties and by the evidence of one of the witnesses on plaintiff's side, who says that the Grammani who kept Rangammal for several years was a rich man. As regards the legal presumption, though these dancing girls have been held to be governed by the Hindu Law relating to co-parcenary, as if there were made members of a Hindu co-parcenary, the analogy should not, in my opinion, be pushed too far as we know that from the nature of their profession, it could not be expected that sisters would ordinarily live together long and club their separate earnings or that their property would usually consist of what they got ancestrally (from their female ancestors) with the addition made by the natural increase of those properties through the receipt of interest on investment or receipt of mesne profits.

I am not prepared to dissent from the learned Judge's appreciation of the oral evidence, on the plaintiff's side having regard to the probabilities of the case.

It is unnecessary for me to express an opinion in this case on the question of the fact of plaintiff's adoption or on the question of its validity (if it was a fact) or on the question whether any presumption at all exists that the properties in the name of a dancing girl belong to her and her sisters and her mother and to all such female agnates (so to say). I need only say that having read the judgment of the learned Judge with the greatest respect, I do not see sufficient reason to go back from the view I expressed in Guddati ReddiObala v. Ganapati Kandanna (1) as to the validity of an adoption by a dancing girl.

In the result I would dismiss the appeal with costs.

NAPIER, J.—I concur with my learned brother that the plaintiff has not made out her case even if she is entitled to call in aid the presumption, a point on which I express no opinion.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 17 Ind. Cas. 422; 12 M.L. T. 467; 23 M. L. J. 493; (1912) M. W. N. 1138.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 165 OF 1914.

March 22, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Chamier and Mr. Justice Piggott.

JANKI PRASAD—PLAINTIFF—APPLICANT

versus

PARMESHWAR DIN PANDEY—DEFENDANT—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Ex parte decree, setting aside of—Application made after five years—Procedure—Jurisdiction—Revision—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 164—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115, O IX, r. 13.

An ex parte decree was passed in 1909 when the defendant was in jail. An application to set aside the decree was made in 1913 when the defendant was released from the jail. The Munsif without considering whether the application was barred by limitation granted it on the ground that the defendant being in jail at the time of the hearing of the suit had been prevented from attending the Court and defending it properly:

Held, that the proceedings of the Munsif were irregular and without jurisdiction. [p. 976, col. 1.]

That the Munsif ought to have considered whether the application before him, treated as an application under Order IX, rule 13, of the Civil Procedure Code, had been made within time, or if he treated the application as one for review of judgment, he should have considered whether the applicant had established sufficient cause for not applying till after five years had expired since the passing of the decree. [p. 976, cols. 1. & 2.]

Civil revision from an order of the Munsif of Basti.

HASSAN AMMAL BIBI v. ISMAIL MOIDEEN.

Mr. Pearey Lal Banerji, for the Applicant.

Mr. Girdhari Lal Agarwa'a, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.—This is an application for revision of an order of the Munsif of Basti setting aside a decree passed ex parte against the respondent and restoring the case to the pending file. It appears that the ex parte decree against the respondent was passed as long ago as 1909 when the respondent was in jail. Two applications to set aside the decree were presented by his wife acting on a power-of-attorney from her husband. Both applications were rejected. The respondent was released from jail in September 1913, and on March the 18th, 1914, he presented a third application, which has resulted in the order against which this application for revision is directed. It is quite clear that as an application to set aside a decree passed ex parte it was barred by limitation under Article 164, Schedule I, to the Limitation Act. Possibly, however, it might have been treated as an application by the respondent for review of judgment. In that case it was prima facie barred by limitation; but it was open to the Court to hold that the respondent had established sufficient cause for not preferring the application sooner. The Munsif did not consider whether the application was barred by limitation; but he set aside the decree on the ground that the respondent being in jail at the time of the hearing of the suit had been prevented from attending the Court and defending the suit properly. After saying this he added: "Therefore for the ends of justice I am of opinion that the ex parte decree should be set aside and the defendant be given an opportunity of defending the suit." It appears to us that the proceedings of the Munsif were irregular and possibly also without jurisdiction. He ought to have considered whether the application before him treated as an application under Order IX, rule 13, of the Civil Procedure Code, had been made within time, or if he treated the application as one for review of judgment he should have considered whether the applicant had established sufficient cause for not applying till March 1914. He took neither of these courses and he assumed that he had jurisdiction to set aside a decree five years after it was passed, simply because in his opinion the applica t had not had a fair chance of defending the suit. If he had taken up the question of limitation and decided it wrongly we could not have interfered. But he did not apply his mind to the case which he had to decide. As it is, it seems to us impossible to allow his order to stand. We set aside the order and direct that the Munsif do take up the application of the respondent and dispose of it according to law. Costs of this application will be costs in the cause.

Order set aside.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL APPEAL No. 173 OF 1913.

March 30, 1915.

Present:—Sir John Wallis, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar.

HASSAN AMMAL BIBI, DECEASED, AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS Nos. 1 TO 8 AND 14 TO 16—APPELLANTS

versus

ISMAIL MOIDEEN ROWTHAR AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS Nos. 1 TO 13 AND PLAINTIFFS Nos. 10 TO 12—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 47, 65, O. XXI, r. 94—Execution sale—Co-owner's interest—Auction-purchaser, assignee of—Title, acquisition of—Partition, right of—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 144, applicability of—Adverse possession—Co-owner's possession.

An assignee of the interest of a decree-holder-purchaser of his judgment-debtor's right in a joint property, acquires title under section 65 and Order XXI, rule 94 of the Civil Procedure Code and as such is entitled to bring a suit for partition against the judgment debtor and his other co-owners without obtaining any formal delivery of possession and his suit is not barred by section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code. [p. 978, col. 1.]

A purchaser at a Court sale in order to obtain possession of the property purchased may seek for such possession as he can obtain under the Civil Procedure Code or may ignore the provisions of the Code and stand upon his general rights of prosecuting his claim by instituting a suit. [p. 979, col. 1.]

Article 144 of Schedule I of the Limitation Act applies to a suit for partition between tenants-in-common, although a tenant has acquired his rights by purchase at a Court auction. [p. 980, col. 1.]

HASSAN AMMAIL BIBI v. ISMAIL MOIDEEN.

In such a suit there can be no question of adverse possession, because the possession of one co-tenant is the possession of all persons entitled as tenants-in-common. [p. 980, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the Court of the Temporary Subordinate Judge of Trichinopoly, in Original Suit No. 4 of 1912.

FACTS.—This is an appeal against the decree of the Temporary Subordinate Judge of Trichinopoly passed in a suit brought by the heirs of one Peer Mohideen Rowther against Ismail Rowther and another for partition and possession of a moiety of certain properties which belonged to the two defendants as tenants-in-common. The plaintiffs, who were the prior mortgagees, purchased the equity of redemption in the moiety belonging to the first defendant at a Court auction, and they brought the suit within 12 years of the confirmation of the sale. The question for decision was as to the applicability of section 47, Civil Procedure Code, and Article 137 of the Limitation Act. The Subordinate Judge held that the suit was barred under both those sections and dismissed it. Hence this first appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge of Trichinopoly.

Mr. T. Rangachariar, for the Appellant:—It is not necessary for a Court purchaser to obtain symbolical possession before he can sue for partition. Section 65 of the Code of Civil Procedure is clear; it clearly vests the property in the purchaser on the date of sale. It nowhere says that in order that title should vest possession should be taken.

[WALLIS, C. J.—Suppose he does not want possession at all?]

Mr. T. Rangachariar:—That is only an additional remedy; it may be useless to him, it is an unnecessary formality. Lutchmiput Singh v. The Land Mortgage Bank of India Ltd. (1).

Mr. S. T. Srinivasagopalachary, for the Respondent:—Latchmiput Singh v. The Land Mortgage Bank of India Ltd. (1) is the case of a stranger purchaser.

Mr. T. Rangachariar:—A stranger purchaser may avail himself of rule 95 or 96 but he is not bound to do so; that is the reason why Article 137 or 138 gives 12 years to bring a suit from the date of sale. You can sue for sale from the date of confirmation.

[WALLIS, C. J.—But he must have a right of suit.]

Mr. T. Rangachariar:—If section 47 bars him, he cannot bring a suit.

[WALLIS, C. J.—Here it is a decree-holder purchaser.]

Mr. T. Rangachariar.—But he wants only the more effective remedy which he cannot get. In Yelumalai Chetty v. Srinivasa Chetty (2), the purchaser actually applied for possession under section 318, which was actually dismissed; the remedy he now seeks he cannot have and that is not necessary to complete his title. The whole question is how the title is extinguished, that is, the right of a suit is barred. In a suit for partition all members must be made parties.

Then as to limitation. Article 137 is the Article applied by the lower Court.

[WALLIS, C. J.—The Judge has not found there was an ouster.]

Articles 137 does not apply. Article 138 does not apply, except when the defendant is the judgment-debtor. In Khiroda Kanta Roy v. Krishna Das Laha (3), it is laid down that Article 138 has no application to a case where the person did not derive title from the judgment-debtor: Lakshman Vinayak Kulkarni v. Bisan Singh (4); Lakshman v. Moru (5); Namdev v. Ramachandra Gomaji Murwadi (6); Gopal v. Krishna Rao (7); Bhagwant Singh v. Bhola Singh (8).

Articles 141, 142 will not apply; Article 144, too, will not; it must be shown that possession was adverse.

The whole contention before the lower Court was, which Article applied, Article 137 or Article 144.

Mr. S. T. Sreenivasagopalachari, for the Respondent.—The whole question is whether a separate suit will lie. Section 47 of the Code of Civil Procedure bars the present suit.

Article 138 of the Limitation Act clearly says that he must be in possession. It is clear that he must be deemed to be in posses-

(1) 14 C. 464.

(2) 29 M. 294.
(3) 6 Ind. Cas. 467; 12 C. L. J. 378.
(4) 15 B. 261.
(5) 16 B. 722.
(6) 18 B. 37.
(7) 25 B. 275; 2 Bom. L. R. 1021.
(8) 18 Ind. Cas. 465; 35 A. 432; 11 A. L. J. 642.

sion when he could have applied for possession.

Mr. T. Rangachariar, in reply.

JUDGMENT.

WALLIS, C. J.—The plaintiffs in this case claim under an assignment from the auction-purchaser at an execution sale of the 1st defendant's interest in certain property, which was in the enjoyment of the 1st and 2nd defendants as tenants-in-common. The sale took place on the 16th March 1898 and was confirmed on the 21st April 1898, and the sale certificate issued on the 22nd April 1898. The present suit was brought on the 15th April 1910, but it was only when it was amended on the 15th October 1910, that it became a suit to enforce the plaintiff's rights as representatives of the auction-purchaser to partition the property to which they were entitled as tenants-in-common with the 2nd defendant. This date, therefore, must be regarded as the date of instituting the suit. The Subordinate Judge has dismissed the suit, as barred under section 47 of the Code of Civil Procedure, on the ground that possession was never obtained under Order XXI, rule 96 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 (section 318 of the old Code). It is unnecessary to consider whether the section is applicable to a case where the judgment-debtor whose interest was purchased was in joint possession with a third party, because I think that the title having vested in the plaintiffs' assignor under section 65 and Order XXI, rule 94, they were entitled to bring the present suit without obtaining any formal delivery of possession. The decision in Yelumalai Chetty v. Srinivasa Chetty (2) was to this effect and it was the duty of the Subordinate Judge to follow it instead of indulging in idle speculations as to section 318 not having been present to the mind of the learned Judges who decided that case. That decision is also in accordance with Khiroda Kanta Roy v. Krishna Das Laha (3), Ramlakhan Rai v. Gajadhar Rai (Gajadhar Rai v. Ramlakhan Rai) (9) and Bhagwant Singh v. Bhola Singh (8). The Subordinate Judge has also held that the suit is barred under Article 137 of the Limitation Act, here again disregarding the recent ruling of this Court in Durrada Hari Kristna Chowdhary v. Sripada Venkata Lakshmi Narayana (10) that Article 144 was the Article applicable, a decision which it was his duty to follow. It has not been attempted to support the Subordinate Judge's decision that the suit was barred under Article 137, as clearly at the date of the sale the judgment-debtor was not out of possession within the meaning of the Article. It has, however, been contended that as he was then in possession with the 2nd defendant as tenant-in-common, he was in possession at the date of the sale with him within the meaning of Article 138 and that that Article applies.

Now apart from Yelumalai Chetty v. Srinivasa Chetty (2), there is authority for holding that Article 138 will not apply when the defendant does not claim through or under the judgment-debtor. Khiroda Kanta Roy v. Krishna Das Laha (3), Bhagwant Singh v. Bhola Singh (8). Here the 2nd defendant is not a person claiming through the judgment-debtor, the 1st defendant, and, therefore Article 144 and not Article 138 would be the Article applicable. I am, therefore, not prepared to differ from the decision in Yelumalai Chetty v. Srinivasa Chetty (2) and would allow the appeal, reverse the decree, give the plaintiffs a preliminary decree for partition and remand the case to the lower Court for disposal according to law.

SESHAGIRI AIYAR, J.—One Ramaswami Iyengar obtained a decree against the 1st defendant and brought the plaint properties to sale and purchased them himself. Peer Mohideen, from whom the plaintiffs in this suit derive title, purchased the properties from the said Ramaswami Iyengar under Exhibit B on the 11th July 1898. Ramaswami Iyengar obtained his sale certificate under the Court sale on the 22nd April 1898 (Exhibit A). The 2nd defendant is the brother of the 1st defendant and the other defendants claim under the 2nd defendant. The plaintiffs sue for a partition of the properties and for the allotment of a half share to them. The defendants raised various pleas on the merits; they were all found against them by the Subordinate (9) 5 Ind. Cas. 273; 33 A. 224.

(10) 5 Ind. Cas. 491; 34 M. 402; 7 M. L. T. 155; 20 M. L. J. 323; (1910) M. W. N. 555.

Judge. but he dismissed the plaintiff's suit on two grounds, namely, that the suit was not maintainable by reason of section 47 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that it was barred by limitation under Article 137 of the Limitation Act. In appeal Mr. Rangachariar contends that the lower Court is wrong on both the points.

I wish at the outset to point out that both the questions are covered by the decisions of this Court. In Yelumalai Chetty v. Srinivasa Chetty (2) Subramania Aiyar and Benson, JJ., held under similar circumstances that the suit was not affected by section 244 of the old Code, which corresponds to section 47 of the new Code. As regards the question of limitation, Sir Arnold White, C. J., and Munro, J., held that the proper Article applicable to suits of this nature is Article 144. The Subordinate Judge before whom these two cases were quoted, instead of following them, indulges in some criticism regarding their correctness. As I shall show presently the two decisions of this Court are perfectly sound. Even if it were otherwise, it was the duty of the Subordinate Judge to have followed them.

Now upon the first question as to whether section 47 bars the suit, Mr. Srinivasagopalachariar contended that, as the purchaser in the Court sale and his successor-in-title did not take steps under Order XXI, rule 96 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the plaintiffs were not entitled to maintain the suit. The contention of the learned Counsel amounts to this: that before the title under the sale certificate could be perfected, it was necessary to have applied for delivery of such possession as the Civil Procedure Code contemplates. I am unable to agree with this contention. Two courses are open to a purchaser at a Court sale. He may choose to avail himself of the remedy given to him by the Code of Civil Procedure and seek for such possession as he can obtain under the Code; or he may ignore the provisions of the Code and stand upon his general rights of prosecuting his claim by instituting a suit. It is conceded that under Order XXI, rule 96, partition cannot be obtained. It is also conceded that the 2nd defendant cannot be compelled by proceedings in execution to give one-half of the property to the auction-purchaser. But it is argued that as the 1st defendant, the judgment-debtor, is a party to the present suit, section 47 stands in the way of the plaintiffs obtaining their rights. I feel no hesitation in holding that that section does not apply to cases where the effectual remedy is to be obtained against persons who were not parties to the previous litigation That was the view taken by this Court in Yelumalai Chetty v. Srinivasa Chetty (2). The decisions reported as Kattayat Pathumayi v. Raman Menon (11) and Sandhu Taraganar v. Hussain Sahib (12) are not against this conclusion. In these cases the only person against whom relief was sought was the judgment-debtor himself; section 244 was rightly held applicable to such cases. Kishori Mohun Roy Chowdhry v. Chunder Nath Pal (13) is in accordance with this Court's decision. As was pointed out by Petheram, C. J., in that case, "though there may be a remedy under section 318 (corresponding to rule 96) which the auction-purchaser may put in force, still the ordinary remedies are open to him notwithstanding, and the remedies are concurrent." I entirely agree with this statement of the law. It is not necessary in this case to consider whether the auction purchaser, when he happens to be the decree-holder, can be said to be a party to the suit. Different Courts have taken different views upon that point. In Madras there has been a long course of decisions which establishes that, where property is purchased at a Court sale by the decree-holder, he does not lose his status as a party to the suit. Even on that view the present contention cannot be said to arise between parties to the suit, because, as I have said before, the real remedy is sought against the 2nd defendant, the 1st defendant being only pro forma; as the 2nd defendant was not impleaded in the former litigation, section 47 is not a bar to the maintainability of this suit. Moreover, I am of opinion, although it is not necessary to express any definite conclusion on the point, that rule 96 has no application to cases of co-tenants. The rule itself speaks of the possession of tenants and others entitled to possession. These latter words would prima facie apply only to persons who claim possession in their own right, and not to those who are entitled to hold possession for themselves and for others.

(11) 26 M. 740; 13 M. L. J 237.
(12) 28 M 87; '4 M. L. J. 474.
(13) '4 C. 644.

Upon the second question all the Courts are agreed that Article 144 of the Limitation Act applies to a suit for partition between tenants-in-common, although the tenant has acquired his right by purchase at a Court auction. At first sight, I was impressed by the argument of Mr. Srinivasagopalachariar that the language of the Article 138 does not support the construction that in order to attract its provisions, the suit must be only against the judgment-debtor. But it has been considered in Lakshman Vinayak Kulkarni v. Bisan Singh (4), that unless the party resisting possession is either the judgment-debtor or somebody deriving title from him, the proper Article applicable will be 144.

The language of the latter Article is more comprehensive and would cover all cases where adverse possession is set up. Although it is true that Article 144 being the residuary Article should only be resorted to where there is no specific provision in the other Articles of the Act, it seems to me that the two Articles would overlap each other unless the earlier one is confined in its operation to suits against judgment-debtors alone, and the latter made to apply to other cases of adverse possession. There is the authority of Mookerjee, J., in Khiroda Kanta Roy v. Krishna Das Laha (3), in support of this proposition. Gopal v. Krishna Rao (7) is also to the same effect. The latest case upon the point is Bhagwant Singh v. Bhola Singh (8). The decision in Duvvada Hari Kristna Chowdhary v. Sripada Venkata Lakshmi Narayana (10) must be taken to have adopted this series of decisions in the other Courts. I am, therefore, of opinion that Article 144 applies to this suit. If it does, there can be no question of adverse possession, because the possession of one co-tenant is the possession of all persons entitled as tenants-in-common; and unless and until the co-tenant in possession sets up notoriously a right adverse to the other claimants there can be no adverse possession. Even if Article 138 applies, I am of opinion that having regard to the acknowledgment of right made by the 1st defendant in Exhibits F and K in 1898 and 1902 respectively the suits will not be barred by limitation. It is necessary to point out that the Subordinate Judge's view that Article 137 applies was not sought to be supported in this Court. Mr. Srinivasagopalachariar based his argument on Article 138.

The decree of the Subordinate Judge must be reversed and a preliminary decree for partition must be passed in this Court. The case will be remanded to the lower Court for passing a final decree. The costs will abide the result.

Decree reversed; Case remanded.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 348 OF 1913.

April 7, 1915.

Present:—Sir Henry Richards, KT., Chief Justice, and Justice Sir P. C. Banerji, KT.

DWARKA PRASAD—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

RAJA RAM AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 25—Instalment bond—Hindi date mentioned in bond—True test as to when limitation begins to run.

A mortgage bond executed on the 24th of July 1892 provided that the money due under it should be paid in eight yearly instalments. Each instalment had to be paid on Magh Sudi Puranmashi of each year. The last payment was to be made on Magh Sudi Puranmashi, 1956 corresponding to 14th of February 1900:

Held, that a suit on the bond brought on the 19th of July 1912 was barred by limitation and that section 25 of the Limitation Act did not apply to the case. [p. 981, cols. 1 & 2.]

Latifun-nissa v. Dhan Kunwar, 24 C. 382, referred to.

The true test in a case of this kind is on what date was the plaintiff entitled to demand his money, if payment was not made of any instalment fixed in the bond [p. 981, col. 1.]

First appeal from the decision of the Subordinate Judge of Allahabad, dated 24th April 1914.

The Hon'ble Dr. Sundar Lal, for the Appellant.

Mr. M. L. Agarwala, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit brought by the plaintiffs to enforce payment of money due upon a mortgage executed on the 24th of July 1892. The question to be considered is whether the claim of the plaintiffs, which was instituted on the 19th of July 1912, is or is not time-barred. The bond provides that the amount secured by it should be paid in eight years "in this way that we shall pay interest on the whole amount aforesaid at the rate of twelve annas per cent. per mensem and also Rs. 500 out of the principal on Puranmashi of Magh Sudi of each year. The first instalment of interest and that of principal shall be payable on Puranmashi of Magh Sudi 1949 Sambat. Similarly the instalment of principal and interest shall be payable each year on Puranmashi of Magh Sudi. We the debtors shall pay without objection interest on the whole of the remaining amount and Rs. 500 out of the principal year by year." There is a further clause in the bond that in case of default in the payment of three instalments, the creditors would be entitled to realise the whole amount secured by the bond without waiting for the other instalments.

Two contentions have been raised before us. The first is that default having been made in the payment of instalments, the whole of the amount of the bond became due when default was made in the payment of the third instalment, and accordingly calculating limitation from the date of that default the claim is time-barred. The second contention is that in any event the whole amount of the bond was re-payable on Magh Sudi Puranmashi 1956, corresponding to the 14th of February 1900, and as the suit was brought after twelve years from that date, it is equally barred by limitation.

Holding the view that we do on the second point, it is unnecessary to refer to the first point. We are of opinion that having regard to the terms of the bond the amount of it became payable at the latest on Magh Sudi Puranmashi of 1956, that is to say, the date on which the eighth instalment was payable. It is true that in the earlier part of the bond it is said that the debt was to be re-paid in eight years but this is qualified by the clause which follows, namely, the clause stating how the eight years were to be calculated. The true test in a case of this kind is on what date were the plaintiffs entitled to demand their money if payment was not made of the eight instalments fixed in the bond. If default was made on Magh Sudi Puranmashi 1956, corresponding to the 14th of February 1900, there can be no doubt that the creditors would be entitled to demand their money on the expiry of that date, and it would be no answer to their demand for the money to say that they were bound to wait till the expiry of eight years calculated from the date of the bond according to the English Calendar. The whole question turns upon the intention of the parties and it seems to us that in this case the intention clearly was that payment of the instalments was to be made on the Hindi dates mentioned in the bond, and that the last payment was to be made on the date on which the eighth instalment was payable, namely, on Magh Sudi Puranmashi 1956, corresponding to the 14th of February 1900. In this view section 25 of the Limitation Act has no application to a case of this kind.

The learned Counsel for the respondents relied on the case of Latif-un-nissa v. Dhan Kunwar (1) and the cases referred to therein.

The provisions of the bond in that case are not identical with those of the bond before us, and even in that case Mr. Justice Ameer Ali was of opinion that section 25 of the Limitation Act did not apply. He concurred with his learned colleague as there were doubts as to what the intention of the parties was under the document in that case.

In our opinion the suit of the plaintiffs is time-barred and ought to have been dismissed. We accordingly allow the appeal, set aside the decree of the Court below and dismiss the suit with costs in both Courts.

Appeal allowed.

(1) 24 C. 382.

ELICHI USSACK v. RAMASWAMI IYER.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

APPEAL SUIT NO. 57 OF 1912.

February 23, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sankaran Nair and Mr. Justice Oldfield.

ELICHI USSACK AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

RAMASWAMI IYER AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Merger—Mortgage—Hypothecation bonds—Account settled—Agreement to sell certain portion—Suit on bonds, maintainability of—Remedy of plaintiff.

The defendants mortgaged certain properties to the plaintiffs and also hypothecated the same for certain sums on different dates. On a suit on the hypothecation bonds it was found that a settlement of accounts between the parties had been arrived at and it had been agreed that a certain portion of the property should be sold for the amount due to the plaintiffs. The defendants were still ready to perform the agreement:

Held, that the suit was not maintainable as under the circumstances the only course open to the plaintiff was to sue for specific performance of the contract to sell. [p.983, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the Sub-Judge of South Malabar, at Calicut, in Original Suit No. 36 of 1910.

FACTS.—A suit was brought on three hypothecation. bonds Prior to this there was an usufructuary mortgage for Rs. 30,000. The parties subsequently entered into an agreement by which the whole amount due to the mortgagees was fixed at Rs. 60,500. The mortgagees brought a suit upon the hypothecation bonds alone, ignoring the agreement. It was contended for the mortgagors that the suit would not lie upon the hypothecation bonds alone, since the debt had been merged in the subsequent agreement. The Subordinate Judge of South Malabar decreed the plaintiffs' suit, subject to the usufructuary mortgage. Hence this appeal by the defendants.

Mr. K. Govinda Marar, for the Appellants.

Messrs. T. R. Ramachandra Aiyar, T. R. Krishnaswami Aiyar and T. S. Narayana Aiyar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMEMT.—This is an appeal against the decree of the Sub-Judge of Calicut directing the defendants to pay the plaintiffs a sum of Rs. 51,801-3-2 and in default directing the mortgaged properties to be sold. The representatives of the family of defendants Nos. 1 to 8 mortgaged certain properties to the deceased Sankunani Iyer, the predecessor-in-title of the plaintiffs for a sum of Rs. 30,000 on the 24th July 1882. They subsequently hypothecated the same properties to the same creditor for Rs. 5,000 on the same date (Exhibit A), for another sum of Rs. 5,000 on 11th April 1882 (Exhibit B) and for Rs. 7,000 on 22nd September 1882 (Exhibit C.) They acknowledge the receipt of Rs. 4,154-10-0 and sue to recover the money due under these three instruments of mortgage, Exhibits A, B and C. The main defence is that the plaintiffs are not entitled to sue on these hypothecation bonds, because in July 1886 there was a settlement of accounts between the parties and it was agreed that the amount of Rs. 60,000 was payable under Exhibits A, B and C under the usufructuary mortgage-deed and in settlement of certain other transactions which are not in question in this suit. It was also agreed that the defendants were to sell to the plaintiffs a portion of the properties included in these instruments. The defendants say that they are still willing to carry out the agreement and that the suit is, therefore, not maintainable.

The Sub-Judge found that so far as the settlement of accounts is concerned, it is binding on the parties and the plaintiffs are, therefore, entitled to recover only the amounts then agreed upon. But he was of opinion that the agreement for sale cannot now be carried out, as certain arbitrators who were appointed by that agreement to carry out some of the terms of that agreement are now dead. He was, therefore, of opinion that the plaintiffs are precluded from suing for the entire sums payable under Exhibits A, B and C, that they have, however, a right to sue for the sale of the plaint properties for the sums fixed by Exhibit D and the original of Exhibit T, the agreement of 1886, and the interest on the principal at Rs. 5 per. cent per annum. He, therefore, passed a preliminary mortgage-decree directing the sale of the properties for Rs. 53,841-10-8, the amount due under Exhibits A, B and C, subject to the usufructuary mortgage of Rs. 30,000.

The lower Court's decree is clearly unsustainable and is not in accordance with the judgment. On the finding that plaintiffs are precluded from suing to recover the amounts due under Exhibits A, B and C and that they have a right only to recover the amount due under Exhibits D and T, that is, in accordance with the agreement subsequently entered into between the parties settling the amount payable by the defendants, no decree should have been based on Exhibits A, B and C. If the subsequent agreement settling the amounts due by the defendants not only under these hypothecation instruments but also under the prior usufructuary mortgage, is valid, then the plaintiffs are only entitled to recover the amount of money then settled. The amount cannot be apportioned as between the hypothecation instruments and usufructuary mortgage-deed. Apparently realising this difficulty, the learned Pleader for the respondents attempts to support the decree on the ground that the entire agreement is incapable of specific performance and, therefore, inoperative and, therefore, he is entitled to fall back on the three instruments of mortgage now sued upon. The defendants retained possession of the properties after the usufructuary mortgage for Rs. 30,000 on executing a lease promising to pay to the plaintiffs (mortgagees) an annual rent of Rs. 4,000. They failed to pay the rent due. Accordingly the mortgagees obtained a decree for possession in Original Suit No. 24 of 1893 with arrears of rent. There were apparently certain disputes between the parties and it was under the circumstances that the agreement now in question was entered into. See Exhibit T, dated 19th July 1886. It recites that the parties have settled all disputes between them including the amounts payable under the lease, that the defendants withdrew all their claims and disputes regarding the properties and that the amount due to the mortgagee was fixed at Rs. 60,000. An additional sum of Rs. 500 was then borrowed from the creditor and for this sum of Rs. 60,500 the defendants agreed to sell to him so much of the plaint properties as will, in the estimation of three arbitrators therein named, yield him an interest at Rs. 5 per cent. on the amount then found due. Subsequently another agreement was entered into on 18th August 1887, confirming the prior agreement and it recited that as one of the arbitrators mentioned in Exhibit T was found to be an incompetent man, the defendants would find another man as arbitrator in his place. They borrowed an additional sum of Rs. 2,000 subject to the same conditions as were mentioned in the 1st agreement D. In 1889 when a member of defendants' family, who was a minor at the time of the execution of these documents, Exhibits D and T, attempted to set it aside the plaintiff maintained their validity, see Exhibit IV, and in 1904 in a partition-deed executed amongst the members themselves the amount due from the defendants was stated to be Rs. 62,500, that is, the amounts payable under Exhibits D and T. The plaintiffs have obtained the full benefit of the agreement for sale. They are in possession of all the properties, whereas what was sold to them was only a portion of such properties. They could not in any event get any property under Exhibits D and T in addition to what is included in these agreements for the amount that is payable to them; whereas if they got a decree now for the amounts that might be found to be due on the bonds as prayed for by them, the result will be that they will get not only the properties in these instruments of mortgage, Exhibits D and T, but will also be entitled to sell other properties of the defendants. For the amount as settled no interest is payable, as the mortgagee is in possession of the land and the plaintiffs are now entitled to recover only the principal amount under Exhibits D and T in substitution of the sums under the usufructuary mortgage and the hypothecation bonds and the other liabilities then dealt with. There is no evidence that the plaintiffs ever repudiated the agreement; whereas they acknowledged the binding character even in 1904. The defendants now accept that agreement and are willing to abide by it. It is doubtful whether the only question that remains to be settled between the parties for the specific performance of the contract, that is, the ascertainment of the properties which would yield interest at 5 per cent. for the amount payable, is not a matter that should be settled by the Court if any dispute arose between the parties themselves. We are not, therefore, prepared to assume for this reason the agreement is now incapable of specific performance. We think the proper course for the plaintiffs to follow in the circumstances of the case is to sue for specific performance, or in the alternative for a decree for the recovery of Rs. 62,500 due under Exhibits D and T. The suit now brought is only upon the three instruments of mortgage; that the entire agreement is incapable of specific performance is not a question that is in issue and tried by the Court below. Whether the entire agreement is incapable of specific performance or not, it is not now open to the plaintiffs to re-open the accounts which have been settled. It will be difficult at this distance of time to ascertain the amount which was payable at that time by the parties respectively. The defendants gave up at the time of the settlement, as cited in Exhibit T, the questions that they had raised with reference to the lands in the suit They cannot be restored to their old position and the plaintiffs are estopped from re-opening the accounts so settled; and if that settlement of accounts is binding, the plaintiffs are not entitled to maintain a suit for the recovery of the amounts due under Exhibits A, B and C. In either view, therefore, the plaintiffs' suit fails. We, therefore, reverse the decree of the lower Court and dismiss the plaintiffs' suit. As the defendants did not take any steps for the ascertainment of the value of the lands, we direct each party to bear his own costs.

Appeal allowed; Suit dismissed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 293 OF 1913.

April 6, 1915.

Present:—Sir Henry Richards, KT., Chief Justice, and Justice Sir P. C. Banerji. KT.,

ROBERT WILLIAM ANDERSON—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT.

versus

THE BANK OF UPPER INDIA, LTD.—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Mortgage—Construction—Good-will and stock-in-trade mortgaged—Stock acquired after mortgage, if effected.

A certain person mortgaged the good-will and the stock-in-trade of his business. A list of the stock-intrade was scheduled to the mortgage-deed. There was a clause in the deed that the stock-in-trade would not be transferred. The scheduled stock was as a matter of fact, subsequently, sold and was re-placed by another:

Held, that the stock-in-trade which was acquired after the mortgage was not affected by the mortgage. [p. 986, col. 2.]

Topfield v. Hillman, (1843) 134 E. R. 883; 6 Man. & G. 245; 6 Scott (N. R.) 967; 12 L. J. C. P. 311; 7 Jur. 771, followed.

Coltman v. Chamberlain, (1890) 59 L. J. Q. B. 563; 39 W. R. 12; 25 Q. B. D. 328, referred to.

First appeal from a decree of the Subordinate Judge of Bareilly.

The Hon'ble Dr. Sundar Lal, for the Appellant.

Messrs. B. E. O'Conor and P. N. Banerji, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit brought by the Bank of Upper India claiming that they might be put into possession of the chattels, goods, stock-in-trade, book-debts, securities and moneys and the business belonging to a firm of merchants carrying on business under the style of Burton & Co. at Bareilly, or in the alternative that the Bank should have a decree for the sum of Rs. 18,839-5-6 against the defendants jointly and severally and that in default of payment the business should be sold for the realisation of their debt.

The Court below has given the plaintiff Bank a decree directing the defendants to pay the sum of Rs. 18,839-5-6 together with interest and costs, and further that in the event of the amount in the hands of the Receiver (who had already been appointed) not being sufficient to pay the plaintiff's decree, the Receiver should call for tenders and sell the business of Messrs. Burton & Co. with the "good-will". etc., as a going concern.

We are informed that in execution of this decree the business has been sold as a going concern.

The defendant Robert William Anderson has appealed. The Bank's claim is based on a deed, dated the 11th of August 1911, executed by the defendant Graham in favour of the Bank of Upper India. The document commences by reciting that the said Graham was indebted to the Bank and other persons and required a loan of Rs. 11,000. Then follows a covenant to re-pay the Rs. 11,000 by instalments. There is a clause which provides "if for the preservation of the security hereby created it be necessary for the said Bank to make any advance or to incur any other charge, such advance or charge shall form part of this loan and be subject to the same stipulation about interest." The document then proceeds as follows: "and this indentu e further witnesseth that for the due re-payment of the money due under these presents and other charges as above specified and interest or botlr as above stated and agreed upon, the said mortgagor doth hereby mortgage unto the said Bank, its executors and administrators and assigns all and singular the several chattels, goods, stock-in-trade and things specially described in the schedule hereto annexed. by way of security for the re-payment of the loan and interest and charges thereon as stipulated above. Further he, the mortgagor, as beneficial owner doth hereby mortgage unto the said Bank, its executors, administrators or assigns all the beneficial interest of the said business of Messrs. Burton & Co. with the fixtures appertaining thereto and also all the book-debts and other debts now due and owing to the said Percy Huburt Graham or Messrs. Burton & Co. upon account or in respect of the said trade or business and all securities for the same, to hold the same unto the said Bank, its executors, administrators or assigns for securing payment of the loan and interest thereon as stipulated." There is a further clause authorising the Bank in the event of default to take over the property mortgaged. (This power was admittedly never exercised). There was a further clause mortgaging or charging a certain policy of insurance of the life of the said Percy Huburt Graham and finally a clause (hopelessly inconsistent with the entire object of the deed) that the mortgagor would not alienate any of the property mortgaged during the continuance of the security. Attached to this deed is a schedule of the goods which formed the stock-in-trade of Graham's business at the time of the mortgage.

The appellant, Anderson, who was connected by marriage with Graham, got a deed from the latter on the 31st of August 1912. This document recites that Graham was indebted to Anderson in the sum of Rs. 22,854. This sum was made up of Rs. 15,000 advanced at the time in cash, Rs. 3,750, promissory notes executed in favour of Anderson by Graham, Rs. 1,654, a decree against Graham by a creditor, and Rs. 2,450 a debt due by Graham to another firm. This document provided for interest on the Rs. 15,000 at seven per cent. It gave Anderson power to take possession of all the stock-in-trade in the business. It provided that the stock-in-trade should be kept fully replenished and all new stock which was brought in should be regarded and treated as being pawned to secure the debt. This document was followed by another document, dated the 31st of August 1912, which provided for the carrying on of the business by Graham as a manager at a salary of Rs. 200 per month, and a man of the name of Norton (who also was connected with both Anderson and Graham by marriage) should be an assistant at a salary. The deed finally provided that as soon as all debts and incumbrances had been discharged, the business should belong to Graham, Anderson and to two Nortons in certain specified shares.

There was considerable controversy in the Court below as to whether Anderson had notice of the Bank's mortgage when he made the further advance of Rs. 15,000 and got the documents of the 31st of August 1912 executed in his favour. The Court below has found that he had notice but having regard to the view we take of the case, it is quite unnecessary for us to come to any decision on the question of notice. It is contended on behalf of the appellant that all that was mortgaged by the Bank's mortgage of the 11th of August 1911 were (1) the articles which are specified and set forth in the schedule to the deed; (2) the good-will and (3) the book-debts actually due at the time, that at the time of the mortgage, and certainly at the time the Receiver took possession of the property, all the goods which were mentioned in the schedule had long before been sold in the ordinary course of business and that the plaintiff's security did not attach to any goods that might have been subsequently purchased. (The appellant makes no claim to the policy of insurance.) The appellant contends that under the terms of his indenture he was entitled to enter into possession of the business and to carry it on, that all profits made during that time, or subsequently by the Receiver, belong to him, and that the proceeds of the sale, which is said to have taken place in execution of the decree, also belonged to him. He finally contends that in no event ought there to have been a personal decree against him.

On behalf of the respondent it is contended that on the true construction of the indenture of the 11th of August 1911, any stock in-trade which was purchased to re-place the articles specified in the schedule must be regarded as part of the Bank's security, and that accordingly they are entitled to all profits in the hands of the Receiver as well as to the entire proceeds of the sale.

In our opinion it is absolutely clear that the goods and chattels described in the schedule alone were mortgaged. We think that the good-will of the business was also mortgaged. Mr. O'Conor on behalf of the respondent has cited the case of Coltman v. Chamberlain (1). That was a case of mortgage of a "ship and in her boats, guns, ammunitions, small arms and appurtenances." The question arose as to whether sundry articles of ship's furniture purchased after the date of the mortgage were included in the security. It was held on the construction of the mortgage in that case that all these articles passed under the mortgage of the "ship" or as "appurtenant" thereto.

A case much more like the present is the case of Tapfield v. Hillman (2). In that case there was a mortgage of an inn together with "the furniture, stock-in-trade in, about, upon or belonging to the Inn," with a power on non-payment to the mortgagee to enter into possession of the in nand "to take, possess, hold and enjoy all the goods, chattels, effects and premises." The question arose as to whether or not stock-in-trade and goods acquired after the date of the mortgage were covered by the deed. Pattison, J., at the trial held that on the true construction of the deed only the stock-in-trade existing at the date of the mortgage was pledged. Tindal, C. J., Coltman, J., Maule, J., and Cresswell, J., all concurred in holding that the after-acquired stock- n-trade was not subject to the mortgage. Coltman, J., s ys "It is not improbable that the parties intended that the security of the mortgagees should extend to the stock and effects brought upon the premises from time to time to re-place that which was disposed of and consumed by the plaintiff in the course of his business. We can, however, only look to the language of the deed, which clearly is not sufficient to include property not on the premises at the time the deed was executed."

If then the plaintiff's mortgage in the present case did not attach to the subsequently acquired stock, the Bank had no right to bring anything but the "good-will" to sale, and the question whether or not Anderson had notice of their mortgage became quite immaterial. In our opinion the plaintiff Bank are not entitled to the profits in the hands of the Receiver, nor are they entitled to any portion of the proceeds of the sale, save so far as the same are attributable to or represent the "good-will" of the business. In our opinion, also, the Bank are not entitled to a personal decree against the appellant.

It is unnecessary to decide the question of the amount to realise which the Bank were entitled to bring the mortgaged property to sale. It seems to us more than doubtful that they were entitled to add to their debt any sum that was not strictly paid or advanced for the purpose of preserving their security. e. g., premium paid to keep up the policy of insurance.

Before passing a final order in the case we think it desirable to refer an issue to the Court below, namely, "what portion, if any, of the proceeds of the sale represents the value of the good-will."

Issue referred.

(1) (1890) 59 L. J. Q. B. 463; 25 Q. B. D. 328; 39 W. R. 12.

(2) (1843) 6 Man. & G. 245; 6 Scott (N. R.) 967; 12 L. J. C. P. 311; 7 Jur. 771; 134 E. R. 883.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 206 OF 1914.

April 12, 1915.

Present: Sir Henry Richards, KT., Chief Justice, and Justice Sir P. C. Banerjee, KT.

HANSRAJ—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

RATNI—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 62—Principal and agent—Receipt of money after termination of agency—Money had and received.

Where an agent receives money due to the principal after the termination of his agency, a suit to recover the same must be brought within three years from the time of the receipt as money had and received. [p. 987, col. 1.]

KHESHTRAPAL SHARMA v. PANCHAM SINGH VARMA.

Second appeal from the decree of the District Judge of Saharanpur.

Dr. Surendra Nath Sen, for the Appellant.

Mr. Jawahar Lal Nehru, for Mr. Moti Lal Nehru, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit in which the plaintiff prayed for an account of certain income which the defendant is alleged to have received as her agent and for a decree for the amount of such income when ascertained, and also for the recovery of papers and books containing the names of jajmans. The plaintiff's case was that her husband was a Ganga-purohit at Hardwar, that on his death she handed over the books, etc., to the defendant, who undertook to make use of them as her agent and to pay her over the income which was derived from pilgrims. There had been previous litigation between the parties commencing in the year 1905 and finally decided by the High Court in 1910. The decision was altogether favourable to the plaintiff, who was held to be entitled to the books and to the amount received by the defendant. The present suit was instituted on the 10th of February 1911. The relief claimed is substantially the same as that claimed in the previous suit, the difference being that an account was claimed for the period between the institution of the previous suit and the commencing of the present.

Both Courts have hell in favour of the plaintiff. On the general merits we entirely agree with the decision of the Court below. As to the decree, however, we feel that it must be modified. The plaintiff had determined any agency which existed between her and the defendant in the year 1905. From that time on the defendant in no way collected the ncome as the agent of the plaintiff. He did not hold himself out as her agent; on the contrary he was insisting upon collecting the income on his own behalf, wrongly making use of the books which contained the names of the pilgrims. In our opinion the only form of the suit in which the plaintiff is entitled to relief is for money had and received by the defendant for her use. Article 62 of the Limitation Act provides that such a suit must be brought within three years from the time of the receipt of the money. We must accordingly modify the decree of the Court below by directing that the accounts shall be limited to an acount of the income received three years before the institution of the present suit. In all other respects we affirm the decree of the Court below. As the appeal has substantially failed, the appellant must pay the costs of the respondent.

Decree modified.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION NO. 148 OF 1914.

May 7, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Chamier and Mr. Justice Piggott.

KHESHTRAPAL SHARMA—PLAINTIFF—APPLICANT

versus

PANCHAM SINGH VARMA—DEFENDANT RESPONDENT.

Trade-mark, infringement of—Advertisement—Publication of advertisements—Cause of action—Jurisdiction.

A trade-mark can be infringed by means of advertisement. The cause of action for such infringement arises partly where the advertisement is published and distributed [p. 988, col. 1.]

Civil revision from an order of the District Judge of Agra.

The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru (with him Mr. Moti Lal Nehru), for the Applicant.

The Hon'ble Dr. Sundar Lal, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an application for revision of an order of the District Judge of Agra, confirming an order of the Subordinate Judge of Muttra directing that the plaint be returned to the plaintiff for presentation to the proper Court. The suit was one by the applicant for damages on account of alleged infringement by the defendant of the applicant's trade-mark. The applicant has for a considerable time been selling a medicine under the name of Sudha Sindhu which, we understand, means 'Ocean of nectar' in the course of his business at Muttra. He sells chiefly on V.-P. P. orders received in response to advertisements which he puts in the papers. The respondent, who is a resident of Gaya, sells a medicine which he calls Asli Sudha Sindhu in the same way. The applicant's case is that his trade-mark which h s been duly registered has been infringed by the respondents. The alleged infringement is an advertisement of the respondent's medicine in papers published in Muttra and in circulars and hand-bills distributed in the same place. The Courts below have held that the suit should have been brought in Gaya. They have treated it as a question of convenience rather than as a question of law. But if the applicant can show that the cause of action arose wholly or in part within the limits of the jurisdiction of the Subordinate Judge of Muttra, he is entitled to maintain his suit in Muttra. The question is whether the publication of the advertisement by the respondent of his medicine, Asli Sudha Sindhu, in papers, hand-bills and circulars published in Muttra is an infringement of the applicant's trade-mark. For the purpose of this application we must, of course, assume that the applicant is entitled to the trade-mark which he claims and that the respondent's advertisement is calculated to induce people to believe that they will get from him the applicant's evidence. No authority has been produced in support of the argument that such an advertisement cannot be an infringement of the trade-mark. On the other hand several English cases have been cited which show that it has been held for some years past that a trade-mark may be infringed by means of an advertisement. We think it is sufficient to refer to decisions in Jay v. Ladler (1), Bourne v. Swan and Edgar Limited (2), and to the injunction which was issued by the House of Lords in the case of Reddaway v. Banham (3). On the authorities we must hold that if the facts are as alleged by the applicant, his trade-mark has been infringed within the jurisdiction of the Subordinate Judge of Muttra. We, therefore, allow this application, set aside the orders of the Courts below and direct that the record be returned to the Court of first instance and the suit restored to the pending file to be disposed of according to law. Costs here and hereto will be costs in the cause.

Application allowed.

(1) (1888) 40 Ch. D. 649; 60 L. T. 27; 37 W. R. 505.

(2) (1903) 1 Ch. 211; 72 L. J. Ch. 168; 51 W. R. 213; 87 L. T. 589; 19 T. L. R. 59; 20 R. P. C. 105.

(3) (1896) A. C. 199; 65 L. J. Q. B. 381; 74 L. T. 289; 44 W. R. 638.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 24 OF 1915.

April 23, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Piggott.

DORI LAL—PLAINTIFF—APPLLICANT

versus

SEWAK RAM AND-ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881), s. 78—Promissory note—Suit by beneficial owner, whether maintainable.

A person who is entitled to the possession of a promissory note in his own name is alone entitled to sue upon it whether the instrument be negotiable or not. [p. 988, col. 2.]

Ramanuja Ayyangar v. Sadagopa Ayyangar, 28 M. 205; 15 M. L. J. 249; Subramanya Tevan v. Arunachela Tevan, 18 M. L. J. 186, referred to.

Civil revision from an order of the Subordinate Judge of Pilibhit.

Mr. Gulzari Lal, for the Appellant.

Mr. Sarat Chandra Chaudhri, for the Repondents.

JUDGMENT.—This suit was brought upon a promissory note executed in favour of one Ram Narain. The plaintiff claims to be the true owner of the instrument from the time of its execution, and alleges Ram Narain to have been a benamidar for himself. He has also impleaded as defendants the heirs of the ostensible payee. After the suit had been decreed by the first Court, it was dismissed by the learned Subordinate Judge of Pilibhit, on the ground that only the ostensible payee can maintain a suit upon a promissory note. The Subordinate Judge has supported himself by authority of a Madras case, in respect of which it is contended here that the learned Judges who decided that case were referring specifically to a negotiable instrument as defined in section 13 of the Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881). I find, however, that there is clear authority of the same Court on the same point in Ramanuja Ayyangar v. Sadagopa Ayyangar (1) and in Subramanya Tevan v. Arunachela Tevan (2). According to section 78 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, only the holder of a promissory note can receive payment of the same so as to discharge the maker, and this section applies whether the promissory note in question was negotiable or not. The "holder" of a promissory note is defined in section 8 of the same Act, and means a person entitled in his own name to the possession thereof. In the absence of any ruling to the contrary, I am certainly not prepared to hold that the learned Subordinate Judge acted with material irregularity in the exercise of his jurisdiction in applying to the decision of the question of law raised by the pleadings before him a principle which has been specifically laid down by one at any rate of the High Courts in India, and not dissented from by the Court to which he is subordinate. I dismiss the application with costs.

(1) 28 M. 205; 25 M. L. J. 249.

(2) 18 M. L. J. 186.

Application dismissed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 98 OF 1913.

May 19, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, KT., and Mr. Justice Roe.

NILKANTA ROY CHOWDHURY AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

LALIT MOHAN BANERJEE AND ANOTHER —PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Specific performance—One contract alleged and different contract proved—Damages.

Where a plaintiff has alleged a contract of which he seeks specific performance but fails to establish it, the Court will not make a decree for specific performance of a different contract. [p. 989, col. 2.]

Hawkins v. Maltby, (1867) 3 Ch. App. 188 at p. 194; 37 L. J. Ch. 58; 17 L. T. 397; 16 W. R. 209; Lindsay v. Lynch, 2 Sch. & Lef. 1; 9 R. R. 54 and Mortimer v. Orchard, 2 Ves. 243; 30 E. R. 615, referred to.

Where there is a contract of which specific performance would not be decreed by the Court of Equity the plaintiff is entitled, owing to the wrongful repudiation of that contract by the defendant, to treat the contract itself as at an end and to recover damages for the loss of it, in addition to damages in respect of those breaches of it which may have been committed before repudiation. [p. 990, col. 1.]

Dominion Coal Company v. Dominion Iron and Steel Company, (1909) App. Cas. 293 at p. 311; 78 L. J. P. C. 115; 100 L. T. 245; 25 T. L. R. 309.

To make a decree for damages for the breach of a contract which is not the subject-matter of the litigation, would be to assume that there has been a breach of that contract which has never been attempted to be specifically enforced. [p 990, col. 1.]

The principle upon which the Court refuses specific performance of a contract not the subject-matter of the suit, is equally applicable to the claim for damages for breach of that contract. [p. 990, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge, Faridpur, dated 26th September 1912, reversing that of the Munsif, Madaripur, dated 31st July 1911.

Babu Brojolal Chakravarti, for the Appellants.

Babu Upendra Lal Roy, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal by the defendants in a suit framed, in the alternative, for specific performance of a contract to grant a lease of land specified in the schedule to the plaint, or for the award of damages for wrongful breach of that contract. The Courts below have concurrently found against the plaintiffs that there was no contract to grant a lease of the land specified in the plaint; and in this view, they have dismissed the claim for specific performance. But while the primary Court dismissed the claim for damages as well, the Subordinate Judge has awarded the plaintiffs damages to the extent of Rs. 500. On the present appeal the controversy has centred round the question, whether it was competent to the Subordinate Judge to award damages. In our opinion there is no room for serious argument that the decree of the Subordinate Judge cannot be supported.

It is well settled that when a plaintiff has alleged a contract of which he seeks specific performance and fails to establish it, the Court will not make a decree for specific performance of a different contract. If any authority is needed for this elementary proposition, reference may be made to the judgment of Lord Chelmsford in the case of Hawkins v. Maltby (1) where the bill for specific performance was dismissed as one contract was alleged and another was proved. [See also Lindsay v. Lynch (2) and Mortimer v. Orchard (3).] This view has not been assailed on behalf of the respondents. But they have argued that this doctrine is not applicable in respect of the claim for damages for breach of contract; this contention, however, is manifestly unfounded. On what

(1) (1867) 3 Ch. App. 188 at p. 194; 37 L. J. Ch. 58; 17 L. T. 397; 16 W. R. 209.
(2) 2 Sch. & Lef. 1; 9 R. R. 54.
(3) 2 Ves. 243; 30 E. R. 615.

footing a decree for damages is made in a suit for specific performance of contract was explained by Lord Atkinson in the case of Dominion Coal Company v. Dominion Iron and Steel Company (4). Where there is a contract of which specific performance would not be decreed by a Court of Equity, the plaintiffs are entitled, owing to the wrongful repudiation of that contract by the defendants, to treat the contract itself as at an end and to recover damages for the loss of it, in addition to damages in respect of those breaches of it which may have been committed before repudiation. The expression of the same idea may be attempted in somewhat different terms: from every contract, there immediately and directly results an obligation on each of the contracting parties towards the other of them to perform such of the terms of the contract as he has undertaken to perform; and if the person on whom this obligation rests fail to discharge it, there results to the other party a right, at his election, either to insist on the actual performance of the contract or to obtain satisfaction for the non-performance of it [Mackay v. Dick (5)]. Consequently, damages can be decreed for breach of a contract which might, but for exceptional circumstances, have been specifically enforced. In the case before us, the suit has not been instituted on the real contract; specific performance has accordingly been rightly refused. How, then, can damages be decreed for breach of the real contract, which has not been investigated by the Court and for the breach whereof the suit has not been instituted? For ought we know, the defendant may still be willing to perform the real contract, only if the plaintiffs were disposed to accept performance thereof. To make a decree for damages for the breach of a contract which is not the subject-matter of the litigation, would be to assume that there has been a breach of that contract which has never been attempted to be specifically enforced. The principle upon which the Court refuses specific performance of a contract not the subject-matter of the suit, is equally applicable to the claim for damages for breach of that contract.

(4) (1909) App. Cas. 293 at p. 311; 78 L. J. P. C. 115; 100 L. T. 245; 25 T. L. R. 309.
(5) (1881) 6 App. Cas. 251; 29 W. R. 541.

The result is that this appeal is allowed, the decree of the Subordinate Judge set aside and the suit dismissed with costs in all the Courts.

Appeal allowed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

FIRST APPEAL FROM ORDER NO. 34 OF 1915.

May 10, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Chamier and Mr. Justice Piggott.

KASHI NATH AND ANOTHER—DECREE-HOLDERS—APPELLANTS

versus

KANHAIYA LAL SHARMA—RECEIVER—RESPONDENT.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), s. 34—Property attached but not sold before adjudication, effect of—Receiver, powers of.

Section 34 of the Provincial Insolvency Act was intended to put creditors of an insolvent, who have not actually attached the property before the date of the order of adjudication in at least as good a position as creditors of the insolvent who, but for his insolvency, would have been entitled to claim a rateable distribution of the assets received on an execution sale. [p. 991, col. 2.]

A creditor instituted a suit against his debtor and attached his property before judgment. Subsequently the debtor was adjudicated insolvent. After the order of adjudication, the creditor who had attached the property proceeded to sell the property in execution of his decree. The Receiver objected and claimed the property for the general body of creditors:

Held, that the property not having been sold before adjudication was still the property of his insolvents and as such was available to the general body of creditors. [p. 991, col. 2.]

First appeal from an order of the Second Additional Judge of Aligarh.

The Hon'ble Mr. Abdul Rauf, for the Appellants.

Mr. Pearey Lal Banerji, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal against an order of the Second Additional Judge of Aligarh, passed under the Provincial Insolvency Act. In June 1909, the appellants filed a suit against Keshab Deo and others and they caused certain immoveable property of Keshab Deo to be attached under Order XXXVIII of the Code of Civil Procedure before judgment. The appellants obtained a decree in that suit on June 12th, 1913. In the meantime Keshab Deo had transferred portions of the property by four sale-deeds, dated November 15th and 16th and December 6th and 9th, 1909, and part of the property which had been attached had been sold in 1909 in execution of a decree passed by the Bombay High Court. Keshab Deo had, in 1911, been declared insolvent and the respondent, Pandit Kanhaiya Lal Sharma, had been appointed Receiver of his property. The Receiver has claimed the property in question as property which is available for the creditors of the insolvent, and the learned Judge has decided that it is property available for the creditors, and has directed the Subordinate Judge who placed the property under attachment to release it from the attachment and make it over to the Receiver. It appears that execution of the decree obtained by the appellants was taken out by them in 1914, the property was proclaimed for sale and the sale was to have taken place on January 22nd last. It was at this point that the Receiver claimed the property on behalf of the general body of creditors. Under section 64 of the Code of Civil Procedure neither private alienations made by Keshab Deo nor the execution sale of the property could affect the rights of the appellants to bring the property to sale in execution of their decree. The appellants' case is that the property has under the private alienations and the execution sale ceased to be the property of Keshab Deo, and that all that the appellants have is the special right conferred upon them by section 64 of the Code of Civil Procedure to execute their decree against the property, notwithstanding the private alienations and the execution sale. They contend that the property is no longer the property of Keshab Deo and, therefore, section 34 of the Provincial Insolvency Act does not apply so as to entitle the Receiver to claim it. It may be that the private alienations and also the execution sale of the property are void as against the Receiver, and if so, there can, of course, be no doubt that the property is the property of Keshab Deo and section 34 must be held to be applicable. Assuming, however, that the private alienations and the execution sale are not voidable or void as against the Receiver, we think that the property must still be regarded as the property of the debtor, Keshab Deo. The decree-holders are entitled to bring the property to sale as the property of Keshab Deo because the private alienations and execution sale are void as against them. Section 34 of the Provincial Insolvency Act provides that where execution of a decree is issued against the property of a debtor, no person shall be entitled to the benefit of the execution against the Receiver except in respect of assets realized in the course of execution by sale or otherwise before the date of the order of adjudication. The sale has not yet taken place, but execution of the appellant's decree has issued against the property. In our opinion the property must still be regarded as the property of the debtor, and it is as property of the debtor that it is liable to answer the decree held by the appellants. It seems to us quite clear that section 34 of the Provincial Insolvency Act was intended to put creditors of an insolvent who have not actually attached the property before the date of the order of adjudication in at least as good a position as creditors of the insolvent who, but for his insolvency, would have been entitled to claim a rateable distribution of the assets received on an execution sale. In our opinion the learned Judge was right in holding that the property was available for the general body of creditors. But we express no opinion as to the rights of the alienees or of the purchasers at the execution sale, as they are not before us. The appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 264 OF 1913.

April 16, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Napier.

S. RATNA NAIDU—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

P. R. AIYANACHARIAR AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 59—Mortgage-deed not attested by two witnesses—Invalidity of mortgage—Pleas raised in course of trial but not in pleadings—Court, duty of—Procedure.

RATNA NAIDU v. AIYANACHARIAR.

Where in the course of the trial and not in the pleadings a defendant raises the plea that the mortgage is invalid because the signature of the mortgagor was not attested by two witnesses as required by section 59 of the Transfer of Property Act, the Court should not dismiss the suit for that reason. It is only upon a distinct and supplemental issue framed on the point and after giving both the parties an opportunity to adduce fresh evidence on it, that a Court should find for or against the invalidity of the document for that reason. [p. 992, col. 1.]

Shamu Patter v. Abdul Kadir Rowthan, 16 Ind. Cas. 250; 35 M. 607; 16 C. W. N. 1009; 23 M. L. J. 321; 12 M. L. T. 338; (1912) M. W. N. 935; 10 A. L. J. 259; 14 Bom. L. R. 1034; 16 C. L. J. 596; 39 I. A. 220, followed.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of Trichinopoly, in Appeal Suit No. 489 of 1911, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Srirangam, in Original Suit No. 373 of 1910.

Mr. M. O. Parthasaradhi Aiyangar, for the Appellant.

Messrs. S. Gopalaswami Aiyangar and C. Padmanabha Aiyangar, for the Respondents.

This appeal coming on for hearing on the 5th October 1914, the Court delivered the following JUDGMENT:—We think that, on the pleadings, the question was not raised whether the document Exhibit B was invalid as a mortgage, on the ground that it was not attested by two persons who saw the executant sign the document. Taking it that it was raised by the defendants during the trial, the District Munsif ought to have framed a supplemental issue on this new question, given an opportunity to the parties to adduce evidence thereon and then decided it.

In the case of Shamu Patter v. Abdul Kadir Rowthan (1), a supplemental issue was raised by the Court (though at a late stage) and there was no contention that the plaintiff had not been given sufficient opportunity to let in evidence on the supplemental issue.

We request the lower Appellate Court to frame the necessary issue and to give a finding thereon allowing both sides to adduce fresh evidence. [We might remark that neither of the lower Courts has definitely pronounced whether it believes the 1st defendant, the plaintiff's witness No. 2 and defendant's witness No. 1 when they deny that they (plaintiff's witness No. 2 and defendant's witness No. 1) saw the 1st defendant sign the mortgage-deed.

The finding will be returned in six weeks from the date of receipt of records in the lower Appellate Court and ten days will be allowed for filing objections.

In compliance with the order contained in the above judgment, the District Judge of Trichinopoly submitted the following FINDING.—I am asked for a finding "whether Exhibit B is invalid as a mortgage on the ground that it was not attested by two persons who saw the executant sign the document?" No fresh evidence is adduced.

2. Exhibit B is a mortgage-deed by 1st defendant to Arayar Rangachariar for Rs. 950. It is attested by three persons. Only one of them says he saw 1st defendant sign it. The other two say 1st defendant said he signed it, so they attested but they did not see him sign. The Munsif, therefore, found the mortgage was not proved and plaintiff could claim no charge thereunder. It is argued now that P. W. No. 2 and P. W. No. 1 really lie when they say they did not see 1st defendant sign the document.

3. The document purports to be for Rs. 950 made up of moneys due on three prior bonds. No consideration was paid at the time. P. W. No. 3 saw 1st defendant sign it. P. W. No. 2 says he attested the document and 1st defendant executed it. But in cross-examination he says he did not see this execution by 1st defendant and says the money was borrowed in cash for a present to a dancing girl—thus contradicting the terms of the document.

4. P. W. No. 1 also attested the document, but did not see it signed by 1st defendant. He says Rs. 700 were paid in cash to 1st defendant and plaintiff lost Rs. 250 as discount. He also contradicts the terms of the document. This man was twice summoned by plaintiff and did not appear. He was finally summoned and examined by defendant, a circumstance that suggests that he really did see the signature of 1st defendant and was brought over.

(1) 16 Ind. Cas. 250; 35 M. 607; 16 C. W. N. 1009; 23 M. L. J. 321; 12 M. L. T. 338; (1912) M. W. N. 935; 10 A. L. J. 259; 14 Bom. L. R. 1034; 16 C. L. J. 596; 39 I. A. 220.

5. The written statement never raised this plea that the mortgage was invalid for want of attestation and I reject it as a subsequent plea to support which the two attestors were brought over. I find that Exhibit B was duly attested and is not invalid for want of attestation by two persons who saw the executant sign it.

This case coming on for final hearing after receipt of the finding of the lower Appellate Court on the issue referred to it for trial, the Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT.—The evidence of plaintiff's witness No. 2 in chief examination, though contradicted by him in cross-examination, must be taken to have been believed by the District Judge who finds that all three witnesses (including plaintiff's witness No. 2) were present at and saw the execution of the document.

We accept the finding and setting aside the decrees of the lower Courts, remand the suit to the District Judge for disposal of the appeal on the other questions in the case. Costs hitherto will be costs in the cause.

Case remanded.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.
FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 10 OF 1914.
May 20, 1915.
Present:—Sir Henry Richards, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Tudball.
ZAMIR AHMAD AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS —APPELLANTS
versus
ABDUL RAZZAK AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS —RESPONDENTS.

Pre-emption—Right of pre-emption mentioned in Wajib-ul-arz—No incidents given—Muhammadan Law.

Where a wajib-ul-arz provided that a right of pre-emption existed among the owners of the khalsa separately and among the owners of the milak separately but gave no incidents of the custom of pre-emption:

Held, that the right was co-extensive with that given by the Muhammadan Law. [p. 994, col. 1.]

First appeal from an order of the Additional Judge of Moradabad.

Dr. Surendro Nath Sen, for the Appellants.

Mr. B. E. O'Conor, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal arising out of a suit for pre-emption in respect of a certain zemindari situate in the village of Katra. Originally this village consisted of two mahals, one of $11\frac{3}{4}$ biswas and one $8\frac{1}{4}$ biswas. The $8\frac{1}{4}$ biswas mahal was subsequently divided into two mahals, one of $3\frac{1}{4}$ biswas and one of 5 biswas. The 5 biswas mahal (which is now a 20 biswas mahal) belonged one-half to the vendors and one-half to the pre-emptors. The vendors have sold their half share to a stranger. The pre-emptors brought their suit to enforce their right, alleging (a) in paragraph 3 of their plaint, that the "custom of pre-emption prevailed among proprietors of the khalsa" as entered in the wajib-ul-arz of the village and also (b) (as set out in paragraph 6 of the plaint) that directly he "got the news of the sale he fulfilled the conditions by the Muhammadan Law for pre emption" and called upon the defendant to transfer the pre-empted property to him for the price entered in the sale-deed. The defendants met the case first of all by denial that there was any custom of pre-emption in the village at all, or that the plaintiffs had a right of pre-emption on the basis of the wajib-ul-arz to which the provisions of the Muhammadan Law applied, that the plaintiffs had not in any way fulfilled the necessary demands. It was alleged that the plaintiffs had actually refused to purchase the property after full notice and, therefore, if they had had any right they had lost it. Five issues were framed, the first:—Does the custom of pre-emption prevail in Mauza Katra? This the Court below decided in favour of the plaintiffs and the decision is not seriously contested here. The second issue was:—"If so, what are the incidents of the custom, whether those arising under the Muhammadan Law or not?" On this issue the Court held that the rules of Muhammadan Law did not apply. Issue three was:—"Under the custom (if any) found to prevail is the plaintiff entitled to pre-empt?" This issue was found in the affirmative. The fourth issue:—"Have the plaintiffs performed the preliminaries necessary to pre-emption under the Muhammadan Law?" This issue was left undecided as being unnecessary in view of the finding on the second issue, and consequently evidence on this issue was not taken. The fifth issue was:—"Did the sale take place with the plaintiffs' knowledge and after their refusal to purchase. If so, is their right of pre-emption lost." On this point the Court below held in favour of the plaintiffs.

The sole point which has been argued before us is, whether or not the rule of Muhammadan Law applied in the present case. It is pointed out that in the wajib-ul-arz the custom as set forth is laid down in the following words:—"among the owners of the khalsa separately and among the owners of the milak separately the custom of pre-emption is in vogue," that no incidents of the custom are set forth and that, therefore, the principle that has been laid down in a long series of rulings of this Court should be applied and in such cases the rule of Muhammadan Law must be followed. The latest decision on the point is to be found in Jagdam Sahai v. Mahabir Prasad (1). The judgment therein refers to Ram Prasad v. Abdul Karim (2), and it is an admitted fact that those rulings have been consistently followed in this Court. The lower Appellate Court has tried to distinguish the present case from those quoted, on the ground that the wajib-ul-arz stated that the right of pre-emption exists among the owners of each class of property as such, but if the wajib-ul-arz had merely stated that the custom existed, the learned Additional Judge would have felt bound by the rulings cited and would have applied the Muhammadan Law in the case. We do not think that the language of the present wajib-ul-arz is such as to enable us to distinguish it from those in the cases quoted. The meaning of the document is simply this, that among the co-sharers of the khalsa the custom of pre-emption prevailed. None of the incidents are set forth and it seems to us clearly a case in which the right is co-extensive with that given by the Muhammadan Law. We, therefore, before deciding the case, must have a decision by the Court below on the fourth issue framed by it. The parties will be allowed to give fresh evidence on that point relevant to the issue. Ten days will be allowed on receipt of the finding for objection.

Issue remitted.

(1) 2 A. L. J. 482; A. W. N. (1905) 190; 28 A. 60.
(2) 9 A. 513; A. W. N. (1887) 146.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

FIRST APPEAL FROM ORDER No. 27 OF 1915.

May 6, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Chamier and Mr. Justice Piggott.

BINDA PRASAD—OPPOSITE PARTY—APPELLANT

versus

RAGHUBIR SARAN AND OTHERS—APPLICANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLVII, r. 1—Review, sufficient ground for.

An application for review was made on the sole ground that if the Court allowed the applicants another opportunity of producing evidence, they might persuade the Judge that the view taken by him on the previous occasion was erroneous:

Held, that this was not a sufficient ground for review under Order XLVII, rule 1, of the Civil Procedure Code. [p. 995, col. 2.]

First appeal from an order of the District Judge of Meerut.

Mr. Harendra Krishna Mukerji (with him Mr. A. H. C. Hamilton), for the Appellant.

Mr. Sital Prasad Ghosh, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal by leave of the Court under section 46, sub-section (3), of the Provincial Insolvency Act, against an order of the District Judge of Meerut, allowing an application presented by the respondents for review of a previous order, whereby the appellant's half-share in a brick-kiln had been released from attachment and declared not to be available as assets for the payment of the debts of one Abdul Haq, who had been declared an insolvent. On June 27th, 1914, Abdul Haq applied to be declared an insolvent and named eleven creditors, among whom were the two respondents, Raghubir Saran and Badr-ud-din. On August 27th, he was adjudicated an insolvent and on September 24th, the Deputy Nazir of the Court was appointed Receiver. The Receiver attached or took possession of the brick-kiln, whereupon the appellant objected, saying that the brick-kiln was his property. He explained that it had been the property of himself and his partner Abdul Haq, and that Abdul Haq had on March 26th, 1914, transferred to him his half-share in the brick-kiln for valuable consideration. Thereupon the District Judge directed that the sale of the brick-kiln which had been ordered should be postponed. The appellant had brought a suit in the Subordinate Judge's Court for a declaration of his title as owner of the brick-kiln against Ram Chander and the insolvent. The District Judge accepted the appellant's admitted half-share in the brick-kiln as sufficient security for any loss which might result from the postponement of the sale and thereupon the respondents, Raghubir Saran and Badr-ud-din, presented a petition objecting to the acceptance of Binda Prasad's half-share as security and alleging that the transfer of the insolvent's half-share to him was voidable and should be set aside under sections 36 and 37 of the Insolvency Act. January 19th was fixed for hearing and ultimately the case was taken up on the 21st, when the District Judge rejected the petition of Raghubir Saran and Badr-ud-din and released the whole of the brick-kiln from attachment, finding that the sale by the insolvent of his half share in the brick-kiln to Binda Prasad was valid and could not be set aside. Six days later Raghubir Saran and Badr-ud-din presented a petition to the District Judge for review of the order just mentioned. Notice was issued and the District Judge on February 10th, 1915, granted the application for review, set aside his order of January 21st and fixed a date for the further hearing of the case, noting that the parties should produce evidence regarding the good faith of the transaction which had been impugned. The District Judge ordered the re-attachment of the brick-kiln and directed the Receiver to sell the bricks as soon as possible and deposit the proceeds in Court. It is against this order that the present appeal was filed. On the application of the appellant the sale of the bricks was postponed pending the disposal of this appeal.

On behalf of the appellant it is contended that the respondents, Raghubir Saran and Badr-ud din, showed no sufficient cause for a review of the order of January 21st, 1915. It was not suggested in their petition, and it is not suggested now, that they discovered any new and important matter or evidence which was not within their knowledge or could not have been produced by them before the order of January 21st was passed. Nor was it suggested that there was any mistake or error apparent on the face of the record. When the respondent's learned Pleader was asked by this Court to state the ground on which the application for review was based, he said that a review had been asked for "for other sufficient reason" within the meaning of Order XLVII, rule 1 of the Civil Procedure Code. From the application it appears to us that the ground for review, if there was a ground at all, was that if the District Judge allowed the applicants another opportunity of producing evidence they might persuade him that the view taken by him on January 21st was erroneous. The District Judge in granting the application for review and setting aside his previous order does not say that he is satisfied that his previous order was wrong, and does not in any way indicate his reason for allowing the application beyond this, that he thought that there was a case for further inquiry. It seems to us that no sufficient ground was made out for a review of the previous order. An attempt was made on behalf of the respondents to show that the question of the validity of the transfer of half of the brick-kiln was not considered by the District Judge before passing his first order; but an examination of the order shows that the District Judge did apply his mind to that very question. He refers at the beginning of his order to the application of November 19th, 1914, and says that the question is whether the transfer to Binda Prasad should be cancelled under section 36 of the Insolvency Act. It is, therefore, quite clear that the question was before the Court and was decided upon such materials as were available. Under the circumstances we do not think that the application for review should have been allowed. We, therefore, allow the appeal and set aside the order of the District Judge dated February 10th, 1915, with costs. It appears to us that the appeal has been overvalued. We fix the Vakil's fee in this Court at Rs. 50, fifty rupees, only.

Appeal allowed.

SARJU PRASAD v. MAHADEO PANDÉ.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 139 OF 1914.

May 7, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Chamier and Mr. Justice Piggott.

SARJU PRASAD—PLAINTIFF—APPLICANT

versus

MAHADEO PANDE AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), s. 37—Small Cause suit—Transfer of case to regular side—Decision—Appeal, maintainability of.

A suit of a Small Cause Court nature was filed before a Munsif, who had the powers of a Small Cause Court Judge, and was registered as a Small Cause Court suit. Subsequently the Munsif was succeeded by an officer who had no Small Cause Court powers. The latter officer ordered the case to be transferred to the regular side and tried it as a regular suit. An appeal against his decision was dismissed on the ground that no appeal lay:

Held, that an appeal did lie [p. 937, col. 1.]

Shiam Behari Lal v. Kali, 22 Ind. Cas. 909; 12 A. L. J. 109, approved of.

Mangal Sen v. Rup Chand, 13 A. 324; A. W. N. (1891) 96, not followed.

Kamta Parshad v. Mahabal Singh; 6 O. C. 81, Dulal Chandra v. Ram Narain Deb, 31 C. 1057, Ramchandra v. Ganesh, 23 B 382, referred to.

Civil revision from an order of the Additional Subordinate Judge of Gorakhpur.

The application came on for hearing before Mr: Justice Chamier, sitting singly, who passed the following ORDER OF REFERENCE.

This is an application for revision of an order of the Additional Subordinate Judge of Gorakhpur, rejecting an appeal on the ground that the suit out of which it arose was a Small Cause Court suit and, therefore, no appeal lay. The facts are that the suit was instituted in the Court of an officer who had been invested with the power of a Judge of a Small Cause Court up to a certain pecuniary limit. The suit was registered on the Small Cause Court side. Sometime after the written statement had been filed the Munsif went on leave and was succeeded by an officer who had not been invested with the powers of a Small Cause Court. The latter officer passed an order transferring to the regular side all Small Cause Court suits which he then found pending in the Court and he tried out those cases as regular suits. The Subordinate Judge purports to follow the decision of this Court in Mangal Sen v. Rup Chand (1), in holding that no appeal lay. In the case of Kamta Parshad v. Mahabal Singh (2), Mr. Scott and I were unable to accept the construction placed upon section 35 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act by this Court in the case cited, and it appears to me that a further recent decision of Mr. Justice Knox in Shiam Behari Lal v. Kali (3) is inconsistent with the decision in that case. I am of opinion that the recent decision of Mr. Justice Knox is correct and I explained my reasons for the view which I have taken of section 35 in the case of Kamta Parshad v. Mahabal Singh (2); but sitting alone I do not feel justified in deciding contrary to the decision of a Bench of two Judges of this Court. I, therefore, refer this application for revision to a Bench of two Judges.

(1) 13 A. 324; A. W. N. (1891) 96.

Mr. Jogendra Nath Mukerji, for the Applicant.

Mr. Sital Prasad Ghose, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an application for revision of an order of the Additional Subordinate Judge of Gorakhpur, rejecting an appeal by the appellant on the ground that the suit out of which it arose was a Small Cause Court suit and, therefore, no appeal lay. The facts are that the suit was instituted in the Court of a Munsif who had been invested under section 25 of the Bengal, North-Western Provinces and Assam Civil Courts Act, XII of 1887, with the jurisdiction of a Judge of a Court of Small Causes up to a certain pecuniary limit. The suit was registered on the Small Cause Court side. Sometime after the written statement had been filed the Munsif went on leave and was succeeded by an officer who had not been invested with the jurisdiction of a Judge of a Court of Small Causes. The latter officer passed an order transferring to the regular side all Small Cause Court suits which he found pending in the Court and tried them out as regular suits. One of those suits was the suit out of which this application has arisen. The Munsif dismissed it and the plaintiff appealed. The Subordinate Judge purporting to follow the decision of this Court in Mangal Sen v. Rup Chand (1) has held that no appeal lay. The facts of that case are not on all fours with those of the present case, for in that case an order had been passed under section 25 of the Code of Civil Procedure of 1882, and the Court was of opinion that under the last paragraph of that section the Court to which a Small Cause Court suit is transferred must, for the purposes of the suit, be deemed to be a Court of Small Causes. It is true that the learned Judges referred also to section 35 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act and indicated that their opinion would have been the same whether the case were transferred under section 25 of the Code of Civil Procedure or section 35 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. The decision referred to has been dissented from by the Calcutta High Court in Dulal Chandra Deb v. Ram Narain Deb (4), and also by the Bombay High Court in Ramchandra v. Ganesh (5). In Oudh the view taken for several years past has been that which has been adopted by the Calcutta and Bombay High Courts, Vide Kamta Parshad v. Mahabal Singh (2). In a very recent case, Shiam Behari Lal v. Kali (3), Mr. Justice, Knox, who was one of the Judges, who took part in the decision of the case of Mangal Sen v. Rup Chand (1), held that in a case of this kind the officer who succeeded the officer before whom the suit was filed was bound to try such a suit as this as a regular suit. A decree had been passed in the form of Small Cause Courts decree. Mr. Justice Knox held that the unsuccessful party had been prejudiced by the procedure adopted inasmuch as he had been deprived of the right of appeal, and he set aside the decree. The view taken in the case of Shiam Behari Lal v. Kali (3) is in argreement with the view taken by the Calcutta, Bombay and Oudh Courts and is, we think, correct. It seems to us that under section 35 of Act IX of 1887 the Munsif who tried the suit, not having been invested with the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes, was bound to try out the suit as a regular suit, and that there was a right of appeal against his decision. We allow this application, set aside the order of the Subordinate Judge; return the record to his Court and direct that the appeal be restored to the pending file and disposed of according to law. Costs of this application will be costs in the cause.

(2) 6 O. C. 81.

(3) 22 Ind. Cas. 909; 12 A. L. J. 109.

Application allowed;
Order set aside.

(4) 31 C. 1057.
(5) 23 B. 382.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 227 OF 1913.

January 20, 1915.

Present:—Sir John Wallis, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Hannay.

T. V. RAJARAM ROW AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

A. B. VENKATACHELA CHETTIAR—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Trusts Act (II of 1882), ss. 20, 23—Agreement by lessee to deposit one year's rent with lessor—Lessor, whether trustee — Deposit of money by lessor in Bank at lessee's request — Failure of Bank—Lessor, whether liable for loss.

Where a lessee deposited an amount equivalent to one year's rent with his lessor till the expiry of the lease or its cancellation and at his request the lessor deposited the money in a certain Bank and paid its interest to the lessee, but the Bank failed and the lessor's assignee sued the lessee for rent:

Held, that even if the lessor be assumed to be in the position of a trustee, he was not liable for the loss of the money and his assignee was entitled to sue for the rent. [p. 997, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Tanjore, in Original Suit No. 30 of 1911.

Messrs. T. Rangachariar and T. V. Muthukrishna Aiyar, for the Appellants.

Messrs. C. V. Anantha Krishna Aiyar and K. R. Rangaswami Aiyangar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—In this case under Exhibit B the appellant, the lessee, was to deposit an amount equivalent to one year's rent with the lessor till the expiry of the lease or its cancellation. It was to be applied at the expiry of the lease towards the rent of the last year, if nothing was due for previous years. At the request of the lessee evidenced by Exhibits A and C, the lessor deposited the money with Arbuthnot and Company and paid the interest to the lessee. At first the deposit was in their joint names but afterwards in the name of the lessor alone. Assuming the lessor to have been in the position of a trustee, this was not a breach of trust as there was no stipulation that the money should be deposited in their joint names. While the fund was in this state of investment, Arbuthnot and Company failed and the greater part of the deposit was lost. The lessor's assignee now sues to recover the rent for the last fasli. It has already been held in T. V. Rajaram Rao v. Sundaram Aiyar (1) and Letters Patent Appeal No. 65 of 1910 on similar facts there was no answer to claims and we agree with these decisions. The money was lessee's money and was deposited by the lessor with Arbuthnot and Company at his request. Even if the lessor, as argued, was under the obligations of a trustee in regard to it, and the investment was in contravention of the provisions of section 20 of the Trusts Act, the case is fully covered by section 23 and the lessor is not liable. The last year's rent has not been paid and the above facts disclose no answer to a claim for it either by the lessor or his assignee.

The appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 8 Ind. Cas. 299; (1910) 1 M. W. N. 566; 8 M. L. T. 350.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 13 OF 1915.

April 26, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Piggott.

NAND KISHORE—PETITIONER

versus

SURAJ MAL AND OTHERS—OPPOSITE PARTIES.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), s. 43—Receiver's report as to fraud of insolvent, admissibility of, in evidence.

The report of a Receiver of an insolvent's property to the effect that the insolvent had fraudulently transferred his property to his wife before declaration of insolvency, is not admissible in evidence to convict the insolvent under section 43 of the Insolvency Act. [p. 998, col. 2.]

Chiranji Lal v. Emperor, 25 Ind. Cas. 986; 12 A. L. J. 1105; 15 Cr. L. J. 658; 36 A. 576; Nathumal v. District Judge of Benares, 6 Ind. Cas. 870; 32 A. 547, 7 A. L. J. 602; Campbell, Ex parte, Wallace, In re; (1885) 15 Q. B. D. 213; 54 L. J. Q. B. 382; 53 L. T. 208; 2 Morrell, 167, referred to.

Civil revision against an order of the District Judge of Cawnpore.

Mr. W. Wallach (with him Mr. A. P. Dube), for the Petitioner.

Mr. B. E. O'Conor, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.—In this case an appellate order by the District Judge of Cawnpore has been called up by this Court in the exercise of the general powers of superintendence and revision conferred upon it by section 46, clause (1), of the Provincial Insolvency Act, III of 1907. The order is one sentencing an insolvent named Nand Kishore to undergo simple imprisonment for a period of six months under section 43 of the said Act. The allegations held to be proved against him are :—

(1) That in the year 1908 at a time when the business which he was conducting was beginning to fail, he fraudulently transferred certain property by way of gift to his wife and other members of his family, (2) that in the schedule of assets submitted by him along with his application to be declared an insolvent he fraudulently concealed the existence of the property nominally transferred by him and also the fact that he was the owner of a shop in what is known as the Kuli Bazar at Cawnpore. Nand Kishore's case was that the transfer by way of gift was made in good faith, and that the shop in the Kuli Bazar has never been his property. The finding against Nand Kishore, both in the Court of first instance and in the District Court, has been mainly based upon certain reports submitted by the Receiver. I hold that those reports do not constitute legal evidence for the purpose for which they have been used and should not have been taken into account against Nand Kishore. The learned District Judge has referred to the decision of a Full Bench of this Court, in a case reported under the heading Chiranji Lal v. Emperor (1). Somewhat more in point was the earlier decision of a Bench of this Court in Nathumal v. District Judge of Benares (2). Neither of these precisely touch the question which has been argued before me, but there can be no doubt that an order sentencing an insolvent to undergo imprisonment must be based upon legal evidence and the depositions of witnesses whom he had an opportunity of cross-

(1) 25 Ind. Cas. 986; 36 A. 576; 12 A. L. J. 1105; 15 Cr. L. J. 658.

(2) 6 Ind. Cas. 807; 32 A. 547; 7 A. L. J. 602.

examining. The report of a Receiver may be evidence for the special purpose of determining whether an insolvent is or is not entitled to an order of discharge, vide section 44 of the Act. It may also be taken into consideration by a Court for certain other purposes, as for instance when considering the admissibility of a proposal for composition under section 27 of the same Act. It is not evidence for the purpose of all possible proceedings under the Act. I have examined the facts of the present case, and I am quite satisfied that there are a number of points on which the Receiver might well have been corss-examined, and on which Nand Kishore was fully entitled to an opportunity of corss-examining, before the statements of fact embodied in his report could be accepted and acted upon as they have been done in the Courts below. I do not gather from the record that either the property purporting to be transferred under the deed of gift of 1908 or the shop in the Kuli Bazar has been taken possession of by the Receiver as part of the assets of the insolvent, or made available for the satisfaction of the creditors. The learned Judge of the Small Cause Court who heard this case in the first instance would not, I am confident, have dispossessed any person whom he found in possession of this shop on the strength of the evidence which, in his opinion, justified the infliction upon Nand Kishore of a sentence of imprisonment. Yet it is a more serious matter to sentence a man to undergo imprisonment than to deprive another of his possession over a building. In the argument addressed to me in support of the order of the District Judge, reference was made to an English case Campbell, Ex-parte, Wallace, In re (3). That case really bears out the view which I take of the present case. Certain reports submitted by a Receiver were allowed to be taken into consideration in that case precisely as they could have been under section 27 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, III of 1907. But the case is no authority for the proposition that such reports could have been treated as evidence in a proceeding the object of which was to subject an insolvent to the penal provisions of the Insolvency Act. I am unable to sustain the order of the District Court in this matter, and the only question that I have to consider is what order I should substitute for it. On a review of the entire facts of the case, I am not prepared to direct that further proceedings should be taken in this matter. I have already affirmed an order of the Court below refusing Nand Kishore his discharge, and it is possible that proceedings involving further inquiry into the matters litigated in connection with the order now before me may yet have to be taken. If it be found hereafter that evidence is forthcoming such as to justify the Insolvency Court in taking possession either of the shop in the Kuli Bazar or of the property purporting to be dealt with by the deed of gift of 1908, as assests belonging to Nand Kishore at the time when he was declared insolvent, and, therefore, available for the satisfaction of his creditors, it may be that the question of subjecting Nand Kishore to punishment for his dealings in this connection may require further consideration. Unless and until something of the sort occurs, I am not of opinion that the facts which were before the Courts below were such as to justify the application of section 43 of the Provincial Insolvency Act in this case. My order is that the order of the Court below is set aside and that the security which I understand Nand Kishore has furnished for his attendance, if required, is hereby discharged. I make no order as to costs.

Conviction set asi

(3) (1885) 15 Q. B. D. 213; 54 L. J. Q. B. 332; 53 L. T. 208; 2 Morrell, 167.

SAHODRA BIBI v. BAGESHRI SINGH.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.
SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 821 OF 1914.
May 27, 1915.
Present:—Sir Henry Richards, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Tudball.
Musammat SAHODRA BIBI—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
BAGESHRI SINGH AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Pre-emption, suit for, maintainability of—Vendor's title—Whole property not pre-empted, effect of.

A pre-emptor is not entitled in a pre-emption suit to put the vendor on proof of his title to the property which he purports to sell. The principle of pre-emption is substitution. A pre-emptor is bound to take the title which the vendee was ready to take.

A suit for pre-emption is not maintainable where the pre-emptor does not seek to preempt the entire property.

Second appeal from a decree of the Subordinate Judge of Jaunpur, dated the 2nd March 1914.

Mr. Haribans Sahai, for the Appellant.

Mr. Lalit Mohan Banerji, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit for pre-emption. Portion of the property was situate in one mahal and portion in another. The plaintiff claimed pre-emption of the whole of the property in Harballampur but only portion of the property in Mirganj. He said that the vendor was only entitled to a much smaller share in Mirganj than that which he purported to sell. He added to his plaint a statement that if the Court found that the vendor was really entitled to all the property in Mirganj which he purported to sell, then he was willing to pre-empt that also. Both the Courts below have dismissed the plaintiff's suit on the ground that he did not seek pre-emption of the entire property. In our opinion this decision was correct. A pre-emptor is not entitled in a pre-emption suit to put the vendor on proof of his title to the property which he purports to sell. The principle of pre-emption is substitution. A pre-emptor is, therefore, bound to take the title which the vendee was ready to take. He is not entitled to say to the vendor, "I will take all the property to which you prove you have a title, but I will not take property which you fail to prove belongs to yourself." We need hardly say that we do not decide that a vendor is entitled fraudulently to insert property, to which he has no title, in the sale-deed for the purpose of inflating the price or otherwise fraudulently to defeat pre-emption. In the present case it is perfectly clear from what took place in the Court below that the vendor has (or bona fide thinks he has) some title, not necessarily a perfect title, to the property which the plaintiff in the present suit claims belongs to his son. We dismiss the appeal with costs including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

KHAYALI RAM v. KALI CHARAN.

Appeal dismissed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.
SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1284 OF 1914.
May 28, 1915.
Present:—Sir Henry Richards, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Tudball.
KHAYALI RAM AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS
versus
KALI CHARAN AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Pre-emption—Wajib-ul-arz—Partition after preparation of Wajib-ul-arz—Co-sharer in one mahal, whether can pre-empt property in another mahal.

A wajib-ul-arz gave right of pre emption first to own brothers and nephews, and then to cousins who were co-sharers, then to co-sharers in the patti and then to co-sharers in the village. At the time the wajib-ul-arz was prepared the village was not partitioned into several mahals, but subsequently it was so partitioned. A co-sharer in one mahal sued to pre-empt property in another mahal where he was not a co-sharer:

Held, that he had no right to pre-empt. [p. 1001, col. 1.]

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge of Mainpuri confirming that of the Subordinate Judge of that place.

Mr. Girdharilal Agarwala, for the Appellants.

The Hon'ble Dr. Satish Chandra Banerji, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit for pre-emption. The plaintiff is not a co-sharer in the mahal, although he is a proprietor in the village. The vendees also are not co-sharers in the same mahal. They are stated to be grove-holders in another mahal. The plaintiff adduced in evidence an entry in the wajib-ul-arz of 1873. This records that there is a right of pre-emption first with own brothers and nephews, then with cousins who are co-sharers, then with co-sharers in the patti and then with co-sharers in the village. At that time the village consisted of one mahal, which was sub-divided into two pattis. We may point out here that the Court below has made a very important mistake. It states that the village was then divided into two mahals. The other evidence in support of the existence of the custom consisted of the waj.b-ul-arz which was framed at the last Settlement. By this time the village had been divided into a number of different mahals and at the time of the Settlement a new wajib-ul-arz was drawn up for each of the new mahals in similar terms. In each of these wajb-ul-araiz it is recorded th t the old custom should remain in force. The question is whether the plaintiff has proved by these two entries the existence of a custom which gave him a right to pre-empt this property against the defendants, he not being a co-sharer in the same mahal. We agree that whatever the custom was prior to the partition it still continued. We have to see what that custom was. The only evidence being the entry in the wajib-ul-arz, we must look to this document in order to find out what the custom (if any) was. It is not contended in the present case that either parties are related to the vendor. Therefore that part of the wajib-ul-arz which refers to relationship may be left out of consideration. It is quite clear that the remaining part refers entirely to a custom existing between co-sharers, because at that time all the proprietors in the village were co-sharers with each other. In the events which have happened the plaintiff is no longer a co-sharer with the vendor. He has ceased to have any community of interest with him. In this view it seems perfectly clear that there was no evidence of the existence of a custom between persons who are not co-sharers. After partition has taken place the owner in one mahal, is no longer able to bring himself within the custom where the property sold is situate in the other mahal. We allow the appeal, set aside the decrees of both the Courts below and dismiss the plaintiffs' suit with costs in all Courts.

Appeal decreed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 205 OF 1914.

May 25, 1915

Present:—Sir Henry Richards, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Tudball.

Lala BARU MAL AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

TANSUKH RAI AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Pre-emption—Finding of fact on evidence—Saharanpur District—Language of wajib-ul-arz—Second appeal.

The entries in a wajib-ul-arz are prima facie to be regarded as referring to customs rather than to agreements. But this does not preclude the Court from taking into consideration, when considering the evidence as a whole, the language which is used in the wajib-ul-arz along with other evidence. If on a consideration of the entire evidence the Court is not satisfied that a custom exists, the finding is a finding of fact and the High Court cannot interfere in second appeal. [p. 1002, cols. 1 & 2.]

The High Court has never decided that a custom of pre emption cannot exist in the Saharanpur District or that the wajib-ul-araiz in Saharanpur are not evidence of a custom. [p. 1002, col. 1.]

Dhian Kuar v. Diwan Singh, 10 Ind Cas. 558; 8 A. L. J. 786, referred to.

Second appeal from the decision of the District Judge of Saharanpur, dated the 17th of December 1913.

Mr. Surendro Nath Sen, for the Appellants.

Mr. Jogendra Nath Mukerji for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit for pre-emption. The plaintiff is a co-sharer. The vendee is a stranger. The plaintiff adduced in evidence in support of the existence of the alleged custom an extract from the wajib-ul-arz of 1867. No earlier wajib-ul-arz was produced. He also adduced in evidence two decrees, one based on a compromise and the other a decree in which the question of custom was not decided. There were some oral evidence but on cross-examination these witnesses had to admit that there had been sales to strangers and no pre emption claimed. Lastly he produced an extract from the wajib-ul-arz for the current Settlement, which refers to the wajib-ul-arz of 1867 for the "customs" which were not specified in the document itself. The entry in the wajib-ul-arz of 1867 no doubt refers to a righ of pre-emption. In the very same clause, however, there are references to a number of other matters which it is extremely improbable were existing customs. In fact the wajib-ul-arz appears to be almost, if not quite identical with the wajib-ul-arz referred to in the case of Dhian Kuar v. Diwan Singh (1). It seems to us that the Court considering the proper issue in the case, namely, does or does not the custom exist, was justified in saying that he was not satisfied that the custom existed on the evidence produced, bearing in mind that the onus lay on the plaintiff. This would be a finding of fact binding on this Court in second appeal. No doubt it has been decided by a Full Bench of this Court that entries in the wajib-ul-arz are prima facie to be regarded as referring to customs rather than to agreements. But this does not preclude the Court from taking into consideration, when considering the evidence as a whole, the language which is used in the wajib-ul-arz. The learned District Judge commences his judgment with the following words: "As regards the entry in the wajib-ul-arz relating to pre-emption, it seems to be settled as the result of a series of rulings of the Hon'ble High Court that in the Saharanpur District the wajib-ul-arz is evidence of contract which lasts only during the Settlement to which it relates and is not proof of custom." We do not think that these remarks are correct. This Court has never decided that a custom of pre-emption cannot exist in the Saharanpur District, or that the wajib-ul-araiz in Saharanpur are not evidence of a custom. Each case should be decided on its own facts and circumstances. In the case of Dhian Kuar v. Diwan Singh (1) to which we have already referred, the lower Appellate Court held on the evidence that the custom of pre-emption was not proved. This Court in second appeal referred to the evidence that had been produced on behalf of the plaintiff. It consisted of an entry from the wajib-ul-arz of 1867 and nothing more. The earlier wajib-ul-araiz were not produced. This Court held that the Court below was entitled to consider the language of the wajib-ul-arz, the fact that the earlier wajib-ul-araiz had not been produced and that if it came to the conclusion that the plaintiff by merely producing the extract from the wajib-ul-arz of 1867 had failed to prove the existence of the custom, the Court was justified in its conclusion. To all intents and purposes the present case stands on exactly the same basis. We, therefore, accept the finding of the Court below as a finding of fact binding on this Court in second appeal. We dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 10 Ind. Cas. 558; 8 A. L. J. 786.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.
SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 900 OF 1914.
April 23, 1915.
Present:—Justice Sir P. C. Banerji, KT.
BISHUNATH SHUKUL—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT
versus
GANESH DATT SHUKUL—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Easement—Water channel blocked—Power of Court to direct opening of another passage without demolition of construction.

Where the defendant had blocked a water channel of the plaintiff by building a wall:

Held, that the Court had power to direct the opening of another channel through the defendant's land without demolishing the wall. [p. 1003, col. 1.]

Second appeal from a decree of the Additional Judge of Gorakhpur, reversing that of the Munsif of Bansgaon.

Mr. Muhammad Ishaq Khan, for the Appellant.

Mr. Narmadeshwar Upadhyaya, for Mr. Kalindi Prasad, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This and the connected Appeal No. 620 of 1914 arise out of two suits brought one by Ganesh Datt Shukul and the other by Jadunandan Shukul for establishment of the right of each of them to carry water into their fields by means of a channel which runs through the defendant's field No. 32/1. The field of Ganesh is No. 31 and that of Jadunandan is No. 32/2. It was alleged that the plaintiffs had a right to irrigate their fields with water flowing through the channel and that the defendant had blocked this passage by building a wall. The defence was that the fields of the two plaintiffs were irrigated with water flowing through the fields Nos. 40 and 41, and 29 and 33. This has been found against the defendant and the Court below has held that as a matter of fact the fields of the two plaintiffs were irrigated with water flowing through the channel which existed in the defendant's field No. 32/1. This is a finding of fact and must be accepted in second appeal. The learned Judge, instead of directing the house built by the defendant to be demolished or that the channel should flow through the house, has directed that from the point G noted on the map the defendant should open a passage for the flow of water through his field to enable the plaintiffs to irrigate their fields. This, it seems to me, is a very reasonable veiw to take of the case. The appellant, however, contends that the right of easement claimed by the plaintiffs had not been used for more than two years before the institution of the suit and that their right had thus become extinct. It was alleged in the plaint that the obstructions made by the defendant which blocked the passage of water were made in Asarh and Kartick 1319, that is in 1912. Both the Courts below have found that the constructions are new. The defendant himself did not assert that they were more than two years old. So that I must take the Court below to find that the right of easement had been enjoyed within two years prior to the institution of the suit. The appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 2728 OF 1913.

December 9, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Oldfield and Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar.

GOVINDA REDDI AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS NOS. 6 AND 7—APPELLANTS

versus

RAVI KESAVAL NAIDU AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS AND DEFENDANTS NOS. 1, 5, 9 AND 10—RESPONDENTS.

Inam land—Presumption as to whether land or land revenue is granted, applicability of, to Civil Courts.

It is not the Revenue Courts alone but the Civil Courts should also presume that an inam grant is of and revenue only and not of land, until the contrary is proved.

Yeddamapudi Lakshmi Narasimha Row v. Repalli Sitaramaswami, 19 Ind. Cas. 440; 24 M. L. J. 288; (1913) M. W. N. 282, followed.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of Chingleput, in Appeal Suit No. 63 of 1912, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Tiruvellore, in Original Suit No. 511 of 1910.

Mr. N. A. Vaidyanatha Aiyar, for Mr. C. V. Ananthakrishna Aiyar, for the Appellants.

Mr. T. R. Venkatarama Sastri, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The learned District Judge erred in holding that the presumption as to the constitution of the inam applies only in Revenue Courts. Civil Courts also should presume that it consits in the revenue, not the land, until the contrary is proved. Yeddamapudi Lakshmi Narasimha Row v. Repalli Sitaramaswami (1).

But it does not appear that this mistake influenced his treatment of the evidence materially; and there was clear evidence on which his decision could be founded. In these circumstances we are not prepared to interfere. The second appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 19 Ind. Cas. 440; 24 M. L. J. 288; (1913) M. W. N. 282.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 102 OF 1914.

May 12, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Tudball and Mr. Justice Rafique.

GATI—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

RACHLA KUNWAR AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908) O. XLIV—Appeal in forma pauperis*—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 170—Limitation.*

An appeal was filed in the High Court long after 30 days had expired from the decision of the Court below. On the report of the office as to the deficiency of the Court-fees, the appellant expressed his inability to pay the Court-fee and asked the Court to take the appeal in forma pauperis:

Held, that the appeal having been filed beyond 30 days of the decision of the Court below could not be treated as an application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis and was barred by limitation. [p. 1004, col. 1.]

AJODHYA PERSHAD v. CHHABILA KOER.

First appeal from a decree of the Officiating Subordinate Judge of Ghazipur.

Mr. Gridharilal Agarwala, for the Appellant.

The Hon'ble Mr. Abdul Raoof, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The decision of the Court below, against which the present appeal has been preferred, was passed on the 29th of March 1913. On the 30th June 1913 the present appeal was filed. The appellant put upon his petition of appeal a Court-fee of Rs. 10. The office reported that there was a considerable deficiency in Court-fees, that the proper fee ought to have been Rs. 475 and that there was a corresponding deficiency in the Court below. The appellant asked for time to make good the deficiency. Time was given to him on several occasions, but he failed to make good the deficiency. Finally on the 17th of January 1914 he filed a petition alleging that he was a pauper, that he was unable to make good the deficiency, that his regular appeal, which was presented within time as such, might be continued as a pauper appeal under Order XLIV of the Code of Civil Procedure and might be proceeded with according to law His petition was granted by an ex parte order of the 24th March 1914. Now it is clear that if the petition of appeal be treated as a petition for leave to appeal in forma pauperis, it ought to have been filed within 30 days of the decision of the Court below under Article 170 of the Limitation Act. The order of this Court passed on the 24th March 1914, being an ex parte order, is open to objection at the hearing of the appeal and this objection has now been raised, that the appeal as an appeal in forma pauperis is barred by time. There can be no doubt that it is barred, it having been presented more than three months after the decision of the Court below. On behalf of the appellant we are assured that he cannot pay the deficiency in Court-fees. It is impossible to treat the appeal as an ordinary appeal. Time was repeatedly allowed to the appellant to make good the deficiency but he has failed to make it good. As an appeal in forma pauperis the present appeal is barred by time. We, therefore, dismiss it with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 44 OF 1915.

May 20, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Piggott.

AJODHYA PERSHAD AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

Musammat CHHABILA KOER—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115, O. IX, r. 9—Ex parte decree, order setting aside—Revision, maintainability of.

A revision lies against an order re-admitting a suit which has been dismissed for default. [p. 1005, col. 1.]

Janki Prasad v. Parmeswar Din Pandey, 29 Ind. Cas. 975; 13 A. L. J. 482; Tasadduq Husain v. Hayat-un-nissa, 25 A. 280; A. W. N. (1903) 39; Gulab Kunwar v. Thakur Das, 24 A. 464; A. W. N. (1902) 136; Nand Ram v. Bhopal Singh, 16 Ind Cas. 1; 10 A. L. J. 130; 34 A. 592; Gopala Chetti v. Subbier, 26 M. 604; 13 M. L. J. 308, referred to.

Revision against an order of the Munsif of Fatehpur, dated the 27th February 1915.

The Hon'ble Dr. S. C. Banerji, for the Appellants.

Mr. J. M. Banerji, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an application in revision by the defendants in a certain suit against an order passed by the Munsif of Fatehpur, whereby a previous order of the same Court dismissing the plaintiff's suit for non-appearance was set aside. The suit had originally been filed in the Court of the Subordinate Judge, but the plaint was returned with directions that it be filed in the Court of the Munsif of Fatehpur. It was dismissed for default of plaintiff's appearance on the 11th January 1915. An application for re-hearing was made on the 27th January 1915. A notice having gone to the defendants the question came up for orders on the 20th February 1915. It was then pointed out to the Munsif that the plaintiff's application for re-admission of his suit had been presented by one Rameshar under a special power-of-attorney. That power-of-attorney being examined, it appeared that it was so worded as to authorize Rameshar to present the plaint and to do all acts that might be necessary for the prosecution of the suit in the Court of the Subordinate Judge, but that it did not authorize Rameshar to take any action on behalf of the plaintiff in the Court of the Munsif of Fatehpur. The learned Munsif thereupon gave the plaintiff a week's time to put in a fresh power-of-attorney in favour of the same Rameshar. This was done on the 27th February 1915, and the plaintiff's application for the re-admission of his suit was thereupon allowed on the merits.

With reference to the present application, an objection is taken on behalf of the plaintiff-opposite party to the effect that an application for revision will not lie against an order re-admitting a suit which has been dismissed for default. The reason suggested is that, if the order re-admitting the suit is an improper one, it can be challenged in appeal under the provisions of section 105 of the Civil Procedure Code. In a case which recently came before me as a single Judge I accepted this contention. The matter was subsequently argued before a Bench of two Judges of which I was a member. The case was that of Janki Prasad v. Parmeswar Din Pandey (1). The question whether an application for revision was admissible at all against an order setting aside an ex parte decree is not discussed in the reported judgment. As a matter of fact it was raised, but we passed it over on the authority of Tasadduq Husain v. Hayat-un-nissa (2). This followed a decision of the Calcutta High Court, Chintamony Dassi v. Raghoonath Sahoo (3), and a previous case of this Court, Gulab Kunwar v. Thakur Das (4). There is, however, a more recent reported case of this Court in the opposite sense, viz., Nand Ram v. Bhopal Singh (5). That was a two Judges' case, but it would not appear from the report that the second Judge was of opinion that the application for revision was not maintainable. The learned Judge who took that view does not refer to the older decisions of this Court which I have already discussed, but supports himself principally by the case of Gopala Chetti v. Subbier (6). If I were to decide the point independently of all authorities, I should, as at present advised, be much inclined to adhere to the view I first took when sitting as a single Judge. Section 105 of the Code of Civil Procedure allows any order affecting the decision of the case to be challenged in an appeal from the final decree. There is certainly force in the contention that the words "affecting the decision of the case" are perfectly general and that their sense should not be limited by judicial decisions. The preponderance of authority in this Court, however, seems to be in favour of the view that the propriety of an order setting aside an ex parte decree cannot be challenged in an appeal from such decree as may eventually be passed in the suit. If this view is correct, the only remedy open to a litigant aggrieved by such an order is by way of application in revision.

However this may be, on the facts of the particular case before me, I am not disposed to interfere. The power-of-attorney in favour of Rameshar which was produced before the learned Munsif on the 27th February 1915 either had retrospective effect, or it had not. If it had, there is no force in this application. If it had not, then the plaint itself was never properly before the Munsif, for it was presented through a Pleader appointed by this very Rameshar. The matter is one in which it would be well for the parties to reconsider their position; but undoubtedly, if the learned Munsif has taken cognizance of a plaint which had never been legally presented in his Court, this is a point which it is still open to the defendants to raise. I decline to interfere at this stage and reject the application.

Application rejected.

(1) 29 Ind. Cas. 575; 13 A. L. J. 482.
(2) 25 A. 280; A. W. N. (1903) 39.
(3) 22 C. 981.
(4) 24 A. 464; A. W. N. (1902) 136.
(5) 16 Ind. Cas. 1; 34 A. 592; 10 A. L. J. 130.
(6) 26 M. 604; 13 M. L. J. 368.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

APPEAL FROM THE PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

June 24, 1915.

Present:—Viscount Haldane, Lord Shaw, Sir George Farwell, Sir John Edge and Mr. Ameer Ali.

BAGGA AND OTHERS—APPELLANTS

versus

SALEH AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS.

Partition—Common land—Tirni or grazing dues, payment of, by person not proprietor paying land revenue—Proprietary right, if conferred.

BAGGA v. SALEH.

The payment of tirni (grazing dues) by a person who is not a proprietor paying land revenue does not confer upon him any right to share in the shamilat or common land of a patti. [p. 1007, col. 2; p. 1008, col. 1.]

Appeal heard ex parte from a judgment and decree of the Punjab Chief Court, dated June 20th, 1907, confirming those of the Collector and Colonising Officer, Jhelum Canal Colony, Sargodha, exercising the powers of a Civil Judge, dated June 30th, 1905.

FACTS.—The village Lak arose out of the foundation of various scattered hamlets in the jungle by men mainly of the Lak tribe. The settlers had by the time of the Regular Settlement in 1863 formed themselvs into tarafs or sub-divisions. The Lak taraf was mainly held by Laks, the inhabitants of Mari Lak and Ajuala hamlets. In the Sikh times the system of collection of revenue was at a quarter share of the grains, produce being taken by division, and the balance of the revenue was levied in the shape of grazing dues. At the Summary Settlement under British rule the revenue was fixed at Rs. 300 and apportioned on cattle only and at the Regular Settlement (1863) it was fixed at Rs. 325 on the cultivated land of the several tarafs and Rs. 850 on the jungle. In addition to the proprietors who contributed to the revenue by payment of grazing rights, there were also a certain number of non-proprietor who were charged grazing rights by the proprietors and whose contributions were used in reduction of the Government revenue or otherwise for the proprietors' benefit. These persons also claimed a share in the common land on partition, but their claims were disposed of by the Courts in India. According to the original agreement with the proprietors the village common land when, if ever, partitioned, was to be first divided according to the tarafs and then the land so attached to each taraf was to be divided among its proprietors according to khewat shares i. e., the shares of persons entered in the khewat or register of proprietors' holdings. In 1882 the proprietors of Lak applied for partition. The Assistant Collector ordered division on the basis of the entire jama of Rs. 1,175. This order was reversed by the Collector, with whom the Commissioner agreed on appeal in holding that Rs. 325 were alone to be taken into account for the purpose of partition; but the Financial Commissioner finally upheld the order of the Assistant Collector.

In 1890 a petition was filed in the Settlement Department for partition of the waste land in accordance with the order of the Financial Commissioner and was sent for disposal to an Extra Assisstant Commissioner. In 1894 he decided to carry out partition only among the tarafs and deferred partition inter se among the owners within the tarafs, the partition being made on the basis of the entire jama of Rs. 1,175. In 1901 proceedings were set on foot for partition of the shamilat of Taraf Lak among the proprietors of that taraf. Objections were taken that the division should be made according to the jama of the cultivated land assessed at Settlement and not on that fixed on the jungle land. According to the wajib-ul arz the Colonization Officer and Collector tried the case as Revenue Officers and held that the jama on the cultivated area and that portion of the jama on the jungle land which had been paid by the proprietors should be the basis of division. On appeal the Settlement Commissioner reversed the decision, on the ground that a question of title having been raised the Collector was bound to follow the procedure laid down by section 117 of the Punjab Land Revenue Act XVII of 1887. He also pointed out the impropriety of excluding from consideration that portion of the jama on jungle land which had been paid by non-proprietors. The Collector then tried the case as a Civil Court and ruled that partition should take place on the basis of the entire jama, the portion of the jama on jungle land paid by non-proprietors being distributed over all the proprietors according to their khewat on the cultivated area, the measure of each being (a) his own khewat inside the cultivated area, (b) his proportionate share according to that khewat of the jama on the jungle land paid by non-proprietors and (c) the amount he himself paid on account of the latter jama. On appeal to the Chief Court the judgment of the lower Court was confirmed. A petition for review on the ground that the appeal of the appellants had not been considered or decided by the Bench was rejected. The appellants then appealed to the Privy Council in due course

Mr. Arthur Grey, for the Appellants, contended that the appellants and their ancestors had been throughout the Settlements from 1857 up to the present time recorded as proprietors of the village in possession of certain waste sites upon which no land revenue had been ass ssed, but in respect of which they had paid tirni (grazing dues) to the Government. The appellants were recorded as proprietors in the khewat and according to the decision of the Collector sitting as a Civil Judge, they would be entitled to share in proportion to their contribution to the revenue, whether by way of direct assessment on land or by assessment in respect of tirni charged upon the jungle of which they were recorded as in possession. The Collector in deciding the case in 1905 thought that the proper khewatdars with claims in the shamilat held claims on the strength of having undertaken a responsibility for the demand, which did not fall on, and was not taken by, those whose land was entered as kharaj az patti. He was wrong in holding this view, as the responsibility for the Government demand did fall on and was taken by the appellants. The Chief Court in dismissing the appeal had held that payment of tirni as a non-proprietor ought not to create a right in the shamilat, that the claims of those non-owners who had acquired rights in Lak to ownership by virtue of payment of tirni in other tarafs seemed to be absurd and that similarly those who paid neither khewat nor grazing dues had no claim to a share. None of those findings were relevant to appellants' case as that of proprietors who paid grazing dues but no revenue on cultivated land, and their appeal was dismissed without ever having been considered. Mr. Justice Johnstone agreed in the order without any reference to appellants' case. The petition for review on the ground that the appellants' appeal had not been considered or decided by the Bench was presented on August 8th, 1907, and Chatterji, J., recorded: "Appellant says he has all along been paying tirni. If so, he may be entitled to a share as he is a recorded owner though his original holding is kharaj az parta." The review was heard, when the appellants were not represented by Counsel, by Johnstone and Rattigan, JJ., who decided that the petition for review was based on a misunderstanding of the principles on which the case was decided, that is to say, that only persons paying land revenue upon cultivation could share at all in shamilat but that those persons inter se would share in shamilat in proportion not to such revenue alone, but in proportion to revenue plus tirni paid by each. No such principle was in fact laid down by the Bench who heard the case. Chatterji, J.'s order on the petition for review seemed to contradict it, while Johnstone, J., in his order under review himself laid down that the idea seemed to have crystallised that payment of so much tirni created a proportionate right

The respondents did not appear.

JUDGMENT.

SIR JOHN EDGE.—This is an appeal by the plaintiffs in the suit from a decree of the Chief Court of the Punjab, which had dismissed their appeal from a decree of the trial Judge by which their suit had been dismissed. The respondents to this appeal have not appeared.

In their plaint, dated the 3rd May 1905, the plaintiffs alleged that they "like the land-owners, are the proprietors" of houses and vacant sites in Patti Lak and had paid tirni (grazing dues) in respect of village shamilat land (common land) of Lak and they claimed a declaration that they, "like proprietors, may be declared co-sharers in 30,838 bighas $1\frac{3}{4}$ kanals of the village shamilat land of Patti Lak in proportion to Rs. 29-15-7, the tirni paid by the plaintiffs, and a share (may be) awarded to them in the said village shamilat of Patti Lak on the said tirni amount according to the khewat."

It is to be observed that in their plaint the plaintiffs did not base their claim to share on the partition of the common lands of Patti Lak upon any right as proprietors of any lands assessed to the revenue in Patti Lak. The plaintiffs were not recorded in the khewat as persons paying land revenue in respect of land held by them in Patti Lak. They did not, in fact, hold any lands in Patti Lak which were assessed to the land revenue. What they claimed was that as they had paid grazing dues, they should be treated in the partition of the common land of the village as if they were proprietors of the village, holding lands which had been assessed to the revenue. The trial Judge rightly held that the plaintiffs had not proved any right to participate in the partition of the common lands and dismissed their claim. On appeal the Chief Court held that the payment of tirni by a person who was not a proprietor paying land revenue did not confer upon him any right to share in the shamilat of Patti Lak. The plaintiffs have failed to prove that they have any right to participate in the partition of the shamilat of Patti Lak.

Their Lordships will humbly advise His Majesty that this appeal should be dismissed.

Appeal dismissed.

Solicitors for the Appellants: Messrs. T. L. Wilson & Co.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 34 OF 1915.

May 20, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Piggott.

MAKHDUM BAKHSH AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPLICANTS

versus

SHAUKAT ALI—PLAINTIFF—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881), ss. 13, 87—Material alteration—Promissory note—Finding—Revision.

In a suit on a promissory-note one of the defences was that the document had been materially altered and as such could not be the basis of a suit. The Small Cause Court Judge did not record any definite finding as to the note being materially altered and decreed the plaintiff's suit on the ground that even if the note was executed on the date alleged, the suit was within time by reason of the payment of interest within time:

Held, that as the promissory note was not payable to the plaintiff or his order, it was not a negotiable instrument within the meaning of section 87 of the Negotiable Instruments Act and justice having been done between the parties, it was not proper for the High Court to interfere in revision and remand the case for a finding as to material alteration.

Civil revision from an order of the Judge of the Court of Small Causes of Allahabad

Mr. Parmeshwor Dayal, for the Applicants.

Mr. Satya Chandra Mukerji, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.—This was a suit before the Court of Small Causes at Allahabad. The claim was on a promissory note which, as brought into Court, purported to be dated November the 28th, 1911. The defendants alleged that the real date was the 28th of November 1910 and that the last figure of the year had been dishonestly altered in order to bring the suit within limitation. They also pleaded payment in full. The learned Judge of the Court below observed that from the appearance of the paper it did seem as if the last figure of the date at the foot of the pro-note in suit had been originally written as a cipher and changed to the figure 1. He came to no finding as to whether this had been done dishonestly, or indeed as to whether it had been done after the execution of the note or as to the date on which the note was actually executed. He held it proved that there had been a payment on account of interest made one year subsequent to the execution of the note, so that the suit was within time whether the pro-note in question was in fact executed on November the 28th, 19.0, or 1911. He found against the defendants that no payment was proved over and above the one payment of Rs. 17 already referred to. Upon these findings he decreed the plaintiff's claim.

The defendants have brought the matter before this Court in revision. They contend that the pro-note in suit, having been materially altered, is void as against them and no suit is maintainable in respect of the same.

The real question is whether I ought to set aside the decree passed by the Court below and remand the case for enquiry as to whether there has or has not been any material alteration in the terms of the pro-note in suit since its execution. If the point was one clearly covered by Statute Law, I should feel it my duty to interfere; but the provisions of section 87 of the Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881) are expressly limited to "negotiable instruments" as defined in section 13 of the same Act. The pro-note in suit was not payable to the plaintiff or his order, and was, therefore, not a "negotiable instrument." It has been contended before me that the principle embodied in section 87 of the Negotiable Instruments Act has been applied, on the authority of English cases and, on principles of justice, equity and good conscience, to mortgage-deeds, simple bonds and other documents which are not negotiable instruments. The authorities in this Court on the point seems to be Ganga Ram v. Chandan Singh (1) and Mangal Sen v. Shankar Sahai (2). I do not think the point so clear as to justify my interference in revision in a case in which, on the findings of fact recorded by the Court below, justice has been done between the parties. I dismiss this application.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 4 A. 62.
(2) 15 A. 580; A. W. N. (1903) 122.

END OF VOLUME XXIX.

GENERAL INDEX

VOLUME XXIX—1915.

—:o:—

Abatement & substitution. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O. 41, R. 29.

Abetment. See PENAL CODE, S. 109.

Account, mutual, open and current. See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, SCH. I, ART. 85.

———Settlement obtained under improper circumstances—Intention merely to ascertain amount actually due—Right of debtor to re-open accounts—Creditor entitled to appropriate payment to interest first in case of debtor failing to specify.

A Court will not hold a party to a settlement which has been obtained from him under improper circumstances and it will allow him to surcharge and falsify items which have been inserted erroneously and which are not really due, when what the parties contemplated was merely to ascertain what was actually due as distinct from a case in which they agreed to accept a lump sum in settlement of their differences.

Where the creditors and a servant of the debtor drew up a settlement of accounts in the absence of the debtor, and the debtor on return signed the settlement without carefully scrutinizing the accounts:

Held, that the debtor could not be bound by the settlement and that the accounts should be re-opened.

Where a debtor has failed to exercise his right of appropriating a payment himself it is open to a creditor to do so up to the very last date, and even in the course of the trial, unless something has happened which renders it inequitable to allow him to do so and it is always a question of the intention of the creditor to be gathered from the circumstance of the case.

An account of the creditor in which he pays in full the interest due to him on the date of settlement and applies the balance towards the principal, is a clear indication of an intention to make the appropriation towards interest in the first place. M. KRUPASINDHU SAHU v. RAJA OF KALLIKOTA 718

———, suit for. See PRINCIPAL AND AGENT.

Acknowledgment. See LIMITATION ACT, S. 19.

ACTS—GENERAL.

Act 1856—XV. See HINDU WIDOW'S RE-MARRIAGE ACT.
—— 1860—XLV. See PENAL CODE.
—— 1865—III. See CARRIERS ACT.
—— 1865—X. See SUCCESSION ACT.
—— 1869—IV. See DIVORCE ACT.
—— 1870—VII. See COURT FEES ACT.
—— 1871—IX. See LIMITATION ACT.

ACTS—GENERAL—concld.

Act 1871—XXIII. See PENSIONS ACT.
—— 1872—I. See EVIDENCE ACT.
—— 1872—IX. See CONTRACT ACT.
—— 1875—IX. See MAJORITY ACT.
—— 1876—XI. See PRESIDENCY BANKS ACT.
—— 1877—I. See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT.
—— 1877—XV. See LIMITATION ACT.
—— 1878—VII. See FOREST ACT.
—— 1878—XI. See ARMS ACT.
—— 1879—XVIII. See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT.
—— 1881—V. See PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT.
—— 1881—XXVI. See NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT.
—— 1882—II. See TRUSTS ACT.
—— 1882—IV. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT.
—— 1882—V. See EASEMENTS ACT.
—— 1882—VI. See COMPANIES ACT.
—— 1882—XIV. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE.
—— 1882—XV. See PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT.
—— 1887—VII. See SUITS VALUATION ACT.
—— 1887—IX. See PROVINCIAL SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT.
—— 1887—X. See WILD BIRDS PROTECTION ACT.
—— 1890—VIII. See GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT.
—— 1890—IX. See RAILWAYS ACT.
—— 1896—XII. See EXCISE ACT.
—— 1898—V. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE.
—— 1899—II. See STAMP ACT.
—— 1899—IX. See ARBITRATION ACT.
—— 1907—III. See PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT.
—— 1908—V. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE.
—— 1908—VI. See EXPLOSIVE SUBSTANCES ACT.
—— 1908—IX. See LIMITATION ACT.
—— 1908—XVI. See REGISTRATION ACT.
—— 1909—III. See PRESIDENCY TOWNS INSOLVENCY ACT.
—— 1910—I. See PRESS ACT.
—— 1911—II. See PATENT AND DESIGNS ACT.
—— 1912—III. See WILD BIRDS AND ANIMALS PROTECTION ACT.
—— 1913—VII. See COMPANIES ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—BENGAL.

Act 1859—XI. See BENGAL LAND REVENUE SALES ACT.
—— 1880—VI. See BENGAL DRAINAGE ACT.
—— 1885—VIII. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT.
—— 1887—XII. See BENGAL, N.-W. P. AND ASSAM CIVIL COURTS ACT.
—— 1907—I. See BENGAL TENANCY (AMENDMENT) ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—BOMBAY.

Act 1879—V. See BOMBAY LAND REVENUE CODE.
—— 1887—IV. See BOMBAY PREVENTION OF GAMBLING ACT.
—— 1887—VI. See BOMBAY MATADARS ACT.
—— 1901—III. See BOMBAY DISTRICT MUNICIPALITIES ACT.
—— 1906—II. See BOMBAY MAMLATDARS' COURTS ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—BURMA.

Act 1898—IV. See LOWER BURMA TOWNS AND VILLAGE LANDS ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—CENTRAL PROVINCES.

Act 1876—VI. See CHOTA NAGPUR ENCUMBERED ESTATES ACT.
—— 1889—XVIII. See CENTRAL PROVINCES MUNICIPAL ACT.
—— 1898—XI. See CENTRAL PROVINCES TENANCY ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—MADRAS.

Act 1865—VIII. See MADRAS RENT RECOVERY ACT.
—— 1873—III. See MADRAS CIVIL COURTS ACT.
—— 1900—I. See MALABAR COMPENSATION FOR TENANTS' IMPROVEMENTS ACT.
—— 1897—IV. See MADRAS SURVEY AND BOUNDARIES MARKS ACT.
—— 1908—I. See MADRAS ESTATES LAND ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—PUNJAB.

Act 1887—XVI. See PUNJAB TENANCY ACT.
—— 1887—XVII. See PUNJAB LAND REVENUE ACT.
—— 1891—XX. See PUNJAB MUNICIPAL ACT.
—— 1893—III. See PUNJAB GOVERNMENT TENANTS ACT.
—— 1900—XIII. See PUNJAB ALIENATION OF LAND ACT.
—— 1905—II. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT.
—— 1912—IV. See PUNJAB COURTS ACT.
—— 1912—III. See PUNJAB TENANCY (AMENDMENT) ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—U. P.

Act 1873—XVIII. See NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES RENT ACT.
—— 1886—XXII. See OUDH RENT ACT.
—— 1891—I. See AGRA AND OUDH WATER WORKS ACT.
—— 1901—II. See AGRA TENANCY ACT.
—— 1901—III. See U. P. LAND REVENUE ACT.
—— 1904—I. See U. P. GENERAL CLAUSES ACT.

ACTS—REGULATIONS.

Act 1802—XXV. See MADRAS REGULATION.
—— 1825—XI. See BENGAL REGULATION.
—— 1886—I. See ASSAM LAND AND REVENUE REGULATION.

STATUTES.

11 & 12 VIC., C. 21. See INSOLVENT DEBTORS ACT.
24 & 25 VIC., C. 104. See CHARTER ACT; HIGH COURTS ACT.

Adoption. See HINDU LAW.

Adverse possession. See BENGAL LAND REVENUE SALES ACT, s. 13.

——— ——— ———After-acquired property of insolvent, vesting of, in Official Assignee—Possession of insolvent for over 12 years, if adverse against Official Assignee 168

——— ——— ———Inclosure, proof of—Strongest evidence 255

——— ——— ———Land under water for certain period—Vis major—Possession during such period—Presumption 278

——— ——— ———Landlord and tenant—Possession by tenant of parti land for tying cattle and other agricultural purposes—Presumption—Adverse possession, question of, if arises 264

——— ——— ———Limitation 156

——— ——— ———Limitation, starting point of 907

——— ——— ———Non-occupancy tenants paying no rent and holding over after termination of lease—Attempt to get themselves recorded as proprietors.

Where plaintiffs' predecessors were originally lessees of shamilat lands, but on the termination of their lease in 1865 continued to be in possession and were shown in the Revenue Records as non-occupancy tenants and in 1881 claimed without success to be recorded as proprietors:

Held, (1) that the mere fact of their never paying any rent except the land revenue and cesses did not of itself constitute them proprietors;

(2) that their adverse possession could not be said to have begun in 1881, as after their failure to get themselves recorded as proprietors they continued to cultivate the lands and pay the land revenue and cesses as before. P. DALIP SINGH v. RANNIA, 25 P. R. 1915 348

——— ——— ———Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 197—Suit for ejectment—Jurisdiction—Issue not tried 565

——— ——— ———Suit for possession—Plaintiff, what must prove—Adverse possession pleaded—Possession within 12 years, proof of—Defendants' inability to prove possession continuously for 12 years—Presumption—Possession under illegal order, effect of 10

——— ——— ———Tenants-in-common—Ouster—Evidence of exclusion 183

Agent. See PRINCIPAL AND AGENT.

———Accounts, suit for—Representative of deceased landlord, when can sue—Jurisdiction of Civil and Revenue Court 679

Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s 3. 5

——— ——— ——— s. 4 (12)—Grove—Improvement—Land—Plaint once admitted, whether can be rejected subsequently.

The planting of trees in holding is an improvement within the meaning of section 4 (12) of the Agra Tenancy Act.

Therefore, a grove is land within the meaning of the Tenancy Act.

Agra Tenancy Act—contd.

A plaint once admitted cannot be afterwards rejected on the ground of any defect subsequently discovered in it. U. P. B. R. BHAWAN v. ZAHUR ALI 410

——— S. 11 20

——— S. 11—Math, whether can acquire occupancy rights—Mahant—Chela—Succession.

An association like a math cannot be treated as an occupancy tenant under section 11 of the Tenancy Act.

Per Campbell, J. M.—A chela cannot inherit the occupancy rights of his guru. U. P. B. R. KESHO PRASAD SINGH v. RAMANAND GIR 407

——— S. 11—Non-occupancy tenant—Theka of proprietary share taken by him—Tenancy, right of, if in suspense—Fresh period necessary.

Where a year to year tenant remained in occupation for a number of years but before the acquisition of occupancy rights, took a theka of the proprietary rights:

Held, that to acquire occupancy rights he could not count the period before the theka, but that he must complete fresh twelve years after the cessation of the theka. U. P. B. R. LEKHRAJ MAL v. NATHU 474

——— S. 11—Occupancy right, acquisition of—Sub-letting, meaning of—Allowing brother to cultivate, if sub-letting—Period, if counted in continuous possession.

Sub-letting implies the leasing of land at a fixed rent to a sub-tenant.

Therefore, if a tenant allows his brother to cultivate a part of the land or associates him with himself in cultivation, there is no sub-letting and this period cannot be deducted under section 11 of Act II of 1901 from the period of acquisition of occupancy rights. U. P. B. R. PYARE LAL v. RAM BHAROSE 36

——— S. 12—Kabuliyat for one year, function of.

A kabuliyat for one year is intended to regulate rent, not length of occupation and it is not a lease for a fixed period, which cannot count for acquisition of occupancy rights. U. P. B. R. MURLI DHAR v. MOHAMED MUNIR 391

——— S. 22 548

——— S. 22—Jat widow succeeding to her husband's holding—Re-marriage when new Rent Act in force—Life-interest in holding, effect on—Hindu Widows' Re-marriage Act (XV of 1856), s. 2, applicability of.

The Hindu Widows' Re-marriage Act, XV of 1856, applies to the widows of those castes only among whom re-marriage was illegal before the passing of the above Act, and the widows of those castes in which re-marriage was prevalent at the time of the passing of the Act do not lose their interest in the property of their former husbands.

Therefore, a Jat widow who succeeded to the holding of her husband while the Rent Act of 1881 was in force, does not lose by re-marriage her life-interest in the holding. U. P. B. R. SOHANIA v. JAGJIT SINGH 399

Agra Tenancy Act—contd.

——— S. 22—Occupancy tenancy—Distant collateral relative sharer in cultivation with the deceased occupancy tenant—Nearer collateral relative alive but not sharer in cultivation—Succession.

A distant collateral who shared in cultivation with a deceased occupancy tenant cannot claim occupancy rights in succession to the deceased when a nearer collateral relative is alive but cannot succeed because he did not share in cultivation. U. P. B. R. BALDEO v. JAMBU PRASAD 417

——— S. 22—'Sharing in cultivation,' interpretation of—Member of joint family away from home, whether shares in cultivation.

Where a member of an agriculturist's family attempts to eke out the resources of the family by some extra work away from home which is not connected with agriculture, he does not cease to share in the cultivation within the meaning of the Tenancy Act.

Where cultivation is personal, the sharing must be personal; but where it is not personal, it need amount to no more than taking part in whatever arrangements are made by the tenant-in-chief. U. P. B. R. KEDAR NATH v. HAR PRASAD 22

——— S. 22—Succession—Collateral sharing in cultivation in part of holding, right of, to inherit whole holding.

A person who shares in the cultivation of any part of a holding shares in the cultivation of the holding and is entitled to inherit the entire holding. U. P. B. R. SHAHDEO v. MAHARAJA OF BENARES 320

——— S. 22—Succession—Uncle sharing in cultivation with nephew.

An uncle, if he shared in cultivation with his nephew at the latter's death, can succeed to the latter's holding.

Where a nephew died and was succeeded by his widow, who re-married and thus ceased to have an interest in the husband's holding but remained in possession, and the uncle thereupon claimed the holding:

Held, that the uncle should be recorded as an occupancy tenant.

Per Campbell, J. M.—An uncle is no heir to his nephew under section 22 of Act II of 1901. U. P. B. R. MOHAMMAD YUSUF KHAN v. NANHI 409

——— S. 22—Succession—Uncle, whether can succeed to nephew's holding—Cultivation, sharing in.

An uncle who shared in cultivation of an occupancy holding with his nephew at the time of the latter's death is entitled to inherit the nephew's holding. U. P. B. R. PHULESARI v. SHUKUL RAJ SINGH 9

——— S. 22—Zemindar's right to create subordinate rights—Thekadar, meaning of.

The word "thekadar" in section 22 of the Tenancy Act is intended to apply not only to a lessee of proprietary rights but to any person who holds a tenure created by the act of the zemindar.

Obiter dicta.—A zemindar has a right to create subordinate rights of any character he chooses, e. g., to fix a rent in perpetuity or to allow succession according to Hindu Law. U. P. B. R. JANG BAHADUR SINGH v. M. MUHAMMAD YAHIA 649

Agra Tenancy Act—contd.

——— s. 28, scope of—Perpetual lease by widow having life-interest—Landholder, right of.

A perpetual lease granted by a widow who has only a life-interest in the occupancy tenancy is not after her death binding upon the land-holder under section 28 of the Tenancy Act.

Section 28 of the Tenancy Act contemplates merely a lease for a fixed term and not a lease in perpetuity. U. P. B. R. PHEKU TEWARI v. KALI DIN SINGH 23

——— s. 34 285

——— ss. 50, 154, 3—Rent-free land—Resumption—Proceedings to have rent assessed—Rent not assessed—Suit for resumption, whether barred.

In 1869, a zemindar got a declaration that he had a right to have rent assessed on the rent-free land but got no rent assessed. In 1912 he brought a suit for resumption. It was contended that the only right of the zemindar was to have the rent assessed:

Held, that, under the present law as under the old law, the former proceedings were no bar to a proceeding for resumption. U. P. B. R. RAM CHARAN v. BISMILLAH BEGAM 5

——— s. 52—Decree for arrears of rent obtained—Decree not satisfied within fifteen days—Suit for ejectment filed—Decretal amount tendered by judgment-debtor during pendency of suit, effect of.

A co-sharer who is not a recorded co-sharer need not join as a plaintiff in a suit for ejectment.

A landlord obtained a decree for arrears of rent against an occupancy tenant and then brought a suit for his ejectment under section 52, Agra Tenancy Act, on the ground of non-satisfaction of the decree for arrears of rent for more than fifteen days. Before the decree for ejectment was passed and while the ejectment suit was still pending, the judgment-debtor offered the decretal amount to the decree-holder, who refused to take it on the ground that it was not offered to him within fifteen days of the decree:

Held, that if the decree-holder had accepted the money when tendered, no decree for ejectment could have been passed, as at the date of the decree for ejectment there would have been no unsatisfied decree for arrears of rent, that, the landlord had no right to complain of non-satisfaction of the decree owing to his own refusal to accept the tendered money and that, therefore, the decree for ejectment could not be made.

A tenant has a right to pay the decretal amount at any time before the order for ejectment is passed. U. P. B. R. RAM ADHIN v. MAHABIR 496

——— s. 79—Grove-holder—Grove brought under cultivation—Grove-holder, whether becomes a tenant ipso facto*—Wrongful dispossession.*

If a grove ceases to be the grove land and the grove-holder brings it under cultivation, he is not entitled to remain in possession as a tenant at all until he comes to some arrangement with the land-holder as to the payment of rent.

If, therefore, the ex-grove-holder is dispossessed by the land-holder, he cannot maintain a suit under section 79 of the Agra Tenancy Act, as he is not a tenant. U. P. B. R. SHEONANDAN SINGH v. LACHMAN RAI 447

Agra Tenancy Act—contd.

——— s. 95—Rent, suit for—Rent, determination of—Court, power of.

In a suit under section 95 of Act II of 1901, a Court can only ascertain what is the amount of rent payable, but cannot fix the amount of rent when no rent has been fixed or agreed upon. U. P. B. R. RAM PRASAD v. MATHURA RAI 604

——— s. 154 5

——— s. 154 (b)—Grant—Specific service—Muafi—Specific service not required—Resumption of grant—Notice—Pleading.

Where in a suit for the resumption of a 'muafi' land on the ground that it was given for the performance of a specific service no longer required, the plaint did not allege the specific service which the proprietor no longer required, nor was there any evidence to show that the notice mentioning the non-requirement of the specific service was served on the grantee:

Held, that the plaint and the notice were both defective and the suit was not maintainable on these grounds. U. P. B. R. MURLI v. RAJA RAM 554

——— ss. 154 (b), (c) and 158, 177 (c)—Resumption—Proprietary title—Appeal to District Judge—Interpretation of Wajib-ul-arz*—Finding of fact—Evidence not referred to in judgment, effect of.*

Where in a suit for resumption of land held rent-free, filed in the Court of an Assistant Collector the defendant pleaded that it had been held rent-free for a period of 100 years and that he was entitled under section 158 of the Tenancy Act to be declared to be the proprietor of the land:

Held, that under section 177 (c) of the Tenancy Act an appeal lay to the District Judge from the decision of the Assistant Collector.

Where the District Judge misapprehended a certain entry in the Wajib-ul-arz and, while recording a finding did not in express terms discuss the evidence upon which the finding was based, the High Court, in the absence of a certificate that the finding rested upon no evidence, treated the decision of the lower Appellate Court on this point as a finding of fact with which it could not interfere. A. SUNDAR LAL v. MALTHU 710

——— s. 158 710

——— ss. 158, 177(e)—Resumption, suit for—Muafidar pleading proprietary title—Decision—Appeal—Jurisdiction.

Where in a suit for resumption the defence was that the muafidar had acquired proprietary rights by virtue of his and his predecessors-in-interest having been in possession for 50 years and of there having been two successors to the original grantee:

Held, that the question being one of proprietary title, an appeal from the decision of the Revenue Court lays to the District Judge. U. P. B. R. BISMILLAH BEGAM v. BEHARI 484

——— s. 165—Suit for profits against co-sharer lambardar*, maintainability of.*

A co-sharer by becoming a lambardar does not cease to be a co-sharer, and, therefore, a suit brought against him by another co-sharer under section 165 of the Tenancy Act is not bad in law. A. BANKEY BIHARI LAL v. CHARNI 473

Agra Tenancy Act—contd.

——— s. 177 (c) 710

——— ——— s. 177 (e) 484

——— ——— ——— s. 181—Decree, ex parte, by a Commissioner—Appeal against such decree, when maintainable.

Under section 181 of the Agra Tenancy Act an appeal lies to the Board against an appellate decree passed ex parte by a Commissioner when he has reversed or modified the decree appealed against to him. U. P. B. R. CHATAR BHUJ v. BASDEO 345

——— ——— ——— s. 185—Revision—Interference—Miscarriage of justice—Occupancy tenant mutating tenancy in favour of his sons, effect of.

The Board can interfere in revision only when there is a very grave error of law and as a matter of policy will not interfere unless there has also been a miscarriage of justice.

A Kayastha got entered in the patwari's papers the names of his natural (kahar) sons in place of his name in respect of his holding but himself remained in possession with his sons. The zemindar was no party to this application for entry of names:

Held, that as the entry of the sons' names had no legal force and the father remained in possession with his sons, his rights as an occupancy tenant did not come to an end. U. P. B. R. KALKA PRASAD v. BAIJ NATH PRASAD 676

——— ——— ——— s. 194—Decree passed against several persons—Whether one of them can appeal without others joining him.

Section 194 of the Tenancy Act does not apply to appeals. Therefore only one out of a number of persons against whom a decree has been passed can sustain an appeal even though others do not join him. U. P. B. R. RAM LAL v. UMRAO SINGH. 568

——— ——— ——— s. 197—Suit for ejectment—Adverse possession—Jurisdiction—Issue not tried.

In a suit instituted in a Revenue Court for ejectment on the ground that the defendant was in possession without the plaintiff's consent and without the payment of any rent, the defendant pleaded that he was in proprietary and adverse possession of the land but this issue was not tried:

Held, that the District Judge on appeal ought to have acted under the provisions of section 197 of the Agra Tenancy Act and disposed of the plea of jurisdiction. A. MANOHRI v. BHURA 565

——— ——— ——— s. 197—Suit triable by Revenue Court—Appeal—Transfer of appeal by District Judge to Subordinate Judge—Subordinate Judge, whether can pass order of remand.

Where a District Judge transfers an appeal to a Subordinate Judge the latter may exercise all the powers vested in an Appellate Court by section 197 of the Agra Tenancy Act. A. AFZAL SHAH v. MUHAMMAD ABDUL KARIM KHAN, 37 A. 232 633

——— ——— ——— s. 201—Recorded co-sharer declared by Civil Court as having no title—Suit for profits by such co-sharer—Pending decision of suit his name expunged from Revenue papers—Presumption of s. 201, applicability of.

Agra Tenancy Act—concld.

A recorded co-sharer in a village was declared by a Civil Court to have no title as such. Pending an application for correction of the Revenue Records in conformity with the Civil Court's declaration he sued for profits as a co-sharer but before this suit was decided the Revenue papers were corrected and his name was expunged:

Held, that under the circumstances, he could not take advantage of the presumption of section 201 of the Agra Tenancy Act. A. HARGU LAL v. MED SINGH 509

Agra and Oudh Water Works Act (1 of 1891), s. 46—Waste water used in garden—Offence.

Waste water may be used for the purposes of a garden as it cannot be used for a second time for domestic purposes.

In cold weather the garden of the applicant was found well watered but the pacca reservoir and channel connected with a well in the garden were dry and full of leaves:

Held, that this circumstance was not sufficient for conviction of the applicant for having used for gardening the water supplied for domestic purposes. A. SITAL PRASAD GHOSH v. EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 546 830

Agreement not to execute decree previous to decree, effect of 838

Alayasanthana Law — Joint family — Minority—Partition of family property, when allowed.

Under Alayasanthana Law as in Marumakatayam Law no partition of tarwad property should be permitted during the minority of some members of the tarwad, unless such partition is shown to be beneficial to such minors. M. SARVESHRI SHETTATHI v. PUTTAMMA SHETTATHI 474

Alien enemy, suit against. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 83.

Alienation. See CUSTOM; HINDU LAW.

——— ——— Custom—Mortgage of ancestral property—Necessity—Suit by after-born son—Other reversioner existing before not suing—Limitation—Strict proof of necessity, when not required—Legal necessity—Advances taken for defending a criminal case and for payment of revenue, if for legal necessity—Interest on just debt, whether necessity—Pleadings.

The validity of a mortgage screened by time from attack cannot be questioned by a reversioner on the ground that it has been merged into a subsequent mortgage or sale to challenge which the suit is within limitation.

When time once begins to run against a reversioner for contesting the validity of an alienation of ancestral property no subsequent disability to sue on the ground of minority of another reversioner can bar its flow.

In the absence of any clear proof of reckless extravagance or immoral waste on the part of the alienor of ancestral property, strict proof of necessity for ordinary debts is not required, particularly where the income of the estate does not appear to be quite sufficient to meet the family expenses and the alienor has sons or does not expect to be sonless.

Alienation—concld.

Interest on a just debt is also a necessity. So is the money due on account of produce where the mortgagor holds the land as a tenant of the mortgagee and enjoys the whole produce himself and allows the rent to mount up against him provided the validity of the mortgage cannot be questioned.

Payment of revenue is also an act of necessity.

Money spent on defending a criminal case can be validly charged on ancestral property.

A plea not raised in either of the Courts below cannot be entertained for the first time in further appeal to the Chief Court. P. CHANDA SINGH v. MUKAND SINGH, 61 P. W. R. 1915; 144 P. L. R. 1915 761

——— Necessity—Sale of ancestral property—Objection on ground of immorality of purpose—Onus —Obligation of vendee.

Where a Hindu father sold his ancestral house to a third person and after his death his son sued for recovery of possession, alleging that the sale consideration money was taken for an immoral purpose:

Held, (1) that it lay on the plaintiff to prove the immorality of the transaction if he wanted to free himself from his liability to pay his father's debt;

(2) that the sale could not be maintained as a sale unless the vendee proved necessity;

(3) that as the sale had taken place some 20 years before suit, circumstantial evidence should be considered sufficient to establish necessity. P. RAM LABHAYA v. GOPAL DAS, 78 P. W. R. 1915; 151 P. L. R. 1915 891

Alluvial accretion—Non-occupancy holding, accretion to—Occupancy rights in accretion, acquisition of—Limitation.

Occupancy rights in an alluvial accretion to a non-occupancy holding arise only by twelve years' continuous cultivation of that accretion. U. P. B. R. GANESH v. SAHIB-UN-NISSA BIBI 37

Amendment. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O. VI, R. 17.

——— ——— Original defect in plaint, if cured by amendment 249

——— ——— Plaint, amendment of—Discretion exercised by lower Appellate Court—High Court, power of, to interfere 355

——— ——— of decree. See APPEAL.

——— ——— of plaint. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, O. VI, R. 17.

Anubhavam tenure—Denial of landlord's title, whether works forfeiture of tenancy.

Where land is held on anubhavam tenure, the denial of the landlord's title not directly addressed to the landlord does not work a forfeiture of the tenancy. M. SANKARAN NAIR v. KOCHAPPU MENON 427

Animal—Injury caused by vicious horse—Defendant knowingly keeping vicious horse, liability of—Negligence, if necessary to support action—Damages, suit for.

The defendant knowingly kept a horse which was a vicious animal. The horse injured the plaintiff and he sued for damages:

Held, that the defendant must be held liable notwithstanding that he was not guilty of negligence, as negligence was not necessary to support a suit of this nature. C. GANDA SINGH v. CHUNI LAL SHAHA, 19 C. W. N. 916 862

Appeal (Civil)—Amendment of decree—Material alteration—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 152.

An appeal lies from an amended decree where the amendment has the effect of appreciably adding to the right of the decree-holder. N. DINAJI v. LAXMAN, 11 N. L. R. 92 589

——— Appellate Court's power to cancel order of costs passed by first Court 137

——— "Appellate jurisdiction"—Judgment—Appeal against such order, if maintainable—Discretionary power given to Subordinate Courts—Appellate Court, power of, to interfere 846

——— Award—Application to set aside award dismissed—Decree—Appeal, maintainability of 512

———, Court of, duty of—Weight to be given to opinion of trial Judge 229

——— Court fees, deficiency of, made up after several orders, effect of 571

——— Decree passed against several persons—Whether one of them can appeal without others joining him 568

——— Exclusion of time requisite for obtaining copies 833

——— Objection under section 92, Evidence Act, taken for first time in Court of Appeal 223

——— Order providing for appointment of Receiver 504

——— Order of Record Officer, appeal from—Jurisdiction.

No appeal lies to the District Judge from an order of the Record Officer. A. BHARAT DAUJ DAMODAR DAS v. MAHABBAT 421

——— Pre-emption decree—Vendee applying to withdraw money, whether estopped from appealing 452

——— Proprietary title, question of—Issue not decided—Appeal, whether lies to District Judge—Onus on wrong party—Finding based on no evidence—Revision, grounds for 61

——— Reasonable opportunity to appellant to be heard in support of appeal—Advocate filing appeal not Advocate for appellant called upon to support appeal—Reasonable opportunity, if given 666

——— Receiver, appointment of—Discretion of lower Court—Appellate Court, power of, to interfere 485

——— Redemption, suit for—Muafidar pleading proprietary title—Decision—Jurisdiction 484

———, security for—Notice to show cause—Sufficient cause not shown—Dismissal of appeal on that day—Material irregularity 59

——— Suit triable by Revenue Court—Transfer of appeal by District Judge to Subordinate Judge—Subordinate Judge, whether can pass order of remand 633

——— Criminal—Acquittal—High Court, power of, to interfere—Grounds of interference 657

——— ——— Letters Patent (Mad.), cl. 15—Criminal trial—Revision 96

Appeal (Criminal)—concld.

——Power of Sessions Judge in appeal—Acquittal—Procedure—Enhancement of sentence, whether a fit ground for ordering re-trial 65

——Several accused — Judgment — Appellate Court, duty of 336

——, second—Common carrier, negligence of—Question of law or fact 260

——Commutation—Occupancy raiyat, advantage of—Revenue Court, decision of, how far affects Civil Court 896

——Finding of fact—Substantial error in procedure—Court overlooking material evidence —Consideration—Legal necessity 785

——, ground for interference in 801

——, maintainability of—Orders passed in execution of decree—Revision, erroneous view of law, if ground for 740

——Misreading of record 167

——New defence if can be set up 811

——Omission to consider oral evidence — Material irregularity in procedure—Punjab Courts Act (III of 1914), s. 41 (1) (c).

An omission by a lower Appellate Court to consider the oral evidence and record a finding thereon, is a material irregularity in procedure, and is a good ground for second appeal. P. KALU v. BIR SINGH, 73 P. W. R. 1915; 149 P. L. R. 1915 901

——Oral evidence discredited on general reasons—Particular deponent not discredited—Error in law—Appeal.

To discredit oral evidence on merely general reasons not affecting the credit of any particular deponent, is an error in law and justifies interference in second appeal.

Selected Decision No. 9 of 1914, relied upon. U. P. B. R. RAM SUBHAG CHAUBE v. KESHO PRASAD SINGH 673

——Plea of want of registration of security, if allowed 271

——Point not taken in lower Courts cannot be raised—Parties bound by case arising on pleadings.

A point not taken in the lower Courts cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal.

The parties are bound by the case which arises on their pleadings and which has been enquired into by the Court of first instance, and they cannot rely upon a point which has not been raised in that Court and which depends upon facts for its determination. P. DYAL v. HIRDE RAM, 80 P. W. R. 1915; 153 P. L. R. 1915 895

——Question of fact decided without there being evidence to support finding—Question of law.

Where a Court decides a question of fact without there being any evidence whatever to support its finding, there is a question of law and the Board will interfere in second appeal. U. P. B. R. KESHO PRASAD SINGH v. SUBA KHAN 563

Appeal to Privy Council—Appeal dismissed for default by High Court—Decree affirming decree of Court below 469

——Execution of decree in suit of value of Rs. 10 lakhs—Subject-matter of dispute —Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 110.

Where in execution of a decree in a partition suit involving property of the value of rupees ten lakhs, the applicants disputed their liability to 4/6ths of an item of Rs. 11,709:

Held, that such a case did neither satisfy both the conditions set forth in the 1st clause of section 110 of Act V of 1908, nor did it fulfil the conditions mentioned in the second clause of that section, and that consequently permission to appeal therefrom to their Lordships of the Privy Council could not be granted. P. DEVI DASS v. NARPAT RAI, 60 P. W. R. 1915; 140 P. L. R. 1915 759

Appellate Court, jurisdiction of, to determine proof whether according to law or not—Sufficiency of evidence, determination of, power of 282

——Mortgage—Redemption—Time fixed for payment of money—Appellate Court extending time and fixing another date, effect of 289

Approver—Pardon forfeited—Power of Sessions Judge to direct prosecution—Plea not taken before Committing Magistrate taken before Sessions Judge, legality of 323

Arbitration—Award—Application to set aside award dismissed—Decree—Appeal, maintainability of 512

——Award—Decree in terms of award —Both parties consenting to appeal being heard against such decree, effect of 408

——Award, setting aside of—Appeal, maintainability of 411

——Award, suit on—Failure to file award in Court within 6 months, whether bars suit —Award, whether in nature of foreign judgment —Punchayatdars, if entitled to administer to witness any reasonable form of oath agreed upon by parties —Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), Sch. II, para. 20—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 178.

A suit lies on an award, even though the same has not been filed in Court under paragraph 20, Schedule II, Civil Procedure Code, 1908, within six months, as required by Article 178, Schedule I, Limitation Act, 1908.

An award is not in the nature of a foreign judgment and a Court is, therefore, entitled to go into the merits of the same.

There is nothing illegal in the parties to an arbitration agreeing before punchayatdars to have evidence taken after the administration of any reasonable form of oath to the witnesses. M. MUTHUKARUPPA KONE v. VEERABHADRA KONE, 2 L. W. 320; 17 M. L. T. 241 49

——Reference by natural guardian of minors—Mutual agreement—Repudiation by other party, power of.

A natural guardian can refer a question that concerns the wards to arbitration and when the question does not concern the minors solely but also the guardian, there is consideration and mutuality sufficient to preclude the other party to the reference from repudiating it. L. B. MG. PO MYA v. MA DOUNG, 8 BUR. L. T. 122 800

Arbitration Act (IX of 1899), s. 11—Appointment of arbitrators, when complete—Reference to sole arbitrator—Subsequent insertion of additional arbitrator's name, effect of—Stamp Act (II of 1899), s. 14—Application to file award by one arbitrator only, validity of.

The appointment of a certain person as arbitrator is not complete until such person has accepted the reference and consented to act.

Where a dispute between the parties was referred to a sole arbitrator, but before he had accepted the reference the name of a co-arbitrator was added:

Held, that the addition, having been made before the reference was accepted by the first arbitrator, did not convert it into a second instrument within the meaning of section 14 of the Stamp Act and the two arbitrators were competent to make an award.

The filing of an award is a purely ministerial act and can be legally performed by any one of the arbitrators appointed. S. SHAMDAS TEUMAL v. KHIMANMAL, 8 S. L. R. 302 602

Arms Act (XI of 1878), s. 14—Spear, deposit of—Failure to deposit—Conviction, if legal.

Section 14 of the Indian Arms Act does not require "a spear" to be deposited with a Magistrate and a conviction for omission to do so is illegal. M. CHAGANTIPATI CHINA BASAVAPP, In re, 2 L. W. 532 544

Arrears of rent, stale claim for—Interest, rate of, allowable—Interest, when allowable on arrears of rent—Enhanced Government revenue, whether payable by mortgagor or mortgagee 386

Assam Land and Revenue Regulation (I of 1886), ss. 6, 71, scope of—Ejectment—User for agricultural purpose—True test—Occupancy right, acquisition of, by 12 years' possession, effect of.

Section 71 of the Assam Land and Revenue Regulation does not entitle a purchaser to eject any tenant having a right of occupancy under the rent law for the time being in force, or to enhance the rent of any such tenant, otherwise than in the manner prescribed by that law.

Where the defendants are found to be cultivators holding the entire tract for a period of more than twelve years, and a portion has been used for grazing purposes while the remainder is still covered by jungle:

Held, that the defendants are raiyats within the meaning of section 6 of the Assam Land and Revenue Regulation and that the use of the land for grazing purposes entitles them to claim a right of occupancy; that the true test is to determine whether the user of the land has been for an agricultural purpose; that the mere fact that a part of the land is still covered by jungle and has not been actually brought under tillage does not take the case out of the operation of section 6, which applies to land "cultivated or held."

A raiyat who has occupied and cultivated land for more than 12 years under a landlord who had no title to the land, nevertheless acquires a right of occupancy under section 6 of Act X of 1859 or Act VIII of 1869, B. C. C. BROJABASI KOER v. RAM SANKAR DAS 834

——— s. 71 834

Assignments in fraud of creditors—Part payment of consideration for a previous mortgage—Right of subrogation, whether exists 583

Attachment. See EXECUTION.

——— Claim to attached property—Question of possession not decided—Power of High Court to interfere—Possession in one's own right—Release from attachment 228

——— effect of, on property attached 572

——— Mortgage of right to receive certain dues—Decree for sale—Order of attachment and injunction, whether competent 601

——— before judgment. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O. 38 271

Award. See ARBITRATION.

———, suit to set aside—Application for copy—Time requisite for obtaining it, whether deducted 860

Balance sheet, falsification of, if offence under s. 477A., I. P. C. 105

Benami mortgage—Benamidar mortgagee, right of, to sue—Mortgagor, whether can object to mortgagee's right 892

——— purchase. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 66.

——— purchase—Benamidar's position and title—Real owner's powers 787

——— Sale—Consideration—Kobala containing recital of payment of consideration—Benami, onus of proving—Defendant in possession—Presumption, whether arises—Admission of first evidence 696

——— transaction—Ostensible vendee paying off debts and making ready cash payment—Burden of proof.

Where an ostensible vendee pays off the debts due by the transferor and makes an advance of ready cash on the date of sale, there is a strong presumption that the transaction is not benami and the burden lies heavily on the party who alleges that the transaction is benami. M. VAITHINATHA AIYAR v. VAITHINATHASAWMY AIYAR 970

Benamidar, right of—Suit for specific performance 12

——— Right to execute decree.

A benamidar transferee of a decree is entitled to execute it A. KAMTA PRASAD v. INDOMATI, 13 A. L. J. 557; 37 A. 414 593

Benefit of doubt. See PENAL CODE, s. 307.

Bengal Drainage Act (VI of 1880), ss. 26 (1), 42, 44—Drainage charge—Instalments, recovery of—Mistake—Limitation.

Section 44 of the Bengal Drainage Act is merely a permissive section and does not control the right of a land-holder or a superior tenant to recover the instalments under the two sections 42 and 44.

A mistake about the year of the instalment cannot save limitation. C. MOHENDRA NATH v. NARENDRA KRISHNA 399

——— ss. 42, 44 399

Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act (XI of 1859), ss. 5, 6, 33—Embankment charges, sale for, whether sale for land revenue—Collector, jurisdiction of.

A sale of an estate for arrears of embankment charges (pulbandi) is not a sale for arrears of land revenue, and it is not competent to a Collector to hold such a sale under Act XI of 1859. P. C. DHIRAJ CHANDRA BOSE v. HARI DASI DEBI, 19 C. W. N. 507; 28 M. L. J. 480; 2 L. W. 422 290

——— ss. 6, 33 290

Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act—concld.

——————— ss. 13, 54, scope of—Sale, what passes by—Purchaser, rights of—Adverse possession—Incumbrance, acquisition of rights in respect of.

At a sale under section 13, Bengal Land Revenue Sales, Act XI of 1859, it is not the rights of the recorded proprietor that pass, but the share itself.

Obiter.—A Hindu widow in possession of a share of an estate as the heiress of her husband or her father represents the full owner's interest and the purchaser of such a share acquires the share itself, and not merely a life-estate.

Adverse possession against the defaulter, whether for the statutory period or for a lesser period, does not bind the purchaser of a share, who is not a person claiming from or through the defaulter.

It is not the right, title and interest of the previous owner of the share which pass to the purchaser under section 54, but the share as recorded in the Collector's book, on which the revenue is assessed.

The words "shall not acquire any rights" in section 54, Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act, refer to the acquisition of rights in respect of interests, such as incumbrances or the like, which are referred to in the previous phrase of that section. C. KHEMESH CHANDRA v. ABDUL HAMID 350

——————— s. 54 350

Bengal, N. W. P. and Assam Civil Courts Act (XII of 1887), s. 8 (2) 935

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885) 563

——————— s 22, *proviso, scope of—*Raiyati *interest, merging of, into landlord's by sale—Arrears of rent, sale for—Landlord, purchase by—Under-*raiyat's right, how long remains.

Though the raiyati right merges into that of the superior landlord by the sale of the holding for arrears of rent and its purchase by the landlord, the right of an under-raiyat does not cease but remains alive till he is evicted by law, according to the proviso of section 22 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. C. ANANT PRASAD SINGH v. H. MANNERS 459

——————— ss. 30, 101, 111, scope of—Rent, enhancement of, alteration of, suit for—Local area, meaning of.

A suit for enhancement of rent under section 30 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and a suit of the nature described in section 52, are included in the expression 'suit for alteration of rent' in section 111.

Under section 101 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, an entire district is included in the meaning of the term 'local area', although an area smaller than an entire estate or country as a whole is usually meant by the term 'local'. C. BROJENDRO KISHORE RAI v. KHALIB NAGARCHI, 21 C. L. J. 489 885

——————— s. 38—Abatement of rent—Existing conditions—"Permanent," interpretation of—Deterioration—Land covered with sand, whether permanent deterioration.

A more liberal interpretation must be put on the word "permanent" in section 38 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and it must be construed with reference to existing conditions.

Bengal Tenancy Act—contd.

Thus where a land is covered with sand the deterioration is permanent with reference to existing conditions. C. KRISHNA SAHAI v. PALAKDHARI RAUT, 22 C. L. J. 42 206

——————— ss. 40, 153, scope of—Appeal, second—Commutation—Occupancy raiyat, advantage of—Revenue Court, decision of, how far affects Civil Court.

The question of Bhowli or Nagdi rent is one the decision whereon may be challenged by way of appeal under section 153 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

The propriety of commutation of rent of a holding or of the amount fixed cannot be called in question in a Civil Court.

A proceeding under section 40 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is founded on the assumption that the tenant whose rent is sought to be commuted is an occupancy raiyat.

A decision in a dispute as to the status of the tenant decided by the Revenue Authorities in a commutation proceeding under section 40 is not final and conclusive between the parties, the Civil Court has jurisdiction to go over it. C. KALI KRISHNA BAISWAS v. RAM CHANDRA BAIDYA, 21 C. L. J. 487; 19 C. W. N. 823 896

——————— ss. 49, 87—Occupancy right, non-transferability of, unless by custom—Notice, necessity of—Re-entry, landlord's right of—Transfer by raiyat without consent of landlord.

Where in the absence of any custom of transfer an occupancy raiyat transfers the property to the under-raiyats, the landlord has a right to re-enter upon the property.

A notice under section 49 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, to which under-raiyats are entitled, is indeed required before ejectment, but that does not apply to a superior landlord who is claiming to re-enter because the occupancy raiyat has forfeited his holding by having transferred it without the consent of the landlord.

Section 49 applies where the occupancy raiyat still remains in the position of the landlord, not where the occupancy raiyat has forfeited his interest by having transferred his interest without the consent of the landlord.

A notice served under section 87 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is not required for the landlord to re-enter in a case like this. C. JADAB CHANDRA SARDAR v. GOVINDA CHANDRA MANDAL 466

——————— ss. 49 (b), 85 (2)—*Lease, perpetual, validity of—Under-raiyat—Rent, acceptance of, if ratification.*

Where a raiyat grants a lease allowing the lessee to hold the land from generation to generation, and gets rent therefrom, the lease is a nullity, and the acceptance of rent from the lessee cannot effect a ratification of the lease, which is initially void. C. MOHIM CHANDRA DEY v. BAIDYA NATH, 21 C. L. J. 478 879

——————— s. 85 (2) 879

——————— s. 87 466

——————— s. 100, Rules made under—Common manager, powers and duties of—High Court, jurisdiction of—Common manager, position of

Bengal Tenancy Act—contd.

The High Court having made rules under section 100 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, defining the powers and duties of managers, it has power under section 15 of the Charter to superintend and revise the orders of a District Judge.

The position of a common manager under the Bengal Tenancy Act is analogous to that of a Receiver appointed by the Court under the provisions of Order XL of the Code of Civil Procedure, save and except that he is not liable to be sued. C. SATYENDRA MOHAN GHOSE v. RAJ MOHAN GUHA 177

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 101 885

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 104 H — Record of Rights, preparation of, finality of 437

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 106 122

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 106—Tenant's right to cut and appropriate trees—Custom, reasonableness of—Question of law—Reasonableness, test for.

The question whether a custom is reasonable or not is a question of law and not one of fact.

It is wrong to hold that a custom is unreasonable in so far as it permits the appropriation of timber trees on a holding by the tenant.

Where there is nothing unfair or dishonest or contrary to the public good in a custom, the custom is not unreasonable. C GURAI KAR v. KAURMONI SINGHA, 19 C. W. N. 1188 312

——— ——— ——— ——— ss. 109, 106, scope of—Revenue Court's duty as to fair rent—Suits in Civil Court, bar of—Revenue and Civil Courts, jurisdiction of—No forfeiture for mistake in selecting one Court for another.

Under the provisions of section 109 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the decision of a Settlement Officer or rather a Revenue Court, with reference to what is the fair and equitable rent, is binding and conclusive and the tenants are not entitled to question that decision in any Civil Court, provided that the question in the Civil Court is concerning any matter which is or has clearly been the subject of an application made under sections 105 to 108 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

The duty of a Revenue Court is limited to the inquiry as to what is the fair rent, having regard to the entry that appears on the Record of Rights and, therefore, section 109 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is no bar to a suit by a tenant for a declaration that the lands are either lakheraj or are held at fixed rates. Section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act does not exclude the right of a Civil Court. It is an extremely dangerous proposition to say that whenever a Statute gives a person a right to go, if he thinks fit, to a special Tribunal, that necessarily excludes the jurisdiction of the ordinary Courts of the country.

A person, because he went to a Civil Court instead of going to a Revenue Court, is not liable to be deprived of his rights to the property which he may have purchased or inherited from his ancestors. C. SHASHI BHUSAN v. ESABAR ALI, 19 C. W. N. 636 122

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 111 885

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 111A 437

Bengal Tenancy Act—contd.

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 149 (3), scope of—Arrears of rent, suit for—'Money,' meaning of—Apportionment, question of.

In a suit for arrears of rent against a tenant, the money mentioned in sub-section (3) of section 149 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is the entire sum deposited into Court under sub-section (1) and no question of apportionment between rival claimants to proprietorship of the tenancy is intended to be raised or decided under the section.

Where it is admitted by the tenant defendant that part at any rate of the sum deposited is due to the defendant-landlord but the precise part so due is not determined:

Held, that section 149 of the Bengal Tenancy Act has no application, the question of apportionment being not within the scope of the suit. C. AMBICA CHARAN BEPARI v. ASWINI KUMAR, 21 C. L. J. 485 883

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 153 836

——— ——— ——— ——— , (amended by Act I of 1908), s. 153, proviso and explanation, scope of—Sale—Irregularity—Question relating to title or some interest in land Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 90, order under, whether appealable—Irregularity and fraud in publishing or conducting a sale.

Per N. Chatterjea, J.—Under Explanation to section 153 of the Bengal Tenancy Act (Eastern Bengal and Assam Tenancy Act) a question as to the regularity of the proceedings in publishing or conducting a sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent is not a question relating to title to land or to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto.

The question whether, or not, a case comes under the proviso to section 153, Bengal Tenancy Act, is to be determined by the Appellate Court not with reference to the question which may be raised in appeal, but with reference to the question decided by the order of the Subordinate Court.

An order setting aside or declaring to set aside a sale in execution of a decree for rent (where the decree-holder is the purchaser) is an order deciding a question relating to title to land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto, and falls within the proviso to section 153 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and is, therefore, appealable, though there could be no appeal from the decree in the suit on account of the prohibition contained in the section.

An irregularity of the proceedings in publishing or conducting a sale is not the same as fraud in publication or conduct of the sale.

Section 153, Explanation, applies only to cases where there is a question as to irregularity in publishing or conducting a sale.

An application to set aside a sale made by a person (who prior to the sale had purchased the holding) more than a month after the sale comes within section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code and is not time-barred, section 18 of the Limitation Act being applicable to the circumstances of the case.

A question as to fraud in publishing or conducting a sale is not covered by the Explanation to section 153 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

Bengal Tenancy Act—contd.

Per Mullick, J.—An irregularity in publishing or conducting a sale may be accompanied with or without fraud.

Section 153, Explanation, does not expressly exclude from its scope an irregularity tainted by fraud. C. NOBIN CHANDRA v. BEPIN CHANDRA ROY, 19 C. W. N. 953; 22 C. L. J. 244 308

——— s. 171, scope of—Construction—Sum paid to avert rent-sale not considered part of mortgage-money—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 83, scope of—"Money remaining due on mortgage", what includes.

Whatever construction may be put on section 171 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, it cannot mean that the sum paid for the protection of the property becomes part of the mortgage-money.

In view of the specific provisions of section 171 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the money paid to avert the rent sale does not become part of the mortgage-money so as to entitle the mortgagee to treat it as included in the amount remaining due on his mortgage under section 83 of the Transfer of Property Act C. MANMATHA NATH v. SARAT CHANDRA ADDY, 21 C. L. J. 429 929

——— s. 174—Deposit to be made by judgment-debtor himself—Transferee, whether can make a valid deposit.

A deposit made under section 174 of the Bengal Tenancy Act must be made by the judgment-debtor himself and by no other person. A transferee of the judgment-debtor does not come under the section. C. SURENDRA NARAYAN SINGH v. LACHMI KOER 840

——— s. 182 859

——— s. 186A, scope of—Denial of landlord's title, by tenants, effect of—Landlord, if can sue for recovery of possession

Section 186A of the Bengal Tenancy Act does not apply to a case brought by a landlord in a Civil Court for possession when the tenants thereof have successfully denied the landlord's title in a rent suit. C. PROSONNO KUMAR v. KULADA PROSAD 472

——— Sch. III, Art. 2—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 29, Sch. I, Art. 116—Arrears of rent, suit to recover—Agricultural land, lease of, for agricultural purposes—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 107.

In a suit for arrears of rent the rent that was in arrears and was sued for, was for the year 1313 B. S. under a first kabuliat, and for the years 1313-1318 B. S. under a second kabuliat. The defendant's estate was taken charge of by the Court of Wards on the 11th November 1908, and whilst his estate was under their charge the Collector gave an acknowledgment in writing on the 20th September 1910 with respect to the rent now sued for:

Held, per Fletcher, J., that the rent sued for the year 1313 was barred by limitation, as the case came under the Bengal Tenancy Act, and the leases were found to have been granted for agricultural purposes.

The Bengal Tenancy Act does not apply to leases of agricultural land which are not for agricultural purposes.

Per Richardson, J.—Where a lease relates to agricultural land but is not a lease for agricultural purposes, it is clearly governed by the Transfer of Property Act. Such a lease can only be made under section 107 by a registered instrument.

Where a lease appears to be in substance a temporary lease granted to a rent-farmer or middleman and relates to agricultural lands, there is no question of any conflict between the Bengal Tenancy Act and the Transfer of Property Act or of applying any provision of the latter Act.

Section 29 of the Limitation Act contains a saving clause in regard to special and local laws.

Whether a lease of agricultural land is or is not a lease for agricultural purposes the Bengal Tenancy Act applies, and the period of limitation applicable is that provided by that Act. C. RASH BEHARI LAL MANDAL v. TILUCKDHARI LAL 797

——— Sch. III, art. 3 859

Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act (I of 1907), s 31 (a), scope of—Rent, enhancement of—"Prevailing rate," meaning of.

Per Sharfuddin, J.—The 'prevailing rate' is not the average rate of rent of neighbouring villages

Where it is found that there is no prevailing rate in the neighbouring villages, no decree for enhancement can be given.

Where the provisions of section 31 (a) of the Bengal Tenancy Act are not extended, the principles of the prevailing rate cannot be applied.

Per Coxe, J.—Where the great majority of the raiyats are found to pay at the rate of Rs. 4 and over in the neighbouring villages:

Held, that Rs. 4 and over is not a rate at all, much less a prevailing rate, unless the artificial construction contained in section 31 (a) is placed on that expression.

It is not the intention of the Legislature that section 31 (a) should apply in a district to which it is not formally extended, however reasonable the provisions of that section are. C. RAM DEO SINGH v. MOHESWAR PROSAD, 21 C. L. J. 483 880

Betrothal Contract. See MUHAMMADAN LAW.

Bombay District Municipal Act (III of 1901), s. 167 597

Bombay Land Revenue Code (Act V of 1879), s. 37 51

——— ——— ——— ss. 65, 66—Land used as a graveyard and also as a wood store—Possession and user for over 50 year without paying any assessment—Order of eviction, whether legal—Suit to set aside order—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 14.

The land in dispute was used as a graveyard and also for storing wood by the plaintiffs, who had been in undisturbed possession of it ever since 1860 in their own right without paying any assessment. In 1907 the District Deputy Collector ordered the mamlatdar "to cause the building and the wood to be removed forthwith from the said land" and the order was confirmed on appeal by the Commissioner in April 1909. On the 22nd February 1910 the plaintiffs sued the Secretary of State for India in Council for the declaration that they were the owners of the land, for a cancellation of the order and for a permanent injunction against the defendant to prevent any obstruction being caused to them in the enjoyment of the property:

Bombay Land Revenue Code—concld.

Held, (1) that in view of the long undisturbed possession of the plaintiffs the order of eviction was ultra vires.

(2) that the suit was not barred by Article 14 of the Limitation Act. B. RASULKHAN v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 17 BOM. L. R. 513: 39 B. 494 490

——— s. 66 490

Bombay Mamlatdars' Courts Act (II of 1906), s. 23—Collector, whether includes District Deputy Collector—High Court's power to revise.

A District Deputy Collector has no authority to pass an order under section 23 of the Mamlatdars' Courts Act of 1906

Where a District Deputy Collector has assumed to act judicially, he will be treated as a Court under the superintendence of the High Court whose proceedings can be revised under the extraordinary jurisdiction. B. SONU JANARDAN KULKARNI v. ARJUN BARKU KUNBI, 17 BOM. L. R. 579 954

Bombay Mâtadars Act (VI of 1887), s. 9—Death of representative Matadar—"Heir next in succession," how determined.

On the death of a representative Matadar, the heir next in succession is ascertained in the first instance by reference to the personal law of the parties. B. DAHYA KHUSAL v. BAI BHIKHI, 17 Bom. L. R. 504: 39 B. 478 500

Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act (Bom. Act IV of 1887). ss. 6, 7, 10—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 125—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 342—Complaint on which special warrant issued—Right of accused to have it produced at trial—Extent of privileged nature of such complaint—Power of Magistrate to examine as witnesses persons challaned by Police as accused persons under Gambling Act—Special procedure—General procedure.

A Magistrate has power to examine as witnesses persons arrested and brought before him under section 6 (b). The whole procedure of the Gambling Act being a special procedure overrides the general law of procedure enacted in section 342, Criminal Procedure Code, and whenever it is inconsistent with it.

Per Pratt, J. C. (Fawcett, A. J. C. dissenting).—A complaint under section 6 of the Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act stands on the same footing as a first information of a cognizable offence recorded under section 154, Criminal Procedure Code, or complaint of a non-cognizable offence under section 200, Criminal Procedure Code, and although it is not a necessary part of the evidence for the prosecution, yet it is evidence and the accused have a right to call for it, and if the warrants are challenged, their production would be necessary.

Section 125 of the Indian Evidence Act rests upon public policy and it protects the name of a spy or secret informant, not the nature of the information and it has no application whatever to an informant who lays a sworn information and thereby initiates criminal proceedings.

Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act—concld.

Per Fawcett, A. J. C.—The Bombay Act requires the complaint to be on oath merely as an additional guarantee of the truth of the complaint. It is not intended to imply that the complaint is a document on which proceedings against any persons that may be arrested under the warrant are based. These proceedings are based on the fact of the arrest of the accused and their production before the Magistrate and not on the complaint which is merely the basis of the warrant which leads to their arrest

The rule stated in section 125, Evidence Act, is clearly applicable and appropriate in regard to gambling cases and, therefore, a Magistrate is perfectly right in refusing to order the production of the complaint under section 6 of the Bombay Act (IV of 1887). S. LILADHAR UMERSI v. EMPEROR, 8 S. L. R 309 79

Breach of Trust. See PENAL CODE, s. 405.

Buddhist Law—Husband and wife—Wife's interest in joint property affected by mortgage executed by husband alone—Wife's conduct and acquiescence—Estoppel.

Where a Buddhist couple jointly owned properties but the business was carried on by the husband in his name only and he alone mortgaged the joint properties but the wife knew of the mortgages created by him and acquiesced in them from the beginning:

Held, that the husband had power to bind and did bind the wife's interest in the mortgaged properties.

Where the leases of the sites of certain mills were in the name of the husband alone and where in his business transactions he alone appeared as the rice mill owner and the wife did not say that she was half owner of the mortgaged properties, although she took part in the negotiation of a mortgage:

Held, that the wife was estopped from pleading that the mortgage decree passed against her husband alone did not affect her interest in the mortgaged property as she was not a party to the suit. L. B. MA TIN ME v. MAUNG MAUNG, 8 Bur. L. T. 66 881

——— ——— living separate—Custody of their girl aged seven years Natural guardian—Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), ss. 9, 17 (1), 19 (b)—Law applicable.

In a suit by the mother of a Burmese Buddhist girl of seven years to recover her from the custody of her father, the plaintiff's husband, who was living separate:

Held, that the provisions contained in sections 254 to 257 of the Kinwun Mingyi's Digest, Volume II, providing for the custody of children upon divorce of the parents, did not apply where, though the husband and wife lived separate, the marriage status continued and that as guardianship was not one of the matters mentioned in section 13 of the Burma Laws Act, the personal law of Buddhists was not applicable.

Held, also, that according to section 19 (b) of the Guardians and Wards Act, the father was the natural guardian of the minor child under the circumstances of the case. L. B. MA THEIN ME v. MAUNG PO GYWE, 8 Bur L. T. 73 890

——— Inheritance—Nearer relatives exclude more remote—Great-grand-daughter, whether can oust her grand-aunts.

Buddhist Law—concld.

In Buddhist Law the nearer relatives exclude the more remote even in the case of inheritance by direct descendants.

An out-of-time grand-daughter of a predeceased son cannot inherit at all in competition with a daughter.

A widow has no claim to inherit when her husband dies without acquiring any vested rights in the property.

A great-granddaughter is not entitled to inherit in the presence of her grand-aunts. U. B. MI KIN MI SAN MIE, 8 BUR. L. T. 51 741 ——— — Marriage — Imprisonment of husband – Desertion — Dissolution of marriage—Right to claim divorce—Right to joint property.

Under the Buddhist Law there is no authority for holding that a man sentenced to imprisonment is thereby to be deemed to have deserted his wife.

During the imprisonment of the husband, his wife has no right to take a second husband, and if she does so, her conduct amounts to desertion and adultery, and she cannot claim a divorce by pleading the desertion.

The marriage is not dissolved by the desertion but from the day when the first husband on his release from jail demands the joint property from her.

Where the husband treats the marriage as at an end on the ground of his wife's desertion and adultery he is entitled to all the joint property of the parties. L. B. AUNG BYU v. THET HNIN, 8 L. B. R. 50 863

——— ——— Monk, whether can enter into valid contract.

A Buddhist monk is incapable of entering into a valid contract for his own personal benefit.

Where, therefore, a Buddhist monk sued for redemption:

Held, that he was prohibited by his personal law from buying, selling or mortgaging land and was debarred from suing for redemption. U. P. B. R U. TILAWKA v. NGA SAWE KAN, U. B R. (1915) II, 61 613

Burden of proof—Accretions—By gradual, slow and imperceptible means—Small villages—Small river—Large accretions, if by gradual, slow and imperceptible means 278

——— — Ancestral land, whether liable to attachment in hands of widow of deceased proprietor 572

——— — Benami transaction — Consideration, payment of 696

——— — Benami transaction—Ostensible vendee paying off debts and making ready cash payment 970

——— — Charge created by Hindu widow—Necessity, proof of 54

——— — Common carrier, negligence of 260

——— — Criminal intent—Accused 67

——— — Demise questioned—Original ownership and derivative tenure admitted—Nature of proof required 386

——— — Gift in favour of one member of family—Property treated as joint property 190

Burden of proof—concld.

——— — Inheritance—Custom 7

——— — Legal necessity 926

——— — Marriage — Suit for declaration that plaintiff was not wife of defendant—Presumption—Divorced woman continues unmarried until proved to have married again.

The defendant having stated in a criminal case that the plaintiff was his wife, the plaintiff sued for a declaration that she was not the wife of the defendant:

Held, that it was for the defendant to prove that the plaintiff was married to him.

Held, also, that in the absence of an objection on the part of the defendant that the onus was wrongly placed on him by the original Court, the Appellate Court ought not to have shifted it on to the plaintiff.

In the case of a divorced woman the presumption is that she continues unmarried until proved to have married again. P. DAULAT v. KHAN, 81 P. L. R. 1915; 88 P. W. R. 1915 194

——— — Permission to make tanks 11

——— — Petition for revocation of patent 904

——— — Right to re-call and cross-examine prosecution witness—Right refused—Prejudice 668

——— — Shamilat—Sale— Interpretation of sale-deed—Misreading of record—Appeal, second.

The burden of proving that the land was sold to a party lies heavily on that party where the land is not specifically mentioned in the deed of sale and cannot even be said to be mentioned by implication.

A second appeal is competent when the lower Appellate Court is led to a wrong finding through a misreading of the record on vital matters. P. MUHAMMAD NAWAZ v. GHULAM HAIDER, 75 P. L. R. 1915 167

——— — Suit on a lost bond—Admission of execution—Plea of payment 606

——— — Suit for possession of math and its property 724

——— — Suit on promissory note—Written contract—Oral agreement—Conditional admission in pleadings—Objection under the section taken for first time in Court of Appeal—Pleadings, amendment of 223

——— — Surety, evidence about fitness of —Onus, shifting of 111

——— — Transfer of property or any interest therein by debtor insolvent—Fraudulent preference —Receiver 128

——— — Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), s 36—Transferee to prove good faith and valuable consideration 814

——— — Waste land—Melvaram and Kudivaram rights—Ryot 634

——— — Will—Custom 382

Burmese Buddhist Law—Inheritance—Orasa child.

Under the Burmese Buddhist Law a daughter no less than a son may be an orasa child but there cannot be an orasa daughter as well as an orasa son in the same family. An orasa daughter's position is merely presumptive and is liable to be displaced by an orasa son of competent age. L. B. MAUNG PO HMAN v. MAUNG TIN, 8 BUR. L. T. 140 756

Burmese Buddhist Law—concld.

——— ——— ———Orasa son, death of—Younger brother, if becomes orasa—Share of orasa son—Failure to claim promptly, effect of—Presumption.

Under the Burmese Buddhist Law if the eldest son tains his majority and fulfils the prescribed conitions and then dies before his parents, his position as orasa remains unfilled and the next younger brother does not succeed to it.

If the eldest son reaches the age of manhood before his death, the presumption is that he fulfils the prescribed conditions as orasa.

The orasa son must exercise his option of claiming a ¼th share promptly; if he fails to do so, he must be held to have abandoned the right. L. B. MAUNG KA GU v. MA HNIN NGWE 706

Carriers Act (III of 1865)—Common carrier, liability of, for loss of goods—Burden of proof—Negligence—Question of law or fact—Appeal, second.

A common carrier in India is liable as an insurer, that is, he is responsible for the safety of the goods entrusted to him in all events, except when loss or injury arises from act of God or King's enemies. But his liability for loss or injury in respect of the goods carried may be varied by contract.

The burden of proof of absence of negligence is upon the common carrier, on the theory that the loss or damage to the goods is prima facie proof of negligence.

In order to find whether the question of negligence is a question of law or fact, the rule is that from any given state of facts the Judge must say whether negligence can legitimately be inferred and the Jury, whether it ought to be inferred. In other words, if the contention is that there is no evidence of negligence, the question is one of law; on the other hand, the question whether the evidence is sufficient to justify the inference of negligence is one of fact. C. AKHIL CHANDRA SHAHA v. INDIA GENERAL NAVIGATION AND RAILWAY CO., LTD., 21 C. L. J. 565 260

Cause of action—Arrears of rent—Re-settlement, arrears after—Cause of action, whether same—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss 104H, 111A—Record of Rights, preparation of, finality of.

A 're-settlement', or new contract of lease, contemplates a new obligation and a new contract to pay new rent and is not the same cause of action as the rent which becomes due under the original contract for letting.

It is not open to a Court to go behind the Record of Rights to ascertain what, in fact, is the true nature of the tenancy between the parties.

A Record of Rights, prepared during the settlement of Government revenue under the provisions of sections 104H and 111A of the Bengal Tenancy Act, is conclusive, subject to the right of the tenant to bring a suit as mentioned in section 104H (3) of the Bengal Tenancy Act. C. BISESHWAR RAY v. JUDHISTHIR NATH 437

Caveat emptor—Promissory note, sale of—Purchaser bound to make enquiries of executant 887

Central Provinces Municipal Act (XVIII of 1889), s. 66 (5)—Notice requiring alteration or demolition—Reasonable time—Starting point.

A notice given by a Municipal Committee requiring a party to alter or demolish a building is bad unless given within a reasonable time.

What is "reasonable time" is determined according to the circumstances of the case and with particular reference to the means and ability of the person by whom the duty is to be discharged.

Where a work necessarily spreading over a considerable time is concerned, time should start from its inception. N. ABDUL SATTAR v. SECRETARY, MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, 11 N. L. R. 87; 16 Cr. L. J. 532 660

Central Provinces Tenancy Act (XI of 1898), s. 88—Ejectment—Claim by sub-tenant to recover compensation for crops—Jurisdiction of Civil or Revenue Court.

The method by which a tenant gets compensation for crops raised by him and reaped by the landlord is laid down in section 88 of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act, which is plainly a section, when the ejectment is on a decree for arrears of rent, in relation to the execution of decrees transferred to a Revenue Officer.

An ejectment of a tenant on legal grounds is binding on a sub-tenant, and the sub-tenant is not entitled to any remedy not open to the tenant. His only valid cause of action is as representative of the tenant within the meaning of section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code. N. GOPAL DAS v. RAMUSA, 11 N. L. R. 105 836

Certificate—Succession—Patent error of procedure—Interference in revision—Suit on promissory note assigned by undivided son—Succession certificate, whether necessary—Question of want of certificate raised for the first time in appeal—Appellate Court's duty to give plaintiff an opportunity of producing certificate 234

Charge. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 225.

Charter Act (24 & 25 Vic. c 104), s. 13 846

——— ——— ——— s. 15 109

Cheating. See PENAL CODE, s. 415.

Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act (VI of 1876), ss. 3, 12, 32—Manager, order of, effect of—Civil Courts, jurisdiction of, while estate held by Revenue Authorities—Interest, accumulation of, rendering estate insolvent—Deputy Commissioner's work—Manager, power of, to render interest on original debt.

Where the Manager of an encumbered estate is the principal necessary party and there is no allegation that he, in making the order he did in pursuance of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act, was not acting bona fide:

Held, that section 22 of the Act will alone bar the suit.

It is clear from the provisions of sections 3 and 12 and other sections of the Act that, during the time that an estate is held by the Revenue Authorities under the Act, a Civil Court has no jurisdiction to interfere on a suit brought by the creditors. The creditors have their remedy against any order of the Manager before the Deputy Commissioner and the Commissioner.

Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act—concld.

Where the Manager finds that the accumulation of interest, whether under a Civil Court decree or under any other kind of debt, would render the estate insolvent, he must at once get the Deputy Commissioner to release the estate.

If, therefore, the Manager does not possess the power to reduce the interest on the original debt as contracted, the operation of the Act would not only frequently but in every case prove infructuous. C. HIRANAND OJHA v. SATISH CHANDRA ROY 420

——— ——— ss. 12, 22 420

Chur land formed in bed of river—Consent decree, nature of, how far binding—Consent decree and compromise, compared—Contract of parties, nature of—Head of family, decree against, how far binding—Map drawn for a different purpose, how far affects rights of property—Survey map and thak map distinguished Submerged lands, possession of, presumption of—Limitation—Adverse possession—Constructive possession does not apply to a wrong-doer.

A consent decree is just as binding on the parties thereto as a decree after a contentious trial.

A consent decree cannot have greater validity than the compromise itself.

A consent order is only an order of the Court carrying out the agreement between the parties.

A contract of the parties is not the less a contract and subject to the incidents of a contract, because there is superadded the command of the Judge.

A decree obtained against the head of a family in a suit to which the other members are not parties may be operative against the latter under certain circumstances; but this principle clearly does not apply unless it is shown that the matter was one in which the member sued was entitled to represent the whole family.

The rights of property as between two parties cannot be affected by a map drawn for a different purpose, a purpose not relevant to the subject of the dispute between them.

Although the survey officers have at their disposal means of more accurate measurement than the thak officers have, yet no hard and fast rule can be laid down that a survey map is more reliable than a thak map. The true principle is that the map which more clearly agrees with the local land-marks, is the one that should be followed.

The rightful owners must be deemed in law to have been in possession of the submerged lands during the period of diluvion, the only point for investigation in such cases is the period of time when the lands re-appeared and became fit for occupation.

Where it is found that the possession of the defendants, after re-formation of the disputed lands, has not extended over the statutory period, the claim of the plaintiffs is not barred by limitation in respect of lands which lie within the thak boundaries of the churs.

The theory of constructive possession is applied only in favour of a rightful owner and is not extended in favour of a wrong-doer whose possession is treated as confined to land of which he is actually in possession. C. AMIRTA SUNDARI v. SHERAJUDDIN AHAMED, 19 C. W. N. 565 156

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 373 24

——— ——— ——— s. 375—Adjustment of suit—Interpretation—Agreement not to execute decree previous to decree, effect of.

An agreement not to execute a decree, if effect is sought to be given to such agreement in execution proceedings, must be a transaction between the parties subsequent to the decree and not one which would make the decree itself void as being in its contravention.

The words 'adjustment of a suit' in section 375, Civil Procedure Code, refer not only to the form in which the decree is to be drawn up but also the manner in which the rights of the parties are to be enforced in the execution proceedings or that suit. Therefore, under section 91 of the of the Evidence Act, on extraneous evidence, oral documentary, regarding the terms of the compromise is admissible in that suit and its execution proceedings. N. HUKAM CHAND v. RADHA KISAN 11 N. L. R. 1.0 838

——— ——— ——— s. 583—Application for restitution—Reversing decree, whether contains direction to restore any benefit received—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 144, scope of.

Applications made to obtain restitution under section 583 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882, are proceedings in execution of the appellate decree, which the successful party has the right to treat as containing a direction to the other party to restore whatever benefit the latter has derived through execution under the reversed decree.

A decree for restitution passed in favour of a person in 1907 cannot be deemed to have ceased to exist in 1909 and can be executed whether an order of the first Court directing such restitution has been passed or not.

Section 144 of the new Civil Procedure Code does not apply to decrees passed before the Code came into force. M. MUNICIPAL COUNCIL, KUMBAKONAM v. SADAGOPACHARIAR 380

——— ——— ——— ss 624, 626, 629—Review of judgment—"Strict proof", meaning of—Objections—Proper safeguards—Formalities—Sufficiency of proof—Appellate Court's jurisdiction.

Per Jenkins, C. J.—"Strict proof" means anything which may serve directly or indirectly to convince a Court and has been brought before the Court in legal form and in compliance with the law of evidence. It is the formality which is prescribed and not the result that is described.

Section 629 of the Code of Civil Procedure, Act XIV of 1882, limits the grounds on which objections may be taken to the admission of a review; an objection may be taken when the admission has been in contravention of the provisions of section 624, that is to say, it has been made to a tribunal that has no power to grant it.

Without proper safeguards, the Court of first instance is, the proper Court to determine whether or not there should be a review, but before a review is granted those safeguards must be observed.

Per Woodroffe, J.—The term 'strict', Order XLVII, rule 2 (b), refers to formalities, such as issue of notices, taking of evidence on oath or affirmation, legal proof of documents, cross-examination, and so forth. If such legal evidence be wanting objection may be made in appeal under Order XLVII, rule 7, which does not refer to the weight or sufficiency of the evidence. If the legal formalities are observed it is no objection that the probative force of evidence legally taken appears to be different to the Appellate Court from what it appeared to the Court granting review.

Civil Procedure Code—(1882)—concld.

"Strict proof" means proof according to the formalities of law. It does not refer to sufficiency of proof in securing a particular conviction.

Whether the proof is according to law or not is within the jurisdiction of the Appellate Court to determine, but the question of sufficiency of evidence is for the Court admitting the review. C. ABED KHONDKAR v. MOHENDRA LAL, 19 C. W. N. 804; 42 C. 830 282

——— ——— ——— ss. 626, 629 282

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 2 (2), 36, 47—Decree—'Matters in controversy', meaning of—Orders dismissing application to sue in forma pauperis and awarding day costs, whether amount to decrees and are appealable.

The term 'matters in controversy' in section 2 (2) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 must not be understood as relating solely to the merits of a case. It would cover any question relating to the character and status of the party suing, to the jurisdiction of the Court, to the maintainability of a suit and to other matters preliminary, which necessitate an adjudication before a suit is enquired into, in fact all questions concerning a pending suit. It does not, however, include an order passed on an application preliminary to the institution of the suit itself, such as an application for leave to sue, and proceedings passed in execution in regard to such orders as well as orders granting day costs are not appealable as they do not come within the scope of section 47, Civil Procedure Code, although such orders can be executed under section 36, Civil Procedure Code. M. ANKALA VENKATA REDDY v. MANCHALA VENKATA REDDY, 2 L. W. 519; 17 M. L. T. 447 393

——— ——— ——— s 9—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 42—Suit for declaration to post of Honorary Secretaryship to an association, maintainability of.

Where the plaintiff sues for a declaration that he is the Honorary Secretary to an association and that a resolution passed at a meeting of the association dismissing him from the secretaryship is null and void:

Held, that he is bound to satisfy the Court that the suit is one concerning the right to an office within the meaning of section 9 of the Civil Procedure Code, and also that what he is enforcing in the suit is his right to a certain 'legal character' within the meaning of section 42 of the Specific Relief Act.

Where the plaintiff's services to an association are voluntary and gratuitous and where there is no question of any contract between him and its Board of Trustees, the Civil Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the suit. A MAHARAJ NARAIN SHEOPURI v. SHASHI SHEKHARESHWAR ROY, 13 A. L. J. 455; 37 A. 313 53

——— ——— ——— s. 11—Title derived from a party, nature of—No issue raised or tried—No bar—Co-defendants 464

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

——— ——— ——— s. 11, O. II, r. 2—Res judicata—Relinquishment of relief—Relief claimed but not granted—Direction to file separate suit for it—Objections to attachment and sale of immoveable property rejected summarily—Suit for recovery of property sold—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 1, 144.

Where a Court expressly declares (rightly or wrongly) that it is not competent in a particular suit to grant a specific relief claimed therein and directs the plaintiff to take separate proceedings to achieve his purpose, his subsequent suit to get that relief is neither barred by the rule of res judicata under section 11 nor by rule 2 of Order II of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

Article 11 of Schedule I of Act IX of 1908 does not apply where objections to the sale of the property are not investigated but are summarily rejected by the Executing Court, and a suit for recovery of the property thus illegally sold in execution of a decree can be brought at any time within 12 years under Article 44 of the Act from the date on which the cause of action accrued. P MUHAMMAD BAKHSH v. BALKISHAN, 72 P. W. R 1915; 160 P. L. R. 1915 731

——— ——— ——— s. 11, O. II, r. 2—Suit for resumption of rent-free grant—Land found not resumable—Rent or revenue not assessed—Provisions of s. 153, Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), not given effect to—Fresh suit to assess rent, if barred—Res judicata.

A suit for resumption of a rent-free grant was brought and dismissed on the ground that the land was not resumable. In that suit, rent or revenue was not assessed as required by section 153 of the Agra Tenancy Act, II of 1901. A fresh suit was brought to assess rent and it was pleaded (1) that it was res judicata under section 11, Civil Procedure Code, (2) that the suit was barred under Order II, rule 2:

Held, overruling the contentions, that the suit was maintainable. U. P. B. R. UDAI RAM v. COURT OF WARDS, ALIGARH 678

——— ——— ——— s. 11, O. XXXII, r. 15—Suit for possession—Plea of insanity—Decree—Suit for declaration that decree not binding—Res judicata.

The defendant sued the plaintiff for the possession of certain property, the subject-matter of a sale-deed executed by the plaintiff. The plaintiff pleaded that he was of weak intellect and that advantage had been taken of him and that he had not received the consideration. The Court found against the plaintiff and decreed the defendant's suit. The plaintiff then brought the present suit to have it declared that the decree in the former suit was not binding on him as he, being of unsound mind, had not been properly represented:

Held, that the plaintiff, not having been adjudged a person of unsound mind at the time of the previous suit, was a party to that litigation, and was bound by the result. A. BISHRUP v. NIL KANTH, 13 A. L. J. 562 595

——— ——— ——— s. 11, Expl. IV—Set-off, claim of, not put forward—Subsequent suit for that amount, whether barred—Res judicata.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

A defendant who can claim set-off is not bound to put forward his claim in answer to the suit against him, and his failure cannot take away his right to sue for the amount subsequently. M. PICHI AIYAR v. SUBBARAYAR, 28 M. L. J. 513 . 34

——— ss. 24 (1) (b), 148 —Civil Rules of Practice, r. 161A- Transmission of decree for execution by one Court to another—Transmission of that decree to another Court—No steps taken for six months to execute decree—Proceedings thereafter, whether void.

Where a public officer is directed by a Statute to perform a duty within a specified time, the provisions as to time are only directory. In considering whether a Statute is imperative, a balance may be struck between the inconvenience of rigidly adhering to, and the inconvenience of sometimes departing from, its terms.

In deciding whether a rule is mandatory or directory, the possibility of justice suffering from a too rigid application of the time limit should be taken into account.

A Court has under section 24, clause (1) (b) of the Civil Procedure Code, power to withdraw to its own file a transmitted execution proceeding and to dispose of it.

An omission to take within six months steps to execute a transmitted decree does not render the proceedings taken after six months infructuous and void ab initio. In such cases time is not of the essence of the stipulation.

Rule 161A of the Civil Rules of Practice, Madras, is a rule, of convenience issued by the High Court with the object of inducing decree-holders to take early steps to execute the decree. It is directory in its nature, and not mandatory. M. VELLIAPPA CHETTIAR v. SUBRAHMANIYAM CHETTY, 29 M. L. J. 172 119

——— ss. 36, 47 393

——— ss. 47, 151, O. XXI, r. 16—Application for execution by transferee of decree—Notice to parties—Decree set aside—Execution—Procedure not given.

An ex parte decree obtained in a mortgage suit was transferred but the transferee neither got his name substituted in the place of the decree-holder nor was any notice under Order XXI, rule 16 of the Civil Procedure Code, served either upon the decree-holder or upon the judgment-debtor. The judgment-debtor applied to set aside the ex parte decree making only the decree-holder party to it. The decree-holder failed to appear and the ex parte decree was set aside. The transferee of the decree thereafter applied for execution:

Held, that the transferee could not proceed with the execution before the order setting aside the ex parte decree was set aside;

that the Court could not set aside the order setting aside the ex partee decree under section 151, Civil Procedure Code. C. BONOMALI BANIKYA v. JOY KUMAR BAIDYA . . 673

——— ss. 47, 73, O. XXI, r. 52—Decree obtained by fraud or collusion, question of, whether relates to execution of decree—Attachment, whether gives any priority—Rateable distribution.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

The question whether a decree was obtained by fraud or collusion is not one which relates to the execution of the decree and can only be raised by a separate suit.

Section 73 of the Civil Procedure Code applies where a judgment-creditor makes application in the prescribed form under Order XXI, rule 10, Civil Procedure Code, to the Court by which assets of the judgment-debtor are held, for the execution of his decree before the receipt of those assets by the Court.

An applicant for execution of his decree does not acquire any priority by virtue of his attachment and the fund in Court must be distributed on the principle followed by the Court in the administration of the assets of a deceased person or an insolvent, that is, rateably amongst the creditors who have put in claims thereto. M. SUIKEENA KATUM v. MUHAMMAD ABDUL AZIZ, 38 M. 221 239

——— s. 47—Execution of decree—Sale—Minor widow brought on record as legal representative of her deceased husband, judgment-debtor—Court kept in ignorance of minority of widow—An earlier and higher bid for same property in another suit concealed—Sale void—Suit for declaration competent without regard to s. 47—Fraud—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 12, 166 applicability of.

In a suit for a declaration that the sale in execution of a decree was not binding on the plaintiff, the main objection to the sale was that at the time when the plaintiff and the 2nd defendant, the co-widow, were brought on the record as the legal representatives of the judgment-debtor, their deceased husband, and at the date of the sale, the plaintiff was a minor, while the other widow, the 2nd defendant, had ceased to have any interest in the estate of her deceased husband. The plaintiff was admittedly impleaded as a major, though the 1st defendant-decree-holder and the 3rd defendant, the auction-purchaser, both knew that she was a minor. The Court was wilfully kept in ignorance of the fact of the plaintiff's minority and of the offer of the Court-auction-purchaser in another suit (the decree in which was simultaneously executed) of three times the purchase-money for which it was ultimately knocked down:

Held, that the plaintiff, who had no guardian ad litem at all, had not been a party to the suit, and that she was entitled to bring the present suit to declare it as not binding on her without regard to the provisions of section 47, Civil Procedure Code; that the plaintiff not having been a party to the suit and not having been sufficiently represented by any one who was a party, inasmuch as the other widow also had ceased to have any interest in the estate, the sale was not binding on the plaintiff, and did not require to be set aside;

that the plaintiff was entitled to a decree, as the Court-auction sale was brought about by the fraud of the decree-holder and Court-auction-purchaser; that the declaratory suit having been brought within three years of the plaintiff's attainment of majority was not barred, Articles 166 and 12 of the Limitation Act being alike inapplicable. M. PASUMARTI PAYIDANNA v. GANTI LAKSHMINARASAMMA, 28 M. L. J. 525 314

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

——— ——— ——— ss. 47, 65, O. XXI, r. 94—Execution sale—Co-owner's interest—Auction-purchaser, assignee of—Title, acquisition of—Partition, right of—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 144, applicability of—Adverse possession—Co-owner's possession.

An assignee of the interest of a decree-holder-purchaser of his judgment-debtor's right in a joint property, acquires title under section 65 and Order XXI, rule 94, of the Civil Procedure Code and as such is entitled to bring a suit for partition against the judgment-debtor and his other co-owners without obtaining any formal delivery of possession and his suit is not barred by section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code.

A purchaser at a Court sale in order to obtain possession of the property purchased may seek for such possession as he can obtain under the Civil Procedure Code or may ignore the provisions of the Code and stand upon his general rights of prosecuting his claim by instituting a suit.

Article 144 of Schedule I of the Limitation Act applies to a suit for partition between tenants-in-common, although a tenant has acquired his rights by purchase at a Court auction.

In such a suit there can be no question of adverse possession, because the possession of one co-tenant is the possession of all persons entitled as tenants-in-common. M. HASSAN AMMAL BIBI v. ISMAIL MOIDEEN, 28 M. L. J. 642; (1915) M. W. N. 414 976

——— ——— ——— ss. 47, 73, 104—Mortgage-decree making judgment-debtor personally liable for deficiency—Sale of other properties belonging to him—Application by decree-holders for rateable distribution—Order, whether appealable—Execution application praying for specific reliefs—No final orders passed—Madras Civil Rules of Practice, r. 167.

A party to whom a right of appeal is given, if he comes under section 47 of the Code of Civil Procedure, should not be deprived of it unless the Civil Procedure Code expressly denies it to him.

Orders passed under section 73 of the Code of Civil Procedure are appealable if they affect parties to the suit especially when the appeal is by the judgment-debtor who cannot avail himself of the right of suit given by clause (2) of section 73.

Mortgage decrees which provide for recovery of the deficiency of the decree after sale of hypotheca from the person and other properties of the mortgagor, are decrees "for the payment of money" within the meaning of section 73 of the Code and entitle the mortgagee to apply for rateable distribution under that section.

Execution applications praying for specific reliefs which were all granted several years before assets were realised and on which no further reliefs could be asked or granted, are still on the file and undisposed of if no final orders have been passed taking them off the file of pending applications.

Rule 167 of the Civil Rules of Practice, Madras, contemplates final orders being passed by the Court on a petition after the sale has been confirmed.

An objection that the decrees passed are not in accordance with law, cannot be raised in execution proceedings M. VENKATAPERUMAL v. VENKATA REDDI, 1915) M. W. N. 334; 17 M. L. T. 427; 29 M. L. J. 96 231

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

——— ——— ——— s. 47 (2) 905

——— ——— ——— s. 48 237

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 48—Mortgage-decree making mortgagor "personally liable for balance due under the decree" after sale of mortgaged property, whether a decree for "payment of money" on a certain date—Twelve years to be calculated from date of decree or from date when sale-proceeds prove insufficient to satisfy decree—Decree against estate managed by Court of Wards—Decree not transferred to Collector for execution—Mortgagee, whether entitled to benefit of exclusion of period of management by Court of Wards.

A mortgage decree directing that the "defendants be personally liable for any balance not obtained by such sale," is not a decree for payment of money on a certain date within the meaning of clause (1) (b) of section 48 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and the period of twelve years under that section must be calculated from the date of the decree, and not from the date when the sale-proceeds of the mortgaged property prove insufficient to satisfy the decree and the balance is ascertained.

A mortgagee holding a decree against an estate under the management of a Court of Wards is not entitled to the benefit of exclusion of the period of management by the Court of Wards, when the decree itself was not transferred to the Collector for execution. M. VENKATA PERUMAL v. PRAYAG DOSSJEE 556

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 54—Execution referred to Collector—Application to Civil Court to expedite execution, whether execution application—Power of Court to control Collector's proceedings.

An application to a Civil Court to expedite and authorize the Collector to revive and continue old execution proceedings referred to him for execution by that Court and still pending before him, is not an application for execution and the bar of limitation does not apply to it.

A Civil Court is competent to entertain such an application as it has a right of control over the Collector's proceedings in execution. S. HARUN KHAN RAHIM KHAN v. TEJUMAL PARIOMAL, 8 S. L. R. 335 58

——— ——— ——— s. 60 (1) (n) 578

——— ——— ——— s. 63 21

——— ——— ——— ——— ss. 63, 73—Execution proceedings—Decree-holders of different Courts attaching in execution same property, right of, to rateable distribution—Court of highest grade—Transfer of decree.

Under section 63 and 73, Civil Procedure Code, all the holders of money-decrees who have attached the property of their judgment-debtor in execution in several Courts before the actual receipt of the assets by the Court of the highest grade, are entitled to share in the rateable distribution on application to such Court without getting their decrees transferred to it. L. B. MA NYEIN HLA v. MAUNG GYI 21

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 65 976

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 66 716, 787

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 66—Benami purchase—Purchase by one of the decree-holders—Suit by other decree-holder against purchaser, maintainability of.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

In execution of a simple money-decree held by two persons jointly, a certain zemindari property of the judgment-debtor was put up to sale and was with the permission of the Court purchased by one of the decree-holders in 1902. The purchaser was put in formal possession of the property in 1903. In 1913, the other decree-holder brought a suit against the purchaser and claimed possession of a share in the property, alleging that in accordance with an oral agreement the purchase was for the benefit of both the decree-holders:

Held, that the suit was barred by the provisions of section 66 of the Code of Civil Procedure. A. SALLE v. MOHAN LAL 447

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 66—Purchase in Court auction as benamidar—Agreement by purchaser to execute sale-deed in favour of plaintiff—Suit, whether maintainable.

A suit for execution of a sale-deed and for recovery of possession on the ground that the defendant's father purchased the suit properties as benamidar for the plaintiff, falls within the scope of section 66 of the Civil ProcedureCode and is barred. M. SUBRAMNIAM PILLAI v. GOPALARAMA SUBRAMANIA 138

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 70—U. P. Government Rules under section 70, rr. 30 31, 32—Execution—Power of Assistant Collector to order prosecution—Jurisdiction—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 182.

An Assistant Collector has no powers of either Civil, Revenue or Criminal Court while receiving an application under rule 30 of the rules framed by the U. P. Government under sections 68 and 70 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908. Hence if an offence as defined in section 182 of the Penal Code is committed in the course of making the application under the above rule, the Assistant Collector has no jurisdiction to order prosecution. A BHAJAN TEWARI v. EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 479; 37 A. 334; 16 Cr. L. J. 457 89

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 73 21, 231, 239

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 73, O. XXI, rr. 52, 63, O. XXXVIII, rr. 5, 10—Attachment before judgment, effect of—Decree-holder, if obtains priority—Other creditors, right of—Declaratory suit, whether maintainable.

An attachment before judgment confers no right on the party who obtains the order of attachment.

Certain property of a perishable nature was attached before judgment by the defendant and the property was sold and the proceeds deposited in Court. The plaintiffs also obtained a decree against the same party and applied for execution by attachment of the money in Court and obtained an order of payment. On the defendant taking objection, the order was cancelled. The plaintiffs then sued for a declaration that they were entitled to the amount of their decree out of the proceeds deposited in Court:

Held, (1) that the priority of attachment gave no priority of title to the defendants who could not, therefore, object to the money being paid to the plaintiffs;

(2) that the plaintiffs were entitled to maintain the suit. A. BISHESHAR DAS v. AMBIKA PERSHAD, 13 A. L. J. 732 622

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

——— ——— ——— s. 73, O. XXXVIII, r. 2—Money paid for specific purpose, if available for other creditors under s. 73—Money paid on arrest before judgment—Other decree-holders, right of, for rateable distribution.

Where certain money was deposited in Court under Order XXXVIII, rule 2, on the arrest of the defendant before judgment:

Held, that a lien was created on it in favour of the plaintiff from the time it was deposited and that any other creditors could not claim rateable distribution of the same, as it was money paid for a specific purpose. U. B. DOST MAHOMED v. SUBRAMANIAN CHETTY, 8 BUR. L. T. 22 714

——— ——— ——— s 82—Alien enemy, suit against—Property of such enemy, how far available in execution.

The plaintiff sued the defendants, a German Corporation, for an account. On the outbreak of hostilities between England and Germany in August 1914, the question arose whether the plaintiff could continue the suit during the war:

Held, that an alien being amenable to all local laws in consideration of the protection he enjoyed while residing in a foreign territory, there was no reason why he should not be sued or proceeded against in the Courts of India and that the decree against an alien enemy would be effective against his property subject to any rights of the Crown. S. HUSSEINI NANDOO v. MESSRS. WEICHERS, 8 S. L. R. 329 22

——— ——— ——— s. 92 840

——— ——— ——— s. 92, scope of reliefs under—Mutwalli, appointment of, by founder—Mutwalli, when and how can resign mutwallishiip—Appointment by founder, how far affects original deed of wakf 423

——— ——— ——— s. 100 892

——— ——— ——— ss. 102, 115—Second appeal, maintainability of—Orders passed in execution of decree—Revision, erroneous view of law if ground for

Section 102, Civil Procedure Code, applies no less to orders passed in execution than to a decree itself.

An erroneous view of the law would not justify interference under section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code. N. MANYA v. DIWAKAR 740

——— ——— ——— s. 104 231

——— ——— ——— s. 105 (2)—Res judicata —Estoppel—Test Burden of proof—Demise questioned—Original ownership and derivative tenure admitted—Nature of proof required—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 90, presumption in, whether applicable to copies—Arrears of rent, stale claim for—Interest, rate of, allowable—Interest, when allowable on arrears of rent—Enhanced Government revenue, whether payable by mortgagor or mortgagee.

Section 105, clause (2), Civil Procedure Code, only prevents a party from agitating in an appeal a question which he could have objected to in the appeal against an order. The test is not whether a decision has been given upon the points raised in the appeal against the order, but whether the party has availed himself of the appropriate remedy of appealing against the order.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

Where the question is as to whether certain property had been demised on kanom to the defendants' predecessors-in-title, and the property is conceded to have belonged originally to certain persons, others being recorded as holding under them, very little evidence regarding the actual letting relied upon will suffice to shift the burden of proving title to the defendants.

Where the title of the plaintiff is admitted and the defendants are shown to have come into possession as mortgagees under the plaintiff, Courts will not demand such strict proof of the mortgage sued on as where the title is denied and possession is not shown to have been under the owners.

The presumption contained in section 90, Indian Evidence Act, applies not only to original documents, but also to copies thereof.

The rate of interest allowable on a stale claim for arrears of rent is only 6 per cent.

In the absence of any specific contract to pay interest, or even a period fixed for payment, and in the absence of any demand for the same, no interest is claimable on arrears of rent.

It is the mortgagee in possession and not the mortgagor that is liable to pay the enhanced Government revenue. M. NANU NAIR v. KANTAN ASHTA MOORTHI, 2 L. W. 509 386

——— s. 110 759

——— s. 110—Privy Council appeal—Appeal dismissed for default by High Court—Decree affirming decree of Court below.

A decree of the High Court dismissing an appeal for default of prosecution is a decree affirming the decision of the Court below within the meaning of section 110 of the Civil Procedure Code. A. RAM KARAN v. MADHUKAR PRASAD, 13 A. L. J. 623 469

——— s. 114 133, 717

——— s. 115 740, 745, 875

——— s. 115, O. XLI, r. 10—Appeal, security for—Notice to show cause—Sufficient cause not shown—Dismissal of appeal on that day—Material irregularity.

Where a notice issued to the appellant to show cause why he should not be required to furnish security before his appeal was heard, does not put the appellant on his guard that the security must be ready in the event of sufficient cause not being shown, the dismissal of the appeal on failure to furnish the security not within a time under ordinary circumtances sufficient for him to furnish is a material irregularity within the meaning of section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908. A. BHOLA NATH v. KARTIK PRASAD PANDE 59

——— s. 115—Attachment—Claim to attached property—Question of possession not decided—Power of High Court to interfere—Possession in one's own right—Release from attachment.

Where a Court has disposed of a case without deciding a question (e. g, the question of possession in a claim case) which under the Code of Civil Procedure it is bound to decide for a proper disposal of the case, the High Court will interfere under section 115 of the Code.

Where it was found that the properties attached were purchased in the names of the judgment-debtor and the claimant, that the entire purchase-money was paid by the claimant only, and that he had been in sole possession of the properties for the last ten years or more:

Held, that the claimant was entitled to get the properties released from attachment. M. RANGAMMAL v. SEVAUGAN CHETTI, 28 M. L. J. 327 228

——— s. 115, Sch. II, cl. 15—Award, setting aside of—Appeal, maintainability of.

An order of a Court setting aside an award on the ground of its invalidity on account of misconduct of the arbitrators is appealable. A. RAM AUTAR TEWARI v. DEOKI TEWARI, 3 A. L. J. 653 411

——— s. 115, O. IX, r 9—Ex parte decree, order setting aside—Revision, maintainability of.

A revision lies against an order re-admitting a suit which has been dismissed for default A. AJODHYA PERSHAD v. CHHABILA KOER 1004

——— s. 115—Judgment delivered—Formal decree not prepared—Case decided—Appeal allowed—Revision, whether maintainable.

Where a Subordinate Judge has delivered judgment in a case and all that remains is the preparation of a formal decree, the case must be deemed to have been decided and if an appeal lies against such decree, the High Court would not interfere in revision under section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code. A. MOTI LAL v. GANGADHAR, 13 A. L. J. 435 176

——— s. 115—Patent error of procedure—Interference in revision—Suit on promissory note assigned by undivided son—Succession certificate, whether necessary—Question of want of certificate raised for the first time in appeal—Appellate Court's duty to give plaintiff an opportunity of producing certificate.

When a subordinate Court dealing with a suit of a small cause nature commits an error of procedure patent on the face of the record, the High Court will interfere in revision.

Where an objection is taken for the first time in appeal that the suit on a promissory note should not have been decreed inasmuch as the plaintiff had not produced the succession certificate, the suit should not be dismissed but opportunity should be given to the plaintiff to produce the certificate.

Where an assignment is from an undivided son, no succession certificate is necessary, nor when the plaintiff sues on the ground that he is a holder in due course and not that a debt did really exist. M. AMMASI KUTTI GOUNDEN v. APPATLU 234

——— s. 115—Revision—Interlocutory order—Refusal to frame additional issue.

Even if the High Court can deal in revision with an interlocutory order in a suit, the exercise of the power is in the discretion of the Court and the power should not be exercised unless it appears that substantial injury may be caused to the applicant if he is left to wait for the ultimate remedy in appeal from the decree.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

There is no precedent for interference in revision with an order declining to frame an additional issue in a suit. L. B. V. V. M. CHETTY FIRM v. ARUNACHALLUM CHETTY, 8 L. B. R. 77 876

——— ss. 141, 151, O. IX, —Execution proceedings struck off through mistake of Court—Power to restore.

Section 141 of the Civil Procedure Code does not apply to execution proceedings and they cannot be restored under Order IX of the Code.

Even apart from section 151 a Court has an inherent power to rectify a mistake which has been inadvertently made by it.

Where, therefore, an execution application was fixed for hearing on the 6th January and was by mistake called up on the 5th and dismissed in the absence of the parties and the Court on the judgment-creditor's application set aside its order of dismissal:

Held, that the Court had an inherent power to rectify its own mistake and to restore the application to its file. S. LALBUX v. CHOITHRAM KALIANDAS, 8 S. L. R. 3 7 592

——— s. 141, scope of—O. XXI, r. 90; O. IX, r. 9, applicability of Execution, application for—Sale, application for setting aside.

Section 141 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, does not apply to applications for execution.

An application for setting aside a sale under section 47 and Order XXI, rule 90, Civil Procedure Code, is not an application for execution. It is a miscellaneous proceeding in the nature of an original proceeding in which the auction-purchaser is the principal interested party.

Where on the dismissal for default of an application for setting aside an execution sale under section 47 and under Order XXI, rule 90, of the Civil Procedure Code, another application for setting aside that order under Order IX, rule 9, is made:

Held, that Order IX, rule 9, is applicable to cases of this kind. C. DILJAN MIHHA BIBI v. HEMANTA KUMAR ROY, 19 C. W. N. 758 395

——— s. 144 380

——— s. 145, scope of—Surety, when liable.

Section 145 of the Code of Civil Procedure applies only where the surety has rendered himself personally liable for the decretal amount, and such liability can only be enforced against him to the extent to which he has become personally liable. C. BROJENDRA LAL DASS v. LAKSHMI NARAIN KHANNA, 19 C. W. N. 961 149

——— s. 148 119

——— s. 149, scope of—Court-fees, deficiency of, made up after several orders, effect of—Discretion—Appeal.

A plaint was presented to a Civil Court on the 19th April. On the 29th April an order was made on the plaintiff to pay the deficit Court-fees within a week. This was followed by several other orders providing for payment on later dates. Ultimately there was an order on the 7th August under which the balance was to be paid within five days, but it was paid the next day, the 8th August:

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

Held, that there was an order and also payment in conformity with that order within the meaning of section 149, Civil Procedure Code.

A discretion exercised properly under the section cannot be challenged in appeal C. PRIYA NATH BACHHER v. MIANJAN SARDAR 571

——— s. 151 133, 592, 673

——— s. 152 589

——— s. 152—Clerical error in judgment—Correction—Jurisdiction.*

A Munsif, by a clerical error, recorded in his final order an order dismissing the suit instead of decreeing it. The decree was prepared in accordance with the final order:

Held, that the Munsif had jurisdiction under section 152 of the Civil Procedure Code to subsequently correct the error. A. BHAGIRATH NONIYA v. SUKHDEO NONIYA 144

——— s. 152—Error—Accidental slip—Jurisdiction—Refusal of Court to correct mistake—Revision.*

In a suit for sale on the basis of a mortgage one of the defendants pleaded that he was a prior mortgagee. An issue was struck to that effect and was decided in favour of the defendant. In the operative part of the judgment, however, no mention was made as to the priority of the defendant's claim, and accordingly there was no mention of it in the decree. After the time for appeal had expired, an application was made for amendment of the decree under section 152 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The Court refused to go into its merits, holding that section 152 did not apply:

Held, that this was a clear case of an error arising from an accidental slip or omission and as the Court below had refused to correct the error, the High Court could interfere in revision. A. SAHDEO GIR v. DEO DUTT MISIR, 13 A. L. J. 449; 37 A. 323 50

——— O. I, r. 1 298

——— O. I, r. 8 248

——— O. I, r. 10 (i)—Suit by mother as administratrix—Subsequent addition of sons as plaintiffs—Suit, whether barred—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 12—Bona fide mistake, meaning of.*

Where by a bona fide mistake it is erroneously supposed that a plaintiff should be represented in a particular way and subsequently the plaintiff is permitted to rectify the mistake and appear personally, this does not amount to the addition of a new plaintiff within the meaning of section 22 of the Limitation Act.

In matters of this kind the substance is to be looked to rather than the form.

Where a mistake is not made deliberately and where it is honestly made, the mistake is bona fide.

Where, therefore, a suit upon a registered mortgage-bond was originally instituted within the period of limitation by a widow not for her own benefit, but as administratrix for the benefit of her sons, and subsequently the names of the sons were added as plaintiffs after the period of limitation:

Held, (1) that the change was one of form only and not of substance and that there was no introduction of new plaintiffs when the sons were brought on the record;

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

(2) that, therefore, the suit was not barred. C. NISTARINI DASSYA v. SARAT CHANDRA 680

——— ——— ———O. 2, r. 2 678, 731

——— ——— ——— O. 2, rr. 2, 4—Res judicata—Suit for mesne profits of land—Subsequent suit for possession of the same land, if maintainable.

Where the plaintiff on being dispossessed of land filed a suit for mesne profits only which was decreed in his favour and subsequently filed another suit for recovery of possession of the land:

Held, that the subsequent suit was barred by the former suit under the provisions of Order II, rule 2, of the Civil Procedure Code. S. HIROMAL v. FARIDKHAN, 9 S. L. R. 23 939

——— ——— ——— O. 2, r. 4 939

——— ——— ——— O. 5, r. 20—Service of summons upon defendant—Affixing of summons to outer door of house, when sufficient—Inquiry as to suit by third party, whether notice to party inferred.

Notice of suit cannot be fixed to a party to a suit by officious inquiries made by parties unconnected with it about its result. Service of the summons by affixture to the outer door of the house of the defendant is good only when the plaintiff, on being told that the defendant has gone to a different place, makes an attempt to serve him in that place by taking out fresh summons against him to that place also. M. KATTAMPUDI SUBBIAH CHETTY v. WALJI LALJI SAIT 26

——— ——— ——— O. 6, r. 17 132

——— ——— ——— O. 6, r. 17—Amendment of plaint—Minor plaintiff—Guardian and ward—Suit not to be dismissed on mere technicality

The Divisional Court on appeal dismissed a minor plaintiff's suit on the ground that the plaint disclosed no cause of action, but it appeared that the plaint was only technically not properly drawn up:

Held, that under the circumstances of the case the plaint should be allowed to be amended. P. SANGAT SINGH v. UTTAM SINGH, 109 P. L. R. 1915; 65 P. W. R. 1915 769

——— ——— ——— O. 9 592

——— ——— ——— O. 9, r. 8 902

——— ——— ——— O. 9, r. 8, O. 17, r. 2—Adjourned hearing—Non-appearance of plaintiff—Court, power of—Procedure.

Where neither the plaintiff nor his Pleader appears on a day to which the hearing of a suit has been adjourned, the Court must make an order under Order IX, rule 8, and it is not entitled to proceed to decide the suit on the merits. A. PHUL KOER v. HASHMAT ULLAH KHAN, 3 A. L. J. 679 553

——— ——— ——— O. 9, r. 9 395, 1004

——— ——— ——— O. 9, r. 13 975

——— ——— ——— O. 9, r. 13—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 153A, scope of—Admission—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 164—Limitation—Dismmissal of suits—Material irregularity.

Section 153A of the Bengal Tenancy Act requires that no application to set aside an ex parte decree in a suit between a landlord and tenant as such shall be admitted, unless the applicant has, at or before the time when the application is admitted, deposited in the Court to which the application is presented, the amount, if any, which he admits to be due from him to the decree-holder.

The admission of rent contemplated by the Legislature is an admission that rent is due in respect of the holding for which the suit has been instituted.

A person is not bound to make any deposit where he does not admit that any money is due from him to the plaintiff in respect of the holding for which rent is claimed.

Article 164 of the first Schedule to the limitation Act provides that an application by a defendant for an order to set aside a decree passed ex parte may be made within thirty days from the date of the decree or, where summons was not duly served, when the applicant had knowledge of the decree.

Under section 3 of the Indian Limitation Act it is obligatory upon the Court to dismiss a time-barred application, although limitation is not set up as a defence.

A Court acts with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction in granting relief, without adjudication of the question of limitation, on an application which, on the face of it, is barred by limitation. C. TARA SANKAR GHOSE v. NASARUDDI, 19 C. W. N. 970 876

——— ——— ——— O. 9, r. 13—Ex parte decree against some of the defendants—Appeal by others—High Court, power of, to entertain application to set aside ex parte decree—Jurisdiction.

A High Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application by some of the defendants to set aside an ex parte decree passed by the original Court when a second appeal by the other defendants is pending before it. M. SADAYA KONAN v. ANNAMALLAI UDAYAN, 2 L. W. 529 458

——— ——— ——— O. 17, r. 2 553

——— ——— ——— O. 17, r. 3, scope of—Party's default after time has been granted to him—Court responsible for effecting service.

The stringent provisions of Order XVII, rule 3, cannot be invoked unless time has been granted to a party specifically for performing any of the acts mentioned therein and that party has committed a default in performance thereof.

Where a party has paid the process fee for summoning witnesses the Court and its officers are responsible for effecting service and an adjournment caused by the non-attendance of witnesses for want of service is an adjournment in the ordinary course and does not amount to time granted to one party within the meaning of rule 3, Order XVII, Civil Procedure Code.

When an adjournment had already been rendered necessary by the non-appearance of the witnesses the fact that it was, at the same time, utilized for another purpose does not convert it into time granted to the defendants within the purview of rule 3 of Order XVII. P. HARJAS RAI v. NARAIN SINGH, 51 P. R. 1915. 938

——— ——— ——— O. 20, r. 12, O. 22, rr. 2, 3, 4, 10, O. 34, rr. 2, 8, O. 43, r. 1 (1)—Preliminary decree, suit if continued till final decree after passing of—Suit by execution on mortgage in favour of estate of deceased testator—Death of executors—Right of widows to be brought on record as legal representatives of deceased testator—

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

Application under Order XXII, r. 3—Order, whether appealable—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 88, 89.

Under the Civil Procedure Code of 1908, after the passing of a preliminary decree, the suit is continued until the stage of final decree is reached.

A widow of a deceased testator cannot apply to be brought on record as the "legal representative" on the death of the executors who instituted the suit. The term "devolution" in Order XXII, rule 10, means the devolution of the interest of the person who instituted the suit.

An application to be brought on record by such a widow could be made only under Order XXII, rule 3, and as orders on such applications are not made appealable under Order XLIII, rule 1, no appeal lies from an order rejecting such an application. M. LAKSHMI ACHI v. SUBBARAMA AIYAR, 2 L. W. 403; 28 M. L. J. 490; (1915) M. W. N. 327; 17 M. L. T. 385 142

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 20, r. 12 464

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 12 479

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 15 — Execution of decree—Personal decree against Hindu woman with limited estate—Debt incurred for legal necessities—Suit based upon allegations of necessity—Decree-holder entitled to prove necessity in execution—Payment of Government demands, whether legal necessity—One of several decree-holders can apply for execution of the whole decree.

Where the suit is founded upon a purely personal debt or contract of a Hindu woman with a limited interest in the estate, the estate is not bound to satisfy that debt. In order to bind the estate the suit should be so framed as to show that it is not merely a personal demand on the female in possession, but that it is intended to bind the entire estate and the interests of all those who come after her.

In execution of a personal decree against a Hindu woman with a limited interest in the estate obtained upon a plaint expressly alleging the debt to have been incurred for legal necessities, the decree-holder, in order to make the estate liable, is entitled to adduce evidence to prove the necessities for which the debt was contracted.

Government revenue and other Government demands are claims of Government on the land and their payment must be made by the estate and if these payments cannot be made out of the income and money has to be borrowed to make them, the estate is liable to satisfy these debts.

Any one of the several joint decree-holders may, unless the decree imposes a condition to the contrary, apply for execution of the whole decree. C. GAJADHAR PARSHAD SAHU v. BINDUBASHINI PERSHAD 181

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 16 673

——— ——— O. 21, r. 37 (1)— Execution of decree—Arrest of judgment-debtor, when may be ordered.

A decree-holder is not justified in applying for the arrest of the judgment-debtor in the first instance, without trying to obtain execution of the decree by other means available to him, i.e., by the attachment and sale of his property other than land. P. BAHADUR KHAN v. VIROO MAL, 78 P. L. R. 1915; 94 P. W. R. 1915 152

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 52 239

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 52 622

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 58 — Mortgage-decree—Attachment of property—Claims, investigation of—Procedure.

Proceedings by way of attachment are not applicable to mortgage-decrees, but if the decree-holder applies for and obtains an order for attachment and property is attached, claims and objection to the attachment can be brought under Order XXI, rule 58, of the Civil Procedure Code, and such claims and objections must be dealt with under that rule and the following rules prescribing the procedure for investigation of claims and objections. L. B. MG. MRA TUN v. U KAING 941

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 63 622

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 63—Claim Proceedings—Suit to establish right—Jurisdiction of Small Cause Court—Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), s. 19 (s).

A suit to establish a right given to the unsuccessful party in claim proceedings under the Code of Civil Procedure involves in every case a prayer for the setting aside of a summery order of a Civil Court. Such a suit cannot be regarded as a suit for a mere declaration and is not excluded from the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court under section 19 (s) of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act. M. RAJAMMAL v. NARAYANASAMY NAICKER, (1915) M. W. N. 376; 28 M. L. J. 600 208

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 89—Decretal amount may be deposited in Court 916

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 90 395

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 90, O. 32, r. 3—Application to set aside sale on ground of fraud and collusion, maintainability of—Minor substituted as judgment-debtor—Guardian ad litem not appointed—Sale, effect of.

On the death of a judgment-debtor an application for substitution of the name of the sole legatee of the judgement-debtor, a minor, and his father and others was made. No application was made under Order XXXII, rule 3, of Civil Procedure Code, for the appointment of a guardian ad litem. The father acted throughout and eventually the property was sold and purchased by the decree holder. The mother, acting as the guardian and next friend of the minor, applied to have the sale set aside under section 47 and Order XXI, rule 90, Civil Procedure Code, alleging fraud and collusion:

Held, that under the circumstances of the case the mother was entitled to make the application and that she should be appointed guardian ad litem of the minor:

Held, further, that the sale of the property without appointing such a guardian was in itself an irregularity which would vitiate the sale, if it caused injury to the minor. C. KESHAWE SURENDRA SAHI v. DEVENDRABALA DASI 211

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 19, order under, whether appealable—Irregularity and fraud in publishing or conducting a sale 308

——— ——— O. 21, r. 94 975

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 22, rr. 2, 3, 4, 10 142

Civil Procedure Code- (1908)—contd.

——————— O. 22, r. 10- Insolvency of defendants in a money suit—Official Receiver, whether necessary or proper party to such suit Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), s. 6. cl. (2) (b) - Suit instituted before pendency of insolvency proceedings—Decree, how far binding on Official Receiver.

The plaintiff sued for recovery of money and after the institution of the suit, the defendants applied to be adjudicated insolvents and were so adjudicated under the Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907). The defendants contended that the Official Receiver ought to be made a party to the suit and in any event, the decree ought not to be made binding on the Official Receiver:

Held, (1) that the insolvency of defendants in a mere money suit did not effect the devolution of any interest upon the Official Receiver within the meaning of Order XXII, rule 10, of the Civil Procedure Code;

(2) that as no interference in pending proceedings was contemplated by section 16 of the Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), it was not necessary nor even proper to join in a suit of that nature the Official Receiver, but at the same time the decree could not be executed against the estate of the insolvents, nor be binding on the Official Receiver. S. JETHALAL KALIANJI v. GANGARAM NAOOMAL, 8 S. L. R. 325 50

——————— O 23, r. 3 311

——————— O 23, r. 3—Compromise—Stamped paper, whether necessary.

Where the paties to a suit compromise, all that the Court is required to do under Order XXIII, rule 3, of Civil Procedure Code, is to ascertain that the suit has been adjusted by a lawful compromise, and to put the fact on record. It is not necessary that a sulehnamah on stamped paper should be filed. U. P. B. R. MAHADEO PRASAD v. BASDEO TIWARI 511

——————— O 26, r. 9 60

——————— O. 26, r. 14—Partition decree—Execution—Division by casting lots, legality of—Equitable rule.

A casting of lots for the purpose of allotting shares to the parties in execution of partition decrees is not opposed to Order XXVI, rule 14. The most equitable way by which properties could be assigned to co-parceners is to draw lots after dividing the properties with reference to the number of sharers. M. ANANTA RAMAPPA v. SUBRAYYA, 2 L. W. 430 245

——————— O 32, r. 3 211

——————— O. 32, r. 4 (3)—Guardian ad litem, appointment of—Consent of proposed guardian, necessity of—Ex parte decree against minors, when liable to be set aside.

Order XXXII, rule 4 (3), of the Code of Civil Procedure, makes it imperative that the consent of the proposed guardian should be obtained for his appointment; and the appointment of any person as guardian ad litem without his consent is not a legal appointment. An ex parte decree obtained against both the major and minor defendants without a guardian properly appointed to the minors is one that is liable to be set aside so far as minors are concerned and the fact that the proposed guardian subsequently made an application to set aside the ex parte decree against the minors will not validate the originally invalid appointment. M. SHROOF SAHIB v. RAGHUNATHA SIVAJI 579

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)- contd.

——————— O. 32, r. 6 (2). O. 39, r. 10—Joint Hindu family, suit by minor—Managing member acting as next friend—Managing member, right of, to withdraw money—Security, deposit of—Court, duty of.

A next friend of a minor plaintiff, even if he is the managing member of the joint Hindu family of which both are the members, is not entitled to draw money from Court on behalf of the minor plaintiff without furnishing security

A Court cannot, under Order XXXII, rule 6 (2) of the Code of Civil Procedure, order payment of money to a person not appointed guardian ad litem by any competent authority without demanding security from him. M. KRISHNA AIYAR v. CHAKRAPANI 475

——————— O. 32, r. 15 595

——————— O. 34, rr. 2, 3 142

——————— O. 34, r. 5 120

——————— O. 34, r. 14 62

——————— O. 38, r. 2 714

——————— O. 38, r 5 622

——————— O. 38, r. 5—Attachment before judgment—Dismissal of suit by first Court—Cessation of surety's liability—Decree by Appellate Court—Security - Appeal, second—Plea of want of registration of security, if allowed

When a surety pledges property by bond in order to save the property of a defendant attached before judgment under Order XXXVIII of Civil Procedure Code, the liability of the surety or of the property pledged ceases as soon as the suit is dismissed by the first Court, and that liability is not revived by the Appellate Court decreeing subsequently the plaintiff's claim.

The plea of want of registration of surety bond cannot be entertained on second appeal when the point has not been raised in the two Courts below. P. SHANKER v. RAM KISHEN, 53 P. W. R. 1915; 147 P. L. R. 1915 271

——————— O. 38, r. (5), O 39, r (1)—Mortgage of right to receive certain dues—Decree for sale—Order of attachment and injunction, whether competent:

The appellant mortgaged to the respondent his right to receive malikana dues from a number of villages and a decree for sale was passed on the mortgage, but before the sale the decree-holder obtained an order restraining the judgment-debtor from receiving the malikana dues:

Held, that the Court had no power either to attach the malikana dues or to prevent the appellant from receiving them. A. MUHAMMAD INAM-UD-DIN KHAN v. NARAIN DAS, 13 A. L. J. 65 601

——————— O. 38, r. 10 622

——————— O 39, r. 1 601

——————— O. 39, r. 10 475

——————— O. 41, r. 10 59

——————— O 41, r. 20. scope of—Party to suit includes representative of such party—Power to add parties, to be exercised at hearing—Setting aside, application for—Abatement and substitution.

The words "any person who was a party to the suit" in Order XLI, rule 20, of the Code of Civil Procedure will, on a reasonable construction of the same, include the representative of such a party.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

The power given to the Court to add parties is a power which is to be exercised at the hearing, for it is necessary that the Court should have before it all the circumstances of the case.

The mere fact that the representative of a deceased person happens to be a party already on the record in his own right, does not dispense with an application for setting aside an abatement and substitution. C. ROMESH CHANDRA DAS v. ANTHONY PENHEIRO 470

——— O. 41, r. 22—Cross-objections, whether can be urged against co-respondents.

A respondent in an appeal is not ordinarily entitled to urge cross-objections except against the appellant.

Where a plaintiff had sued two defendants who had no common ground of defence, and was successful against one only and on that defendant appealing, the plaintiff filed a cross-objection in which he claimed a decree against the other defendant:

Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to file a cross-objection against the second defendant and to prove his case against him. U. B. NGA TIN v. NGA SAW, U. B. R. 1915, II, 58 610

——— O. 41, r. 33—Dismissal of suit as time-barred against one defendant—High Court, whether can dismiss it against other defendants who were not impleaded.

Where a suit is dismissed against one of the defendants as time-barred, the High Court can dismiss it against those other defendants who did not appeal and were not impleaded in the lower Appellate Court. M. SUBBARAYALU NAIDU v. PAPAMMAL 579

——— O. 43, r. 1 (1) 142

——— O. 43, r. 1 (s)—Order providing for appointment of Receiver, whether appealable.

An order merely directing that a proper person should be appointed a Receiver is not appealable under Order XLIII, rule 1 s) B NARBADASHANKAR MUGATRAM VYAS v. KEVALDAS RAGHUNATHDAS, 17 BOM. L. R. 510 504

——— O. 43, r. 1 (u)—Order of remand under Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), whether appealable.

No appeal lies against an order of remand made in proceedings under the Madras Estates Land Act I of 1908. M. GURUSWAMY NAIDU v. SUBBA NAIDU 265

——— O. 44—Appeal in forma pauperis—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 170—Limitation.

An appeal was filed in the High Court long after 30 days had expired from the decision of the Court below. On the report of the office as to the deficiency of the Court-fees, the appellant expressed his inability to pay the Court-fee and asked the Court to take the appeal in forma pauperis:

Held, that the appeal having been filed beyond 30 days of the decision of the Court below could not be treated as an application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis and was barred by limitation. A. GATI v. RACHLA KUNWAR, 13 A. L. J. 635 1003

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—concld.

——— O. 47, r. 1 717

——— O. 47, r. 1—Review, sufficient ground for.

An application for review was made on the sole ground that if the Court allowed the applicants another opportunity of producing evidence, they might persuade the Judge that the view taken by him on the previous occasion was erroneous:

Held, that this was not a sufficient ground for review under Order XLVII, rule 1, of the Civil Procedure Code. A. BINDA PRASAD v. RAGHUBIR SARAN 13 A. L. J. 673 994

——— Sch. II, para. 16—Award—Application to set aside award dismissed—Decree—Appeal maintainability of.

There is no right of appeal against a decree passed upon an award of arbitrators after dismissal of an application to set it aside. M. YELLA HANUMAYYA v. MULLANGI CHINNA DODDAPPA 512

——— Sch. II, para. 20 49

Civil Service Regulations, arts. 458, 464, interpretation of—Pension rules—Officer removed from Government service, whether entitled to pension under Article 458.

Under Articles 458 and 464 of the Civil Service Regulations it is essential that an officer to be entitled to pension must be in the service on the date of his retirement. Therefore, an officer removed by Government from service before that date, can have no claim for any pension. M. KOTHANDARAMIAH v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 2 L. W. 431; (1915) M. W. N. 323 252

——— art. 464 252

Claims relating to properties in hands of insolvent and his representatives—Jurisdiction of Court to decide on application 168

Common Manager. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 100.

Companies—Right to forfeit shares, when properly exercised and by whom—Liability as contributory.

A right to forfeit shares must, in order to be effectually exercised, be pursued with the greatest exactness by the proper parties, i. e., by the Directors properly appointed and by the requisite number of them and in the proper manner and for proper cause. The right must be exercised bona fide for the purpose for which it was conferred.

Where, therefore, the Board of Directors passed a resolution authorizing the Managing Director to settle the matter of the appellant's liability with him and to place the result of such settlement before the next meeting of the Board for consideration and the Managing Director thereupon wrote to the appellant informing him that his shares had been forfeited, but the matter was never laid before the Board which, under the Articles of Association, was the only body empowered to forfeit the shares:

Held, that the Managing Director's action wa altogether ultra vires and not binding upon th Company and that on the Company going ins liquidation the appellant was rightly placed on the lis of contributories and his name could not be removeto P. KANSHI RAM v. KISHOR CHAND, 37 P. R. 1916, 101 P. W. R. 1915 567

Companies Act (VI of 1882), s. 214 105

Companies Act (VII of 1913), s. 38—Rectification of register—Application made late—Discretion.

A person who claims to have been misled by fraud or false representation into taking shares in a Company should raise the objection without delay.

The power to take summary action under section 38 of the Companies Act, 1913, is discretionary. P. JAGAN NATH v. GOPI CHAND, 110 P. L. R. 1915 770

——— s. 284—Limitation—Appeal filed with delay—Sufficient cause—Objection by respondent at hearing—Companies Act (VI of 1882), s 169—Appeal—Notice to respondent—Limitation period, expiring during vacation—Extension of limitation period—Right of Official Liquidator to recover by summary process from creditor of Bank who realised his debt by suit before passing of winding-up order and after suspension of payment by Bank 265

——— s. 284, meaning of—Pending proceedings, if affected by new Act—Interpretation of Statute.

A construction which leads to absurdity or inconvenience should be avoided, unless the express words of a Statute compel the Court to hold otherwise.

Construction is to be made of all the parts together, and not of one part only by itself.

The plain and rational meaning of section 284 of the Companies Act of 1913 is that the new Act operates upon proceedings arising out of the windings-up which commenced after its enforcement (i. e., 1st April 1914) and that no part of the Act has application to the pending liquidations. P. DAULAT RAI v. WAZIR CHAND, 20 P. R. 1915 272

Compensation to share-holders—Director of company guilty of misfeasance 105

——— Improvements, bona fide, by donee 269

——— Improvements—Thekadar, whether a tenant—Thekadar's right to make improvements and claim compensation 478

Complaint. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 4 (h).

Compromise—Agreement out of Court to compromise suit—Order of adjournment—Additional evidence, whether legally admissible—Transfer of interest in immoveable property—Registration 260

——— in execution Court—Evidence—Registration, if necessary—Compromise, whether admissible in evidence 418

——— Stamped paper, whether necessary 511

——— of suit—Razinama, if requires registration—Evidence, admissibility of razinama in 311

Confession. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 24.

———Confession implicating co-accused retracted at trial—Independent corroboration essential.

Confession—concld.

Where one of two co-accused makes a confession implicating the other co-accused as well, independent evidence should be forthcoming to corroborate the confession in regard to each accused implicated.

Where N and R, husband and wife, were accused of the murder of N's brother and R made a confession before the Committing Magistrate implicating her husband as well, but subsequently retracted the confession:

Held, that as there was no real corroboration of the retracted confession against N and against R herself there was merely the retracted confession corroborated solely by evidence of her absence from her house during the night of the alleged murder, the accused were entitled to the benefit of the doubt and must be acquitted P. NUR MUHAMMAD v. EMPEROR 22 P. W. R. 1915 Cr; 163 P. L. R. 1915; 16 Cr. L. J. 469 101

Confidential proceedings, legality of 682

Consent, if inferred from attestation 749

Consent decree, nature of, how far binding—Consent decree and compromise compared 156

Consideration. See MORTGAGE; SALE.

———New contract—Fresh consideration—Rule of English Law, applicability of 449

Consignee of goods, right of 207

Conspiracy. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 225.

Construction—Kayam patta—Surrounding circumstances and conduct of parties 188

———Wajib-ul-arz 425

Construction of document, essentials for 802

———Sale or mortgage—Test—Suit to cancel re-conveyance—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 113.

The question whether a transaction is a mortgage by way of conditional sale or a sale with a provision for re-purchase depends ultimately upon the intention of the parties to be gathered from the instrument and the surrounding circumstances.

Per Kumaraswami Sastri, J.—Two tests are generally applied in deciding whether a transaction which is on its face a sale, is only a mortgage, because of the condition to re-convey. One is whether there was a debt subsisting at the time to discharge which the document was executed and the other is whether the value of the land conveyed is so disproportionate to the amount mentioned in the document as the alleged consideration for the sale as to raise a reasonable presumption that the parties intended only a security.

The plaintiff's father and the 1st defendant's father who were brothers, divided their family property, and the 1st defendant's father sold his share, the property in dispute, to the plaintiff's father, the sale-deed containing a provision that if the purchase-money should be re-paid together with the value of any improvements effected, the land should be surrendered to the first defendant's father. On the death of the plaintiff's father his mother acted as his guardian and conveyed the land back to the 1st defendant's father on his re-paying the purchase-money. The plaintiff sued for a declaration that his mother's release was not binding upon him and that he was entitled to get back the property on paying the original purchase-money:

Construction of document—concld.

Held, (1) (Coutts-Trotter, J. dissenting) that the document executed by the 1st defendant's father was a deed of sale and not a mortgage;

(2) that the right which the 1st defendant acquired under the option to re-purchase was in effect a right to demand specific performance of the contract to reconvey, and there being no refusal to perform in this case the question of limitation did not arise. M. KALAPPA KAMTHI v. KACHUR SAKHA RAMA RAO 898

——— of sanad 365

Contract by Buddhist monk. See BUDDHIST LAW.

——— of guarantee—Consideration—Actual release of claim necessary and not mere promise 422

——— of partnership—Breach of contract, suit for—Damages—Death of one partner subsequent to suit, effect of.

Where a cause of action exists, the damages must be estimated with regard to the time when the cause of action came into existence.

Where the suit is for damages for breach of contract of partnership, the death of one partner subsequent to the suit does not affect the quantum of damages. M. PAKALA RAMA RAO v. APPANA KUMARASWAMI 471 ——— of sale or lease followed by delivery of possession—Document not executed, effect of—Subsequent suit, maintainability of—Ejectment—Vendor, whether can eject purchaser.

Where in pursuance of an agreement for a lease or sale the intended transferee has taken possession, though the requisite documents have not been executed, the position is the same as if the documents had been executed, provided that specific performance can be obtained between the same parties in the same Court and at the same time as the subsequent legal question falls to be determined.

Where, therefore, the plaintiff in a suit for ejectment was the admitted proprietor of the land in dispute and the defendants resisted his claim for ejectment on the ground that they had come into occupation by his leave and license under an agreement for sale on the payment of part of the consideration money:

Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to eject the defendants nor was he entitled to a decree for the balance of the consideration in the suit, because he had not sued to recover the money. C. AKBAR FAKIR v. INTAIL SAYAL 707

——— for sale of immoveable property, whether creates vested interest—Rule against perpetuities—Contract, whether enforceable against survivors of joint Hindu family 435

———Sale—Covenant for title, meaning of—Compensation for breach of contract—Claim made after execution of conveyance 394

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 2 (g) 751

——— s. 4 12

——— s. 4—Acceptance subject to a condition subsequent—Auction-sale—Bidder benamidar —Fraud—Misrepresentation—Repudiation of contract—Specific performance—Benamidar can sue—Exchange of patta and muchilika does not give title.

Where an auction-sale conducted through an agent has been confirmed in the name of the highest bidder subject to the approval of the principal, there is a contract of sale on the grant of the approval.

Where there is an acceptance on behalf of the principal of an offer which has been made subject to a condition subsequent, there is a contract, if that condition subsequent is satisfied.

In the absence of any restriction in the conditions of sale that bids must be made in the bidder's own interest and not on behalf of anybody else, the mere fact that a person was acting on behalf of somebody else when he made a bid, would not make it fraudulent, nor would it amount to such misrepresentation or suppression of material facts as to entitle the other party to repudiate the contract.

In a suit for specific performance it cannot be successfully pleaded in defence that the man who has entered into the contract for specific performance is not the man who has the beneficial interest.

An exchange of patta and muchilika or an agreement to dispense with the exchange of patta and muchilika is a condition of the right to recover rent, but the mere exchange of patta and muchilika does not give title. M. CHITIBOBU ADENNA v. GARIMALLA JAGGARRAYADU, 28 M. L. J. 617 12

——— s. 16—Security, if ample, effect of—Undue influence, presumption of—Rate of interest, excessive, effect of—Personal loans.

Under the amended section 16 of the Contract Act the question of a harsh and unconscionable bargain can only be considered in reference to undue influence.

Where there is ample security, an excessive rate of interest has been held to be anything over 10 per cent. Where there is no security, no rate of interest can be considered excessive. There can be no standard rate on personal loans. C. ABDUL MAJID v. KSHERODE CHANDRA PAL, 19 C. W. N. 809; 42 C. 690 843

——— s. 19—Misrepresentation avoiding contract must be one of fact—Damages for breach of contract—Criterion for assessing damages.

Where the question is whether a certain statement is a substantive part of a contract or a mere representation, it is essential that the statement should be descriptive of the contract, in order to make it a term of the contract.

Where one of the contracting parties says: "I am well-known to the National Bank in your city," it is not a statement of fact, but only his own opinion as to the state of his credit, though it may be false; such statement is not one of fact, and even if false, does not avoid the contract under section 19 of the Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872).

In assessing damages for breach of contract the price ruling on the date on which the contract was finally cancelled must be taken to be the criterion and not that prevailing on any previous date. M. HOPE PRUDHOMME & Co, v. M. EARNEST MAX 575

——— s. 23 241

Contract Act—contd.

——— ——— ss. 23, 65—Contract to appoint any one to public office—Suit for recovery of money paid thereunder, whether maintainable—Contract void ab initio.

Contracts which have for their object the influencing of appointments to public offices and the restricting of the discretion vested in public officers in the selection of persons are illegal and void.

A Court will not assist a party who has entered into a contract tainted by moral turpitude.

Where a contract is illegal because contrary to positive law or against public policy, an action cannot be maintained to enforce it directly or to recover the value of services rendered under it or money paid on it.

Section 65 of the Contract Act relates to the obligation of a person who has received an advantage under an agreement which is discovered to be void or under a contract which becomes void but not where the agreement is void ab initio. C LEDU, COACHMAN v. HIRA LAL BOSE, 21 C. L. J. 537; 19 C. W. N. 919 625

——— ——— s. 23—Excisable articles, sale of —Liquor, license to sell—Transfer—Partnership, terms of—Legality—Findings of fact.

A partnership for the sale of excisable articles is not illegal. C. JNANENDRA NATH v. CHANDI CHARAN SAHA 480

——— ——— s. 23—Marriage — Divorce—Custom—Payment to caste—Repugnant to Hindu Law.

A custom by which the marriage tie can be dissolved by either husband or wife, against the wish of the divorced party, and for no reason but out of mere caprice, the sole condition attached being the payment of a sum of money fixed by the caste, is opposed to public policy within the meaning of section 23 of the Contract Act and is also repugnant to Hindu Law, and, therefore, cannot be judicially recognised. B KESMAV HARGOVAN v. BAI GANDI, 17 BOM L. R. 584 952

——— ——— ——— ss. 23, 30—Money lent for gambling purposes—Finding to be specific and clear.

Where in a suit upon a promissory note the defence is that it was executed in respect of money advanced for gambling purposes, to render the money irrecoverable under section 23 or 30, Contract Act, 1872, it is not enough for the Court to find generally that the debt was contracted for gambling purposes, but it must also find whether it was lent for future play or for past play and what portion of it was used for such a purpose. M. RAMALINGA REDDI v. MUTHU THEVAN 573

——— ——— ——— s. 30 573

——— ——— ss. 38, 52, 54, 83—Principal debtor entitled to avoid but not avoiding contract —Surety, whether liable for breach—Notice of arrival of goods, if offer—Failure to take delivery—Damages.

A surety cannot escape liability on the ground that the circumstances were such that the principal debtor was entitled to avoid the contract, when in fact the contract was not avoided.

Where a condition in a contract that notice should be given of the arrival of the goods by a particular ship is not an essential part of the contract, failure to give such notice or a mistake in the notice given, is not a breach of contract entitling one party to avoid it for that reason nor can that notice by itself be deemed to be an offer of performance within the meaning of section 38 of the Contract Act.

Where on the receipt of notice of arrival of goods, one party has to apply for delivery of goods but fails to do so, he commits the breach and is liable in damages. M. SOUTH INDIAN EXPORT CO., LTD. v. CONDIAH CHETTY 712

——— ——— ——— s. 43 811

——— ——— ——— s. 44 760

——— ——— ——— s. 44—Joint judgment-debtors — Release of one, release of other—Amount paid by one —Pro tanto reduction of liability.

The release of a joint judgment-debtor does not operate as release of the others. It confers on them no higher rights than they would have had prior to the judgment, but they can claim the benefit of the amount actually paid by the released judgment-debtor. M. MOOLCHAND v. ALWAR CHETTY, 17 M. L. T. 449 303

——— ——— ——— s. 45—Mortgage—Several mortgagees—Payment by mortgagor to one mortgagee, if valid.

A payment of the mortgage-debt by the mortgagor to one of the several joint mortgagees is not a valid payment as against the other mortgagees. C. UMES CHANDRA BANERJEE v. DINABANDHU MAHANTI, 21 C. L. J. 570 956

——— ——— ——— s. 45—Payment to one of several heirs of a promisee, whether operates as a discharge.

A payment made to one of the several heirs of a deceased promisee is not binding on other heirs. M. MUNIANDI SERVAI v. RAMA SAMI 586

——— ——— s. 56—Sub-contract — Principal contract, cancellation of—Effect on sub-contract.

Where a sub-contract postulates the existence of a principal contract for its operation and continuance, the cancellation of the latter terminates the former also. M. GOPALASAMI PILLAI v. CHIDAMBARAM CHETTY, 2 L. W. 411 151

——— ——— ss. 62, 63—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 6 (e)—Contract with a variation of terms after its breach—Suit for specific performance of such contract, maintainability of—Consideration—Fresh consideration—Rule of English Law, applicability of.

Where on a suit for the breach of a contract to sell lands, a subsequent contract to sell lands other than those at first agreed upon was executed for the original consideration:

Held, that section 6 (e) of the Specific Relief Act applied and the plaintiff was entitled only to specific performance of the contract with the subsequent variation.

The rule of English Law that a fresh consideration is necessary for a new contract after breach is not imported into Indian Law.

Sections 62 and 63 of the Indian Contract Act have entirely altered the English Law in this respect and the original contract subsists notwithstanding the variation. M. RAMIAH BAGAVATHAR v. SOMASI AMBALAM, (1915) M. W. N. 408; 29 M. L. J. 125 449

Contract Act—concld.

——— s. 63 449
——— s. 65 625, 751
——— ss. 73, 75—Contract, breach of —Plaintiff, liability of, to prove damages—Written contract—Inconsistent contract, if can be proved 950
——— ss. 74, 107—Right of re-sale by vendor where property not passed to purchaser—Re-sale commission and brokerage when goods not re-sold—Agreement to pay, unreasonableness of

The right of re-sale after the breach of contract to purchase may be allowed as a means of ascertaining damages subject to the rule of reasonable compensation contained in section 74 of the Contract Act and is not limited to cases where property has passed to the buyer.

Where the property in the goods re-sold has not passed to the buyer, a re-selling commission cannot be allowed.

Re-selling brokerage and commission for goods not actually re-sold cannot be allowed as they are unreasonable and not justified by section 74 of the Contract Act, being imaginary and fictitious. S. FORBES, FORBES, CAMPBELL AND CO. v. OFFICIAL RECEIVER, 9 S. L. R. 20 933
——— s. 75 950
——— s. 107 933
——— s. 134 760
——— s. 171 870
——— s. 209 679
——— ss. 217, 221 870

Contribution—Properties of two owners mortgaged to secure one debt—One owner and his property, release of, on payment of one-half of debt—Major portion of property released—Liability of other mortgagor and remaining portion of mortgaged property 113
———, recovery of—Survey charges 595
———, suit for—Court, duty of, to determine liability of each defendant—Joint decree erroneous.

In a suit for contribution it is the duty of the Court to determine the amount of liability of each defendant and to make a decree apportioning to each of them the amount for which he is found to be liable. A joint decree is clearly erroneous.

In such a suit what the Court ought to determine is whether the plaintiff has paid for the defendants their share of liability for the original debt. So far as the creditor is concerned, he is entitled to recover what is due to him from all the debtors, but as between the debtors, each of them is liable for so much of the debt as he has not paid to the creditor and as the plaintiff has paid for him. A. SHEO PRASAD v. LALA RAM 205 ———, suit for. See PARTNERSHIP.

Co-sharers—Joint land—Long exclusive possession of one co-sharer—Building, erection of—Presumption—Other co-sharer, right of, to demolish.

Where one co-sharer is for many years in exclusive possession of a particular plot and makes constructions thereon, the presumption is that he is so in possession with the consent of the co-sharers. The other co-sharers cannot after lying by for many years come in and ask to have the constructions demolished. A. LAHASO KUNWAR v. MAHBIR, 13 A. L. J. 555; 37 A. 412 15

Costs to abide—Costs to abide and follow the result, meaning of.

The words "to abide and follow the result" convey the suggestion that the successful party must be given his costs. But the words "abide the result" only connote that the order as to costs is to await till decision is given in the case. They do not have the effect of fettering the discretion of the trying Court. M. GODAVARTHI PERIA v. GODAVARTHI LAKSHMIDEVAMMA, 28 M. L. J. 441; (1915) M. W. N. 330 203

Co-tenancy. See PARTITION.

Court, power of, to introduce new provisions in Transfer of Property Act 113 ——— Subordinate Judge empowered to entertain appeals, whether Court 71

Court-fees. deficiency of, made up after several orders, effect of—Discretion—Appeal 571

Court Fees Act (VII of 1870), s. 7 (i), (ix)—Foreclosure suit—Appeal for enhancement of mortgage-money—Court-fee to be ad valorem.

The appellants sued to obtain foreclosure of a mortgage and joined as one of the defendants a co-mortgagee who, they alleged, had parted with his rights to their predecessors-in-title. The co-mortgagee also filed a suit and admitting appellants' right to the extent of a half share, made them defendants as they refused to be co-plaintiffs with him. The suits were tried jointly and two different decrees were passed. The appellants filed an appeal for enhancement of the mortgage money payable to them:

Held, that they must pay ad valorem Court-fees on the amount by which enhancement was sought. N. WASUDEO v. DAYARAM, 11 N. L. R. 83 609
——— ss. 7 (iv) (f), 11—Suit for accounts and administration—Valuation in the discretion of plaintiff.

The plaintiff gave in the plaint all the facts and circumstances regarding her want of knowledge of the various interests, their nature, and state of accounts of the estate of her deceased ancestor, which obliged her to bring her suit in the form she did, and, therefore, sued for accounts and administration of the said estate and claimed her share therein. The suit was valued at Rs. 130 for purposes of Court-fees and at Rs. 30,00,000 for purposes of jurisdiction:

Held, that the suit was for an account and was properly valued under section 7 clause (iv) (f) of the Court Fees Act. B. KHATIJA v. ADAM HUSENALLY VASI, 17 BOM. L. R. 574 949

Criminal misappropriation. See PENAL CODE, s. 409.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 4 (h), 199—Complaint—Petition by husband simply for coercing wife, whether a complaint—Magistrate directing Police inquiry—Charge sheet preferred before another Magistrate—Jurisdiction.

Where the accused No. 1 leaving her husband's house went to the house of accused No. 2 with her jewels and some property, and the husband went to the house of the Deputy Magistrate at about 9 P. M., where was also the first accused, and presented a complaint not with the object of getting the Magistrate to take action but simply to coerce his wife to give back the jewels;

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Held, that there was no complaint under section 199 of the Criminal Procedure Code such as could entitle the Magistrate to take cognizance of the case after the death of the husband.

Where a Magistrate having cognizance of a case refers it to the Police for inquiry and report, the Police have no power to prefer a charge sheet before another Magistrate and such other Magistrate has no jurisdiction to take cognizance of the case.

It is not open to persons after the husband's death to revive proceedings which were dropped during his life-time. M. RUKMANI AMMAL, In re, 16 CR. L. J. 466 98

——— ——— ——— S. 110—Charge to be communicated to accused—Reputation, nature of, evidence of—Order without reasonable grounds as to prevent accused from furnishing security, legality of—Sureties, qualifications of.

An order under section 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code should not be made unless the charge which the accused has to meet is communicated to him.

When it is sought to prove the reputation of a person, the evidence which is required is the evidence of respectable persons who are acquainted with the person on his trial, who live in the same neighbourhood and are aware of his reputation, and these persons should ordinarily not be officials.

An order under section 114 framed without reasonable grounds or with the express intention of preventing the accused from furnishing security is ultra vires.

The sureties required in a case under section 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code are persons who are in a position to influence the accused and likely to be able to restrain him and who, if they fail to do so, can forfeit the amount mentioned in the bond.

It is not to be supposed that only holders of landed property can be in such a position. U. B. NGA HEIN v. EMPEROR, 8 BUR. L. T. 53; 16 Cr. L. J. 553 825

——— ——— ——— ss. 110, 121, 514—Security for good behaviour—Subsequent conviction under s. 325, Penal Code—Forfeiture of bond of sureties.

Where a man was placed on security under section 110, Criminal Procedure Code, not merely as being a receiver of stolen goods but also as being a dangerous man and the son of a notorious dacoit, and was subsequently convicted of a bad offence under section 325, Indian Penal Code:

Held, that there was nothing in law to prevent the forfeiture of the bond of sureties under the circumstances. P. EMPEROR v. SHER SINGH, 10 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 549 821

——— ——— ——— S. 121 821

——— ——— ——— S. 122—Sureties—Report by Police as to fitness of sureties, admissibility of.

A Magistrate called for a report from the Sub-Inspector of Police as well as from the Tahsildar as to the fitness of particular persons to act as sureties in a case: the Tahsildar reported in the affirmative and the Sub-Inspector in the negative. The Magistrate accepting the report of the Police Sub-Inspector declined to accept the sureties:

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Held, that the report of the Police Officer was not admissible in evidence and that it was the duty of the Magistrate to have taken evidence as to what was the basis of that report and he should have come to a decision thereon himself. A ZORAWAR v. EMPEROR, 13 A L. J. 469; 16 Cr. L. J. 445 77

——— ——— ——— S. 122—Surety, evidence about fitness of, rejection of—Magistrate, duty of—Burden of proof.

The power of rejection of sureties conferred on Magistrates by section 122 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, should not be used merely to prevent a 'badmash' from giving security.

Although it is the duty of the accused to produce the evidence of the fitness of the surety, that burden is ordinarily discharged by the evidence of the surety himself. If the Magistrate is not satisfied with the evidence of the surety, that alone is not sufficient ground for rejection. Section 122 of the Criminal Procedure Code recognizes only one ground for rejection of the surety and the reason given by the Magistrate must be a positive reason for believing the surety to be unfit. If he is not so satisfied, he must make further inquiry and come to a definite conclusion one way or the other. S. MUHAMMAD IBRAHIM v. EMPEROR, 8 S. L. R. 322; 16 Cr L. J. 479 111

——— ——— ——— ss. 125, 406, scope of—Order to execute bond for keeping peace—District Magistrate's power to cancel bond.

The terms of section 125 of the Criminal Procedure Code are sufficiently wide to cover a case where the District Magistrate finds that the materials before the Subordinate Magistrate were not sufficient to justify an order for taking security.

Section 406 of the Code gives an appeal to the District Magistrate from an order to furnish security for good behaviour, while section 125 relates to orders for keeping the peace as well as to those from which section 406 allows an appeal. N. EMPEROR v. DALLI, 11 N. L. R. 98; 16 Cr. L. J. 555 827

——— ——— ——— S. 145—Criminal revision—Oudh Judicial Commissioner's Court, powers of—Magistrate's order under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code, power to set aside.

The Oudh Judicial Commissioner's Court, having no authority to revise proceedings except that given to it by the Criminal Procedure Code, has no authority to set aside an order passed by a Magistrate under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code. O. IBAD-ULLAH KHAN v. RAHATULLAH KHAN, 18 O. C 69; 16 Cr. L. J. 541 669

——— ——— ——— S. 145—Dispute as to land between two channels—Boundary—Province of Agra and Oudh—Deep stream of Ghagra—Magistrate—Jurisdiction.

The deep stream of the river Ghagra, as it exists at any given point, forms the boundary line between the District of Fyzabad in the Province of Oudh and the District of Basti in the Province of Agra.

A dispute arose about a piece of land situated between the two distinct channels of the river Ghagra between the District of Fyzabad and the District of Basti and the channel which was towards the Fyzabad side was found to be the deep stream of the river:

Held, that the Magistrate of Basti had jurisdiction to take cognizance of the dispute under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code. A. AUDHENDRA PARTAP SINGH SAHAI v. DAMAN SINGH, 16 CR L. J. 527 543 ss. 145, 146—Order "not to obstruct" without taking evidence, if final—Procedure.

In a proceeding under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code, the preliminary order was made, the statements of the parties as required by clause (4) of the section were put in, but the Magistrate without examining the parties or taking any evidence ordered a party "not to obstruct":

Held, that the order was not a final order under the section and that if there was still a danger of a breach of the peace, the Magistrate must complete the proceedings as required by section 145 and make a proper order either under that section or under section 146. B. In re DYAWAPPA BASGUNDA PATIL, 17 BOM. L. R. 382; 16 CR. L. J, 434 66

s. 145, scope of—Actual physical possession, consideration of—Possession, nature of, irrelevant—Written statement—Jurisdiction.

Section 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is concerned solely with the fact of actual physical possession whether lawful or unlawful, whether in contemplation of law enjoyed by the possessor in his own right or on behalf of others.

Therefore, in proceedings under that section any question as to whether possession is on behalf of others or in one's own right is quite irrelevant.

Questions as to the rights of parties raised by their written statements under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code, are quite irrelevant; as such proceedings are initiated by the Magistrate in the interests of public order and tranquillity and it is his preliminary order that settles the actual issue between the parties and founds his jurisdiction. M. NARAYANA ASARI v. KANDASAMI ASARI, 16 CR. L. J. 525 541

s. 146 66

s. 146—Attachment of property—Duration of attachment—Adjudication of rights of parties by competent Court—Magistrate, duty of, to withdraw attachment.

An order of attachment of property under section 146 of the Criminal Procedure Code remains in force until withdrawn, but it is the duty of the Magistrate to withdraw it and release the attachment as soon as it is brought to his notice that a competent Court has determined the rights of the parties thereto or of the person entitled to possession. M. MAHARAJA OF VENKATAGIRI v. AMBARKANA SRINIVASA ROW, 17 M. L. T. 392; 16 CR. L. J. 481 321

ss. 157, 165—Locking of doors of accused's house by Police of one Police station in jurisdiction of another Police station, whether ultra vires

Although the wording of section 165, Criminal Procedure Code, limits the powers of a Police officer to the places within the limits of the station of which he is in charge or to which he is attached and although the locking of the doors of an accused's house is a step which would facilitate the search of the house and would make the search a thing of some value, yet the locking of the doors and the keeping of guard over the house are also a part of the ordinary duties of the Police under the words in section 157 "to investigate the facts and circumstances of the case and to take such measures as may be necessary for the discovery and arrest of the offender;" and in section 157 there is no provision preventing the Police of one Police station from acting under that section in the jurisdiction of another Police station. P. NATHA SINGH v. EMPEROR, 12 P. R. 1915 CR.; 16 CR. L. J. 551 823 ss. 179, 181—Charge of criminal breach of trust—Jurisdiction—Special and general provisions—Interpretation.

s. 165 823

According to the ordinary canons of construction a special provision should ordinarily receive effect unqualified by the general.

Section 179 of the Criminal Procedure Code can be applied only to cases in which the consequence necessary to constitute the offence ensues in some place other than that in which the accused's act is done.

It is the Court within whose jurisdiction the primary loss takes place that can take cognizance of the offence of criminal breach of trust.

Where, therefore, the accused was appointed agent for the sale of the complainant's oil at Nandyal and used to send periodical reports to his principal at Madras showing the quantity of oil sold and the amount of money received, but after a certain time failed to do so and left his place of business and made away with the money:

Held, that inasmuch as the misappropriation was only of the money received and the loss primarily ensued to the complainant as a consequence of the accused's conduct at Nandyal, the Court of the Presidency Magistrate at Madras had no jurisdiction, to try the case. M. KRISHNAMACHARI v. SHAW, WALLACE & Co., 18 M. L. T. 25; (1915) M. W. N. 419; 29 M. L. J. 178; 16 CR. L. J. 491 331

s. 179—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 415—Cheating—Deceit—Jurisdiction—Court within whose jurisdiction complainant deceived.

The accused, a trader of Salem in the Madras Presidency, deceived a trader in Dhulia in Bombay Presidency by leading him to believe that he was buying clean ground-nut oil when, in reality, he was buying a mixture of ground-nut oil with rock oil. The Dhulia trader was induced by the deceit to pay the price agreed upon on the understanding that it was clean oil:

Held, that the complainant was deceived in Dhulia and the Courts at Dhulia had jurisdiction to hear the case. B. JAMNADAS VASANJI v. EMPEROR, 17 BOM. L. R. 389; 16 CR. L. J. 433 65

s. 181 331

ss. 195, 467, 471—Execution proceeding—Sanction to prosecute for offences—Appeal to District Judge—Jurisdiction.

An application was made to a Judge of the Court of Small Causes for sanction to prosecute the applicant in respect of offences under sections 195,

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

467 and 471 of the Penal Code, committed in an execution proceeding before him. The application was rejected. The matter was taken up to the District Judge under section 195, clause 6, of the Criminal Procedure Code. In that Court the application was registered as a criminal appeal:

Held, that the application should not have been registered as a criminal appeal as it was a matter in which the Sessions Judge had no jurisdiction. A. MOHAMMAD YASIN v. CHEDA LAL, 13 A. L. J. 709; 16 CR L. J. 524 540

s. 195, cls. (6), (7) —Subordinate Judge empowered to entertain appeals, whether Court—Jurisdiction—Sanction, revocation of—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 209—Claim, meaning of—Madras Civil Courts Act (III of 1873), s. 8.

Where, by a notification issued under the Madras Civil Courts Act (III of 1873), Government empowers all Subordinate Judges in the Madras Presidency situated in a place different from that of the District Court, to receive appeals direct and not by transfer from the District Court, such Subordinate Judges are Courts to which appeals "ordinarily lie" from the subordinate Courts within the meaning of section 195 (7) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and such Subordinate Judges have jurisdiction to revoke on appeal the sanction to prosecute for an offence under section 209, Penal Code, granted by a subordinate Court.

The word "claim" used in section 209, Indian Penal Code, cannot refer to a document produced in evidence to substantiate the relief asked for in a suit. M. BODDU RAMAYYA v. CHITTURI SURAYYA, 28 M. L. J. 486; 17 M. L. T. 446; 6 CR L. J. 439 71

s. 195 (6) —Sanction to prosecute—Superior Court—Jurisdiction to re-consider whole case.

A Court of superior jurisdiction whose jurisdiction is invoked under section 195 (6) of the Code of Criminal Procedure should re-consider the entire matter on the merits and while allowing all reasonable weight to the opinion of the Court below, it should nevertheless re-consider the question of the propriety of the order of sanction on its merits upon a complete review of the entire facts. A. RAM RAJA DAT v. SHEO DAYAL, 13 A. L. J. 685; 16 CR. L. J. 489 329

s. 199 98

ss. 225, 537, 239, 256, 257, 342—Charge, defective, effect of—Accused, right of, to know charge against him—Explosive Substances Act (VI of 1908), s. 4 (b), charge under, essentials of—Charge drawn up—Court, duty of, to adhere to statutory language—Misjoinder of charges—Trial, if illegal—"Same transaction," meaning of—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 120A, 120B—Criminal conspiracy, person when guilty of—Indictment, nature of, in conspiracy cases—Verdict, objection taken after, effect of—Co-conspirators, separate trial of—Court, power of—Offence under s. 4 (b), Explosive Substances Act—Prosecution, right of, to prosecute for the offence irrespective of ultimate design of conspiracy—Crime, sufficient proof of—Charge of conspiracy—General evidence, particular facts to be proved after—"Unlawfully and maliciously," meaning of—Explosive substances under s 4 (b), nature of—Prosecution, duty of—Offence, proof of—Accused, whether bound to show his object or design—Possession of explosive substances—Knowledge and assent, if necessary—Failure of conviction for crime committed—Prosecution for conspiracy, if expedient—Guilt, how established—Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 10, 143, 154 Evidence under s 10, when admissible—Cross-examination—Defence, right of, to ask leading questions—Discretion under s. 154—Witnesses, privileges of, in criminal cases—Detective, whether privileged to refuse to answer as to where he was secreted—Statutory provisions, strict compliance with—Written statement in criminal cases, value of.

Where it is alleged on behalf of the accused that the charge under section 4 (b) of Act VI of 1908 is materially defective, inasmuch as it omits to state, first, that the accused were in possession of explosive substances or had them under their control "unlawfully and maliciously," and secondly, that it was the intent of the accused to endanger life in British India:

Held, that these defects in the charge do not vitiate the trial and conviction, and that the case would be covered by section 225 and by clause (a) of section 537 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

An accused is entitled to know with certainty and accuracy the exact value of the charge brought against him, otherwise he may be seriously prejudiced in his defence.

It is not essential to specify in the charge the explosive substances which the accused have conspired to have in their possession or under their control, where the illegal act, charged under section 120B, Indian Penal Code, is the unlawful and malicious possession of explosive substances within the meaning of section 4 of the Explosive Substances Act, 1908.

Even though the illegal act which he has agreed to do or caused to be done, has not been done, a person may be guilty of criminal conspiracy.

Although an indictment, which omits to set out the particular false pretence alleged, is held bad where an objection is taken before verdict, the defect is deemed cured by verdict if no such objection is taken and there is a verdict of guilty on such an indictment.

The indictment in all cases of conspiracy must, in the first place, charge the conspiracy, but in stating the object of the conspiracy the same degree of certainty is not required as in an indictment for the offence conspired to be committed.

When a charge is drawn up, the Court should adhere to the language of the Statute as far as practicable.

Sections 120A and 120B did not find a place in the Indian Penal Code before the 27th March 1913, when Act VIII of 1913 became law; and, therefore, persons accused under section 120B cannot be convicted, unless the prosecution establishes that the accused were members of a conspiracy after the 27th March 1913.

Where it is established that there has been a misjoinder of charges, the trial must be deemed illegal, because held contrary to an express provision of the law relating to the mode of trial.

A comprehensive formula of universal application cannot be framed to determine whether two or more acts constitute the same transaction: but circumstances which must bear on the determination of the question in an individual case may be easily indicated; they are, proximity of time, unity or proximity of place, continuity of action and community of purpose or design.

If A, B and C conspire to make or have in possession or under control an explosive substance within the meaning of the Explosive Substances Act, and if in pursuance of such conspiracy, A makes or has in his possession or under his control an explosive substance, they may, if the Court thinks fit, be charged and tried together under section 120B, Indian Penal Code, and section 4 (b) of Act VI of 1908.

The Court has the option to place the co-conspirators on their trial separately.

Whenever evidence is attempted to be made admissible under section 10 of the Indian Evidence Act, the defence is entitled to insist on strict compliance with its provisions, namely, upon proof of reasonable ground for belief that the persons named have conspired together.

Where an offence is committed under section 4 (b) of the Explosive Substances Act, 1908, in pursuance of a criminal conspiracy, it is open to the Crown to prosecute the accused for such offences, irrespective of the question of the ultimate design of the alleged conspiracy.

In order to justify the inference of guilt, the inculpatory facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt

If the commission of a crime is directly in issue in any proceeding, it must be proved beyond reasonable doubt.

Where there is a charge of conspiracy, particular facts are proved to show that one or more of the defendants took part in it after general evidence of the existence of the conspiracy is first given.

Evidence of similar facts may be received to prove a party's knowledge of the nature of the main fact or transaction, or his intent with respect thereto.

To admit evidence under this head, however, the other acts tendered must be of the same specific kind as that in question, and not of a different character and the acts tendered must also have been proximate in point of time to that in question.

The term "unlawfully and maliciously," in the sense in which it is familiarly used in the criminal law of England, signifies "not for a lawful object and intentionally, without justification or excuse or claim of right."

The explosive substance mentioned in section 4 (b) of Act VI of 1908 need not be such as to enable a person by means thereof alone, without the aid of other substances, to cause danger to life or injury to property.

Any part of any apparatus, machine or implement intended to be used or adapted for causing or aiding in causing any explosive substance, is included in the term 'explosive substance' as used in section 4 (b).

To place all the available evidence in the case fairly and fully before the tribunal by which alone the guilt or innocence of the accused is to be determined, and not to secure a conviction, is the main duty of the prosecution.

The offence charged against the accused must be proved by those who made the charge, and the accused stands only to hear the evidence that is given against him and, therefore, he is not bound to show at all, or in any way whatever, what his real object or design in doing any act or acts undoubtedly done by him was.

In a charge under section 4 (b) of the Explosive Substances Act, 1908, possession to be punishable must also be possession with knowledge and assent.

When the prosecution fails, on the evidence, to secure a conviction for the crime committed, it is inexpedient, even though it may be lawful, to prosecute the accused for a conspiracy the proof where of really rests on the establishment of that very crime.

It is not by proof of his character but by proof of the facts that a man's guilt is to be established.

In the course of cross-examination by the defence for the purpose of eliciting facts in their favour from the prosecution witnesses, though those facts are irrelevant, the defence are entitled, in view of the generality of the provisions of section 143 of the Indian Evidence Act, to ask leading questions.

The Court may in its discretion, under section 154, Indian Evidence Act, permit the prosecution to cross-examine a witness, even though he had been originally called by them with regard to the matters elicited by the defence.

In criminal prosecutions, the witnesses for the Crown are privileged from disclosing the channel through which they have received or communicated information.

But the same privilege cannot be claimed by a detective, who cannot refuse on grounds of public policy to answer a question as to where he was secreted.

In a case where every possible point is likely to be contested, a strict compliance with the statutory provisions is desirable.

When a written statement is accepted by a Court from the accused, it does not take the place of evidence nor of such examination of the accused as is contemplated by the Code of Criminal Procedure.

C. AMRITALAL HAZRA v. EMPEROR, 13 C. L. J. 331; 19 C. W. N. 676; 16 CR. L J. 497 513

——— s. 239 513

——— ss. 254, 255, 256, 257—Trial in warrant case—Provisions of Code binding nature of—Magistrate, whether can vary procedure according to usage—Cross-complaints—Prosecution evidence in one cannot be treated as defence evidence in other.

A Magistrate is not at liberty to substitute for the procedure of the Code a procedure which has arisen by usage, however convenient the latter may be. The provisions of the Code must be followed.

Where, therefore, in trying two cross-complaints, the Magistrate heard the evidence for the prosecution in each and without framing a charge formally as required by section 254 of the Criminal Procedure Code and without following the provisions of sections 255,

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

256 and 257 in the first case, he dealt with it as if a charge had been framed and treated the evidence in the other case as defence evidence in the first:

Held, (1) that a trial conducted in a mode so materially different from that prescribed by law was not a proper trial;

(2) that the differences between the procedure followed and the legal procedure were of too fundamental and important a kind to be treated as irregularities curable by any of the sections in Chapter XLV of the Code. B. EMPEROR v. DOSABHAI J. DHONDY, 17 BOM. L. R. 490; 16 CR. L. J. 538 666

——— s. 256 513

——— s. 256—Summons case tried together with warrant case—Procedure to be followed—Warrant case dismissed during trial—Summons case proceeded with—Right of accused to re-call and cross-examine prosecution witnesses—Right to re-call and cross-examine—Right refused—Prejudice—Burden of proof.

Where a summons case is tried together with a warrant case, the procedure to be followed is that of a warrant case.

A summons case and a warrant case were tried together. During the trial the charge of the warrant case was dismissed and the charge of the summons case was proceeded with. The Magistrate refused to allow the accused to re-call and further examine the prosecution witnesses:

Held, that the refusal was illegal.

The privilege conferred by section 256, Criminal Procedure Code, is a substantive one and when denied, it is for the prosecution to show that the accused was not prejudiced by the denial. M. RALLABANDI SOBHANADRI, In re, 2 L. W. 574; 18 M. L. T. 92; (1915) M. W. N. 546; 16 Cr. L J. 540 668

——— s. 257 513

——— s. 307 (3) 72

——— s. 339—Approver—Pardon forfeited—Power of Sessions Judge to direct prosecution—Plea not taken before Committing Magistrate taken before Sessions Judge, legality of.

In a case of dacoity one of the accused G was given a conditional pardon. The Sessions Judge, being of opinion that he had not spoken the truth, directed his prosecution under section 397 of the Penal Code. G pleaded pardon before the Sessions Judge, but not before the Magistrate:

Held, that the Sessions Judge had no authority to direct the prosecution of G on any specific charge and that if he came to the conclusion that the approver had wilfully concealed anything essential or given evidence on any point which was positively false, he was entitled to record an opinion to that effect and to invite the attention of the District Magistrate to his opinion or possibly to suggest the propriety of his prosecution:

Held, further, that G was entitled to plead pardon before the Sessions Judge, although he had not done so before the Committing Magistrate. A. EMPEROR v. GANGUA, 13 A. L. J. 424; 37 A. 331; 16 CR. L. J. 483 323

——— s. 342 79, 513

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

——— ss. 367, 424—Judgment—Several accused—Appellate Court, duty of.

Where there are several accused who have appealed, it must appear from the face of the judgment that the case against each of the accused has been taken into consideration and reasons should be given, as far as may be necessary, to show that the Appellate Court has devoted judicial attention to the case of each of the accused. M. CHERUKATH MAMMAD, In re, 16 CR. L. J. 496 336

——— ss. 374, 376 (b)—Reference—Capital charge—Accused undefended—Re-trial, order of—High Court, power of.

When an accused appears before a Judge on a Capital charge, he ought not to be allowed to go undefended, the custom being for the Judge to appoint or request any member of the Bar to conduct the defence of the accused.

Under section 376 (b), Criminal Procedure Code, the High Court has jurisdiction to order a new trial on the same or an amended charge. C. EMPEROR v. MOHAR ALI SHEIKH, 19 C. W. N. 556; 21 C. L. J. 495; 16 CR. L. J. 481 321

——— ss. 380, 562—Proceedings submitted to Sub-Divisional Magistrate—Jurisdiction—Power to acquit.

A Magistrate to whom proceedings are submitted as provided by section 562 of the Criminal Procedure Code may pass such sentence or make such order as he might have passed or made if the case had originally been heard by him. He is not prevented from acquitting the accused, if on a perusal of the evidence he comes to the conclusion that conviction should not have taken place. U. B. MI TI HLA v. MI KIN, U. B. R. (1915) II, 55; 16 CR L. J. 535 663

——— s. 406 827

——— ss. 417, 435—Acquittal in Sessions case tried with aid of Assessors—Revision petition to High Court against order of acquittal—Power of High Court to interfere in revision—Sessions Judge and assessors concurring—Important witnesses disbelieved—Sessions Judge, power of, to stop prosecution—Revision by private person.

Ordinarily a High Court has jurisdiction to interfere on revision with an order of acquittal but it should exercise this jurisdiction sparingly and only where it is urgently demanded in the interests of justice.

The power of a Court to stop a case if it thinks it a waste of time to go on with it is undoubted and, therefore, where in a Sessions case two of the important witnesses for the prosecution were disbelieved by the Judge and the Assessors and the prosecution was stopped, there was no such patent miscarriage of justice as to call for interference by the High Court.

It is very doubtful if a private party should, as a matter of right, be allowed to move the High Court in such cases. M. NATESA PADAYACHI, In re, 17 M. L. T. 457; 28 M. L. J. 690; (1915) M. W. N. 411; 16 CR. L. J. 558 830

——— s. 421—Reasonable opportunity to appellant to be heard in support of appeal—Advocate filing appeal not Advocate for appellant called upon to support appeal—Reasonable opportunity, if given.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Where the Advocate filing the petition of appeal is not himself the Advocate for the appellant, a reasonable opportunity for hearing the Advocate cannot be said to have been given where he is called upon forthwith to support the appeal. U. B. NGA SHWE HMUN v. EMPEROR, U. B. R. (1915), II, 52; 16 Cr. L. J. 538 666

——— s. 423 (1)—Jurisdiction—Acquittal—Appeal—High Court, power of, to interfere—Grounds of interference.

In appeals against acquittals the High Court ought not to interfere unless the trying Judge was clearly wrong and the judgment is either perverse or based on obvious error of procedure. M. PUBLIC PROSECUTOR v. NARAYANA NAYUDU, 16 Cr. L. J. 529 657

——— ss. 423 (1), 439 (3)—Reference—Power of Sessions Judge in appeal—Acquittal—Procedure — Enhancement of sentence, whether a fit ground for ordering re-trial.

Where a Sessions Judge sitting in appeal is of opinion that an accused should be acquitted, he ought not to refer the case to the High Court. It is his duty to allow the appeal and acquit the accused.

Where a Sessions Judge sitting in appeal thinks that the case ought to have been tried by the Court of Sessions, he should himself set aside the conviction and order a commitment under section 423 (1) (b) of the Code.

The power of ordering a new trial merely for the purpose of enhancing the punishment is a power that ought to be very sparingly exercised. A. EMPEROR v. MOHAN LAL, 13 A. L. J. 477; 16 Cr. L. J. 433 65

——— s. 424 336

——— s. 435 830

——— s. 435—Charter Act, s. 15—High Court, power of, to quash proceedings at any stage—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 189, 504, offence under, essentials of—Abusing process-server, whether offence—Service of summons, when complete—Process-server, right of, to enter any house without permission.

A High Court has jurisdiction to interfere at any stage of the proceedings if it considers that, in the interests of justice, it should do so.

Before an offence under section 189 of the Indian Penal Code can be made out, it must be shown that there was a threat of injury to a public servant for the purpose of inducing him to do any act or forbear or delay to do any act connected with the exercise of his public function.

The mere fact that the accused abused the process-server will not constitute an offence under section 189 of the Indian Penal Code, nor will it constitute an offence under section 504 of the Indian Penal Code without an intention to cause a breach of the peace or knowledge that a breach of the peace is likely to result.

Service of summons is complete when it is tendered to the witness and his refusal to sign the original makes no difference.

The fact of a subpœna being entrusted to a process-server does not give him a general right of entry into any house without obtaining the permission of the owner or person in charge. M. KUPPUSAMI AIYAR, In re, 28 M. L. J. 505; 2 L. W. 463; 16 Cr. L. J. 477; 17 M. L. T. 398; (1915) M. W. N. 365 109

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

——— s. 439 (3) 65

——— ss. 467, 471 540

——— s. 476—Time within which proceeding should be taken—Limitation.

There is nothing in section 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code which requires a Court to take action, if at all, immediately after the conclusion of the case in which the offences are said to have been committed or within any fixed time thereafter. A. TILAK PANDEY v. EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 466; 37 A. 344; 16 Cr. L. J. 465 97

——— ss. 488, 489—Application by husband to cancel order of maintenance—Plea of divorce—Duty of Magistrate—Person of full age, whether can be presumed to act under influence of relations.

Where a husband applies for the cancellation of an order of maintenance passed in favour of his wife on the ground that he has been divorced from her, it is the duty of the Magistrate to entertain such plea and give it consideration.

Muhammadan Law does not give a wife any authority, except possibly in accordance with a contract entered into at the time of the marriage, to prevent her husband divorcing her by the pronouncing of talak.

A person who is of age cannot be presumed to be acting under the influence or compulsion of his relations with whom he is living in the absence of any evidence. U B. HASAN CHANEA v. MI SIN, U. B. R. (1915), II, 53; 16 Cr. L. J. 531 659

——— s. 489 659

——— s. 514 821

——— s. 517 92

——— s. 523 85

——— s. 526 cls. (1) (a), (8)—Transfer of case—Fair and impartial inquiry—Reasonable apprehension.

Where an application was made by the accused to the trying Magistrate, before the commencement of the hearing, notifying his intention to move the High Court under section 526, Criminal Procedure Code, for transfer and praying for an adjournment for that purpose, but the application was rejected and some condemnatory remarks were made in a superfluous order by the Magistrate against the accused:

Held, that the Magistrate was bound to grant the adjournment and that as these irregularities coupled with the condemnation of the accused appeared to have created a reasonable apprehension in the mind of the accused that a fair and impartial inquiry could not be had, the case ought to be transferred. S. OTANDAS DWARKADAS v. EMPEROR, 8 S. L. R. 341; 16 Cr. L. J. 476 108

——— s. 530—Bench of Magistrates—Conviction—Some not having heard evidence, effect of.

A conviction by a Bench of Magistrates some of whom have not heard the evidence is vitiated and must be set aside. M. SUBRAMANIA AYYAR, In re, 38 M. 304; 16 Cr. L. J. 489 329

——— s. 537 513

——— s. 562 663

Criminal Procedure Code—concld.

——————— s. 565—High Court, power of, to pass order under, in appeal or revision.

Where a trying Magistrate, not especially empowered in this behalf, passed an order under section 565, Criminal Procedure Code, and directed a convict to notify his residence for a period of two years and the District Magistrate moved the High Court to pass such an order on revision:

Held, that the Magistrate's order being without jurisdiction must be quashed, but that as section 565, Criminal Procedure Code, required that the order should be made by the trying Magistrate at the time of passing the sentence, the Appellate Court or the Court of Revision could not make an order under that section where the original Court was not so empowered. S. EMPEROR v. DINO, 8 S. L. R. 340; 16 CR. L. J. 469 101

Criminal revision—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 145—Judicial Commissioner's Court, powers of—Magistrate's order under s. 145, Criminal Procedure Code, power to set aside 669

Crown Grant—Ferry—Presumption 692

Custom. See ALIENATION.

——————Alienation—Necessity—Strict proof, when not required—Consideration, small portion of, not for necessity—Sale, if set aside.

When a suit to set aside an alienation is filed a considerable time after the alienation was effected, strict proof of necessity cannot be expected from the vendee.

A sale is not to be set aside when only a small portion of the consideration for the sale is not found to be for necessity. P. KISHEN SINGH v. SOHNA, 117 P. L. R. 1915 799

——————— of ancestral property—Necessity—Good faith—Second appeal—Question of law or fact.

The question of valid necessity may be one of law, or of customary law or one of fact according to the peculiar circumstances of each case.

Where, therefore, in a suit by the minor sons for a declaration that the sale of ancestral property by their father shall not affect their reversionary right after his death, it appeared that the alienor was really in need of money for household necessities and that he took the money in good faith for ordinary purposes:

Held, that the question of valid necessity was one of fact in the case and its necessity being proved, the plaintiffs' suit must fail. P. RAJA v. ALLAH DITTA 802

——————— by widow—Occupancy rights, creation of—Suit for declaration that creation of occupancy rights by widow was invalid—Limitation, starting point of 789

———————Ancestral land, whether liable to attachment in hands of widow of deceased proprietor—Onus—Effect of attachment.

Where a male proprietor governed by Customary Law has contracted a debt, in respect of which a simple money-decree has been passed against him, and thereafter has died leaving ancestral landed property, which has come into the possession of his widow on the usual life-estate, such property is liable to be attached at the instance of the deceased proprietor's judgment-creditor in execution of his money-decree.

Custom—contd.

The burden of proving that the deceased's estate in the hands of his widow is not liable for his just debts lies heavily on the person asserting this.

An attachment of property does not affect any title therein, but merely prohibits its transfer. P. BHAMBUL DEVI v. NARAIN SINGH, 39 P. R. 1915; 103 P. W. R. 1915 572 ——————— Necessity—Payment of debt due by husband—Hindu Law—Payment of barred debt—Payment out of income of property.

Under the Hindu Law a widow can validly alienate property to raise money for payment of debt due by her husband, even if she be able to pay it off out of the income of the property in her hands, but under the Customary Law she is not competent to do so.

Under Customary Law, unlike Hindu Law, a widow is not bound to pay debts due by her husband which have become barred by limitation. P. INDAR v. MOTI RAM, 112 P. L. R. 195; 75 P. W. R. 1915 780

———————Privacy — Windows interfering with privacy—Easement 154

———————, reasonableness of—Question of law—Reasonableness, test for 312

——————— of math. See MAHANT.

——————— Sale — Consideration — Necessity for trifling amount not proved, effect of—Punjab Courts Act (IV of 1912), s. 41 (1) (a)—Second appeal, ground for interference in.

In a suit to set aside a private sale the Courts should not interfere where the sale is an act of ordinary prudence or where the consideration is held to be necessary except to a comparatively trifling amount.

Therefore, where a lower Court overlooks these provisions, the Chief Court is entitled to interfere in second appeal. P. HAZARASINGH v. ARUR SINGH, 118 P. L. R. 1915 801 ——————— Succession—Dakhna Aroras of Multan—Sons—Eldest son entitled to extra share—Partition suit—Value of suit—Value of share of plaintiff.

Among Dakhna Aroras of Multan there is a recognized custom as to giving of 1¼th share of ancestral immoveable property to the eldest son.

In a suit by a plaintiff for his share in joint family property the value of suit for purposes of jurisdiction is the value of the property claimed and not the value of the whole estate of which partition is prayed for. P. KHILANDA RAM v. NANDA RAM, 108 P. L. R. 1915; 68 P. W. R. 1915 769

———————Hindu Gorewaha Rajputs of Garhshankar Tahsil, District Hoshiarpur—Daughter—Collaterals of fifth degree—Preferential heir—Ancestral property.

Among agricultural tribes in the Punjab near collaterals do, as a general rule, exclude daughters from succession to ancestral property and it is for the daughter to prove her right to oust the collaterals.

Where on the death of K, a Hindu Gorewaha Rajput of the Garhshankar Tahsil, Hoshiarpur

Custom—concld.

District, his widow held the land and after her death mutation was effected in favour of the collaterals who took possession: On a suit for possession by the daughter of K

Held, that she had failed to prove that by custom among Hindu Gorewaha Jats of Garhshankar Tahsil, Hoshiarpur District, a daughter was entitled to succeed to the ancestral property of her father in preference to his collaterals in the fifth degree. P. RADHI v. PUNNU, 35 P. R. 1915 561

——— Succession—Lodi Pathans of Mustafabad, Ambala District—Presumption—Onus.

In matters of inheritance Lodi Pathans of Ambala District follow agricultural custom and not their personal law, and the presumption is that among them first cousins succeed to ancestral estate in preference to daughters.

Where the daughters seek to rebut this presumption the onus lies on them to establish their prior right. P. ABDUL GHAFUR KHAN v. MUSHARRAF BI, 47 P. R. 1915; 89 P. W. R. 1915; 161 P. L. R. 1915 7

——— ——— ——— ——— Pagwand or chundawand —Malkotra Rajputs, Una Tahsil, Hoshiarpur District—Difference between the plains and hilly districts.

Among the Malkotra Rajputs of the village Panjawar of Tahsil Una in the Hoshiarpur District, the rule of succession is chundawand, and not pagwand.

In the Punjab plains the custom of chundawand is slowly giving place to pagwand even where it may have been prevalent at one time, but there is no such certainty as regards the hilly tracts of the Province. P. GOPAL SINGH v. PRABH DIYAL SINGH, 50 P. R. 1915; 99 P. W. R. 1915 650

——— Will—Gulfarosh Arains of Lahore city —Will—Burden of proof, nature of.

Among the gulfarosh Arains of Lahore city there is a custom of Will-making contrary to Muhammadan Law.

The burden of proving such a custom lies on the person who asserts it, but in view of the fact that the tribe is a mere fragment of a very large body of Arains, who are agriculturists and follow, except as regards certain things, ordinary Punjab custom, the burden is not a heavy one.

The fact that a party has repeatedly by act or word shown that he does not really follow a particular law, though it does not amount to an estoppel against him, still shows the views held by the party.

Instances in support of an alleged custom are not always to be treated as of little or no value because supported only by oral testimony; if the deponents have means of knowledge and the opposite party makes no attempt to rebut, facts stated may often be accepted as proved. P. RAHIM BAKHSH v. UMAR DIN, 49 P. R. 1915; 111 P. W. R. 1915 382

Damages—One co-sharer's right to sue another co-sharer—Mutual arrangement about actual possession, effect of—Increased rent, demand for, for fishing.

Where the plaintiff sues one of the co-sharers for damages for the wrongful removal of fish from a tank and it is found that there was an arrangement by which the defendant was put in possession of the tank with the right to take fish from it:

Held, that the arrangement or lease could not be void even under the Transfer of Property Act, because the act that was done in removing the fish was a past act and at that time, if under an arrangement, lease or license, whatever it may be called, the right was in existence, the defendant was justly exercising his right in fishing in the tank, and damages could not be claimed against him. C. BEHARI LAL NANDY v. KEDAR NATH NEBU, 19 C. W. N. 872 806

Damages—concld.

——— ——— Principal debtor entitled to avoid but not avoiding contract Surety, whether liable for breach—Notice of arrival of goods, if offer—Failure to take delivery 712

——— ——— Misrepresentation avoiding contract must be one of fact—Damages for breach of contract—Criterion for assessing damages 575

——— ——— Sale—Mortgagee selling mortgaged land —Covenant to transfer another land if vendee dispossessed by redemption—Statutory prohibition of transfer of land—Vendee, right of 751

——— Specific performance — One contract alleged and different contract proved 969

——— Suit for recovery of balance of mortgage-money, whether maintainable in Small Cause Court—Damages for breach of contract 621

——— ———, suit for —Malicious prosecution—Proof —Conviction of plaintiff in lower Court, effect of 883

Declaration of title, suit for—Nature of title to be ascertained first—Plaint, amendment of—Discretion exercised by lower Appellate Court—High Court, power of, to interfere.

A Court ought not to declare the title of any party to a piece of land without knowing what the nature of that title is.

A High Court ought not to interfere with the discretion deliberately exercised by a lower Appellate Court in refusing to allow a plaintiff to amend his plaint during the progress of the suit, unless it is satisfied that the lower Court came to a wrong conclusion. C. HARI KRISHNA DAS v. DINOR KINLA 355

Declaratory suit, maintainability of—Attachment before judgment—Decree-holder, if obtains priority 622

Decree. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908 s. 2 (2).

——— ——— against head of family, how far binding upon other members 156

——— ———, ex parte, against minors, when liable to be set aside 579

——— ——— nisi, definition of 178

Dedication to religious or charitable purposes—Land once dedicated to one purpose, whether can be used for any other.

If a piece of land is dedicated to one purpose, it cannot, contrary to the terms of the dedication, except in cases which fall under the cy-res doctrine (or its equivalent in Muhamadan Law) be utilised or any other purpose. M. GRAMANI ADAM SAHIB v. HAJI ABDULLA SAHIB 575

Deed, construction of—Dastbardarinama—Widow relinquishing her life-estate for consideration—Sale or relinquishment—Consideration, not passed—Deed, validity of.

Where a widow executed and registered a deed styling it a dastbardarinama, and stated in it that she renounced all her rights as widow in the estate of her husband held by her in favour of the next male reversioner in consideration of his agreeing to pay her a certain amount which amount was never paid:

Held, that the deed was not a sale-deed but a deed of release by which the widow surrendered her life-estate in her husband's land.

Held, further, that since no part of the consideration for the surrender of her life-estate was paid to her by the reversioner the agreement embodied in the deed was void and unenforceable. P. Musammat FAZLAN v. IMAM-UD-DIN, 95 P. W. R. 1915 253

Defamatory statement. See PENAL CODE, s. 500.

Deposit. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 174; TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 83.

—— in Court—Money paid under compulsion of legal order, recovery of—Conditional payment—Judicial order, nature of—Rules of Supreme Court, O. XLV, rr. 5, 6, scope of—Inherent power of Court.

The principle that, where money has been paid by the plaintiff to the defendant under compulsion of legal process which is afterwards discovered not to have been due, the plaintiff cannot recover it back in an action for money had and received, cannot apply in a case where money was deposited by the plaintiff, C, on the faith of an order which stated explicitly that the money would be retained in Court pending the determination of the question whether the money belonged to B, the then judgment-debtor of A, or to D, the alleged creditor of the depositor C, but where without holding any inquiry and without notice to the depositor and his alleged creditor the Court paid it out to A on his application.

A deposit made by order of a Court pending adjudication of the question whether B or D is beneficially interested in the money, is a conditional one.

No judicial order can be made to the detriment of a person till he has been afforded ample opportunity to defend his rights.

The Rules of the Supreme Court in England contemplate not an ex parte order to the prejudice of third person who may be really interested in the debt due from the garnishee but an inquiry in the presence of all the persons interested.

The Code of Civil Procedure (Act V of 1908) does not contain any specific rule of the type of rules 5 and 6 of Order XLV of the Rules of the Supreme Court in England. But the Court has inherent powers to guard against an abuse of its process and to ensure that its orders do not operate to the prejudice of persons who have no notice of the proceedings.

The money deposited does not cease to be the money of the depositor merely because he brought it into Court on the faith of a conditional order, which directed its retention in Court pending inquiry into the question raised, Deposit in Court—concld.

The Court has full authority to compel a party to bring back such money into Court to be re-paid to the other party entitled to it. C. HARINATH v. HARA DAS ACHARJA 580

Detective, whether privileged to refuse to answer as to where he was secreted—Statutory provisions, strict compliance with 513

Directors, whether agents or trustees 192

Divorce decree by District Judge—Reference to High Court—Practice—Parties absent, effect of 178

Divorce Act (IV of 1869), ss. 16, 17, 69—Divorce decree by District Judge—Reference to High Court—Practice—Parties absent, effect of—Decree nisi, definition of—Prostitute, who is—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 112—Legitimacy.

Per Wallis, C. J. and Ayling, J., (Sadasiva Aiyar, J., dissenting.)—The jurisdiction of the High Court to confirm the decree in a divorce suit arises immediately upon a reference. To complete that jurisdiction it is not necessary that there should be a personal appearance of the petitioner before the High Court.

Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—The order passed in a divorce case by a District Court is not a decree nisi. It is only a divorce decree passed by a High Court on its original side which is called a decree nisi. Under the Divorce Act the person who wants the confirmation of a decree pronounced by a District Judge ought to make an application to the High Court for confirmation and without such application the High Court should not confirm the decree passed by the District Judge.

The mere fact that a woman talks promiscuously with all, does not show her to be a prostitute, though she may be a coquette or a flirt.

The presumption of a child's legitimacy can be said to be rebutted, if it is shown by strong, distinct, satisfactory and conclusive evidence that the husband before conception had not access to his wife. M. GUDA WILLIAM v. GUDA KARUNAMMA, 17 M. L. T. 357; 29 M. L. J. 269 178

—— —— s. 69 178

Document, cancellation of—Limitation, from when begins to run 968

—— ——, construction of—Principle—Plain and unambiguous words—Court, duty of—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 94—Deed—Language plain and definite—Evidence, admissibility of, to prove language applies to other facts.

Per Spencer, J.—When the language used is plain and applies accurately to existing facts, evidence is not admissible, for the purpose of showing that it was not meant to apply to those facts.

Per Coutts-Trotter, J.—Where the words used in a document are definite and unambiguous, the Court must not travel outside the words used to found or confirm speculations as to the parties to the document having in fact intended other than what they have said. M. VELAPPA GOUNDEN v. PALANI GOUNDEN, (1915) M. W. N. 325 201

Dower. See MUHAMMADAN LAW.

Easement—Custom—Privacy—Windows interfering with privacy—Injunction.

A plaintiff is entitled to have a decree closing doors and windows opened by his neighbour, by obtaining an injunction from the Court on the ground that his privacy has been interfered with and by custom he is entitled to restrain the defendant from interfering with his privacy by opening new windows and ventilators. P. LAJJA RAM v. FAQIRA, 74 P. L. R. 1915 154

———Latrine erected on another man's land—Enjoyment for long series of years—Right of easement, if acquired—Right unknown to law—New easement, if created—Pleadings.

Where the plaintiff along with some of the defendants erected latrines on land which did not belong to them, and used them for a long series of years and, thereafter claimed a right of easement:

Held, that no question of easement arose in the case, for an easement of this description was unknown to law and the Court would not create a new species of easement.

Where, as in the present case, the act of the plaintiff was in the nature of trespass and it might perhaps have been open to him to contend that he had acquired a good title to the disputed property by adverse possession, but where no such claim was set forth at any stage of the litigation:

Held, that the plaintiff could not be permitted to make a case inconsistent with the title alleged in the plaint and that the relief sought could not be granted C. HERA LAL ROY v. LOKENATH SHAHA, 19 C. W. N. 864 865

———User for less than prescriptive period, whether possession—Right of suit—Incorporeal right, nature of—Adverse possession—Inclosure, proof of—Strongest evidence:

Easements are not capable in an exact sense of being possessed. The enjoyment which may in time ripen into an easement is not possession and gives no possessory right before the due time is fulfilled.

Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—An incorporeal right which can be the subject of legal possession while in the process of acquisition should be a right which, by its very nature, is presumably one enjoyed to the exclusion of others, or there must be clear evidence that one who is acquiring the incorporeal right by the enjoyment of it has been in enjoyment with the distinct animus or intention of excluding other persons from like enjoyment with himself.

Inclosure is the strongest possible evidence of adverse possession. M. NARASAPPAYYA v. GANAPATHY RAO, 38 M. 280 255

———Water channel blocked—Power of Court to direct opening of another passage without demolition of construction.

Where the defendant had blocked a water channel of the plaintiff by building a wall:

Held, that the Court had power to direct the opening of another channel through the defendant's land without demolishing the wall. A. BISHUNATH SHUKUL v. GANESH DATT SHUKUL, 13 A. L. J. 637 1002

———Water-course and way, obstruction to —Continuing nuisance 385

Easements Act (V of 1882), s. 13, cl. 3 (d)—Easement of necessity—Doors not necessary for light and air, if can be opened—Drains.

Where the defendants were alleged to have practically closed by staking bricks three doors appertaining to a house and to have stopped the flow of water through a drain which had existed for a number of years, and it appeared that the keeping open of the doors was not necessary for the enjoyment of the premises, that the doors used practically to be closed always, that there was access to the house of the plaintiffs otherwise than through one of these doors and that sufficient light and air could be obtained without the opening of the doors:

Held, (1) that the plaintiffs' claim in respect of the doors was rightly dismissed;

(2) but that as there was no other drain in the house of the plaintiffs and for the flow of water from the kitchen of the house there was no other outlet, the plaintiffs were entitled to use the drain for the flow of water from the kitchen and the defendants could not obstruct it. A. BISHAMBHAR NATH v. JAGAN NATH PRASAD 695

Ejectment. See AGRA TENANCY ACT, 1901, s. 197; CENTRAL PROVINCES TENANCY ACT, 1898, s. 88; LANDLORD AND TENANT.

———— Contract of sale—Document not executed—Vendor, whether can eject purchaser 707

———, defence against—Contract of sale and delivery of possession, if can be pleaded—Remedy 195

———Notice of ejectment—Proper rent not specified—Court-fee paid sufficient—Land from which ejectment sought, not specified—Notice, if defective 656

———Occupancy holding, mortgage of—Mortgagor, if can eject mortgagee without paying mortgage-money 490

———Person occupying land—No rent paid—Occupancy rights, acquisition of—Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 34.

In a suit for ejectment it was found that the land in dispute was held without payment of rent for a period of 26 years, twelve years out of which had expired while the old Act was in force. The status of muafidars was expressly disclaimed:

Held, that as there was no contract of tenancy between the parties, the tenant did not acquire occupancy rights. U. P. B. R. BALAK v. COLLECTOR OF JAUNPORE 285

———Raiyat at fixed rate of rent and occupancy raiyat, privileges of, distinguished—"Kayemi", meaning of—"Sthayee karsha kabulyat," meaning of—Under-raiyat's interest, whether heritable—Agricultural year, suit instituted before expiry of—Decree—Execution.

A raiyat at a fixed rate of rent is competent to create a permanent heritable interest in favour of his grantee, although the latter is an under-raiyat.

The use of the term 'kayemi' in a kabulyat imports not fixity of rent, but only permanence of occupation of the land.

Where the plaintiff is an occupancy raiyat, he is not competent to create in favour of his grantee a permanent heritable under-raiyati interest.

Ejectment - concld.

The description of a kabulyat as "sthayee karsha kabulyat" does not necessarily imply that the grantee was intended to have a permanent heritable interest.

Where the grantee is an under-raiyat of an occupancy raiyat, his interest is not heritable.

Where the suit was instituted before the expiry of the agricultural year current at the time when the original under-raiyat died:

Held, that the proper form of the decree would be one for ejectment against his representatives, the defendants, to be executed only on the expiry of that particular agricultural year. C. MEHER ALI v. KALAI KHALASHI, 19 C. W. N. 1129 461

——— ——— User for agricultural purpose—True test—Occupancy right, acquisition of, by 12 years' possession, effect of 834

——— ——— ——— suit—Cause of action, when arises—Suit withdrawn without permission to bring fresh suit—Fresh suit based on another cause of action, if barred—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 373.

A fresh cause of action arises each year as regards ejectment and, therefore, a suit for ejectment withdrawn without permission to bring a fresh suit does not bar another suit of ejectment based on another cause of action. U. P. B. R. GOPHURAN v. KALLU 24

——— ——— by lambardar—Other co-sharers no parties—Co-sharers making separate collections——Lambardar, rights of, to eject qua lambardar—Oudh Rent Act (XXII of 1886), ss. 108 (8), 126 (1).

A lambardar, though he does not make the entire collections of the village, is entitled to maintain a suit for the ejectment of a tenant, the consent or dissent of other co-sharers being immaterial. Section 126 (1) of the Oudh Rent Act is no bar to such a suit. A share-holder objecting to his action has his remedy to apply for his removal and to partition his share. U. P. B. R. GAJRAJ SINGH v. UDEY PARTAP NARAIN SINGH 297 ——— ——— Parties—All co-sharers must join unless agent appointed—Lambardar as such, power of, to eject.

All the co-sharer landlords must join in a suit for ejectment unless they appoint an agent for the same.

A lambardar as such has no power of ejectment. U. P. B. R. SAHAI v. ALI BAKSH 35

——— ——— ——— ——— Trespass — Tenant-in-common, right of one to sue alone—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXVI, r. 9—Personal inspection by Judge, finding based on—Judgment, if valid.

As against a trespasser in possession of immoveable property any one of co-owners or co-tenants can alone maintain an action in ejectment.

A judgment solely based on knowledge gained by the Judge during local inspection is illegal. An inspection which a Judge makes should be used by him only to test the accuracy and value of the evidence let in. He should not, without submitting himself to the test of cross-examination, make his knowledge the sole evidence for determining the question raised before him. M. AHMAD SAHIB SHUTARI v. MAGNESITE SYNDICATE LTD., 2 L. W. 460; 17 M. L. T. 387; 28 M. L. J. 598 60

Election of Mahant—Practice. See MAHANT.

Enhanced ren , recovery of, suit for—Tenure-holder, rent paid by, whether liable to enhancement—Construction of document, essentials for.

Variableness of rent is the normal condition and even the naming of a sum is not conclusive against this; and, therefore each case of enhancibility of rent is to be judged by its own peculiar circumstances.

Where there is no document, the conduct of the parties, especially where it extends over a long period of time, may justify an inference as to the terms on which land is held; but where there is a document defining the right of the parties, its terms must in the first instance be investigated.

In construing a document to ascertain its meaning, the Court must have regard to every fact a knowledge of which may conduce to the right application of the words used.

Where no sufficient ground is found for excluding the normal condition of variableness, the rent is enhancible. C. ANATH NATH MITRA v. MIDNAPUR ZEMINDARY CO. 802

Estoppel 807

——— ——— See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 115.

——— ——— Agreement not to eject tenant so long as rent was duly paid—Such agreement whether to be in writing.

A zemindar agreed not to eject his tenant so long as he paid rent in consideration of the receipt of the large amount of arrears due from a previous tenant:

Held, that the zemindar was estopped from ejecting the tenant so long as he paid rent.

That there was no reason for holding that such an agreement should be in writing. U. P. B. R. YUSUFUZZAMAN v. BODHAN 656

——— ——— Buddhist Law—Husband and wife—Wife's interest in joint property affected by mortgage executed by husband alone—Wife's conduct and acquiescence 881

——— ——— ——Mortgage, if can be questioned against a bona fide purchaser for value without notice 841

——— ——— ———, principle of 734

——— ——— ——— Representation by minor as major, effect of 957

——— ——— Tenancy admitted by landholder to be a fixed-rate tenancy—Tenant, whether can be ejected as occupancy tenant.

In a suit for enhancement of rent against his tenant, the zemindar entered into a compromise in which he said that the nature of the tenant's tenancy would be that of a fixed-rate tenancy and proceeded to describe certain of its incidents. No mention was made of the grounds mentioned in clause (d) of section 57 Act II of 1901, probably because he had said that the land will be treated as a fixed-rate tenancy. The land-holder then brought the present suit for the ejectment of the tenant and his mortgagee on the ground that the tenant had transferred his holding which he alleged to be an occupancy tenure:

Held, that the zemindar was estopped from asserting that it was not a fixed-rate tenancy. U. P. B. R. BHAGWAN SINGH v. DWARKA RAI 677

——— ———Test 386

Evidence, admissibility of razinama in 311

—— ——, admission of, by Magistrate when writing judgment—Irregularity 90

————, propriety of — Admission of further evidence 696

—— ———— Compromise in execution Court—Registration, if necessary—Compromise, whether admissible in evidence.

The joint holders of a decree entered into a compromise among themselves as to the manner in which the decree should be executed and their petition of compromise presented to the execution Court and acted upon:

Held, that the compromise did not require registration:

Held, further, that the compromise was admissible in evidence and binding upon the parties by reason of the order to that effect which was passed upon it by the Court executing the decree. A. BHARATH CHAUBE v. GAYA CHAUBE 418

———— Final judgment—Review—Application for reception of new evidence—Sufficient reason not shown—Rejection of application, propriety of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 114, O. XLVII, r. 1 717

———— Lease—Documentary and oral evidence, admissibility of—Tenancy, proof of 502

———— Oral—Weight to be given to opinion of trial Judge—Duty of Court of Appeal—Cross-examination to credit—Relevancy—Credibility of witness.

On appeal the whole case, including the facts, are within the jurisdiction of the Appellate Court: but generally speaking it is undesirable to interfere with the findings of fact of the trial Judge who sees and hears the witnesses and has an opportunity of noting their demeanour especially in cases where the issue is simple and depends on the credit attached to one or the other of conflicting witnesses. Nor should his pronouncement with respect to their credibility be put aside on a mere calculation of probabilities by the Court of Appeal.

Where the issue is simple and the only question is which set of witnesses is to be believed the verdict of the Judge trying the case should not be lightly disregarded.

Cross-examination to credit is necessarily irrelevant to any issue in an action, its relevancy consists in being addressed to the credit or discredit of the witness in the box so as to show that his evidence for or against the relevant issue is untrustworthy; it is most relevant in a case where everything depends on the Judge's belief or disbelief in the witness's story.

Where the Judge who heard the evidence rejected the story of a witness declaring that he had seldom seen in the box a more "thoroughly unscrupulous, untrustworthy, untruthful man" than the witness, but the Court of Appeal accepted the witness's story saying that the cross-examination of the witness which convicted him of being a party to a false and fraudulent balance sheet, was "not a very relevant point," and that witness was prejudiced thereby by being placed "in an uncomfortable position and reduced to shuffling answers;"

Evidence—contd.

Held, that the Court of Appeal ought not to have excused the witness and actually accepted his story on the ground that he was uncomfortable when he was shown to be a fraudulent falsifier of accounts. P. C. BOMBAY COTTON MANUFACTURING Co. v. MOTILAL, 19 C. W. N 617; 17 M. L. T. 408; 28 M. L. J. 593; 21 C. L. J. 528; 17 BOM. L. R. 455; 2 L. W. 521; 39 B. 386 229

———— Proof—Other articles in newspaper, admissibility of—Disaffection to be excited must be against Indian Government—Relevancy of disaffection excited against other authorities 827

———— Report by Police as to fitness of sureties, admissibility of 77

———— Waste land—Title—Possession — Quantum of evidence necessary—Bombay Land Revenue Code (Bom. Act V of 1879), s. 37—Open village sites, title of Government—Presumption 51

———— Will not produced—Secondary evidence, admissibility of 807

———— Written statement—Admission by one defendant, when admissible against others.

An admission of one defendant in a written statement in a suit will not be evidence against others unless it is made evidence at the trial by examining that defendant who made the statement. M. SESHAGIRI AIYANGAR v. SADACHI 924

Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 10, 143, 154—Evidence under s. 10, when admissible—Cross-examination—Defence, right of, to ask leading questions—Discretion under s. 154—Witnesses, privileges of, in criminal cases 513

———— ss. 24, 25, 26, 27—Confession—Information received from accused, how far relevant.

Where the statement made by an accused to the Sub-Inspector of Police was to the effect that he would point out the spot where he had committed the murder, and thereafter he conducted the Police to a spot where earth was found saturated with blood:

Held, that so much of the Sub-Inspector's evidence as related to the alleged confession by the accused that he committed the murder was not admissible in evidence.

It was not the intention of the Legislature to allow the Police by an ingenious perversion of the provisions of section 27, Indian Evidence Act, to get rid of the safeguards thrown round prisoner by sections 24, 25 and 26 of the Act and the exception to the general rule must be very strictly confined within its legitimate limits. P. TARA SINGH v. EMPEROR, 11 P. R. 1915 CR.; 16 CR. L. J. 545 817

———— ss. 25, 26, 27 817

———— ss. 32, 91 — Statement not against pecuniary or proprietary interest of person making it, whether admissible—Plaintiff relying upon document—Other evidence of transaction, if admissible.

A statement by a plaintiff as a witness to the effect that her father told her that he had mortgaged the land in suit to the defendant is inadmissible under section 32 of the Evidence Act.

Evidence Act—contd.

Where the plaintiff relies upon a mortgage-deed produced by her but not proved, she is precluded by section 91 of the Evidence Act from giving other evidence of the terms of the transaction. U. B. MI NGE MA v. NGA TALOK PYU, U. B. R. (1915), II, 56 607

——— ——— s. 32 (2)—Relevant fact—Ordinary course of business—Appellate Court, powers of—Settlement papers, admission of, after first Court's decision.

There is nothing in section 32, clause 2, which requires any formal proof that certain papers were kept as a fact in the ordinary course of business.

Settlement papers cannot be admitted by the Appellate Court after the first Court's decision in the case. C. BAID NATH SAHAY v. NANKU MAHTON 219

——— ——— s. 32 (7) 974

——— ——— s. 33 639

——— ——— ss. 33, 145, 157—Previous statements, when and how to be used—Civil suit—Procedure—Documents to contradict witnesses—Witness to be given opportunity to explain 639

——— ——— s. 35—Survey records, entry of measurement of survey fields in, admissibility of, to prove encroachment—Title, proof of.

Entries of the extents of the survey fields made in survey registers are admissible under section 35 of the Evidence Act to prove an encroachment, though insufficient to prove title to the extent encroached upon. M. KALAYI NARAYANA JOGITHAYA v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 2 L. W. 413 154

——— ——— s. 58 698

——— ——— ss. 68, 72—Mortgage-bond not properly attested, if admissible in evidence—Simple money-bond.

Where a mortgage-deed is not properly attested in accordance with the provisions of section 59 of the Transfer of Property Act, it is not admissible in evidence as a mortgage-deed but it is admissible in evidence as a simple money-bond. A. MATHRA PERSHAD v. CHEDDI LAL, 13 A. L. J. 553 363

——— ——— s. 72 363

——— ——— s. 90, presumption in, whether applicable to copies 386

——— ——— s. 91 607

——— ——— s. 92 760, 892

——— ——— s. 92—Agreement out of Court to compromise suit—Order of adjournment—Additional evidence, whether legally admissible—Transfer of interest in immoveable property—Registration.

An order of Court adjourning a case and incidentally noting the fact of an agreement made out of Court between the parties as a ground of adjournment does not purport to be and is not a record of the terms of the compromise; and additional evidence to add to the terms of the compromise is not inadmissible under section 92 of the Evidence Act.

Where in a suit for possession of a house the parties arrived at an agreement that the defendant should deliver possession of the house on payment of Rs. 500 by the plaintiff and on the defendant failing to do so, the plaintiff sued on the basis of this agreement:

Held, that the suit was maintainable even though the agreement was not registered inasmuch as

(i) it did not contemplate any transfer of interest in immoveable property; and

(ii) the suit was one for possession and not for a declaration of title. M. SAMBANDA MUDALIAR v. CHINNASAWMI SAH 860

——— ——— s. 92—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 73, 75—Contract, breach of—Plaintiff, liability of, to prove damages—Written contract—Inconsistent contract, if can be proved.

It is not open to a party to a written contract to prove a contract the terms of which are clearly inconsistent with the terms of the written contract.

Sections 73 and 75 of the Contract Act make it compulsory on the plaintiff to show that he has suffered and the extent to which he has suffered; before a Court can award him damages for a breach of contract. A. BANARSI DASS v. LULLA MAL 950

——— ——— ss 92, 94—Mistake in description of property sold—Evidence to prove what was actually sold, whether admissible—Rectification of sale-deed—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s 31.

Under section 92, clause (a), of the Evidence Act, any fact may be proved which would entitle a person to a decree on the ground of mistake of fact or law, and there is nothing in the section giving such a right to a plaintiff alone.

Where there is a misdescription of the property sold, the vendee can claim a rectification of the sale-deed under section 31 (a) of the Specific Relief Act.

Such a right can be used as a shield when possession is sought to be wrested from the party entitled to the rectification, and the fact that he is a defendant does not disable him from setting up the plea which could have availed him as plaintiff.

The combined effect of section 92, clause (a), Evidence Act, 1872, and of section 31, Specific Relief Act, 1877, is that the defendant can resist a suit on the ground that what was sold to him was different from what the sale-deed contained. M. RANGASAWMI AIYANGAR v. SOWRI AIYANGAR, (1915) M. W. N. 448; 18 M. L. T. 75; 29 M. L. J. 229 588

——— ——— s. 92, proviso 2—Suit on promissory note—Written contract—Oral agreement—Burden of proof—Conditional admission in pleadings—Objection under the section taken for first time in Court of Appeal—Pleadings, amendment of.

It is allowable under section 92 of the Evidence Act, 1872, to urge an oral agreement which will have the effect of leaving matters otherwise than if they had depended on the written agreement alone but such oral agreement must be clearly proved and the onus lies on him who sets it up.

If an admission in pleading is made subject to a condition, it must either be accepted subject to the condition or not accepted at all.

The plaintiff sued the defendant upon a promissory note, jointly executed by the defendant and one H, for Rs. 50,000 payable on demand, alleging that under a certain agreement the plaintiff was bound to pay H Rs. 50,000 on 30th January 1908, Evidence Act—concld.

but he agreed to prepay that amount on being given the joint promissory note in question of date 23rd December 1907, and the money was handed over to the defendant; that the plaintiff agreed that he would surrender the note if on 30th January 1908 H, who was largely indebted to him, had given sufficient security for the whole debt as then due by him; that on the 30th January no such sufficient security was given that accordingly he was entitled to maintain defendant's liability under the note. The defendant admitted the execution of the note, but pleaded that it was verbally agreed that his liability on it should cease on the 30th January 1908. The trial Judge allowed the parties to go to trial and examine witnesses. At the trial the defendant's true contention was that it was agreed that upon the arrival of the 30th January 1908 the advance made under the promissory note should be held as the advance of the amount to be paid by the plaintiff to H on that date, and that the note should be re-placed by a single acknowledgment on the part of H. The trial Judge, coming to the conclusion that it had not been proved that any agreement had been made for the giving of security by H, gave judgment in favour of the defendant. The Court of Appeal took the view that no witnesses should have been examined and that the testimony could not be looked at, because the promissory note constituted a written contract binding the defendant to pay on demand and section 92 of the Evidence Act, 1872, prevented any oral agreement being set up to contradict that written agreement:

Held, that if the defendant's pleading was to be dealt with in absolute strictness, the view of the Court of Appeal was right; but that his true contention, when put in the form of averment, would be an oral agreement in terms of proviso 2 to section 92, which would allow it to be proved.

Held, also, that inasmuch as the view of the Court of Appeal might have been obviated by a mere amendment of the pleadings and as the parties had been allowed to go to proof, the evidence led should be considered; and that as the defendant failed to discharge the onus that lay on him of proving the oral agreement set up by him, the suit must be decreed. P. C. MOTABHOY MULLA v. MULJI HARIDAS, 17 M. L. T. 402; 28 M. L. J. 589; 13 A. L. J. 529; 19 C. W. N. 713; 21 C. L. J. 507; 17 BOM. L. R. 460; 2 L. W. 524; (1915) M. W. N. 522; 39 B. 399 223

——— ——— s. 94 588

——— ——— s. 94—Deed—Language plain and definite—Evidence, admissibility of, to prove language applies to other facts 201

——— ——— ——— s. 112—Legitimacy 178

——— ——— ——— s. 114, ill. (d) 694

——— ——— ——— s. 115—Estoppel — Subsequent contention negativing a prior one—Estoppel 25

——— ——— ——— s. 125 79

——— ——— ——— s. 143 513

——— ——— ——— s. 145 639

——— ——— s. 154 513

——— ——— s. 157 639

Excise Act (XII of 1896), s. 45 339

Execution of decree—Application to set aside sale on ground of fraud and collusion, maintainability of—Minor substituted as judgment-debtor—Guardian ad litem not appointed—Sale, effect of 211

——— ——— ———Arrest of judgment-debtor, when may be ordered 152

——— ——— ———Attachment—Custodia legis—Property not liable to be legally possessed by private persons, attachment of—Court, duty of—Beer, whether attachable and saleable—Excise Act (XII of 1896), s. 45.

A custodia legis, such as the possession of attached property by a Civil Court executing a decree, requires no departmental sanction or license even, where the property is of a kind which cannot legally be possessed by a private person without such permission.

Therefore, the possession of attached property by a Court is no violation of the special law governing the possession of such property by private persons.

Where a District Judge passed an order attaching beer, an excisable property:

Held, that section 45 of the Excise Act had no application whatsoever to the acts of the District Court or any of its officials or agents acting under its orders.

It is the duty of every Judge to exercise the powers vested in him in such a way as to give effect to all provisions of the law.

Beer brewed within the local limits to which the Excise Act, 1896, applies is not exempt from attachment and sale in execution of a Civil Court decree.

Where a Civil Court attaches property of a nature governed by any Special law, such Court is bound to proceed with great circumspection so as not to defeat any of the purposes for which such Special law was enacted. N. BHARGAVA COMMERCIAL BANK, LTD. v. MACKINNON & Co., 11 N. L. R. 67 339

——— ——— ———Benamidar, right of, to execute decree 595

——— ——— ———Decree comprising property outside jurisdiction—Right to sell such property—Undervaluation, whether material irregularity—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115.

The fact that all the property is not situated within the jurisdiction of the Court which passed the decree, does not affect its jurisdiction to sell the property comprised in the decree.

An undervaluation of property in the proclamation of sale is not a material irregularity within the meaning of section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code. M. HANSRAJ SAWCAR v. MOHIDEEN ROWTHER 745

——— ——— ———Decree obtained by fraud or collusion, question of, whether relates to execution of decree—Attachment, whether gives any priority—Rateable distribution 239

——— ——— ———Execution Court, power of, to complete an ambiguous decree—Decree, ambiguity in.

Where a decree is incomplete and ambiguous, it is not the duty of the Court executing the decree to complete it and to give a definite expression to the ambiguity. A. MUHAMMAD HASAN v. NIAZ HUSAIN, 13 A. L. J. 428 213

Execution of decree—contd.

——————————— Inventory of property attached not annexed to application—Application, whether in accordance with law 479 ——————————— Money-decree — Attachment before judgment—Deposit in Court—Decree in favour of 3rd parties against judgment-debtor—Subsequent decree-holders, whether can attach money deposited in Court—First decree-holder's lien.

The plaintiff in an action for money against one K got this property attached before judgment. Later, he obtained a decree, but its execution was stayed on the application of the judgment-debtor pending the decision of the appeal. Subsequently, with the consent of the parties the Court modified its order allowing K to sell the property on condition that after paying off the debts etc., he paid the remainder into Court as security for the decree against him. It was subsequently discovered that another creditor had a mortgage in his favour on the estate and in consequence of this both the parties arrived at a fresh agreement, the terms of which were embodied in an application to the Court signed by both the parties which stated specifically that the plaintiff should have a first lien on the balance for the sum for which he may ultimately get a decree. This application was granted and the property sold. The plaintiff then filed cross-objections asking for a further sum and increased interest from the date of the institution of the suit. Ultimately the judgment-debtor's appeal was dismissed and the cross-objections partially accepted by the Chief Court.

During the pendency of the appeal the defendant obtained a money decree against K and attached the money paid by him into Court as security. The plaintiff objected, but the executing Court ordered rateable distribution. The plaintiff then sued for a declaration that he was entitled to payment in preference to the other decree-holders:

Held, (1) that the plaintiff was fully justified in bringing the declaratory suit;

(2) that the money was deposited by K and accepted by the Chief Court as security for the due performance of such decree as might ultimately be binding upon him and the defendant by attaching the money before the date of the final decree in favour of the plaintiff did not prejudicially affect the latter's rights. P. Miss HAMILTON v. SHANKAR DAS, 120 P. W. R. 1915 791

——————————— for partition of property based on award—One of the properties mortgaged by one of the parties to the decree—Separate suit to determine liability on mortgage, maintainability of.

Where an award and the decree based thereon for partition of immoveable property make no mention of the encumbrance created thereon by one of the parties who are father and sons and where the mortgagees are no party to the proceeding, the executing Court is not competent to decide in execution of the decree, the respective liabilities of the parties as regards the mortgage. Such a question is a fit subject for a regular civil suit to be brought by the aggrieved party. P. NARPAT RAI v. DEVI DAS, 59 P. W. R. 1915; 139 P. L. R. 1915 755.

——————————— Personal decree against Hindu woman with limited estate—Debt incurred for legal necessities—Suit based upon allegations of necessity—Decree-holder entitled to prove necessity in execution—Payment of Government demands, whether legal necessity—One of several decree-holders can apply for execution of the whole decree 181

——————————— referred to Collector — Application to Civil Court to expedite execution, whether execution application—Power of Court to control Collector's proceedings 58

——————————— Sale—Minor widow brought on record as legal representative of her deceased husband, judgment-debtor—Court kept in ignorance of minority of widow—An earlier and higher bid for same property in another suit concealed—Sale void—Suit for declaration competent without regard to s. 47—Fraud—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 12, 166, applicability of 314

——————————— Transmission of decree for execution by one Court to another—Transmission of that decree to another Court—No steps taken for six months to execute decree—Proceedings thereafter, whether void 119

——————————— Uncertified payment under decree, recognization of—Instalment decree—Default - Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 182 (7).

An uncertified payment under a decree cannot be recognized for any purpose under the new Code of Civil Procedure.

Where a decree provides for payment of the money due under it in instalments and in case of default in payment of any of the instalments, the whole amount becomes payable at once, an application for execution should be made within three years of the first default. A AMIR SINGH v. CHHATTAR SINGH, 13 A. L. J. 666 274

——————————— , who may come in in— Party having no interest in property when decree passed, right of 502

——————————— against wrong representative—Sale—Property in hands of usufructuary mortgagee—Reversioner, suit by—Decree-holder purchaser, whether protected.

In a mortgage suit the mortgagee obtained a decree against the mortgagor and on the latter's death brought his widowed daughter-in law on the record while his widow was still alive. He then proceeded to execute the decree and purchased the property himself at the Court sale. At that time the property was in the hands of a usufructuary mortgagee and when the estate fell into possession, the reversioners sued to recover possession:

Held, that inasmuch as the property was in the hands of a usufructuary mortgagee at the time of sale the purchaser acquired merely the equity of redemption and the sale could not be binding on the reversioners. M VUPPALAPATI VENKATAPPA v. THOVAGUNTA VIRARAGHAVAYYA 6

——————————— proceedings — Decree-holders of different Courts attaching in execution same property, right of, to rateable distribution - Court of highest grade Transfer of decree 21

——————————— struck off through mistake of Court—Power to restore—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 141, 151, O. IX 592

Execution of decree—concld.

——————— sale—Auction-purchaser's right—Mistake or oversight in procedure, effect of.

When the auction-purchaser, in execution sale of a mortgage decree is claiming possession from persons who could claim only through one or more of the mortgagors and whose claim has been declared unfounded, a mistake or oversight in the proceedings cannot affect the real substance and subject of the litigation between the mortgagors and the mortgagee. L. B. MAUNG MAUNG v. SAN NYEIN 17

——————— ———Co-owner's interest—Auction-purchaser, assignee of—Title, acquisition of—Partition, right of—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art 144, applicability of—Adverse possession—Co-owner's possession 976

——————— Occupancy holding not saleable—Sale held before application of objection heard—Irregularity—Proper procedure.

Where in an execution proceeding for the sale of an attached holding, the Munsif allowed the application of objection to the sale to stand over and in the meantime held the sale without making inquiries into the objection raised by the judgment-debtor:

Held, that the proceedings of the Munsif were wholly irregular;

that the proper procedure in such a case for the judgment-debtor was to appeal against the order refusing to postpone the sale or directing the sale to take place. C. LAKENATULLA v. ASMATULLA SARKAR 616

Ex parte decree. See DECREE.

——— ——— Costs—Procedure to be adopted, when date of hearing holiday—Ex parte decree, setting aside of—Costs of adjournment—Appellate Court's power to cancel order of costs allowed by first Court.

Where the date fixed for hearing a case happens to be a holiday, the Court is in no way justified in taking up the case on the following day and in passing any order to the prejudice of any of the absent parties without duly serving upon him a fresh notice of the hearing.

Passing an ex parte decree without duly serving the summons upon the defendant is wholly unjustifiable and liable to be set aside unconditionally.

A party having good and sufficient reason for non-compliance with an order of a Court cannot be burdened with the costs of an adjournment. P. UMAT-UL-MUGHNI BEGUM v. SALIG RAM, 51 P. W. R. 1915; 126 P. L. R. 1915 137

———, setting aside of. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O. IX, R. 13.

———, setting aside of—Application made after five years—Procedure—Jurisdiction—Revision—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 164—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115, O. IX, r. 13.

An ex parte decree was passed in 1909 when the defendant was in jail. An application to set aside the decree was made in 1913 when the defendant was released from the jail. The Munsif without considering whether the application was barred by limitation granted it on the ground that the defendant being in jail at the time of the hearing of the suit had been prevented from attending the Court and defending it properly:

Ex parte decree—concld.

Held, that the proceedings of the Munsif were irregular and without jurisdiction.

That the Munsif ought to have considered whether the application before him, treated as an application under Order IX, rule 13, of the Civil Procedure Code, had been made within time, or if he treated the application as one for review of judgment, he should have considered whether the applicant had established sufficient cause for not applying till after five years had expired since the passing of the decree. A. JANKI PRASAD v. PARMESHWAR DIN PANDEY, 13 A. L. J. 482 975

Explosive Substances Act (VI of 1908), s. 4 (b), offence under—Prosecution, right of, to prosecute for the offence irrespective of ultimate design of conspiracy—Explosive substances, nature of—Possession of explosive substances—Knowledge and assent, if necessary.

Where an offence is committed under section 4 (b) of the Explosive Substances Act, 1908, in pursuance of a criminal conspiracy, it is open to the Crown to prosecute the accused for such offences, irrespective of the question of the ultimate design of the alleged conspiracy.

Any part of any apparatus, machine or implement intended to be used or adapted for causing or aiding in causing any explosive substance, is included in the term 'explosive substance' as used in section 4 (b).

The explosive substance mentioned in section 4 (b) of Act VI of 1908 need not be such as to enable a person by means thereof alone, without the aid of other substances, to cause danger to life or injury to property.

In a charge under section 4 (b) of the Explosive Substances Act, 1908, possession to be punishable must also be possession with knowledge and assent. C. AMRIT LAL HAZRA v. EMPEROR, 21 C. L. J. 331; 19 C. W. N. 676; 16 Cr. L. J. 497 513

Ex-proprietary right. See Sir LAND.

Fact, finding of—Evidence not referred to in judgment, effect of 710

Factor, definition of 462

Factum Valet, principle of, how far applicable to marriage in Muhammadan Law 871

Falsification of document. See PENAL CODE, s. 477A.

Ferry—Crown grant—Right to ply boats—Prescription.

The plaintiffs were the owners of Mouza R and the defendants of Mouza B. Between villages R and B flowed the river G. The plaintiffs alleged that they were entitled to ply boats across the river and to disembark passengers on land belonging to the defendants and prayed that the defendants be restrained from obstructing:

Held, that the use of a ferry by the zemindars of Mouza B, which had been found to be a long and continuous use, was entitled to prevail until the plaintiffs, who were starting up an opposition ferry, could show a Crown grant or could give evidence from which a Crown grant could be presumed. A. JWALA SINGH v. ABDUL RAZAK, 13 A. L. J. 775 692

Foreclosure suit—Appeal for enhancement of mortgage-money—Court-fee to be ad valorem 609

Forest Act, s. 25 (d) 325

Forest land—Proof of possession—Acts of ownership quite essential to determine title—Nature of evidence to prove title and possession.

Where the defendants are shown to be in possession of certain forest land, the plaintiff in order to establish his claim to it must prove definite acts of ownership exercised by him on the land from time to time.

A sketch prepared by one of the parties at a time when the Government attempted to take up these lands under the Land Acquisition Act before any controversy as to the boundary of these lands arose is strong cogent evidence to prove ownership. M. MANJERE KARNAMULPAD v. KOZHIKOTE KIZHAKKE 729

Forfeiture. See LANDLORD AND TENANT.

———— Anubhavam tenure—Denial of landlord's title, whether works forfeiture of tenancy 427

Fraud, allegation of—Mortgage-decree, sale under 402

———— Auction-sale—Bidder benamidar — Misrepresentation 12

———— Contemplated fraud not effected, effect of—Fraudulent confiderate, when can take advantage—Equitable relief—Collusive decree—Agreement not to execute, effect of.

Where the contemplated fraud has not been effected, a party to the fraudulent transaction does not lose his right to be relieved from the effect of such a transaction.

To enable a fraudulent confederate to retain property transferred to him in order to effect a fraud, the contemplated fraud must be effected when and when alone does the fraudulent grantor or giver lose his right to claim the aid of the law to recover the property he has parted with.

The principle, that a party to a fraudulent transaction is entitled to relief in a Court of Equity as against his fraudulent confederate so long as the fraud contemplated has not been carried into effect, is not inapplicable merely because the party suffers a decree to be passed against him in a fictitious and collusive suit which is only a part of the fraudulent scheme.

Where, therefore, the defendant obtained a collusive decree against the plaintiff promising to execute only against the plaintiff's brother and then sued out execution against the plaintiff himself, on a suit to have it declared void and of no effect:

Held, that even if the plaintiff could not impugn the decree he was entitled to relief having regard to the agreement that it could not be enforced against him. C. RAJAB ALI v. HEDAYET ALI, 19 C. W. N. 1151; 22 C. L. J. 197 699 ———, plea of—Issues—Allegations, mere, not sufficient.

No man ought to be found guilty of fraud and collusion of a particularly gross kind of fraud unless it is clearly and unambiguously alleged and put in issue against him.

Therefore, in a suit upon an indemnity bond the plea that the damnification suffered by the plaintiff is the result of his negligent and fraudulent conduct in the previous litigation ought to be in issue against him in clear terms; it is not enough that there are allegations in the written statement from which a plea of this kind could be spun out. The plea should be clearly and distinctly raised. M. SANKUNNI MENON v. NALLAPPAH RAMUNNI MENON 482 ———— Suit for setting aside decree obtained by fraud not brought—Fraud can be still relied upon.

Fraud—concld.

A party can rely on fraud even though he has not brought a suit to set aside the decree alleged to have been obtained by fraud. C. KURARAM DATTA v. BANOMALI PATRA 838

Fraudulent decree, suit to set aside, when maintainable—Consequential relief, necessity of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. VI, r. 17—Amendment of plaint, when not permitted 132

———— transfer. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 53.

———— Estoppel, principle of—Duty to speak—Purchaser at execution sale, if can question transferability—Auction-purchaser equally bound with judgment-debtor—Co-sharer landlord, power of, to raise question of transferability—Non-transferable occupancy holding, sale of, effect of.

Where there is nothing to show that a transferor intended a sale of his immoveable property as a cloak or device for his own protection and where the bona fides of the transfer cannot be doubted, the transfer cannot be impeached as fraudulent.

The case, where the person against whom the estoppel is sought to be applied is under no duty to speak, is not covered by the principle that where a person, by his words or conduct, wilfully causes another to believe the existence of a certain state of things and induces him to act on that belief so as to alter his own previous position, the former is concluded from averring against the latter that a different state of things existed at the time.

A purchaser at an execution sale is not entitled to raise the question of transferability of the holding and is bound by the same rule of estoppel as the judgment-debtor.

A co-sharer landlord having a three-fourths share is entitled to raise the question of transferability of the holding.

The purchaser can be evicted by any of the co-sharer landlords to the extent of his own share, in a sale of a non-transferable occupancy holding, and if possession of the entire holding has been acquired by some of the co-sharers the other co-sharers are entitled to joint possession thereof. C. KANCHAN MANDAR v. KAMALA PROSAD, 21 C. L. J. 441 734

Gift. See HINDU LAW; MUHAMMADAN LAW.

———— made in contemplation of death—Possession not delivered, effect of—Better title to be shown by person not in possession.

A gift made in contemplation of death and intended to operate only after the donor's death is inoperative and void.

A person not in possession ought to show a better title to the property from which he seeks to eject the person in possession. L. B. MAUNG PO YIN v. MG. NI, 8 BUR. L. T. 72 888

Grant—Kayam patta—Construction—Surrounding circumstances and conduct of parties.

Grant—concld.

Where a grant under the heading kayam patta was made in 1857 and the grantees dealt with their tenants as if they were entitled to permanent rights and in compensation for acquisition of land for public purposes the grantee and grantor both shared and evidence proved that the grantor regarded the grant in the terms of neighbouring villagers as a permanent grant:

Held, that a heritable permanent grant was conveyed in those terms.

Wallis, C. J.—Prima facie the words "kayam patta" mean 'perpetual lease.' But a long course of decisions have held that these words and the words "istimrari mokurari" and "kayam sasvata" do not prima facie convey more than life-estates. When land or interest in land is intended to be transferred hereditarily, it is usual to indicate that intention by the use of the words 'from son to grandson' or 'from generation to generation' or the like. In construing grants one has to look to the surrounding circumstances and to the conduct of the parties to see what their real intention was in the grant.

Coutts-Trotter, J.—In Tulshi Pershad Singh v. Ram Narain Singh, 12 C. 117; 12 I. A. 205; 9 Ind. Jur. 433; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 646, the Privy Council have expressly used those words to leave the Courts free to give the fullest effect to the circumstances of each case and to avoid laying down any hard and fast rule of construction. M. VENKATARAMANNA v. VENKATAPATHI NAYANI VARU, 17 M. L. T. 269; 28 M. L. J. 510; (1915) M. W. N. 313 188

——— Occupancy right, if acquired after grant—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885)—Eviction—Only occupancy raiyat protected by law.

If at the date of the grant of a permanent interest there was no occupancy right which had matured, an occupancy right cannot be acquired after the date of the grant.

It is not every raiyat who is protected from eviction but only an occupancy raiyat, under the Bengal Tenancy Act, VIII of 1885. C. AKHIL CHANDRA SEN v. TRIPURA CHARAN 563

Grove—Custom—Tenant, right of, to cultivate—Payment of rent—Landlord, right of, to get rent assessed.

A tenant is not entitled to bring a grove land under cultivation and to hold it free from payment of rent. The land-holder is entitled to have rent assessed on such land. U. P. B. R. BHARAT INDU v. MISRI 34

——— Fruit orchard or timber grove—Tenant—Occupancy rights, acquisition of—Land—Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 11.

Where a fruit orchard or timber grove has been planted, the grove-holder cannot be ejected as a tenant from year to year so long as the land maintains its character as a grove. Nor can he acquire occupancy rights so long as it remains a grove, because in either case, land is not land within the meaning of the Tenancy Act in which only occupancy rights can accrue. It becomes land after the disappearance of the grove. U. P. B. R. MUHAMMAD ABDUL HAFIZ KHAN v. RAM RATAN LAL 20

——— Improvement 410

———, mortgage of—Mortgagor dying without heirs—Mortgagee, whether can be ejected—Grove, if constitutes improvement.

Grove—concld.

A tenant who had acquired occupancy rights over certain land subsequently planted a grove over it and mortgaged the same usufructuarily. Upon the death of the tenant without heirs, the zemindar sued the mortgagee for ejectment on the ground that he was a non-occupancy tenant of less than 12 years' standing:

Held, that as the transfer of the grove by mortgage was a valid transfer and the rights of the mortgagor passed to the mortgagee, the mortgagee could not be ejected.

Held, further, that the order of ejectment in such cases implies the confiscation of existing valuable rights under a law which is entirely irrelevant and is, therefore, so serious a mistake of law as to amount to an illegality.

Held, also, that the grove having been planted before the Tenancy Act is not an improvement for which compensation can be allowed to the mortgagee and an order of his ejectment passed. U. P. B. R. PAYAG CHOWBEY v. BIJIANAND 560

Grove-holder—Grove brought under cultivation—Grove-holder, whether becomes a tenant ipso facto—Wrongful dispossession 447

Guardian ad litem, appointment of—Consent of proposed guardian, necessity of—Ex parte decree against minors, when liable to be set aside 579

——— ——— ——— ——— Mother acting as such—Decree, validity of—Mother not defending suit, if sufficient ground to set aside decree.

The father of the plaintiff was murdered leaving his widow and the plaintiff, a minor, him surviving. The motive of the murder was to take possession of property which belonged to the plaintiff's father. Suits had to be brought in the name of the minor. The mother of the minor borrowed on mortgages on behalf of the plaintiff as his guardian for the expenses of the suit. Suits were thereafter brought on these mortgages and decrees were obtained. The plaintiff sued to set aside these decrees:

Held, that the mother was a fit and proper person to be his guardian ad litem in the proceedings in the Civil Court and that if the decrees were fairly and properly obtained against the minor as represented by his mother, the decrees were binding and the Court could not go behind them.

Held, further, that the mere fact that the mother did not defend the suits on the mortgages would not make the decrees invalid. A. COLLECTOR OF MEERUT v. UMRAO SINGH, 13 A. L. J. 437 220

Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890)—Custody of child, suit for, maintainability of—Jurisdiction, objection as to, when taken.

The Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890) forbids proceedings being taken in the ordinary way touching the guardianship of infants. A suit for custody of a child must be brought under the Guardians and Wards Act which Act gives jurisdiction to the District Court over minors ordinarily resident in the District.

An objection as to jurisdiction can be raised at any stage of the proceedings. L. B. ARUNACHALLAM PILLAY v. IYAMA, 8 BUR. L. T. 128 768

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 9 890

Guardians and Wards Act—contd.

——— ——— ——— ss. 12, 25—Guardian of minor's person—Court's power to put minor in possession of guardian.

Where a person has been appointed guardian of the person of a minor, the proceedings cannot be regarded as complete until the guardian has obtained effective possession of the person of the ward. If the guardian is not in such possession, the Court should take action under section 12 of the Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890) to place the minor in his possession. A. UTMA KUAR v. BHAGWANTA KUAR, 13 A. L. J. 742 416

——— ——— ——— ss. 17, 19—Father marrying second wife, whether sufficient ground to deprive him of his children's guardianship—Guardianship of husband and father and of other relations, distinction between.

The fact that the father has married a second wife is not a sufficient ground for holding that he is unfit to be the guardian of his children.

A distinction exists between the guardianship of a father or a husband and that of other near relations. The former could be deprived of the right of guardianship only when he is found to be unfit to be the guardian of children or wife and the latter, when it does not conduce to the welfare of the children. M. AUDIAPPA PILLAI v. NALLENDRAN PILLAI, 28 M. L. J. 442; (1915) M. W. N. 330; 17 M. L. T. 389 4

——— ——— ——— s. 17 (1) 890

——— ——— ——— s. 19 4

——— ——— ——— s. 19—Minor, appointment of guardian for—Father available—Other person, when appointed guardian.

Where a father is available as guardian no other guardian can be appointed unless he is in the Court's opinion unfit for appointment. M. SUBRAMANYA PILLAI v. AMMAYEE AMMAL, (1915) M. W. N. 414, 2 L. W. 531 740

——— ——— ——— s. 19 (b) 890

——— ——— ——— s. 25 416

——— ——— ——— ss. 29, 31—Permission to guardian to sell ward's property—Power of Court to stop sale if detrimental to ward—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), ss. 38, 41—Plaintiff repudiating transaction must restore benefits received only if other party acted in good faith—Defendant not to restore benefits.

The Legislature did not intend that a Court should give permission to a guardian to sell the ward's property without fixing at least an approximate price and without clearly ascertaining what is to be sold and the value of it.

Even if a Court has given sanction under section 29 and section 31 (1) it is not beyond the power of that Court to intervene and stop the sale, if it finds something detrimental to the ward's interest is contemplated.

If a plaintiff sues to undo a transaction entered into by his guardian in his name during his minority, then if the other party has acted in good faith and the plaintiff or his estate has actually received benefit, the plaintiff must, as a condition precedent to the undoing of the said transaction, restore the said benefit. If, however, the minor or quondam minor is the beatus possidens and is being sued by the other party, a claim against the minor for refund of the benefit would fail. P. SULTAN SINGH v. HASHMAT ULLAH, 119 P. W. R. 1915 804

——— ——— ——— s. 31 804

Hakim performing operation on eyelids—Ordinary precautions not taken—Acting rashly and negligently—Hurt—Offence—Hakim giving himself out as skilled operator, liability of 69

High Courts Act. See CHARTER ACT.

Hindu Law—Adoption—Datta homam ceremony, when unnecessary—Same gotra, effect of—Pleadings—Fraud, coercion, misrepresentation and undue influence should be separately and specifically pleaded—General allegations insufficient—Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 33, 145, 157—Previous statements, when and how to be used—Civil suit—Procedure—Documents to contradict witnesses—Witness to be given opportunity to explain.

Where the child to be adopted belongs to the same gotra as that of the adoptive father, the celebration of the ceremony of datta homam is not an essential to the legal validity of an adoption, that is to say, within the same gotra the ceremony is unnecessary.

Allegations amounting to fraud, misrepresentation, coercion and undue influence should not be mixed together, as these are all separate and separable categories in law, though it is true that they may overlap or may be combined.

Fraud, misrepresentation, coercion and undue influence cannot be imported into a case by suggestions but must be specifically and distinctly pleaded.

With regard to fraud if there be any principle which is perfectly well settled, it is that general allegations, however strong may be the words in which they are stated, are insufficient even to amount to an averment of fraud of which any Court ought to take notice.

A civil cause must be conducted in the ordinary and regular way and judged of by the evidence led therein.

Unless it is proved that a "witness is dead or cannot be found, etc." the evidence given by such witness in a previous judicial proceeding is irrelevant for the purpose of proving in a subsequent proceeding the truth of the fact which it states, nor can it be used for the purpose of either contradicting or discounting the evidence of the witness in the subsequent proceeding unless the particular matter or point had been placed before the witness as one for explanation in view of its discrepancy with the evidence then being tendered.

If a witness is under cross-examination, he should be given the opportunity, if any documents are to be used against him, to tender his explanation and to clear up the particular point of ambiguity or dispute. This rule must be particularly enforced where a witness's reputation and character are at stake. P. C. BAL GANGADHAR TILAK v. SHRI SHRINIWAS PANDIT, 13 A. L. J. 570; 19 C. W. N. 729; 17 BOM. L. R. 527; 22 C. L. J. 1; 29 M. L. J. 34; 18 M. L. T. 1; (1915) M. W. N. 484; 2 L. W. 611; 42 C. 739; 39 B. 441 639

——— Adoption—Suit by presumptive reversioner to set aside adoption—Death of plaintiff—Right of next presumable reversioner to continue suit—Suits to impugn validity of transactions by Hindu females—Plaintiff in such suits represents all reversioners—Right of contingent reversioners to join as plaintiffs—Abatement of suit—Substitution—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 118, 125, distinction between—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. I, r. 1.

A suit brought by a presumptive reversioner for a declaration that an alleged adoption is invalid is brought by him in a representative capacity and on behalf of all the reversioners, and on the death, therefore, of the presumptive reversioner the next presumable reversioner is entitled to continue the action begun by the deceased plaintiff.

The two classes of cases covered by Article 118 and Article 125 of Schedule I of the Indian Limitation Act (IX of 1908) are distinct in their scope and character and differ widely in their language. The former Article relates to status and involves the adjudication of a right in rem, and the latter raises the question of mere justifiable necessity. In both "the right to sue" is based on the danger to the inheritance common to all the reversioners which arises from the nature of their rights.

A remote reversioner is not precluded from joining or asking to be joined in the action brought by the presumptive reversioner, or even obtaining the conduct of the suit on proof of laches on the part of the plaintiff or collusion between him and the widow or other female whose acts are impugned. P. C. VENKATANARAYANA PILLAY v. SUBBAMMAL, 28 M. L. J. 535; 17 M. L. T. 435; 21 C. L. J. 515; 17 BOM. L. R. 468; 19 C. W. N. 641; 2 L. W. 596; 38 M. 406; (1915) M. W. N. 555 298

——— ——— ——— , suit to set aside—Plaintiff and his mother living together—Knowledge of plaintiff's mother, whether knowledge also of plaintiff—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 118.

Where both the plaintiff and his mother live together in the same house, his mother's knowledge as to the date of a certain adoption is also his knowledge for purposes of Article 118 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908). M. VEMOORU AUDI NARAYANIAH v. PANCHAGNULA SREERAMULU 785

——— ——— ——— Testamentary direction to adopt a certain boy given to widow—Death of adoptee—Second adoption, whether valid.

A Hindu embodied in his Will a direction to his widow to adopt a certain boy and to put him in possession of all property at the end of her life. The widow did adopt the boy who, however, having died, she adopted another. The reversioners of the first adoptee sued to set aside the second adoption:

Held, Per Sankaran Nair, J.—(1) that the question whether the Will authorised a second adoption on the death of the first adoptee was one of intention to be gathered from the terms of the Will and the surrounding circumstances.

An authority to adopt expressed in a Will must be construed with reference to the presumption that a Hindu testator always intends the perpetuation of his family and that authority to adopt one specific child should, in case of that child's death, be held to warrant the adoption of another unless there is something in the Will itself to show that the testator did not desire any other adoption to be made.

Per Oldfield, J. (dissenting).—A Hindu testator who authorises an adoption generally must be presumed to do so with the primary intention that his widow shall secure his posthumous representation by an adopted son and make successive adoptions until that object is secured.

Where there is a conflict between the general presumption as to a testator's intention and the explicit or implied restriction contained in the Will itself the proper course is to attempt to ascertain with reference to the testator's own words and without reference to the general presumption whether he meant to restrict the authority he was conferring; and to have recourse to that presumption only after such attempt has failed.

Where the terms of the Will are clear and express it is not open to Court to add to those terms.

Where the Will contains a provision that the estate should pass on the widow's death to the adopted son and does not at the same time make a provision as to its succession on the death of the adopted son, it is clear that the testator was either indifferent or content to leave his widow to adopt with the consent of the sapindas. An intention to confer on the widow, authority to make successive adoptions cannot be inferred from that act of his. M. CHENGA REDDI v. VASUDEVA REDDI, 2 L. W. 562 770

——— Adoption—Widow, whether can validly adopt her brother's son to her deceased husband—Authority given by husband—Duty of lower Court to follow decision of High Court—Practice.

A widow who has the express authority of her deceased husband to adopt as a son to him her brother's son, can validly do so.

A subordinate Court is bound to follow the decision in law of a Bench of the High Court to which it is subordinate, unless the decision of the Bench has been overruled by a decision of a Full Bench of that Court or unless it has been overruled expressly or impliedly on an appeal to His Majesty in Council or unless the law has been altered by a subsequent Act of the Legislature. P. C. PUTTU LAL v. PARBATI KUNWAR, 19 C. W. N. 841; 13 A. L. J. 721; 17 BOM. L. R. 549; 18 M. L. T. 61; 29 M. L. J. 63; 22 C. L. J. 190; 37 A. 359 617

——— ——— ——— Widow, whether can adopt in presence of natural son—Invalid adoption—Ceremonies, effect of—Maintenance—Performance of declaration during negotiations, value of.

In the presence of a natural son of a deceased Hindu, his widow cannot be presumed to have any authority from him to adopt, and if she does adopt a boy, the adoption will be invalid.

A boy whose adoption is found to be invalid, has no right to be maintained out of the estate of the adoptive family. The mere fact that ceremonies were properly performed and that the widow thought that she had authority to adopt would not affect the question.

A declaration or statement marking a stage in the negotiations as to the proposed amicable settlement between the parties, while admittedly document giving effect to the declaration or statement was to be executed later on, is an undertaking, which, unless completed, may be broken off at any time by either side. B. DALPATSINGJI v. RAISINGJI NAHARSINGJI, 17 BOM. L. R. 566 943

Hindu Law—contd.

———— Alienation—Absolute alienation of joint family property in lieu of maintenance, whether legal.

An absolute alienation of joint family property to a maintenance-holder in lieu of maintenance is not necessarily illegal. M. SUNDARAM AIYAR v. SUBBAMMAL 23

———————— by widow—Legal necessity—Knowledge and consent of next heir—Construction of deeds—Guiding principle.

Deeds and contracts of the people of India ought to be liberally construed. The real meaning of the parties ought to be given effect to rather than the literal sense.

Where, therefore, in order to pay off some existing ancestral debts and some others contracted by her for necessity, a Hindu widow sold a house with the knowledge of her daughter, whose husband attested the deed of sale, and the debts were, as a matter of fact, paid out of the purchase-money and the recitals in the deed of sale contained a detailed account of the circumstances under which the house was being sold, and the vendor purported to convey all her own existing right, title and interest in or belonging or appertaining to the houses including easements, and declaring that the vendee shall be full owner and proprietor of the house sold:

Held, that the widow intended to convey absolute property in the house to the vendee and the daughter could not challenge the alienation. P. C. THAKUR VASONJI MORARJI v. CHANDA BIBI, 19 C. W. N. 873; 17 BOM. L. R. 556; 18 M. L. T. 31; (1915) M. W. N. 449; 2 L. W. 676; 22 C. L. J. 180; 37 A. 369; 29 M. L. J. 130 781

———————————Necessity—Payment of debt due by husband—Payment of barred debt—Payment out of income of property 780

———————————Attestation of deed by reversioner, whether amounts to consent of reversioner—Attestation, when assent—Question of fact—Existence of daughter, whether bar to suit for declaration by reversioner.

The presence of a daughter is no bar to a suit for declaration, by a reversioner to the estate of a Hindu widow that an alienation made by her is void.

Mere attestation of an instrument by a reversioner does not necessarily import concurrence by him. It may, no doubt, be shown by other evidence that when the reversioner became an attesting witness, he fully understood what the transaction was and that he was a concurring party to it, but from the mere subscription of his name that inference does not necessarily arise.

The question whether the attestation of a document should be held to be simply assent is a question of fact and must be determined with reference to the circumstances of each case. A LAKHPATI v. RAMBODH SINGH, 13 A. L. J. 616; 37 A. 350 218

Hindu Law—contd.

———————— Gift by Hindu widow to her husband's niece after consummation of latter's marriage, whether valid—Improvements, bona fide, by donee—Compensation.

A Hindu widow has no right to make a gift, even of a reasonable portion of her husband's property, to a lady born in her husband's family after the consummation of that lady's marriage.

Where the donee or her representatives effect, during the period they are in possession, bona fide improvements on the property they are entitled to claim compensation for the same and a decrée in ejectment should not be passed until the value of such improvements is paid to them. M. KALAVAGUNTA SINGARA CHARLU v. SREEMAN GUDIMALLA 269

———— — Impartible estate - Right of a junior member to maintenance—Co-parcenary right—Pittapur Zemindari—Maintenance grant.

The Zemindari of Pittapur is an impartible estate governed by the Mithakshara Law and descending by lineal primogeniture.

The plaintiff's father was adopted by the late zemindar who by a Will and an agreement gave him a maintenance. On the zemindar's death the plaintiff's father sued to recover the zemindari on the ground that the Will was invalid and that the defendant was not the Raja's natural son. The Will was upheld and the suit was dismissed. The plaintiff seeking maintenance from the defendant but denying his co-parcenary relationship with the defendant:

Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to any maintenance.

As the agreement with the plaintiff's father for maintenance did not expressly state that it was for the plaintiff's father and his heirs, it could not be construed to have made a permanent provision for the grantee and his descendants.

Prima facie, a provision for maintenance by a grant of money allowance is temporary. Grants to be construed as permanent provisions must be supported by unambiguous language or by a course of conduct and enjoyment by the grantee's descendants for a very long time.

Though an impartible estate may be for some purposes spoken of as joint family property, the co-parcenary in it, which under the Mithakshara Law is created by birth, does not exist. The right to maintenance cannot, therefore, be a right which arises out of the co-parcenary interest of the property or which arises out of any community of interest acquired by birth. The right to get maintenance is not evidence of any community of interest which the members of the family acquire by birth.

A junior member of the family of the holder of an impartiable zemindari is, therefore, entitled to maintenance only as in a Dayabhaga family on account of his relationship and not on account of any interest in the property.

Where the plaintiff bases his claim to maintenance on no relationship, there is no community of interest and the property is not burdened with his maintenance in the hands of a donee. M. RAMA ROW v. RAJAH OF PITTAPUR, (1915) M. W. N. 369; 28 M. L. J. 624 356

Hindu Law—contd.

——— Joint family—Act of trespass committed by one member—Benefit to other members—Presumption.

Under Hindu Law it must not be presumed that one member of a joint undivided Hindu family prescribes also for the benefit of his other co-parceners. M. VENKATACHELAPATI RAO v. JAYARAMAYYA 455

——— ——— *Alienation by father—Attestation by major son—Legal necessity—Karta—Suit by minor son to set aside alienation, maintainability of—Consent—Attestation.*

P and his two sons G and R constituted a joint Hindu family, G being major and R minor. P alienated joint family property and the sale-deed was attested by G. In a suit by R to set aside the alienation:

Held, that there being no legal necessity for the sale, the son could contest the alienation and that though the powers of a Hindu father as manager of a joint family were extensive, they did not extend to the alienation of joint ancestral family property otherwise than for legal necessity and that it was doubtful whether consent could rightly be inferred from mere attestation in the absence of other evidence. A. PACHKAURI RAUT v. RAM KHELAWAN CHAUBE 749

——— ——— ——— Alienation of joint family property—Suit by minor member after attaining majority against vendee for possession of his share in immoveable property—Limitation 199

——— ——— Dancing sisters living together—Property standing in name of one of them—Presumption of jointness—Statements by deceased mortgagor in mortgage-deed as to ownership of property—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 32 (7).

The ordinary presumption, that property standing in the name of one member of a Hindu co-parcenary is the property of all, does not apply to dancing sisters living together, as their mode of acquisition of property and life, are entirely distinct and different

Statements in mortgage-deeds made by a deceased mortgagor as to the ownership of the property comprised in the mortgage are admissible in evidence under section 32 (7) of the Indian Evidence Act and can be acted on if corroborated by other oral evidence in the case.

Quære.—Whether an adoption by a dancing girl is valid? M. VISALAKSHI AMMAL v. DORASINGA PILLI 974 ——— ——— Gift in favour of one member of family—Property treated as joint property—Burden of proof—Donee's marriage expenses met out of joint funds—Lien on gifted property.

Prima facie a property acquired under a gift by one member of a joint Hindu family belongs exclusively to him; if other members of the family allege that it was treated as joint family property it is for them to prove it.

The fact that the expenses of the marriage of that member of the family, in whose favour the gift had been made, were met out of the joint family funds, gives the joint family no lien on the gifted property. A. GHASI RAM v. DEBI 190

Hindu Law—contd.

——— Joint family—Suit by minor—Managing member acting as next friend—Managing member, right of, to withdraw money—Security, deposit of—Court, duty of 475

——— ——— ——— Suit against all adult members—Subsequent suit by a minor member to set aside decree on ground that he was no party to former litigation—Burden of proof—Legal necessity.

A suit was brought against all the adult male members of a Hindu joint family on the basis of a mortgage-deed executed by all the adult male members and a decree was obtained. In execution of the decree, the mortgaged property was foreclosed and the decree-holder obtained possession of it. Subsequently, a minor member of the family brought a suit to set aside the decree on the ground that he was not a party to the suit in which the decree had been obtained:

Held, that he was fully represented in the former litigation; that he was not entitled to any relief on the mere ground that he was no party to the former suit and that it was necessary for him to prove in the present case that the loan was not taken for a family necessity. A. KATWAROO SINGH v. DHARAM DEO SINGH 926

——— ——— Maintenance to widow provided for by agreement in writing—Subsequent unchastity—Rights, if forfeited—Starvation allowance, when allowed.

The rule that by subsequent unchastity a Hindu widow forfeits her right to maintenance, applies even where that right is secured to her by an agreement in writing.

An unchaste Hindu widow, if she repents of her conduct and leads a moral life on the date of suit, is entitled to at least a starvation allowance. M. SATHYABHAMA v. KESAVACHARYA, 18 M. L. T. 28; 29 M. L. J. 87 397

——— ——— Mortgage of family property—Liability of sons and grandsons—Legal necessity.

The sons and grandsons of a Hindu mortgagor mortgaging the family property are not bound under the mortgage in respect of that part of the consideration, which was paid in cash at the registration office but not required for legal necessity. A KUNNU MAL v. TARA CHAND 152

——— ——— ——— Mitakshara—Mortgage by father—Debt neither antecendent nor for family purposes, nor immoral—Suit against sons—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 120, 132.

The decision of the Full Bench in the case of Luchmun Dass v. Giridhur Chowdhry, 5 C. 855; 6 C. L. R. 474; 3 Shome L. R. 143, has not been overruled by the Privy Council, nor has it been superseded by subsequent legislation, inasmuch as, where the mortgage is not operative as such against the sons, no question can arise as to the effect of section 85 of the Transfer of Property Act (now re-placed by rule 1 of Order XXXIV of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908).

A suit upon a mortgage effected by a father governed by the Mitakshara Law for a debt which is neither antecedent nor for family purposes and not proved to be immoral, brought after the death of the father against the sons, some of whom were adult and some minors, at the time of the mortgage is governed by Article 120 of the first Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, and not by Article 132, as there is no charge on immoveable property enforcible against the sons. C. BIDYA PROSAD SINGH v. BHUPNARAIN SINGH, 21 C. L. J. 543; 19 C. W. N. 849 629

Hindu Law—contd.

——— Partition between father and son—Grandmother, whether entitled to share.

At a partition between a father and his sons, the grandmother is not entitled to a share under the Mitakshara Law. A. CHUMMUN PRASAD CHOUBE v. PRANPAT CHOUBE 166

——— ——— ——— Mitakshara — Joint family property—Lunatic co-parcener—Lunacy not congenital but subsequent—Right of such co-parcener to share on partition.

Where the plaintiff, a lunatic, sued through a next friend for partition of the family estate of which he would, if sane, be certainly entitled to a share, and it was found that the lunacy was not congenital but subsequent:

Held (per Crouch, A. J. C.), that there was nothing in the Mitakshara from which could be deduced a clear rule of law that a man who on birth entered into a joint family holding joint property, lost that interest on becoming lunatic.

Per Fawcett, acting J. C., (dissenting).—That the Mitakshara intended the rules relating to 'exclusion from inheritance' to apply to both cases of inherited, as well as joint family property; that the principle on which the disqualification is based, viz., the inability to perform sacrifices, applied equally to cases other than congenital; and that the plaintiff being insane at the time of the proposed partition was excluded from any participation in the joint estate.

Held (per Pratt, J. C.), that under the Mitakshara, which is the paramount Hindu Law authority in Sind, the disqualifications relating to 'exclusion from inheritance' apply not only to cases of obstructed but also to cases of unobstructed heritage, but in the case of the latter in joint family property they must apply at the time of birth for that is the time when the rights would accrue if there were no disabilities; that to hold otherwise would necessitate the divestment of rights already vested, which is contrary to the general rule of Hindu Law; and that, therefore, subsequent lunacy could not divest the plaintiff of his right to the joint family property. S. HOTCHAND GULABRAI v. MANGHANMAL GULABRAI, 8 S. L. R. 279 42

——— ——— ——— not by metes and bounds, effect of—Tenants-in-common—Adverse possession—Relinquishment—Ouster—Evidence of exclusion—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 127.

Where the members of a joint undivided Hindu family are divided in status, but do not effect a division by metes and bounds, they are tenants-in-common and the possession of one such tenant enures to the benefit of another, unless such another is shown to have renounced his share of the property in possession of the tenants-in-common or there has been something amounting to his ouster.

Where no ouster is proved there cannot be said to be an "exclusion" from joint family property within the meaning of Article 127, Schedule I of the Limitation Act.

Hindu Law—contd.

Where one of the members of a co-parcenary was shown to be in possession of the house site and he erected upon it a superstructure, the proper decree to be passed is to allow him to retain the house site and direct him to pay its price to the other co-sharer who claims a share in the house site alone. M. DEVARASU VENKATACHALA DWARAKA NADHA RAO v. DEVARASU VENKATARAO PANTULU, 17 M. L. T. 361 183

——— Partition—Provision in partition deed that on death of one brother without male issue his share should pass to survivors—Provision, whether illegal—Transfer of spes successionis—Restraint upon alienation.

A provision in a partition-deed among brothers, that on the death of any one of them without male issue his share must pass to the survivors who should divide it rateably among themselves, is not illegal; it is not a transfer of a spes successionis within the meaning of section 6 (a) of the Transfer of Property Act, nor is it a restraint upon alienation.

Per Wallis, C. J.—Where a contract to dispose of property by Will is upheld there is no reason why a similar contract to dispose of it by settlement during one's life-time cannot also be given effect to.

Per Seshagiri Ayyar, J.—A contract to devise lands can be enforced by persons claiming under the party who makes the contract.

A settlement unless it alters the line of succession, should be upheld.

Agreements not to divide property are enforceable although they would not preclude a party entering into such an agreement from alienating it.

Parties who are entitled to divide a property can waive their rights but they cannot, by such an arrangement, alter the mode of succession. M. MUTHURAMAN CHETTIAR v. PONNUSWAMY UDAYAR, (1915) M. W. N. 405; 2 L. W. 533; 18 M. L. T. 124; 29 M. L. J. 214 549

——— Stridhanam—Property acquired by a woman without aid from funds from her husband or third party—Devolution—Daughter preferential heir to son.

Where a woman purchased certain immoveable property and paid the purchase-money by mortgaging the same and subsequently redeemed it:

Held, that the property was acquired by her wits and was her stridhanam property and, therefore, devolved on her daughter in preference to her sons. M. TADIBOYINA PEDA PUNNAYYA v. DEBBAKUTTI KATTAMMA, 17 M. L. T. 363; 28 M. L. J. 495; 2 L. W. 415 184

——— Dayabhaga—Succession, principle of—Great-grandfather's son's daughter's son and maternal uncle, contest between.

In a contest between the great-grandfather's son's daughter's son and the maternal uncle regarding succession under the Dayabhaga School of Hindu Law, the great-grandfather's son's daughter's son is the preferential heir. C. KEDAR NATH v. HARIDAS GHOSE, 19 C. W. N 1181 790

——— Widow—Adoption with consent of reversioner, if invalid for want of authority—Authority, when can be presumed—Illatom adoption—Quantum of proof—Charge created by widow—Necessity—Burden of proof—Nature of evidence.

Hindu Law—contd.

An adoption made by a Hindu widow with the consent of the nearest reversioner is not bad for want of authority.

In the absence of anything to show that a reversioner was actuated by any representation of a widow that her husband had given her authority to adopt, a Court is entitled to presume that the reversioner, in giving his son to be adopted by the widow, was fully conscious of what he was doing and was mindful of all those considerations which he, as a reversioner, ought to take into account in such circumstances.

The claim that a person has been taken as illatom son-in-law must be proved by very reliable evidence.

The onus of proving that a charge created by a Hindu widow is binding on the reversioners lies very heavily upon the persons who claim the benefit of the transaction.

Where the only evidence let in as to the existence of necessity was that a series of documents executed by a widow and an alleged illatom son-in-law (which illatom, however, was found against) were attested by the reversioners and that the widow had been maintaining in her house a large number of persons related to her but not belonging to her husband's family:

Held, that the evidence was insufficient to prove the existence of necessity and that the onus was not discharged. M. PANDA PATYYA v. PANDA VENKAMMA, 2 L. W. 455; 17 M. L. T. 393 54

——— Widow—Res judicata—Hindu widow, suit by, for maintenance—Subsequent suit by her for residence in family house, whether barred—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 115—Estoppel—Subsequent contention negativing a prior one—Estoppel.

The plaintiff, a Hindu widow, lived outside her husband's house in his life-time and received a maintenance allowance awarded to her under section 488, Criminal Procedure Code. Her husband died in 1897 and in 1898 she took up her residence in one of his houses which was not a family residence. She continued receiving her maintenance allowance from the defendants (heirs of her husband) which was subsequently stopped. In 1908 she filed a suit for maintenance and obtained a decree against the defendants. The defendants filed another suit in 1908 against her for ejectment and obtained a decree, which was confirmed on appeal, ejecting her from the house occupied by her on the ground that she had a right of residence in the family house, but not the house in that suit. Thereupon she brought the present suit to establish her right of residence in the family house which the defendants contended was barred by reason of her prior suit for maintenance wherein no relief for residence had been sought:

Held, that the suit was not barred by her prior suit for maintenance as that maintenance allowance was fixed at a time when she had a residence in one of the defendants' houses and that her subsequent ejectment therefrom gave her a cause of action to demand that the maintenance should be supplemented by provision for her residence in the family house; that the defendants having ejected plaintiff from the house she was occupying on the ground that it was not the family residence, were now estopped from denying her right to a residence in the family house. S. LADHIBAI v. ISARMAL, 8 S. L. R. 306 25

Hindu Law—concld.

——— Widow, right of, to continue family trade—Debts incurred by her to continue such business—Legal necessity—Reversioner, right of, to question such debts—Minority—Representation as major—Consent by reversioner—Estoppel.

Where a reversioner himself was a consenting party to a fraud, put forward a minor as a major and on the faith of such representation, induced third parties to enter into a transaction, it is not open to him afterwards to impugn the transaction as invalid and avoid it on the ground that the widow was a minor on the date of the transaction.

Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—A trade and its good-will are valuable property and when they are inherited by a widow, she has power to manage that particular business as heir in the same manner as she has authority to manage a zemindari estate inherited by her from her husband.

Debts incurred on re-drafts to carry on a family business are debts of necessity binding on a reversioner.

Consent by a reversioner to an alienation made by a Hindu widow, by itself makes the transaction valid, and is not merely presumptive and rebuttable evidence of necessity. M SOUTH INDIA EXPORT CO., LTD. v. T. R. SUBBIA, 28 M. L. J. 696; (1915) M. W. N. 488 957

——— ——— ——— Khojas—Khoja widow's right to maintenance.

As in matters of succession and inheritance khojas are governed by the the Hindu Law a khoja widow is entitled to claim maintenance from the person succeeding to her husband's estate, as this right is an essential part of the Hindu Law of inheritance and succession. S. ALLAHBAKHIO v. Musammat NANJI, 9 S. L. R. 15 928

——— ——— Will executed by widow—Reversioner's suit for declaration, whether maintainable.

A suit by a reversioner for a declaration that a Will executed by a Hindu widow in respect of her husband's property is void and not binding upon him, is not maintainable, as there is no alienation by the widow. A. UMRAO KUNWAR v. BADRI, 13 A. L. J. 551 302

Hindu Widows' Re-marriage Act (XV of 1856), s. 2 399

——— ——— ——— S. 2—Alienation by widow of her deceased husband's property after her re-marriage—Suit by reversioner—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 141, 143.

The re-marriage of a Hindu widow extinguishes her estate in the property of her deceased husband and the presumptive interest of the reversioners vests under section 2 of the Hindu Widows' Re-marriage Act.

A suit by the reversioners to set aside an alienation by the widow of her deceased husband's property brought more than 12 years after her re-marriage is barred under Articles 141, 143 of the first Schedule of the Limitation Act. N. NATHU v. NAI BAHU, 11 N. L. R. 86 612

Homestead land, recovery of possession of—Landlord, dispossession by—Occupancy raiyat—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 182, Sch. III, Art. 3—Limitation.

Where the plaintiff bought only the house and the homestead land of a person (who had a raiyati holding and some homestead land and house in a certain village) and the plaintiff was dispossessed by the landlord, who claimed the house through some other tenant, and the plaintiff sued to recover possession of the homestead land:

Held, that as the plaintiff did not claim to recover possession either as a settled raiyat or as an occupancy raiyat and did not occupy the disputed plot of homestead land for 12 years and the land was not alleged to be the subject of an occupancy right transferable by custom, the two years' rule of limitation laid down in Article 3, Schedule III, of the Bengal Tenancy Act was not applicable. C. ABDULLA v. KUTBAN, 21 C. L. J. 473 . 859

Hundi not paid at maturity—Interest—Trade usage 346

Illatom adoption. See HINDU LAW.

Immoveable property—Standing timber 16

Impartible estate. See HINDU LAW.

Improvement. See COMPENSATION.

——— ———Grove 410

——— ———Grove, if constitutes improvement 560

Inam land—Presumption as to whether land or land revenue is granted, applicability of, to Civil Courts.

It is not the Revenue Courts alone but the Civil Courts should also presume that an inam grant is of land revenue only and not of land, until the contrary is proved. M. GOVINDA REDDI v. RAVI KESAVAL NAIDU 1003

Indemnity bond. See RAILWAY.

Inherent power of Court—Abuse of Court's process—Court, power of 580

Inheritance. See BURMESE BUDDHIST LAW; CUSTOM.

Injunction. See INTERLOCUTORY INJUNCTION.

——— —, grant of—Circumstances 248

Insolvency—Insolvency Act, 1848, 11 & 12 Vict. C. 21, ss. 26, 86, 7, 21—After-acquired property of insolvent, vesting of, in Official Assignee—Possession of insolvent for over 12 years, if adverse against Official Assignee—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), applicability of, to proceedings in insolvency—Claims relating to properties in hands of insolvent and his representatives—Jurisdiction of Court to decide on application.

One B was adjudicated an insolvent in 1890 and he died in July 1913 and his sons and widow were found to be in possession of a house and considerable moveable property. The house was purchased in the year 1894 in the name of his mother who died in 1897 and after her death the registry of the house was transferred in the name of his wife. The Official Assignee claimed all the said property as the self-acquired property of the insolvent and made an application under section 26 of the Insolvency Act of 1848 for a declaration accordingly and for possession thereof. The sons and the widow of the insolvent pleaded, among other things, that the claim of the Official Assignee was barred by limitation and that the Insolvent Commissioner had no jurisdiction to try the claim on an application, but the Commissioner referred the Official Assignee to a regular suit only in regard to moveables and tried the claim as to the house:

Held, that the Insolvent Commissioner had jurisdiction to adjudicate the claim on an application as that was the only and proper procedure to be followed.

Held, further, that the after-acquired property of the insolvent vested from the date of its acquisition in the Official Assignee and it was not necessary to have a judgment entered up under section 86 of the Insolvency Act of 1848; and that the claim of the Official Assignee was not barred by adverse possession.

Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—When jurisdiction is given by Statute to a Court sitting as an Insolvency Court to decide a case in proceedings taken in a particular form and when there is no special reservation of the remedy by a suit to be filed in another Court or in the same Court in its ordinary original civil jurisdiction, the special procedure pointed by the legislature in respect of the decision of those particular questions ought to be brought to their natural and intended conclusion by the Court which is directed to try those questions and the Court has no jurisdiction to refer the applicant to resort to another mode of seeking the same reliefs.

An insolvent, from the time of his adjudication as insolvent until his final discharge, by the force of the statutory provisions of the Insolvency Act, holds the position of an express trustee for his creditors and he cannot plead adverse possession against the Official Assignee.

Per Napier, J.—The Limitation Act has no application to the case. It provides periods with reference to suits, appeals and applications, the last being matters arising out of suits, and under the Insolvency Act the insolvent becomes subject to the peculiar jurisdiction of the Insolvency Court and the High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain any suit by the Official Assignee against the insolvent in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction.

Quære:—Whether the doctrine of agency can be applied as between the Official Assignee and the insolvent though it may be resorted to in regard to the relations between the insolvent and third parties? M. RATNA BAI v. OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE, 17 M. L. T. 347 . 168

Insolvency Act (11 & 12 Vic., c. 21), ss. 7, 21 168

——— ——— s. 46, scope of—Leave to appeal—Concurrent jurisdiction of High Court with District Judge—District Judge refusing leave to appeal—High Court, power of, to grant leave to appeal.

A High Court has concurrent jurisdiction with the District Judge to grant leave to appeal under section 46 of the Insolvency Act and if the District Judge refuses leave to appeal, the High Court is not debarred from granting it. C. MADHU SUDAN PAL v. PARBATI SUNDARI DASSYA, 19 C. W. N. 760 406

——— s. 86 168

Interest—Arrears of rent, stale claim for—Interest, rate of, allowable—Interest, when allowable on arrears of rent 386

——— Compound interest, stipulation of, when a penalty 843

——— Deposit of mortgage amount, when valid —Interest, when ceases to run 145

——— Hundi not paid at maturity—Trade usage —Creditor, whether entitled to appropriate payment towards interest.

It was proved as a well-recognised rule in the city of Rawalpindi that if interest was charged on a hundi and such hundi was not paid at maturity the same rate of interest continued to be payable:

Held, that plaintiffs were entitled to appropriate all payments made by the defendants towards the interest, whenever the amount of such interest due at the time of any payment absorbed the sum paid. P. KHIALIA SHAH v. HANSARI MAL-NATHU MAL, 24 P. R. 1915 346

——— , payment of, when saves bar of limitation—Evidence to prove such payment — Pattis Debtor —Party to such arrangement—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 19—Contract of guarantee—Consideration—Actual release of claim necessary and not mere promise.

A creditor cannot by a mere unilateral act of payment of interest by the debtor save the bar of limitation.

Where an agreement between a debtor and the creditor, that a credit in the latter's book of a certain amount in favour of the former should be treated as "payment of interest" by the debtor, is relied on to save the bar of limitation, the evidence must show that the debtor was a party to the arrangement and the accounts charging interest sent to the debtor from time to time were accepted by him.

The release of a claim against one person is a consideration for guarantee of payment by another only when that claim is given up, and not when there is a mere promise. M. NAGAPPA CHETTY v. RAMANATHAN CHETTY 422

Interlocutory injunction — Holding of market—Principle to be followed - Equitable grounds —Discretion of Court—No general rule—Substantial question to be investigated—Balance of convenience—Delay without satisfactory reason—Court's duty.

The only thing to be considered by the Court in cases of interlocutory injunctions in aid of the legal right is, if the case is so clear and free from objection on equitable grounds that it should interfere without waiting for the legal right to be established. No general rule can be laid down on the subject by which the discretion of the Court should in all cases be regulated. It is quite sufficient if the Court finds a case showing that there is a substantial question to be investigated and that matters should be preserved in status quo until the final disposal of that question.

Where the plaintiff fails to prove that the damage he might sustain if the injunction is refused and he should ultimately turn out to be right, is likely to be greater than the damage which the defendants would suffer if the injunction were granted and they should finally turn out to be right, the balance of convenience is against the grant of an injunction.

A plaintiff making considerable delay without sufficient reason is not to be assisted at the expense of the defendant. C. KRISHNA CHANDRA SAHA SARDAR v. HEM CHANDRA RAI, 21 C. L. J. 469 855

Interpretation — Special and general provisions 331

——— ——— of deed 167

——— ——— of Statute 272

——— ——— of wajib-ul-arz 710

Irregularity—Admission of evidence, when writing judgment—Charge of theft, assertion of right in answer to—Bona fides, how negatived.

A Magistrate cannot, after a trial is closed and while he is writing his judgment, admit in evidence a document without giving the accused an opportunity of raising objections to its relevancy or admissibility.

There cannot be a bona fide assertion of right in answer to a charge of theft when the accused knew that he had no possession of the property and gathered a produce grown by the complainant thereon. M. VAYALAPPRA KELAPPAN NAIR, In re, 16 CR. L. J. 458 90

——— ——— Sessions Judge dismissing appeal on reasons given in a theft case—Offence under section 430, Penal Code 670

Issues—Fraud, plea of—Allegations, mere, not sufficient 482

——— New issue framed at close of case—Evidence, fresh, production of, right of 1

——— , new, raising of, in Appellate Court—De facto landlord, possession as—True owner, suit brought by, for ejectment—Encroachment of land by tenant—Presumption.

It is always dangerous to allow a new issue to be raised at the appellate stage.

Where a person has been in possession of a particular estate or a particular portion of an estate as de facto landlord, raiyats settled by him on the land would have a good answer to a suit for ejectment brought by the true owner.

Where a tenant of A encroaches on the adjoining land of B, as between A and his tenant, there is a presumption that the encroachment enures to A's benefit, and becomes an accretion to the tenant's holding under A.

A tenant will ordinarily hold the land upon which he has encroached as tenant of his landlord and in that case the landlord may perhaps be described as his de facto landlord.

But that would not prevent the true owner of the land encroached upon from bringing a suit for the purpose of recovering his possession. C. TEPU MUHAMMAD v. TEFAYIT MAHAMMAD, 19 C. W. N. 772 216

Joint family. See ALAYASANTHANA LAW; HINDU LAW.

Judgment — Personal inspection by Judge, finding based on—Judgment, if valid 60

Jurisdiction. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 145, 179, 423 (1)

——— ——— Charge of criminal breach of trust —Special and general provisions—Interpretation 331

——— ——— ——— ——— , consent of parties whether can give where Court has none—Arbitration—Award—Decree in terms of award—Both parties consenting to appeal being heard against such decree, effect of.

A decree passed in the terms of an award not being appealable, the parties to the decree cannot, by giving consent to an appeal being heard and the case being decided again on the merits, give the Appellate Jurisdiction—contd.

Court jurisdiction to entertain an appeal against such decree. A. RAM HARAKH PATHAK v. RAM SARAN PATHAK 408

———————District Judge, power of, to transfer particular case to Additional Judge—Bengal, N.-W. P. and Assam Civil Courts Act (XII of 1887), s. 8, sub-sec. (2)—Letters of Administration.

Under section 8, sub-section (2) of the Bengal, N.-W. P. and Assam Civil Courts Act it is competent to a District Judge to transfer a particular case to an Additional Judge. C. RUP KESHWAR LAL v. JAIJAI BIBI, 21 C. L. J. 437; 19 C. W. N. 791; 42 C. 842 935

———————Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 195, 467, 471—Execution proceeding—Sanction to prosecute for offences—Appeal to District Judge 540

——— ——— ———Ex parte decree against some of the defendants—Appeal by others—High Court, power of, to entertain application to set aside ex parte decree 458

———————Foreign Court—Submission to its jurisdiction—Objection taken in Court of first instance but not persisted on in Appellate Court—Inference—Question, whether can be re-opened afterwards.

The fact that an objection to the jurisdiction of a foreign Court was taken in the Court of first instance in the foreign territory but was not persisted on in appeal, is a clear proof of a submission to jurisdiction of the foreign Court and, therefore, the question cannot be re-opened again in execution of that decree in the British Courts. M. PATINJARA MANAKAL PARAMESHWARAN v. SUBRAMANIA PATTAR 456

———————Imperfect partition — Proprietary title—Civil Court 222

———————Magistrate directing Police inquiry—Charge sheet preferred before another Magistrate 98

——— ——— ———Mutual, open and current account explained—Defendant residing outside original jurisdiction—Accounts submitted within jurisdiction of High Court 462

———————Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), s. 25—No objection taken before lower Court—High Court, discretion of, to interfere 567

——— ——— ———, objection as to, when taken 768

——— ——— ———Occupancy holding—Suit for declaration of title between rival tenants—Landlord not party to suit—Civil or Revenue Court 568

———————Power of Assistant Collector to order prosecution—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 70—Local Government Rules under section 70, rr. 30, 31, 32—Execution—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 182 89

——— ——— ———Practice — Criminal proceedings—Application for special leave to appeal—Staying execution of sentence of death 334

———————Proceedings submitted to Sub-Divisional Magistrate—Power to acquit 663

——— ——— ———Resumption, suit for — Muafidar pleading proprietary title—Decision—Appeal 484

——— ——— ———Revenue Court's duty as to fair rent—Suits in Civil Court, bar of—Revenue and Civil Courts, jurisdiction of—No forfeiture for mistake in selecting one Court for another 122

Jurisdiction—concld.

——— ——— ——— Subordinate Judge empowered to entertain appeals—Sanction for prosecution given by lower Court—Subordinate Judge, whether can revoke 71

——— ——— ——— Suit for compensation 245

——— ——— ——— Suit for contribution 247

——— ——— ——— Trade-mark, infringement of—Advertisement—Publication of advertisements—Cause of action 987

——— ——— ——— of Court—Waiver—Consent 796

——— ——— ——— of Civil Courts—Upper Burma Land and Revenue Regulation, s. 53 (2) (ii), whether ultra vires—Suit regarding State lands between private individuals 736

——— ——— ——— of Civil or Revenue Court—Litigation between private persons—Eviction of a squatter by a squatter or of a sub-lessee by a lessee—Encroachment by lessee, whether can enure for benefit of lessor 872

———————Suit for joint possession—Shamilat land—Muafi—Ala lambardar—Occupancy rights not in question—Pleadings—Adverse possession and tenancy inconsistent.

A suit for joint possession of shamilat land made over to the defendant as ala lambardar and in muafi, the ala lambardari and muafi having come to an end without touching the question of defendant's title to occupancy rights, is cognisable by the Civil Courts.

All questions of title to occupancy rights in the land are quite outside the case so framed.

A man cannot be allowed to plead in the same case that he is an owner by adverse possession against a plaintiff and that he is a tenant by contract under that plaintiff. P. SHAMIR KHAN v. GHULAM FATIMA, 44 P. R. 1915; 100 P. W. R. 1915 655

Jury, verdict of, when can be set aside 72

Kabuliyat, construction of 807

Kayam patta. See GRANT.

Khorposhdar, interest of, limited—Leases, liability to pay rent under—Sub-soil rights—Khorposh grants, heritable, when determinable 429

Khojas. See HINDU LAW.

Lambardar collecting rent—Right to eject 569

——— ———, power of, to eject 35

——— ———, right of, to eject qua lambardar 297

Land acquisition—Land acquired by Government—Apportionment of compensation amount between landlord and tenant—Muchilika by tenant before Madras Estates Land Act giving up claim to compensation, effect of—Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), s. 6 (1).

A ryot in occupation of "ryoti land" on the date the Estates Land Act came into force can also claim compensation in respect of the occupancy right conferred upon him by section 6 (1) of the Act when that land is acquired by Government under the Land Acquisition Act. A muchilika executed by a tenant prior to Madras Estates Land Act, relinquishing his claim for compensation, does not estop him from making the claim in view of the new right conferred upon him by the passing of the Estates Act.

Land acquisition—concld.

Where there are distinct interests in the land, compensation awarded must be for both and not in respect of one alone. M. HOTHA VIRABHADRAYYA v. REVENUE DIVISIONAL OFFICER 8

Landlord and tenant—Forcible dispossession—Subsequent re-entry by tenant—Effect of dispossession on tenant's estate—Madras Regulation XXV of 1802, s. 4—'Small quit-rent', meaning of—Permanent Settlement—Sanad, construction of—Lessor and lessee—Forfeiture, if incurred by lessee describing his holding as independent and permanent at a fixed rent—Resumption, when permissible—Service, whether includes attendance on ceremonial and indefinite occasions.

Where a zemindar wages war against his feudatory and forcibly seizes his estate, but, later on a descendant of the said feudatory gets back possession of the same, the intermediate possession of the zemindar does not affect the right of the feudatory and change the character of the tenure.

Where a sanad which was granted to a zemindar at the time of the Permanent Settlement contained the following clause: "Alienated lands, paying a small quit-rent, which quit-rent, unchangeable by you, is included in the assets of your zemindari"; and where it was contended that under the above clause the zemindar was not entitled to enhance the rent of under-tenures granted by the zemindar prior to the said Permanent Settlement:

Held, that the words 'small quit-rent' in the above clause, which corresponded to section 4 of the Madras Regulation XXV of 1802, meant a favourable rent; that only permanent grants should be understood as coming within the mischief of the word 'alienated' therein; that there was no warrant in authority or practice for applying it to mere temporary leases, not understood by parties to be permanent, however long their currency might be; and that the clause in question prohibited only enhancements imposed by the zemindar and not those to which the lessee consented.

A lessee does not repudiate the title of his landlord and incur forfeiture by describing his holding as independent and permanent at a fixed rent.

A resumption of an estate is permitted to a zemindar only when the estate has been included in the assets of his zemindari at the Permanent Settlement and the grant is for service in lieu of wages (in which case the right of resumption is absolute), or is burdened with service (in which case the right can be exercised only if the grantee is unwilling to perform the service, even though the same might be obsolete or unnecessary).

Where the obligations on the part of a tenant, the non-performance of which was alleged to give rise to the exercise of the right of resumption by the zemindar, were to attend (1) with 500 paiks at Dusserah, the occasion of the annual festival and Durbar, and (2) whenever such attendance was directed, when the tenant went on Sircar business:

Held, that the attendance required was on indefinite and ceremonial occasions and could not be deemed a condition of the holding, that it was at the most analogous to that of copy-holders in England to do suit in the Court of their manor and that the default in question did not entail a forfeiture of the holding.

Landlord and tenant—contd.

No forfeiture is incurred unless there is non-performance on the part of the tenant of a subsisting obligation for service and that service is connected with his title. M. MAHARAJA OF JEYPORE v. RUKMINI PATTAMHADEVI, 2 L. W. 483; (1915) M. W. N. 346 365

——————— Jungly and uncultivated land—Presumption—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 22, applicability of.

Where the land in a zemindari is waste land and uncultivated, the presumption is that the zemindar is the owner of both melvaram and kudivaram rights. In such a case the burden is on the ryot to show that he owns the kudivaram interest.

Per Seshagiri Aiyar, J.—Section 22 of the Limitation Act applies only to cases where the added or substituted plaintiff wants to litigate a right for himself independently of the right of the original plaintiff. Where, therefore, a plaintiff is added in consequence of the assignment of the rights of the original plaintiff, his right to a decree is not affected by section 22 of the Limitation Act. M. ARUNACHELLA AMBALAN v. R. G. ORR 634 ——————— Possession by tenant of parti land for tying cattle and other agricultural purposes—Presumption—Adverse possession, question of, if arises.

Where a tenant is in possession of a parti land at a short distance from the site of his house for the purposes of keeping his cattle troughs, cattle-shed and sugar-cane press, the presumption is that the land was given to him for purposes ancillary to agriculture, and if he builds a house on the land for the stalling of cattle and storing of the implements of husbandry, the zemindar cannot get the house demolished so long as he remains a tenant.

No question of adverse possession arises in such a case. A. PADARATH TEWARI v. BAZ SINGH 264

——————— Sale of holding for arrears of rent—Merger of occupancy rights—Notice to quit, effect of.

Where a raiyat under the landlord mortgaged the property to a third person, who got possession and inducted the present defendants on the land, and the landlord brought a suit for rent against the heirs of the raiyat and bought up the holding at a sale for arrears of rent:

Held, that the occupancy holding still continued to exist even after the purchase by the landlord.

Where the landlord sold, thereafter, the permanent raiyati right to another who also took a lease from the landlord and then sold it to the plaintiff, who intending to eject the defendant served him with notice:

Held, that the defendant, having been duly served with notice to quit, must be ejected. C. EAKUF ALI v. MEAJAN 686

——————— Suit for arrears of rent—Previous decree, whether proves landlord's title—Presumption as to continuance of relationship—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 114, ill. (d).

In a suit for arrears of rent a decree for rent obtained by the landlord in a prior suit against the Landlord and tenant—concld.

same defendants is not merely an item of evidence, but is conclusive as to the relationship between the parties at the time to which the previous suit referred.

Section 114, illustration (d) of the Evidence Act does not compel, but certainly permits, the Court to make a presumption as to the continuance of the state of things. C. HIRANMOY KUMAR SAHA v. RAMJAN ALI DEWAN 694 ——— ——— ——— ——— Tanks in villages, ownership in—Presumption—Entry in papers on basis of possession—Evidence of permission to make tanks—Burden of proof.

There is no persumption of law or custom that the ownership in the tanks situate in a village vests in the zemindar. They belong to the proprietor if he has made them, or to the tenant if he has made them. Entry in the papers must be made on the basis of possession and a tenant should not be asked to give in every case evidence of the zemindar's permission to make it. U. P. B. R. GAURI SHANKAR v. AMBIKA PRASAD 11

Lease of house at Mussoorie for "season", when terminates.

In the absence of evidence to the contrary a lease of a house at Mussoorie for the 'season' continues to the end of the year. A. OLD, F. S. v. SHAIL J. A., 13 A. L. J. 647 437

——— Evidence, documentary and oral, admissibility of—"Putra poutradhi kramay", meaning of—Lease, perpetual—Tenancy, proof of.

Where there is a document as evidence of the transaction of a lease, oral evidence in the shape of admission relating to the transaction of the lease is not admissible.

It is not sufficient, to prove the plaintiff's tenancy, to show that he was in possession of other lands covered by the lease.

The expression "putra poutradhi kramay" in a document signifies that the lease is a perpetual one. C. KARTIC MANDAL v. BAMA CHARAN MANDAL 502

———, liability to pay rent under—Sub-soil rights —Khorposh grants, heritable, when determinable—Title-deed, forged, effect of 429

Leave to appeal—Concurrent jurisdiction of High Court with District Judge—District Judge refusing leave to appeal—High Court, power of, to grant leave to appeal 405

Leave to appeal to Privy Council—Letters Patent (Mad.), cls. 10, 39—Orders in exercise of disciplinary jurisdiction—Leave to appeal to Privy Council, whether to be granted 879

Legal necessity. See ALIENATION; HINDU LAW.

——— ——— — Payment of Government demands 181

Legal Practitioners Act (XVIII of 1879), ss. 27, 28—Legal Practitioner, fees recoverable by, from his own client—Suit for remuneration for work done - Discretion of trying Court not to be interfered with—"Costs of suit," meaning of —Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 84.

The Legal Practitioners Act does not impose any limitation upon the fees which are recoverable by practitioners from their own clients.

Section 27 of the Act refers only to the fee which is to be paid to the adversary Pleader.

Where the fees are not settled before hand, and the suit is one for remuneration for work done, the Court in assessing the amount, performs the functions of the Taxing Officer in England and when he assesses the remuneration at a certain amount, having regard to the local conditions and the nature and responsibility of the work done by the Pleader, an Appellate Court should be very slow to interfere with his discretion.

Such a suit is governed by Article 84, Schedule I of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908). The word "costs" in that Article is not confined to "out of pocket expenses alone" of the Practitioner but includes also the remuneration payable to him. M. MAHARAJAH OF VIZIANAGARAM v. NARASINGA RAO 763

——— ——— ——— s. 28 763

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 28, scope of—Agreement with client for fees—Amount of fees and manner of payment—Reasonable remuneration, implied promise of—Suit maintainable.

Where a party employs a Pleader without any agreement as to the amount of fees or the manner of payment thereof, the Pleader is entitled to recover on an implied promise of reasonable remuneration, and his suit to recover a reasonable sum as his remuneration is not touched by the principle embodied in section 28 of the Legal Practitioners Act.

In the absence of an agreement a Pleader is entitled to a quantum meruit, which ought to be determined with reference to all the circumstances of the case. C. SIR KISHORE GHOSH v. MANIK CHANDRA NATH, 21 C. L. J. 618 453

Lessor and lessee—Forfeiture, if incurred by lessee describing his holding as independent and permanent at a fixed rent—Resumption, when permissible—Service, whether includes attendance on ceremonial and indefinite occasions 365

Letters Patent (Mad.), cls. 10, 39—Orders in exercise of disciplinary jurisdiction—Leave to appeal to Privy Council, whether to be granted.

Orders passed in proceedings in exercise of the disciplinary jurisdiction of the High Court under section 10 of the Letters Patent are not appealable under clause 39 of the Letters Patent and no special leave to appeal to the Privy Council can be granted. M. A VAKIL OF HIGH COURT v. PRESIDENT OF VAKILS' ASSOCIATION, 29 M. L. J. 6 879

——— ——— ——— — ——— cl. 15—Criminal trial—Revision—Appeal, if competent.

An order passed by a single Judge of the High Court in the exercise of its criminal revisional jurisdiction is one passed in a criminal trial if the proceedings which gave rise to the revision were a criminal trial, and no appeal lies under clause 15 of the Letters Patent against such an order. M. ADAPALA VENKATA NARASA, In re, 2 L. W. 363; 16 CR. L. J. 464 96

Letters Patent (Mad.)—concld.

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 15 — High Courts Act (24 & 25 Vic, C. 104), s. 13—High Court exercising jurisdiction under s. 25 of Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—"Appellate jurisdiction"—Judgment—Appeal against such order, if maintainable—Discretionary power given to Subordinate Courts—Appellate Court, power of, to interfere.

A single Judge of the High Court, when disposing of an application to exercise the High Court's revisional jurisdiction over a subordinate Court under section 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), exercises "appellate jurisdiction" within the meaning of section 13 of the High Courts Act and his order is a judgment even when the Judge merely declines to interfere in revision, and it is immaterial whether before such refusal the records were called for or notice issued to the other side, and an appeal lies from such an order under section 15 of the Letters Patent.

In matters of discretion the Court will not ordinarily interfere in appeal, though it has jurisdiction to do so. M. SRINIVASA IYENGAR v. RAMASWAMI CHETTIAR, 29 M. L. J. 12; 18 M. L. T. 46 846

——— ——— ——— ——— cl. 39 879

Lien. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 53.

———Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 171, 217, 221—Barrister—Equitable lien—Money paid into Court—Protest, nature of.

In satisfaction of a decree a large sum was paid into Court, through a Barrister, under protest saying that owing to a mistake in the decree more money was deposited than was actually due under it. This sum was afterwards attached in execution of another decree against the judgment-debtor in the first decree. The Barrister claimed a lien over portion of the sum deposited:

Held, that the Barrister had no lien against the sum under sections 171, 217 and 221, of the Contract Act;

that the rule of Solicitor's equitable lien in England did not apply to the case, the Barrister having obtained no decree in favour of his client, and there being not fruits to obtain a lien on;

that as the Barrister had parted with the possession of the money without making any reference to his lien for fees, the amount of fees could not be regarded as having been paid in under protest. L. B. ROBERTSON v. KO CHEIK, 8 S. L. R. 70 870

Limitation—Appeal filed with delay—Sufficient cause—Objection by respondent at hearing—Companies Act (VI of 1882), s. 169—Appeal—Notice to respondent—Limitation period, expiring during vacation—Extension of limitation period—Right of Official Liquidator to recover by summary process from creditor of Bank who realized his debt by suit before passing of winding-up order and after suspension of payment by Bank—Companies Act (VII of 1913), s. 284.

The period of three weeks prescribed by section 169 of the Companies Act may be extended by Appellate Court, when it is satisfied that the appellant showed due diligence but failed on account of circumstances beyond his control, such as the Court being closed on account of the vacations.

Limitation—concld.

No extension can be claimed on the ground that the Pleader for the appellant wrongly believed that section 284 of the Companies Act, 1913, was applicable to the case, for the section clearly lays down that Act of 1882 applied to cases in which proceedings were pending when the Act of 1913 came into force.

A respondent is entitled to contest an ex parte order extending the period of three weeks prescribed by section 169 of the Companies Act, 1882.

An Official Liquidator is not entitled by summary order to a refund of money realized by a creditor of the Bank before the order of winding-up was passed but after the Bank had passed a resolution stopping payment of debts. The Liquidator has to file a regular suit like other claimants to recover the amount realized by such creditor of the Bank. P. TARA CHAND v. OFFICIAL LIQUIDATORS, PEOPLE'S BANK OF INDIA, LTD., 90 P. L. R. 1915; 46 P. R. 1915; 71 P. W. R. 1915 265

——— ——— Instalments, recovery of—Mistake 399

———Pre-emption—Starting point of prescribed period—Land in possession of vendee at date of sale—Mutation of names.

The vendor in 1906 sold three fields by three sale-deeds, by transferring each one-third share out of each of the three fields to vendees who were father and son. Two of the fields were at the date of sale in the possession of the father vendee under a mortgage and the third he cultivated as a tenant before 1906 and in 1907-08 and in subsequent years. In 1906 the mutation was refused on the ground that the vendor had not transferred possession to the vendees. Subsequently mutation having been sanctioned in 1912 the plaintiffs brought the present suit for pre-emption:

Held, that since the vendees did not take possession of any portion of the land under the sale the period of limitation for the suit commenced from the date of mutation.

The taking of possession under a sale is an overt act fixed as the terminus a quo for limitation because it constitutes a publication of the transfer. P. IMAM-UD-DIN v. KHUDA BAKHSH, 88 P. L. R. 1915; 63 P. W. R. 1915 146

———Suit or proceeding, limitation applicable to.

The law of limitation applicable to a suit or proceeding is the law in force at the date of the institution of the suit or proceeding, unless there is a distinct provision to the contrary. C. RISWESSOR SEN v. IMAMUDDI 833

— — — Time within which proceedings under section 476, Criminal Procedure Code, should be taken 97

Limitation Act (IX of 1871), s. 10 292

Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 134 337

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), applicability of, to proceedings in insolvency 168

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 4 449

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 10 292

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 12 680

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 12 (2) — Appeal—Exclusion of time requisite for obtaining copies.

The judgment of the first Court was delivered on the 15th May, and the decree was signed late on that day. The Courts were closed, except for copying purposes, from the 16th May to the 15th June, inclusive. The defendant applied for copy on the 16th June, received it on the 18th, and filed the appeal to the District Judge on the 19th idem:

Limitation Act—(1908)—contd.

Held, that the appeal was within time. N. KASHIBAI v. KANNOO, 11 N. L. R. 104 833

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 12 (4)—Suit to set aside award—Application for copy—Time requisite for obtaining it, whether deducted.

In an application to set aside an award filed in Court the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the award may be taken into account under section 12 (4) of the Limitation Act in calculating the period of limitation provided the attention of the Court is drawn to this. M. SUBRAMANIA AIYAR v. POOPPARAM LALA 860

——— ——— ——— s. 19 422

——— ——— ——— s. 19—Acknowledgment of debt—Partnership firm—Receiver, acknowledgment by, how far affords starting date for fresh period of limitation.

The acknowledgment of a debt of a partnership firm by its Receiver, appointed for collecting its outstandings and doing all things necessary for the realization and preservation of its assets, does not afford a fresh start for limitation, as it does not come within the power to collect outstandings or to realize assets; it may have been otherwise if the powers of managing the partnership business had been conferred on the Receiver.

Payment of interest and giving of acknowledgment of a debt are two different things. L. B. S. M. A. CHETTY v. M. L. R. M. A. CHETTY 27

——— ——— ——— s. 19—Promise to pay amount due—Acknowledgment of liability—Appellate Court, powers of, to decide points of limitation.

An Appellate Court can decide questions of limitation, if no further facts than those before it, are necessary for that purpose.

A promise to remit money due under a particular document is "an acknowledgment" within the meaning of section 19 of the Limitation Act, sufficient to save limitation. M RAMASWAMI PATTER v. TIRUCHA MANNADIAR 36

——— ——— ——— s. 22 634

——— ——— ——— s. 23 385

——— ——— ——— s. 25—Instalment bond—Hindi date mentioned in bond—True test as to when limitation begins to run.

A mortgage bond executed on the 24th of July 1892 provided that the money due under it should be paid in eight yearly instalments. Each instalment had to be paid on Magh Sudi Puranmashi of each year. The last payment was to be made on Magh Sudi Puranmashi, 1956 corresponding to 14th of February 1900:

Held, that a suit on the bond brought on the 19th of July 1912 was barred by limitation, and that section 25 of the Limitation Act did not apply to the case.

The true test in a case of this kind is on what date was the plaintiff entitled to demand his money, if payment was not made of any instalment fixed in the bond. A. DWARKA PRASAD v. RAJA RAM, 13 A. L. J. 486 980

Limitation Act—(1908)—contd.

——— ——— ——— s. 29 797

——— ——— ——— s. 30 337

——— ——— ——— s. 31 (2) 605

——— ——— ——— s. 91 199

——— ——— ——— s. 148 403

——— ——— Sch. I, art. 11 731

——— ——— ——— art. 12 314

——— ——— ——— art. 14 490

——— ——— ——— arts. 44, 91—Hindu Law—Joint family—Alienation of joint family property—Suit by minor member after attaining majority against vendee for possession of his share in immoveable property—Limitation.

The plaintiff's brothers during his minority sold the joint family land to the defendant including the share of the plaintiff. After expiry of three years from the date of plaintiff's attaining majority he sued for his share of the land. The suit was dismissed as barred by limitation under Article 44 of the Limitation Act. On second appeal it was contended for the respondents that the suit was rightly dismissed and that it was in any case barred under Article 91:

Held, that the suit was not barred, that neither Article 44 nor 91 was applicable to the case and that the plaintiff had 12 years to sue for possession of the land.

That the sale must be regarded as one made by the adult members of the family on behalf of the entire co-parcenary body including themselves and their youngest brother. The alienation could not be viewed as one made on behalf of the minor by his guardian to make Article 44 applicable, for a minor's undivided share in joint family estate is not property which can be dealt with by his guardian.

That Article 91 is not intended to apply to suits for possession of immoveable property alienated by managers of joint families and endowments or by Hindu widows or other persons whose powers are restricted. In such cases if the person who executes the document had no authority in law to execute it, the plaintiff need not sue to set it aside. An express prayer in the plaint for the cancellation of such an instrument may be treated as not an essential part of the plaintiff's relief. P. RADHU RAM v. MOHAN SINGH, 84 P. L. R. 1915; 96 P. W. R. 1915 199

——— ——— ——— arts. 62, 120—Debt due to deceased received by one of his heirs—Suit by other heirs to recover their share—Limitation.

A suit by one of the heirs of a deceased person to recover his share of the debt due to the deceased, which had been realized by another heir holding succession certificate, is governed by Article 62, and not Article 120 of the Limitation Act. A ABDUL GAFFAR v. NUR JAHAN BEGUM, 8 A. L. J. 686 347

——— ——— ——— art. 62—Principal and agent—Receipt of money after termination of agency—Money had and received.

Where an agent receives money due to the principal after the termination of his agency, a suit to recover the same must be brought within three years from the time of the receipt as money had and received. A. HANSRAJ v. RATNI, 13 A. L. J. 494 986

——— ——— ——— art. 84 763

Limitation Act—(1908)—contd.

——— ——— Sch. I, arts. 85, 88—Mutual, open and current account explained—Defendant residing outside original jurisdiction—Accounts submitted within jurisdiction—Jurisdiction of High Court—Factor, definition of.

Where under an agreement between the plaintiff and the defendant the defendant submitted to the plaintiff his account in the plaintiff's shop in Madras, the High Court in its original side does not cease to have jurisdiction over the suit merely because the defendant resides in a place outside such jurisdiction.

Different sums were advanced by the plaintiff to the defendant at different times. They were treated under an agreement as a consolidated debt commencing from the date of the agreement and a promissory note was executed by the defendant the same day about the consolidated items. A suit on the basis of the dealings was held to fall under Article 85, Schedule I, Limitation Act, 1908, and not under Article 88.

A factor is an agent entrusted with the possession of goods for sale.

Therefore where in the contract and dealings between the parties something outside the mere entrusting of the goods for sale is found (e. g., advances from time to time by the plaintiff to the defendant and credit for the goods sold on defendant's behalf), these elements are quite sufficient to bring the case under Article 85 for the balance due on a mutual, open and current account, and Article 88 has no application. M. BAPU SAHIB YOUSUFF SAHIB v. ISAC ISMAIL CO., (1915) M. W. N. 519 462

——— ——— ——— art. 88 462
——— ——— ——— art. 89 748, 848
——— ——— ——— art. 91 62

——— ——— ——— arts. 91, 120—Cancellation of document—Limitation, from when begins to run.

The limitation for a suit for declaration that a mortgage deed executed by the plaintiff was without valid consideration and ineffectual and that the defendant had no right under it, begins to run from the date of the execution of the document. A. Mirza QASIM BEG v. MUHAMMAD ZIA BEG, 13 A. L. J. 913 968

——— ——— ——— arts. 91, 124—Suit to recover possession of trust properties—Management of temple transferred under agreement—Agreement found to be void—Suit to recover possession—Suit to set aside agreement, whether to be brought within three years—New issue framed at close of case—Fresh evidence, production of, right of—Expenditure incurred by de facto trustee during management, whether ground for retaining possession until payment of expenses.

The Limitation Act merely prescribes within what periods suits must be brought, and cannot be construed as of itself creating an obligation to sue where none exists.

Sales which are ab initio void cannot become valid if not set aside within three years by suit.

A suit to recover possession of a temple from the managers, in whose hands its management was vested under an agreement, is in time if brought within 12 years and more than three years from the date of the agreement, though no suit to set aside the agreement was brought under Article 91, Schedule I of the Limitation Act.

Mere permission to raise an issue at a late stage of the case does not imply that the party on whose behalf it is raised is at liberty to let in evidence on issues already closed.

In the case either of public or private charities the Court is not bound to leave the trust estate in possession of a person not entitled to the character of a trustee, merely because he expended money on it while acting as trustee. On the other hand, it is the duty of the Court, especially in the case of public charitable trust to take the trust property out of the possession of persons not entitled to hold it, while making due provision for any claims which they may have in respect of the expenditure incurred in connection therewith.

Where a plea as to improvements is raised merely as a pretext to keep back possession, effect ought not to be given to such plea. The proper course is to direct the defendants trustees to deliver possession, and then direct accounts to be taken as between the de facto trustee and the temple in order to ascertain the amount to be allowed to him for expenses incurred by him in the course of such management. M. NARAYANAN CHETTIAR v. LAKSHMANAN CHETTIAR, 28 M. L. J. 571 I

——— ——— Sch. I, art 95 62
——— ——— ——— art. 113 898
——— ——— ——— art. 116 797
——— ——— ——— art. 118 785
——— ——— ——— art. 120 62, 275, 347, 629, 968

——— ——— ——— ——— arts. 120, 125—Custom—Alienation by widow—Occupancy rights, creation of—Suit for declaration that creation of occupancy rights by widow was invalid—Limitation, starting point of.

Article 125, and not Article 120, of the Limitation Act, applies to a suit for a declaration that a creation of occupancy rights by a widow is invalid as against reversionary rights of the plaintiff and the period of limitation for such a suit begins when occupancy rights are created.

A subsequent and belated objection in partition proceedings as to the partition of the occupancy holding does not give a fresh period of limitation. P. HIRA v. Musammat GHATHU, 115 P. L. R. 1915 789

——— ——— ——— ——— art. 124 I
——— ——— ——— ——— art. 125 789
——— ——— ——— ——— art. 127 183
——— ——— ——— ——— art. 132 629

——— ——— ——— ——— art. 132—Suit on mortgage for principal and interest—Mortgagee entitled to sue for arrears of interest—Waiver, omission to sue, whether amounts to.

A mere omission to sue is not sufficient proof of waiver of the right to sue.

Where a mortgage-bond dated 11th August 1890 provided that the interest on the mortgage-money would be paid yearly and the mortgagee could recover arrears of interest by suit and after 10 years, if the land was not redeemed, he could recover principal and interest by suit and get the land attached and sold in execution, and only a small sum having been paid towards interest in the early years of the mortgage the mortgagee sued the mortgagor:

Limitation Act—(1908)—contd.

Held, that, inasmuch as the plaintiff held the option of suing every year, the suit was governed by Article 132 of the first Schedule of the Limitation Act and the plaintiff could not recover interest that had become due 12 years before the institution of the suit. P JAHAN KHAN v. CHANDI SHAH, 122 P. W. R. 1915 854

——— Sch. I, arts. 134, 148 - Mortgage Mortgagee selling absolute interest in mortgaged property—Redemption—Limitation

A mortgagor's right to redeem subsists until it has been extinguished by act of parties or order of a Court. Act of parties means act of parties to the mortgage transaction. No assertion of adverse title on the part of a mortgagee during the continuance of a mortgage can set time running against the mortgagor so as to deprive the latter of his right to redeem within a period of sixty years.

If a mortgagee sells the mortgaged property out-and-out to a third person, the possession of the vendee does not become adverse against the owner of the equity of redemption from the date of the sale, and a suit for redemption would lie under Article 148 of the Limitation Act. A. PANNA LAL v. RAMESHAR SAHAI 403

——— art. 137 841

——— art. 141—Suit by reversioner—Alienation by widow of her deceased husband's property.

A suit by the reversioners to set aside an alienation by the widow of her deceased husband's property brought more than 12 years after her re-marriage is barred under Articles 141, 143 of the first Schedule of the Limitation Act. N. NATHU v. NAI BAHU, 11 N. L. R. 86 612

——— arts. 142, 144—Suit for possession—Plaintiff, what must prove—Adverse possession pleaded—Possession within 12 years, proof of—Defendants' inability to prove possession continuously for 12 years—Presumption—Possession under illegal order, effect of.

In a suit for possession the plaintiff must prove not only that he is entitled to the property but also (if and in so far as that is contested) that he has not been out of possession during the whole of the 12 years preceding his suit. The facts that the defendants are not able to establish affirmatively that they have been continuously in possession for the said period of 12 years under Article 144 of the Limitation Act does not necessarily entitle the plaintiff to succeed unless the requirements of Article 142 are also satisfied.

In calculating the said period of 12 years, possession under an illegal order should not be taken into account. M. KALIAPERUMAL KEERUDAYAN v. CHIDAMBARAM THANJIRAN 10

——— art. 143 612

——— art. 144 10, 275, 731, 976

——— art. 164 476, 975

——— art. 166 314

——— art. 170 1003

——— art. 178 49

——— art. 182 237

Limitation Act—(1908)—concld.

——— Sch. I, art. 182—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 12—Execution—Inventory of property attached not annexed to application—Application, whether in accordance with law.

Where a decree-holder fails to annex to the application for execution of his decree an inventory of the property to be attached with a reasonably accurate description of the same, as required by Order XXI, rule 12, of the Code of Civil Procedure, the application is not in accordance with law within the meaning of Article 182 of the Limitation Act, 1908, and cannot save limitation when it is dismissed for non-compliance with an order for amendment. A. ABDUL RAFI KHAN v. MAULA BAKHSH, 3 A. L. J. 706 479

——— art. 182—Limitation, saving of—Application only necessary—Return of application for amendment and failure to re-present, immaterial.

Article 182 of Schedule I of the Limitation Act only requires that there should be an application. The fact that an application was returned to the decree-holder for amendment and was not re-presented, would not affect limitation. M. GURRALA SESHAYYA v. YEDIDA VENKATASUBBIAH, 28 M. L. J. 494; 2 L. W. 540 16

——— art. 182 (7) 274

——— art. 183 237

Lower Burma Towns and Village Lands Act (IV of 1898), s. 41—Jurisdiction of Civil or Revenue Court—Litigation between private persons—Eviction of a squatter by a squatter or of a sub-lessee by a lessee—Encroachment by lessee, whether can enure for benefit of lessor.

Where private persons litigate concerning claims to land not held under grant or lease from Government or under a license from the Revenue Officer, but which is at the disposal of Government, the jurisdiction of the Civil Court is not barred by section 41 (a) of the Lower Burma Towns and Village Lands Act.

Under the said Act the eviction of a squatter by another squatter, or of a sub-lessee by a lessee is not a matter that 'is to be determined by the Revenue Authority', and there is nothing in the Act to oust the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts in cases which do not involve the decision of any rights as against Government.

The benefit of an encroachment by a lessee on a neighbour's land enures for the benefit of the lessor.

Though section 108 B (d) of the Transfer of Property Act is not in force in Wakema, the principle embodied therein should be followed. L. B. SIT YIN v. MA SHIN, 8 L. B. R. 71 872

Lunatic co-parcener, right of, to share on partition. See HINDU LAW.

Lurking house trespass. See PENAL CODE, s. 456.

Madras Civil Courts Act (III of 1873), s. 8 71

Madras Civil Rules of Practice, r. 14 449

——— r. 161A 119

Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908) 601

——— ——— ——— ss. 3 (5), 77, 194—Suit for rent—Tenant disputing title of plaintiff as land-holder—Court, duty of, in such cases—Court, when to decide the question by itself.

Where a ryot disputes the title of the plaintiff to collect rent, no decree can be passed for the rent until that question has been decided in favour of the plaintiff.

Where, in a suit under section 77 of the Madras Estates Land Act for recovery of rent, the tenant disputes the title of the plaintiff as a land-holder and sets up the title of a third person, there are three courses open to a Court, viz., the Court may, by itself, determine who the land-holder is who should collect rent, or it may direct the plaintiff to apply to the Collector to declare him to be the land-holder or may apply section 194 of the Madras Estates Land Act and if it finds there has been no bona fide payment of rent to a third person, it may give the tenant the option of paying the same into Court. Where the parties themselves are before the Court, the proper course is for the Court before which the suit is filed to make the inquiry itself. M. SONA ALAGA KUDUNBAN v. SIVARAMA AIYAR 31

——— ——— ——— s. 6 (1) 8

——— ——— ——— ss. 42 (2), 112, applicability of—Survey and Boundaries Act (IV of 1897), s. 20 (3)—Contribution, recovery of Section 42 (2) of the Madras Estates Land Act applies to cases in which the area of a holding has been determined under the Survey and Boundaries Act.

Section 112 of the Madras Estates Land Act also applies to proceedings for the recovery of contribution of survey charges apportioned under section 20 of the Survey and Boundaries Act. M. BANGARUSAMI REDDI v. KUPPANNA GOUNDEN, 28 M. L. J. 377 595

——— ——— ——— s. 77 31

——— ——— ——— s. 112 595

——— ——— ——— s. 186—Collector's certificate—Objections of petitioner, not illegal—Court not bound to call for evidence.

A Collector's certificate, granted under section 186 of the Madras Estates Land Act is not conclusive.

An order of a District Court under section 186 of the Madras Estates Land Act, based not merely upon the certificate of the Collector but also upon other materials raised on behalf of the ryot, is not illegal.

Quære.—Whether a District Court is bound to call for evidence when none is offered by the ryot himself before acting upon the Collector's certificate? M. MEENAKSHI AMMAL v. ORR, R. G., (1915) M. W. N. 421 457

——— ——— ——— s. 192—Plaint, valid presentation of—Limitation Act (IX of 908), s. 4—Officer authorized to receive plaints absent from head-quarters—Court, whether closed—Madras Civil Rules of Practice, r. 14, applicability of.

A plaint under the Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908) presented to the Head Clerk of a Collector is not validly presented, if he is not appointed to receive plaints.

A Court is not closed within the meaning of section 4 of the Limitation Act, if the officer authorized to receive plaints is absent from head-quarters and is in camp.

Rule 14 of the Madras Civil Rules of Practice does not apply to proceedings before a Revenue Court. M. RECEIVER OF THE N. AND M. ESTATES v. SURAPARAZU, 38 M. 295 449

——— ——— ——— s. 194 31

Madras Regulation (XXV of 1802), s. 4 365

Madras Rent Recovery Act (VIII of 1865), s. 11 (3)—Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908)—No retrospective effect

No retrospective effect should be given either to section 11 (3) of the Madras Rent Recovery Act or to its corresponding provision of the Madras Estates Land Act. M. ZEMINDAR OF PAMUR TALUQ v. MALAKONDAYYA NAIDU 601

——— ——— ——— s. 12—Tenancy from year to year—Oral notice to quit—Wrongful ejectment—Suit for possession—Damages.

A notice of ejectment under the Madras Rent Recovery Act (VIII of 1865) must be in writing.

Where there was merely an oral notice to quit and the tenant was wrongfully dispossessed the tenancy being from year to year:

Held, that he was entitled to be in possession for a year after the period when he was ejected and was entitled to one year's mesne profits as damages in lieu of possession. M. GOTTIMUKKALA CHINA v. SRIMAT SURANGAM NALLANI 574

Madras Survey and Boundaries Marks Act (IV of 1897), s. 13—Order as to possession—Starting point of limitation.

Where an original order of a Survey Officer, adverse to the plaintiff, was dated 31st October 1908 but both parties' cross-appeals were heard together and disposed of by a single order dated the 18th January 1909:

Held, that the date of the latter order was the starting point of limitation for the plaintiff's suit for possession. M. VEERARAGHAVA CHARIAR v. KRISHNAMACHARIAR 907

——— ——— ——— s. 20 (3) 595

Mahant, appointment of—Absence of rules and practice prescribed by founder—Custom or usage—Practice—Suit for possession of math and its property—Burden of proof—Election—Dasnam bhik, election of mahant by, when valid.

In case the founder of a math prescribes no rules or practice to be followed in the selection and appointment of the future mahants, the selection and appointment of a person to be the mahant of the math on a vacancy occurring in the mahantship must depend on the custom or usage and the practices which have prevailed in the appointment of mahants of that math.

The plaintiff sued the defendant for the possession of a temple and the properties appertaining to it alleging that he was the only sadhak (disciple) of the deceased mahant and that he was duly elected mahant and was appointed with the usual ceremonies. The defendant who was the general attorney and storekeeper of the deceased mahant also claimed to have been duly elected mahant in succession to the deceased mahant and was in possession of the temple and of the property appertaining to it:

Mahant—concld.

Held, that it was for the plaintiff to prove his right to the mahantship which, if proved, would carry with it the right to possession of the temple and of the property appertaining thereto, and that as the plaintiff failed to prove that he was the duly elected mahant of the math, his suit would fail and it would be immaterial to consider whether the defendant was or was not the mahant of the math or whether he had or had not any better title to the temple and the property appertaining to it than a title of mere possession.

An election by dasnam bhik of a mahant to be a valid and effectual election must be by a majority of the dasnam bhik assembled for that purpose. A separate election by a faction of the dasnam bhik is not a valid and effectual election. P C. LAHAR PURI v. PURAN NATH, 19 C. W. N. 718; 21 C. L. J. 499; 17 BOM. L. R. 475; 18 M. L. T. 39; 29 M. L. J. 75; 2 L. W. 589; 37 A. 298; (1915) M. W. N. 526 724

Maintenance. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 488.

——— ——— grant. See HINDU LAW.

——— ———, right of, transfer of 251

Majority Act (IX of 1875), s. 2, applicability of 587

Malabar Compensation for Tenants' Improvements Act (I of 1900) 286

——— ——— ——— s. 5—Decree determining tenancy and directing payment of compensation—Non-payment of compensation—Continuance of tenant on land—Improvements subsequent to decree—"Tenant" entitled to claim compensation under Act.

A tenant continuing in possession pending receipt of compensation holds subject to the terms of the previous lease, that is, holds as a tenant and retains that status until his improvements are paid for.

The fact that no rent was paid by the tenant or that the decree determining his tenancy credited the value of improvements towards the arrears of rent due, does not alter his position. He is, therefore, a "tenant" under the Act entitled to claim compensation for the improvements effected by him subsequent to the decree. M. CHOWAKKARAN KELOTH v. KARUVALOTE PARKUM, 29 M. L. J. 144 559

Malabar Law—Kanomdar, right of, to claim compensation for improvements—Malabar Compensation for Tenants' Improvements Act (Mad. Act I of 1900).

A kanomdar is entitled to claim compensation for conversion of jungle lands into parambas, notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the deed of mortgage.

A tenant is entitled to claim compensation for improvements according to the Malabar Compensation for Tenants' Improvements Act, 900, if then the terms of the mortgage agreement are less favourable to him than the provisions of the Act. M ABDULLA ROWTHAN v. VASUDEVA RAVI VARMA, 29 M. L. J. 316 286

Malabar tarwad—Properties given to member in lieu of maintenance—Restraint on alienation except by way of lease—Member's interest, whether attachable—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 60 (1) (n).

Where certain properties are given to a member of a Malabar tarwad in lieu of maintanance under a karar which prohibits alienation except by way of lease, his interest in the properties is not exempt from attachment under section 60 1) (n) of the Civil Procedure Code. M. KOTHAL MAMMAD HAJI v. PYDAL NAIR 578

Malice, proof of—Malicious prosecution 12

Malicious prosecution—Damages, suit for—Proof—Conviction of plaintiff in lower Court, effect of.

In a suit for damages for malicious prosecution the plaintiff must prove the following four things:—

(1) that he was innocent of the crime alleged against him;

(2) that his innocence has been pronounced by a competent tribunal;

(3) that there was a want of reasonable and probable cause for the prosecution; and

(4) that the proceedings against him had been initiated in a malicious spirit.

A conviction in the lower Court of the plaintiff to a suit for damages for malicious prosecution although reversed on appeal is fatal to his suit for malicious prosecution save in very exceptional circumstances. L. B. PADASHIN v. MAUNG LUN, 8 BUR. L. T. 69 883

——— ——— ——— ——— Want of reasonable and probable cause—Malice, proof of—Complaint false to the knowledge of defendant—Plaintiff guilty of some dishonest act—Defendant not justified in making false allegations.

In a suit for damages for malicious prosecution, not only want of reasonable and probable cause but also malice is proved if the complaint was false to the knowledge of the complainant. The fact that the plaintiff was guilty of some other dishonest act will not justify the defendant in making allegations against his conduct false to his knowledge. M. KHADER UNNISSA BEGAM v. MUHAMMAD MUSTAN ALI BADSHA, 2 L. W. 428; 17 M. L. T. 91 12

Manbhum Kismats, nature of, guided by the rule of primogeniture—Maintenance grants to younger branches of family—Khorposhdar, interest of, limited—Leases, liability to pay rent under—Sub-soil rights—Khorposh grants, heritable, when determinable—Title-deed, forged, effect of.

In the Nawagarh zemindari in Manbhum, Chota Nagpur, kismats descend, by the rule of primogeniture, on the eldest sons, maintenance grants being made to the younger branches of the family. Each kismat is, to all intents and purposes, regarded as an impartible estate.

The interest of a khorposhdar, though more than an interest for one life, is nevertheless a limited interest, liable to be defeated at any time by the failure of heirs, and, therefore, resumable by the proprietor for the time being.

Where the plaintiff's lessors have no title whatever to the sub-soil and are thus incapable of conferring such a title on the plaintiff, he cannot get possession of the land demised in any form.

Manbhum Kismats—concld.

Moneys paid by compulsion of legal proceedings cannot be recovered even if paid within the period of limitation.

Khorposh grants are heritable in the male line and determinable only on the failure of male heirs.

Where it was found that the leases to the plaintiff were only of sub-soil rights, the surface rights being expressly reserved to the lessors:

Held, that the leases conveyed nothing whatever to the plaintiff.

Where it is found that the title-deed on which the plaintiff's suit is based is a forgery:

Held, that the plaintiff's suit must necessarily fail. C JAGANNATH MARWARI v. GIRIDHARI SINGHA, 19 C. W. N. 102 429

Map—Survey map and thak map distinguished—Map drawn for different purpose, how far affects right of property 156

Marriage. See BUDDHIST LAW; MUHAMMADAN LAW.

———————Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 23—Divorce—Custom—Payment to caste—Repugnant to Hindu Law 952

Master and servant—Criminal acts of servants—Master, liability of, conditions of—Forest Act (VII of 1878), s. 25 (d), applicability of—Licensee under Forest Act, liability of, for agent's acts—Statute, construction of—"Intention of the Legislature," meaning of.

A master is not criminally responsible for the acts of his servants, unless he expressly commands or personally co-operates with them or unless the criminal liability is imposed by Statute upon him as regards the acts or omissions of his servants.

In the cases where a master is held liable for the criminal acts of his servants under a Statute, the question is whether upon the true construction of the Statute in question, the master is intended to be made criminally liable for the acts of his servants done within the scope or in the course of their employment.

A licensee under the Indian Forest Act (VII of 1878) would be liable criminaliter for every act of his agent, done in carrying on the business delegated to him, which amounts to a breach of the condition of the license made criminally punishable by the Act or any rule thereunder.

Where the owner of a certain number of cattle entrusted them to a grazier who took them into a forest reserve to afford them better pasturage:

Held, that the owner was not criminally liable, though he was civilly liable.

Held, further, that the words of section 25 (d) of the Indian Forest Act (VII of 1878) clearly apply only to the person who does any of the acts mentioned therein.

Semble. Statutes passed for the benefit of the public health and sanitation are construed in the same way as licensing Acts.

Nothing is to be regarded within a Penal Statute which is not clearly and intelligibly described in the very words of the Statute itself.

The phrase "intention of the Legislature" cannot be extended to cover a speculative opinion as to what the Legislature probably would have meant although there has been an omission to enact it. N. SAIYYAD RAHIM v. EMPEROR, 11 N. L. R. 76; 16 CR. L. J. 485 325

Master and servant—concld.

————————Termination of contract of service—No special custom or stipulation—Reasonable notice—Bombay District Municipal Act (Bombay Act III of 1901), s. 167, whether applicable to suit on contract.

If no custom nor stipulation as to notice exists and if the contract of service is not one which can be regarded as a yearly hiring, the service is terminable by reasonable notice.

What is "reasonable notice" is a question which varies with the circumstances of the case.

Section 167 of the Bombay District Municipal Act, 1901, does not apply to an action brought on a contract.

Having regard to the standard generally adopted in England for "clerks in superior position" a Municipal Secretary in India is entitled to three months' notice. S. MUNICIPALITY OF TATTA v. ASSANMAL CHANDOOMAL, 8 S. L. R. 294 597

Math, whether can acquire occupancy rights—Mahant—Chela—Succession 407

Merger. See MORTGAGE.

————Mortgage—Hypothecation bonds—Account settled—Agreement to sell certain portion—Suit on bonds, maintainability of—Remedy of plaintiff.

The defendants mortgaged certain properties to the plaintiffs and also hypothecated the same for certain sums on different dates. On a suit on the hypothecation bonds it was found that a settlement of accounts between the parties had been arrived at and it had been agreed that a certain portion of the property should be sold for the amount due to the plaintiffs. The defendants were still ready to perform the agreement:

Held, that the suit was not maintainable as under the circumstances the only course open to the plaintiff was to sue for specific performance of the contract to sell. M. ELICHI USSACK v. RAMASWAMI IYER, 28 M. L. J. 662 982

Mesne profits. See MADRAS RENT RECOVERY ACT, s. 12.

————————, claim for, essence of 195

————————or damages, suit for—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11, O. XX, r. 12, scope of—Title derived from a party, nature of—No issue raised or tried—No bar—Co-defendants.

Section 11 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, contemplates a case where a party derives title from a party to the previous litigation subsequent to the previous litigation.

There is nothing in section 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure to suggest that where the plaintiff has derived no title subsequent to the previous suit, the subsequent suit should involve the consequence of being dismissed.

Where no issue was raised or tried in the former suit between the parties to the new suit:

Held, that the claim was not barred by section 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Order XX, rule 12, does not contemplate anything except the relation between the plaintiff and the Mesne profits—concld.

defendant in a previous suit. There is nothing in Order XX, rule 12, to suggest that it applies between co-defendants. C. SURENDRA NARAYAN MITRA v. DEJINDRA PROSAD MITRA 464

Mischief. See PENAL CODE, s. 378.

Misrepresentation. See CONTRACT ACT, s. 19.

Mortgage—Agreement to redeem on certain date and in default to leave mortgagee in undisturbed possession, validity of—Subordinate Court, duty of, to follow rulings of its Superior Court—Practice.

A person mortgaged his land before the Transfer of Property Act came into force by way of usufructuary mortgage for Rs. 800 and agreed to redeem it on a certain date after seven years for Rs. 850 and in default, the mortgagee might take possession. The mortgagor failed to redeem on the due date but sued to redeem a year later:

Held, that there was nothing unconscionable in the contract of the parties and that it is in accordance with equity, justice and good conscience to keep parties to their agreements made voluntarily and with full knowledge when those agreements are themselves reasonable.

It is the duty of a Subordinate Judge to follow the decision of its Superior Court which is binding on it and leave it to the Superior Court to take such action with regard to the conflict of the opinion as it may be advised. L. B. MA THIN HTON v. MA HNIN THET 709 ——— Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 88, 89—Application for order absolute—Application in execution—Limitation—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 182, 183—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 48—Order absolute—Fresh starting point of limitation.

A preliminary decree in a mortgage suit passed under section 88 of the Transfer of Property Act is executable and in order to obtain an order absolute under section 89 steps have to be taken in execution; and Article 182 or 183 of the Limitation Act will apply to such applications if the decree happens to be passed by a Mofussil Court or by the original side of the High Court.

A decree-holder will have 12 years under section 48 of the Civil Procedure Code to perfect the preliminary decree and another 12 years under the same section if he gets an order absolute within the first 12 years.

Where a preliminary decree in a mortgage suit was passed on the 7th October 1901 and the first application to obtain an order absolute was made on 6th April 1904 and subsequent applications were made in 1907, 1910 and 1912 all within the three years of the immediately preceding application and all the applications were dismissed without granting the relief prayed for, and the present application was made on the 15th April 1912:

Held, that the application was not barred by limitation. M. MAHAMMAD HUSAIN v. ABDUL KAREEM, 17 M. L. T. 424 237

——— ——— Benamidar mortgagee, right of, to sue—Mortgagor, whether can object to mortgagee's right—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 100—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 92.

Mortgage—contd.

A benamidar has a right of suit on a mortgage of immoveable property in his favour and it is not open to the mortgagor to raise any question as to the right of the benamidar to recover the mortgage debt. L. B. MA TUN v. MA WAING THA 692

——— ——— Construction—Good-will and stock-in-trade mortgaged—Stock acquired after mortgage, if effected.

A certain person mortgaged the good-will and the stock-in-trade of his business. A list of the stock-in-trade was scheduled to the mortgage-deed. There was a clause in the deed that the stock-in-trade would not be transferred. The scheduled stock was as a matter of fact, subsequently, sold and was re-placed by another:

Held, that the stock-in-trade which was acquired after the mortgage was not affected by the mortgage. A. ANDERSON v. BANK OF UPPER INDIA, LTD., 13 A. L. J. 489; 37 A. 390 984

——— ——— Decree, sale under—Fraud, allegation of—Execution, who may come in in—Party having no interest in property when decree passed, right of.

Where the plaintiffs had no interest in the property at the time the mortgage-decree was passed and the property was not ancestral:

Held, that they could not come in in execution to set aside the decree. C. NAGESUR PERSHAD SINGH v. BINDESHWARI PROSAD SINGH 402 ——— ——— Endowed property—Mortgagee from trustee—Limitation—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 10, Sch. I, Art. 134—Limitation Act (IX of 1871), s. 10.

A suit for possession of an endowed property against a person who has been holding it as a mortgagee from the trustees of the property for over 12 years, prior to the coming into force of the Limitation Act IX of 1871, on the ground that the alienation was null and void, is barred by limitation. A. AMIR SHAH v. TULA PANDE, 13 A. L. J. 612 292

——— ——— Enhanced Government revenue, whether payable by mortgagor or mortgagee 386

——— ——— Equity of redemption purchased by mortgagee—Merger—Incumbrances in favour of mortgagee, effect on—Extinguishment of mortgage—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 101, scope of—Question of intention in each case—Proof of intention.

A purchase by a mortgagee of the equity of redemption extinguishes the mortgage, unless circumstances exist at the time of the purchase which show an intention to prevent the merger.

A mortgagee-purchaser of the equity of redemption of his mortgage can use his previous mortgage only as a shield if there are mesne incumbrances and only in respect of the properties which are covered by such incumbrances, but he is not entitled to sue upon his mortgage.

Per Wallis, C. J.—The word 'absolutely' in section 101 of the Transfer of Property Act, cannot mean that there are no mesne incumbrances.

Per Seshagiri Aiyar, J.—In cases where a subsequent clause in a deed is inconsistent with the operative portion of it, the cardinal principle of construction which should guide Indian Courts is to ascertain the intention of the parties. Technical rules of construction should, as far as possible, be avoided.

Section 101 of the Transfer of Property Act leaves untouched the general rule of law that when a mortgagee purchases the equity of redemption, the incumbrance in his favour is extinguished. It only enacts that where there are other mortgages on the property, an intention will be imputed to the mortgagee-purchaser that he intended to keep alive his own mortgage as a protection against subsequent claimants. M. ARUMUGASUNDARA v. NARASIMHA IYER, (1915) M. W. N. 397; 2 L. W. 642; 18 M. L. T. 110 916

Mortgage—contd.

——— Equity of redemption, sale of—Purchaser, right of, to redeem 305

——— executed in order to defeat creditors, if void—Consideration paid in part—Suit to enforce mortgage security—Lien 690

——— by father—Hindu Law—Debt neither antecedent nor for family purposes, nor immoral—Suit against sons—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 120, 132 629

——— of fixed-rate tenancy—Mortgagor dying heirless—Ejectment of mortgagee without redemption—Revision.

If a fixed-rate tenant mortgages his holding usufructuarily and then dies without leaving an heir the land-holder cannot eject the mortgagee in possession without paying off the mortgage-money.

An order wrongly directing the ejectment of a mortgagee in possession deprives the mortgagee of his legal rights and is, therefore, a serious error of law which justifies interference in revision. U. P. B. R. NAND KISHORE PANDE v. MUHAMMAD HASAN 555

——— Grove, mortgage of—Mortgagor dying without heirs—Mortgagee, whether can be ejected—Grove, if constitutes improvement 560

——— ——— Merger—Hypothecation bonds—Account settled—Agreement to sell certain portion—Suit on bonds, maintainability of—Remedy of plaintiff 982

——— ——— Mortgage-decree making judgment-debtor personally liable for deficiency—Sale of other properties belonging to him—Application by decree-holders for rateable distribution—Order, whether appealable—Execution application praying for specific reliefs—No final orders passed—Madras Civil Rules of Practice, r. 167 231

——— ——— Mortgage for Rs. 105 unregistered but known to subsequent purchaser, proof of, if necessary—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 58—Subsequent purchaser, right of.

Where the purchaser of certain lands admitted previous knowledge of a mortgage of part of the lands in possession of the mortgagee:

Held, that it was unnecessary to prove the mortgage in a suit for possession by the purchaser against the mortgagee and that the fact that the mortgage-deed was for Rs. 105 and was unregistered was immaterial.

Held, further, that the purchase being subject to the mortgage, the purchaser could not recover the land without paying the mortgage-money.

An admission made by a party when examined as a witness comes within the purview of section 58 of the Evidence Act. U. B. NGA TUN LU v. NGA SHWE CHIN, 8 BUR. L. T. 18 698

——— Mortgagee selling absolute interest in mortgaged property—Redemption—Limitation 403

——— ——— Mortgagor, payment by, to one mortgagee—Endorsement on mortgage-deed, value of—Payment, whether amounts to discharge—Mortgagor, duty of—Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), ss. 4, 92—Endorsement as to receipt of mortgage-money by one executor mortgagee, value of.

Two of the sons of a deceased testator were made executors of his Will. The two sons invested the moneys they had in their hands in mortgages. One of the brothers alone sued to enforce the mortgage security making the other brother-defendant. The mortgagor pleaded payment of certain amounts to the other brother, as evidenced by endorsement on the mortgage bond, and claimed to be credited for the amounts:

Held, that notwithstanding that the money in fact formed a portion of the estate of the deceased, it did not vest in the executors as such under section 4 of the Probate and Administration Act, but vested in them by virtue of the bonds which were given to them by the mortgagor and that, therefore, the endorsement did not amount to a discharge under section 92 of the Act.

Held, further, that the money was lent on a joint account and it was the duty of the defendant mortgagor in making re-payment to see that he made the payment to, and obtained a receipt from, a person entitled to give him a discharge. C. CHANDRA MOHAN BANERJEE v. SATYA KRIPAL 139

——— ——— Occupancy holding and fixed-rate holding mortgaged together for lump sum—Whole transaction, if illegal.

Where an occupancy holding and a fixed-rate holding are mortgaged together for a lump sum, and the contract is one and indivisible the whole transaction is void. f. JWALA PRASAD RAI v. RAM SARUP RAI 923

——— ——— Non-transferable occupancy holding—Rent-sale, effect of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 89, scope of—Decretal amount, who may deposit in Court.

Where the mortgagee of a non-transferable occupancy holding, which was brought to sale in execution of a rent-decree and purchased by the landlord decree-holder, sought to deposit in Court the decretal amount and compensation under Order XXI, rule 89, Civil Procedure Code:

Held, that the mortgagee had not any interest under the rule in question, and so his deposit could not be accepted by the Court. DENO NATH DEY SARKAR v. KALI KUMAR ROY 916

——— ——— Representation—Mitakshara family—Redemption, equity of, member of Mitakshara family having interest in—Failure to produce that member before Court, effect of—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 85, scope of.

The principle laid down by the Judicial Committee in the case of Sheo Shankar Ram v. Musammat Jaddo Kunwar, 24 Ind. Cas. 504; 18 C. W. N. 968; 16 M. L. T. 175; (1914) M. W. N. 593; 1 L. W. 695; 12 A. L. J. 1173; 16 Bom. L. R. 810 (P. C.); 20 C. L. J. 282; 36 A. 383, is to be applied in preference to that adopted in Lala Suraj Prosad v. Golab Chand, 28 C. 517; 5 C. W. N. 640, in cases where the doctrine of representation is properly applicable to the facts and where the mortgagee is found to be not aware of the existence of a member of a joint Mitakshara family as interested in the equity of redemption and Mortgage—contd.

so does not bring him before the Court in the mortgage suit. C. RAGHORAM SINGH v. RAJANI KANTA BANERJEE, 21 C. L. J. 452 752

——————Several mortgagees—Payment by mortgagor to one mortgagee, if valid 956

——————, simple, whether rehan 554

——————of sir before 1901—Sale of equity of redemption in 1905—Mortgagors minors—Ex-proprietary rights claimed by mother of minors—Mother's claim wrongly disallowed—No appeal preferred—Subsequent suit for declaration of ex-proprietary rights 675

——————of sir land before the passing of the Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), effect of, on sir land.

A mortgage with or without possession before the 1st day of January 1902 has no effect whatever upon sir. U. P. B. R. GANGA PRASAD PANDE v. TUNDI AHIR 565

——————Subrogation—Purchaser of mortgaged property, right of—Partial payment of mortgage-money.

The purchaser of a mortgaged property cannot claim the right to subrogate as against a puisne incumbrancer when he has paid only a portion of the mortgage-debt. M. BESINATH KARUMANI v. DEVI DOSS 511

——————Subsequent mortgagee, made party to suit on prior mortgage—Failure to appear—Right to raise afterwards plea of payment of prior lien—Test.

A subsequent mortgagee who has been made party to a suit on a prior mortgage but who has failed to appear cannot afterwards raise the plea that he had paid off a prior lien and was, therefore, in the position of a prior mortgagee.

The test in all such cases is, was the defendant impleaded as a puisne mortgagee and, therefore, a necessary party, if he was, he is bound to set up his prior mortgage as well as his subsequent mortgage. C. HANKAR RAI v. KAMTA PROSHAD SAHU, 19 C. W. N. 947 875

——————Usufructuary and simple mortgage in favour of same person—Mortgagee purchasing some of mortgaged property—Suit on simple mortgage—Liability of property purchased to rateable contribution 124

——————Redemption—Redemption decree—Failure to pay within time fixed—Payment before decree absolute—Mortgagor if entitled to redeem.

In a redemption suit the mortgagor decree-holder who fails to pay the redemption money upto the date fixed for payment but pays it before the decree is made absolute, is entitled to redeem the property on such payment. A. AMBIKA PERSHAD v. SALAMAT KHAN 438

——————Redemption decree — Time fixed for payment of money—Appellate Court extending time and fixing another date, effect of—Interest.

In a redemption suit a certain date was fixed in the decree for payment of the money and it was provided that up to that date the mortgagor would pay interest at the contractual rate. The plaintiff appealed to the High Court. The High Court confirmed the decision of the Court below and, extending the period for payment of the money, fixed another date:

Held, that the effect of the extension of time by the Appellate Court was to substitute the date fixed by that Court for that fixed by the first Court, and that the mortgagee was entitled to interest at the contract rate up to the date fixed by the Appellate Court. A. RAM NARAIN v. GOBIND PERSHAD 289

Mortgage—contd.

——————Husband's mortgage, if widow can redeem unconditionally.

In a case where the wife wants to recover the property which is found to have been mortgaged by her husband for debts for which her husband's property in her hands would be justly liable:

Held, that to allow her to recover her property without any condition is not equitable. C. SANATAN CHAKRAVARTI v. KAURI MANI DASI 925

——————, right of—Plaintiff, whether compelled to set up prior mortgage against his Will.

One K S was the owner of a certain zemindari. One of the four sons of K S mortgaged a one-fourth share to the father of R, the defendant, on the 7th of December 1877. On July 27th, 1877, the whole property was usufructuarily mortgaged by the four sons to Z. The entire consideration of Z's mortgage went towards satisfying a decree for sale obtained on a previous mortgage of 1872. The plaintiffs, having acquired certain shares in the equity of redemption from some of the descendants of K S, redeemed the entire mortgage from Z. R brought a suit on her father's mortgage and she impleaded only the son of her mortgagor and also Z, but not the present plaintiffs. She obtained a decree for sale of the one-fourth share and purchased it herself. The plaintiffs then brought the present suit for redemption of the mortgage of December 7th, 1877:

Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to redeem the mortgage of the 7th of December 1877 and that whatever rights Z or the plaintiffs, as her successors-in-interest, might hold in respect of the mortgage of 1872, these were not rights which the plaintiffs could be compelled to set up or to exercise against their will and that the possible existence of such rights did not affect the position of the plaintiffs as mortgagees subsequent to the defendant.

Held, further, that R as auction-purchaser of the equity of redemption, had a right of redemption. A. RAM PIARI v. RAGHUNATH SINGH 794 ——————, suit for—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 66, applicability of—Old Code and new Code compared.

In a suit for redemption where it is found that an execution sale and a benami purchase took place in 1895, long before the passing of the present Code in 1908, and that at that time and afterwards and until the passing of the present Code the plaintiff had a vested right of redemption:

Held, that it ought not to be assumed, in the absence of any express words to that effect, that that right was taken away from him by the provisions of section 66 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Under the old law section 66 was only applicable to the certified purchaser, but as it is now

Mortgage—concld.

amended it applies also to persons standing in the shoes of the purchaser. C. ASAD ALI v. BUJRUS MEHER BIBI 716

———————, suit for—Mortgagee, whether can question mortgagor's title—Equity of redemption, vesting of—Attornment of mortgagee to superior landlord, effect of.

A mortgagee cannot be permitted to resist a claim for redemption on the ground that the mortgagor had no title to the property included in the mortgage.

But the mortgagee may establish that the title of the mortgagor has expired since the creation of the mortgage; in other words, that the equity of redemption is no longer vested in him so as to entitle him to redeem the mortgage.

As between a mortgagor and a mortgagee the attornment by the latter to the superior landlord cannot in any way prejudice the rights of the former. C. ABHURAM SIL v. HARA CHAND DAS 746

Mortgage-bond, suit on, for recovery—Hard and unconscionable bargain—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 16—Security, if ample, effect of—Undue influence, presumption of—Rate of interest, excessive, effect of—Personal loans—Compound interest, stipulation of, when a penalty—English Money Lenders' Act compared—English Judge's dicta to be followed.

The Courts have ample powers under the amended Contract Act to go behind hard and unconscionable bargains on the ground that where there is ample security, the exaction of excessive and usurious interest in itself raises a presumption of undue influence which it requires very little evidence to substantiate.

The attempt to conceal the real rate of interest by describing it as one pice in the rupee per mensem or, as in the present case, Rs. 5 per mensem is evidence of an intention to get the better of the debtor, and the law seems to be that there must be a footing of complete equality between debtor and creditor and they must be, so to speak, at arm's length to make a bargain, which is in itself harsh and unconscionable enforceable at law.

Under the amended section 16 of the Contract Act the question of a harsh and unconscionable bargain can only be considered in reference to undue influence.

Where there is ample security an excessive rate of interest has been held to be anything over 10 per cent. Where there is no security, no rate of interest can be considered excessive. There can be no standard rate on personal loans.

Where the parties are reasonably on terms of equality, a Judge cannot do better than adopt what they themselves have agreed on.

A presumption of undue influence could arise from the fact that a security of over Rs. 3,000 with mortgage already on it for a much smaller amount was given for a loan of Rs. 80.

Where a contract is for a temporary accommodation, the stipulation that interest is to run at Rs. 5 a month is one which necessitates the payment of interest not at 60 per cent. per annum but at Rs. 5 in each month, and a stipulation that in default of 12 months' instalments of interest compound interest would begin to run at 60 per cent. is in the nature of a penalty.

Mortgage-bond—concld.

It is the duty of the Courts in India to enforce the letter of the law against obviously harsh and unconscionable bargains of this nature.

Excess of interest or charges may itself be evidence of a harsh and unconscionable bargain and particularly, if it is unexplained. If no justification be established the presumption hardens into a certainty.

The amendments in the Indian Law of Contract go further in the direction of relief against harsh and unconscionable bargains than those of the English Money Lenders' Act and, therefore, the dicta of English Judges under that Act might be accepted.

Where it is found that there is technically a penalty in the bond, Judges should go behind the contract, which is one and indivisible, as to interest and refuse compound interest altogether. C. ABDUL MAJID v. KSHERODE CHANDRA PAL, 19 C. W. N. 809; 42 C. 690 843

Mortgage-decree making mortgagor "personally liable for balance due under the decree" after sale of mortgaged property, whether a decree for "payment of money" on a certain date—Twelve years to be calculated from date of decree or from date when sale-proceeds prove insufficient to satisfy decree—Decree against estate managed by Court of Wards—Decree not transferred to Collector for execution—Mortgagee, whether entitled to benefit of exclusion of period of management by Court of Wards 556

——————— or sale—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 54, 59, 55 (6) (b)—Transaction without registered document when transaction compulsorily registrable, effect of.

Where the defendants were put into possession of two plots of plaintiffs' land, five or six years before the suit, without any registered document on payment of Rs. 100 in respect of each plot and where the transaction was either an abortive mortgage (according to the plaintiffs) or an abortive sale (according to the defendants):

Held, that in either case the plaintiffs were entitled to possession upon payment of Rs. 200 as under the provisions of sections 54 and 59 of the Transfer of Property Act an oral transfer could effect neither a mortgage nor a sale and the defendants were entitled only to a charge on the land under section 55 (6) (b) for the purchase-money paid by them. L. B. MAUNG YEIK v. MAUNG PE TO, 8 BUR. L. T. 70 886

——————— suit, decree in, application for order absolute for sale of—Limitation—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, r. 5.

An application for an order absolute for sale in a mortgage-suit is a proceeding in execution and must be made within the time prescribed by the Limitation Act. C. KRISHNA BAR v. RANAMOYI DEBI, 19 C. W. N. 470 120

——————— ———————Money-decree — Purchase by prior mortgagee — Subsequent mortgage by heir—Suit for sale by subsequent mortgagee—Suit for declaration that house was not saleable by prior mortgagee, maintainability of.

A creditor of a deceased Muhammadan cannot follow his estate into the hands of a bona fide purchaser for value to whom it has been alienated by an heir-at-law, whether the alienation had been by an absolute sale or by a mortgage.

Mortgage suit—concld.

One A mortgaged a house to the predecessor-in-title of the plaintiff. On A's death, his widow, J, mortgaged the same house to the defendant. The plaintiff brought a suit on his mortgage impleading the present defendant as a subsequent mortgagee, but he got only a simple money-decree in execution of which he put the house to sale and purchased it on 23rd June 1913. In the meantime the defendant had brought a suit upon his mortgage and obtained a decree for sale of the house on the 24th September 1912. The plaintiff then brought the present suit for a declaration that the house was not saleable in execution of the defendant's decree:

Held, that the plaintiff, by his auction purchase, acquired no title to the house which could override the rights of the defendant under his mortgage or under his decree. A. KAZMI JAN v. SHIB CHARAN 757

Mortgagee—Tenant—Rent-paying grove mortgaged—Suit for arrears of rent against mortgagor—Mortgagee not made party—Ejectment of mortgagee 676

Mortgagor and mortgagee—Occupancy holding, mortgage of—Void mortgage—Mortgagor, if can eject mortgagee without paying mortgage-money—Landlord and tenant, relation of, if exists between.

A mortgagor of an occupancy holding who has put the mortgagee in possession cannot eject him from the holding, on the ground merely that the mortgage is void under the Tenancy Act, without re-paying the mortgagee the money which he has received from him.

The relation of landlord and tenant does not exist between the mortgagor and the mortgagee, where rent is not payable by the mortgagor nor is there any contract, express or implied, but for which it would be payable. U. P. B. R. RUP SINGH v. Musammat BEERA 490

Muhammadan Law. See PRE-EMPTION.

Divorce—Wife, right of.

Muhammadan Law does not give a wife any authority, except possibly in accordance with a contract entered into at the time of the marriage, to prevent her husband divorcing her by the pronouncing of talak. U. B. HASAN CHANEA v. MI SIN, U. B. R. 1915, II, 53; 16 CR. L. J. 531 659

Dower—Father, whether can be made liable for dower-debt of his son—Majority Act (IX of 1875), s. 2, applicability of.

Section 2 (a) of the Indian Majority Act provides that nothing in that Act shall affect the capacity of any person to act in the matter of dower and the fact that a Mussalman is a minor at the time of his marriage does not take away his liability to pay the dower of his wife.

Where the son was not a minor under the Muhammadan Law at the time of his marriage, his father, in the absence of a contract of guarantee, cannot be made liable for the dower payable by his son simply on the ground that the son has no property. M. SAYABKHAN SANDOJAI v. BEEBEE KHATHOO 587

Muhammadan Law—contd.

Fosterage—*Natural son and foster daughter, marriage between, if legal—Relations of girl, if can question validity of marriage—*Factum valet, principle of, how far applicable.

Under Muhammadan Law the prohibition regarding marriage attaching to a woman's natural son and foster-daughter is absolute, and not conditional upon the birth of the one and the suckling of the other occurring within any limited period.

It is not lawful for a female to marry any of the sons of the woman who has suckled her, because they are her brothers by fosterage.

Where the paternal relations of a girl brought a suit questioning the validity of the girl's marriage within four months of the marriage, and it appeared that the guardian of the girl had been abusing his position as guardian:

Held, that there was no error in granting the plaintiffs' prayer and allowing the plaintiffs to question the validity of the marriage.

The principle of factum valet does not render good in law a marriage which ought not in law to have been celebrated. C. JANAB ALI MIA v. NAZAMADDIN PRADHANIA, 19 C. W. N. 897 871

Gift — Necessity for delivery of possession—Minor, donee—Donor, de facto guardian—Gift of land—Delivery of possession how to be proved—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 6 (a), 43—Transferor representing himself to be an absolute owner when he is not—Subsequent acquisition of title by inheritance—Transfer, validity of.

Where the transferor represents himself to be absolute owner of the property transferred, when he is not, and on a date subsequent to the transfer, acquires title to such property by inheritance, the transfer is not a transfer spes successionis and invalid under section 6 (a) of the Transfer of Property Act but is one under section 43 of the Transfer of Property Act and is enforceable against the transferor.

The principle of section 43 of the Transfer of Property Act applies equally both to sales and mortgages.

Under Muhammadan Law, it is essential for the validity of a gift that there should be a transfer both of ownership and possession. What this possession is, is a question of fact in each case. Where the donor is the de facto guardian of the minor donee, a mere declaration of intention to hold the property on behalf of the minor is quite sufficient. But it is necessary that the person in whose possession the property is must be in a position to act on behalf of the owner; where he is not, the declaration would be of no effect. Everything depends upon the intention with which possession was held by the donor subsequent to the gift.

Where the property gifted is land, which can be enjoyed by receipt of its produce, possession will be deemed to be in the minor, only when it is shown, that after the gift, he was in receipt and enjoyment of such produce also.

In order that a gift in favour of a minor should be valid, it is not necessary that possession to complete his title must be given to his guardian alone; it is sufficient if there is a trustee who can act on his behalf.

Muhammadan Law—contd.

Where the donor himself is in possession of the property gifted, there must be some act of his, which must show that he intended to hold the property on behalf of the minor; where there is no such act the presumption is that he never intended to make any gift.

It would be inequitable to allow the visible means of a man to be narrowed down by a transaction not evidenced by a contract. M. ALAMANAYAKUNIGARI NABI SAB v. MURUKUTI PAPIAH 439 ——— Marriage—Apostasy, effect of—Motive, immaterial.

Under the Muhammadan Law the fact of either or both of the parties to a Muhammadan marriage renouncing the Muhammadan religion has the effect of dissolving the marriage ipso facto.

If the apostasy is an accomplished fact and if it is not proved to be a colourable transaction, the Court cannot decline to give effect to it because the underlying motive was not a proper one. P. GHAUS v. FAJJI, 123 P. W. R. 1915 857

——— Betrothal contract—Girl breaking betrothal on attaining majority—Non-liability of her guardian for damages.

A Muhammadan girl, after attaining the age of majority, is at perfect liberty to marry any man she likes; and if she then breaks her betrothal contract made by any of her guardians during her minority, neither the guardian nor his representative-in-interest is liable for any damage on account of the breach. P. IMAM DIN v. KAMAL, 82 P. W. R. 1915; 168 P. L. R 1915 750 ——— between a Hanafi and a Shafi girl—Girl's father not consenting—Marriage, if valid—Siyeeba.

Where the marriage ceremony between a Hanafi and a Shafi girl was hurriedly and clandestinely gone through with the knowledge that the girl's father did not and would not consent to it, and to satisfy the Mullah, should that be necessary, the story of her conversion to the Hanafi sect was invented:

Held, that the circumstances under which and the manner in which the so-called marriage was performed were such that the usual presumption in favour of its validity could not be made;

that it was invalid for want of consent of the girl's father;

that under Shafi Law a woman who under any circumstances had connection with a man became Siyeeba. L. B. FAHIMA BI v. MAHAMED SALEH, 8 L. B. R. 54 866

——— Succession—Heirs deceased Muhammadan—Tenants-in-common—Heir, one, right of, when barred—Adverse possession—Knowledge—Execution suit for share—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 120, 144, when applicable.

To a suit brought by one of the heirs to recover his share of the estate left by a Muhammadan who died intestate, Article 144 of the Limitation Act is applicable if the property is immoveable, but if it is moveable, Article 120 is applicable.

The heirs of a deceased Muhammadan take as tenants-in-common and the right of one heir to a share will not become barred, unless and until the other heirs set up an adverse right to the knowledge of that heir. Mere intention on their part will not affect the character of possession, nor is the heir bound to inquire whether there has been an adverse dealing with his property.

Where the other heirs are in entire charge of property, the heir sought to be excluded is not bound to assure himself that he is not excluded from inheritance and that his interests will not be looked after by them.

The right of an heir to claim interest arises only from the date when he makes a demand and that is met by a refusal. M. MARIAN BEEVIAMMAL v. KADIR MEERA SAHIB TARAGAN 275

——— Waqf property—Mutawalli, right of, to partition—Arrangement between Mutawallis as to enjoyment of inam lands—Right to question arrangement—Proper course—No Mutawalli—Court, jurisdiction of, how exercised—Suit for possession, maintainability of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 92, applicability of.

There is no power in the mutawalli of a mosque to effect a partition of the land belonging to a mosque and where he purports to do this, his act is illegal.

Where there is an alienation of the waqf property anybody interested in its due administration may question it, though he is not the mutawalli and not entitled to be put into possession of the property.

The texts of Muhammadan Law ordinarily contemplate only one mutawalli, but when two or more persons are appointed with the intention that they should jointly administer a single waqf—and there is nothing to prevent such an appointment—their position would be similar to that of any other body of co-trustees. A "partition" between them would not affect their legal position or joint responsibility.

Where there is a waqf and no person is lawfully administering it, the Court can designate a person who, in accordance with the terms of the dedication, is entitled to act as mutawalli or, if there is no waqfnamah, it can appoint somebody as mutawalli and for the proper administration of the waqf can remove a mutawalli.

Such jurisdiction can be exercised only by "directions necessary for the administration" of the trust.

A person without instituting a suit under section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code cannot seek to oust from possession, persons who claim to hold as trustees. M. MAHOMED GHOUSE v. MOIDEEN SIDDIKH, 18 M. L. T. 48 849

Murder. See PENAL CODE, ss. 299, 300.

Mutation—Oudh taluqa—Law of primogeniture—History of estate—Will of doubtful validity—Stranger—Male collateral.

An Oudh taluqa had always descended, until the death of one S, strictly according to the law of primogeniture to the nearest male relative. Under a Will of S, at first his mother and upon his mother's death his daughter succeeded to the taluqa. Upon the daughter's death her husband claimed the estate under an alleged Will of his deceased wife:

Held, that having regard to the past history of the estate it should not be mutated in favour of an utter stranger on the basis of an alleged Will, until its validity was established in a Civil Court

Mutation—concld.

but should be mutated in favour of the nearest male collateral of S, who appeared to be the person best entitled to the property. U. P. B. R. SITLA BUX SINGH v. GAJRAJ SINGH 651

Mutwalli, right of. See PARTITION.

——— Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 92, scope of reliefs under—Mutwalli, appointment of, by founder—Mutwalli, when and how can resign mutwalliship—Appointment by founder, how far affects original deed of wakf.

Where the plaintiff does not claim any of the reliefs under section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure and does not ask the Court to appoint him a mutwalli, but only asks to declare that he is the rightful mutwalli, and where the defendant is not sued for recovery of possession:

Held, that the suit is incompetent.

A mutwalli who is not himself the appropriator cannot renounce and appoint another mutwalli.

If the mutwalli appointed by the founder says, "I resign my mutwallishíp," this declaration has no effect unless it is made in the presence of the founder or the Cadi, who would thereupon remove him.

An appointment of mutwalli by the founder cannot enure against the express terms of the original deed of wakf and must terminate with the life of the wakif. C. ABDUL GHAFOOR MIAH v. ALTAF HOSAIN 423

Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881), ss. 9, 32, 56, 59—Promissory note, maker of, liability of—Continuing security—Indorsements, effects of—Fraud, person liable for.

The maker of a promissory note undertakes and is bound to pay at its maturity according to its apparent tenor.

A promissory note payable on demand is regarded as a continuing security.

Indorsements of payment may be made on a negotiable instrument under section 56 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, (XXVI of 1881) and the note then becomes negotiable only for the balance due but if no indorsement is made, the note remains negotiable for the full amount expressed on it.

If the payee commits fraud by transferring the note for the full value without informing the indorsee that some payments have been made, the person to suffer by the fraud is the person who by his omission to insist on his payments being indorsed on the note enabled the fraud to be committed. L. B. VITHALDAS KHANDAS v. INDRAVELLU, 8 BUR. L. T. 161 936

——— ——— ——— Material alteration—Promissory note—Finding—Revision.

In a suit on a promissory note one of the defences was that the document had been materially altered and as such could not be the basis of a suit. The Small Cause Court Judge did not record any definite finding as to the note being materially altered and decreed the plaintiff's suit on the ground that even if the note was executed on the date alleged, the suit was within time by reason of the payment of interest within time:

Held, that as the promissory note was not payable to the plaintiff or his order, it was not a negotiable instrument within the meaning of section 87 of the Negotiable Instruments Act—concld.

Negotiable Instruments Act and justice having been done between the parties, it was not proper for the High Court to interfere in revision and remand the case for a finding as to material alteration. A. MAKHDUM BAKHSH v. SHAUKAT ALI, 13 A. L. J. 683 1008

——— ——— ——— s. 32 936

——— ——— ——— s. 37—Pro-note—Joint promisors, liability of—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 92—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 44, 134.

The executants of a pro-note should be regarded as principal debtors under section 37 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, in the absence of a contract to the contrary. In such a case section 44 of the Contract Act applies and the plaintiff's relinquishment of his claim against one does not involve a discharge of the other. L. B. VELLIAN CHETTY v. WOOMIDY VIRAMAH 760

——— ——— ——— s. 56 936

——— ——— ——— s. 78—Promissory note—Suit by beneficial owner, whether maintainable.

A person who is entitled to the possession of a promissory note in his own name is alone entitled to sue upon it whether the instrument be negotiable or not. A. DORI LAL v. SEWAK RAM, 13 A. L. J. 695 988

——— ——— ——— s. 87 1008

——— ——— ——— s. 359 936

Non-transferable occupancy holding—Sale of, effect of 734

North-Western Provinces Rent Act (XVIII of 1873)—Compensation—Improvements—Thekadar, whether a tenant—Thekadar's right to make improvements and claim compensation.

The appellant held certain land as a thekadar under a lease of 1859, which provided that he should make bandhis and establish hamlets. The zemindar brought the present suit for ejectment and the thekadar-appellant claimed compensation for improvements made by him before 1880:

Held, that the claim was governed by the provisions of the N.-W. Provinces Rent Act, XVIII of 1873, which allowed compensation for improvements to a tenant, but did not define the term 'tenant', and that it not being clear whether a 'thekadar' was entitled to get compensation under that section, his claim must be dismissed. U. P. B. R. DILAWAR BUX v. DATA DIN 478

Notice. See CENTRAL PROVINCES MUNICIPAL ACT, s. 66 (5); OUDH RENT ACT, s. 107E (b).

Occupancy holding, mortgage of, validity of—Mortgagor, if can eject mortgagee without payment of money 490 ——— ——— ——— —Mortgage before Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901)—Relinquishment after Act, effect of.

Where an occupancy holding was usufructuarily mortgaged for good consideration before the passing of the Agra Tenancy Act and where the mortgagor after passing of the Act relinquished the holding to defeat the mortgagee's rights:

Held, that the relinquishment was ineffectual against the mortgagee. A. BIRJ KUMAR LAL v. SHEO KUMAR MISSIR, 13 A. L. J. 649 215

Occupancy holding—concld.

——— ——— ———, if can be sold—Co-sharer landlord decree-holder, position of Holding not to be sold, if raiyat objects—Transfer, involuntary, of whole or part of holding, how far valid.

An occupancy holding which is not saleable by custom or usage cannot be sold in execution of a decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord for his share of the rent, and in this respect a co-sharer landlord is in the same position as an ordinary executing creditor.

A raiyat is entitled to have a sale of his holding in execution of a money-decree set aside after it takes place, and the holding cannot be sold in execution of such a decree where the raiyat objects to the sale before it takes place.

A non-transferable occupancy holding is not a saleable property.

The principle deducible from the decision in Dayamoyi v. Ananda Mohan Roy Chowdhury, 27 Ind. Cas. 61; 20 C. L. J. 52; 42 C. 172; 18 C. W. N. 971 (F. B.), is applicable to an involuntary transfer of the whole as well as of a part of the holding.

A co-sharer landlord is not entitled to sell the whole or part of the occupancy holding of the raiyat in execution of a decree obtained by him against the raiyat. C. BADARENNESSA v. ALAM GAZI, 19 C. W. N. 814; 21 C. L. J. 650 877

——— ——— ———Suit for declaration of title between rival tenants—Landlord not party to suit—Civil or Revenue Court—Jurisdiction.

A suit between rival claimants to an occupancy holding, to which the landlord is no party, for a declaration of title or in the alternative for possession is cognizable by a Civil Court. A. INAYAT-UN-NISSA v. SALIM-UN-NISSA 568

Occupancy right, acquisition of. See AGRA TENANCY ACT, s. 11.

——— ——— ———, non-transferability of. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 49.

——— ——— ——— in accretion, acquisition of—Limitation 37

Oudh Rent Act (XII of 1881), s. 9—Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901*), s.* 22*—Male occupancy tenant dying while Rent Act in force—Succession by widow—Widow dying after Tenancy Act came in force—Succession—Brother's right to succeed without proving sharing in cultivation.*

The plots in suit along with other plots were the joint holding of three brothers R, J and K, who separated in the life-time of K and a division of holding took place. K died while the Rent Act was in force and was succeeded by his widow who died after the coming into force of the Tenancy Act. Upon the widow's death, R and the son of J who had died claimed the holding.

Held, that the widow having died while the new Act was in force, succession was governed by section 22 of the Tenancy Act and not by section 9 of the Rent Act and that R was, therefore, entitled to succeed his brother K without any sharing in cultivation being proved.

But the son of J not having co-shared in cultivation with K at the latter's death could not succeed to the holding. U. P. B. R. RAMANAND RAI v. MUHAMMAD ABDUL BASHAR 548

Oudh Rent Act (XXII of 1886), s. 5—Occupancy rights—Mortgage, if loss of proprietary rights—Foreclosure, effect of—Loss of proprietary rights after annexation—Accrual of occupancy rights.

Under section 5 of the Oudh Rent Act, occupancy rights arise only when there has been a complete loss of proprietary rights and do not arise when the proprietor retains part of his proprietary rights, as in the case of a mortgage. In the case of a mortgage, complete loss of proprietary rights occurs only when a decree for foreclosure is obtained.

Occupancy rights arise under section 5 of the Oudh Rent Act, XXII of 1886, not only in favour of those proprietors who have lost their proprietary rights before the date of annexation of Oudh (13th day of February 1856), but also in favour of those who have so lost their rights between that date and 24th day of August 1866. U. P. B. R. MATA PRASAD v. SHEO RAJ KUAR 401

——— ——— S. 5, occupancy rights, claim of, under—Proprietary rights—Inconsistent claims—Relinquishment of under-proprietary rights, effect of—Portion added to holding not insignificant part of holding, effect of.

Occupancy rights cannot be decreed under section 5 of the Oudh Rent Act in favour of persons in whose favour is also decreed a prima facie claim to under-proprietary rights.

The mere fact that sub-settlement was refused with the ancestors of the appellants, does not affect their under-proprietary rights in the land held as sir or nankar but if they made a petition relinquishing all claims to the village and to sir and nankar the petition is fatal to the appellants' claim as under-proprietors but it cannot affect their claim to occupancy rights in land in which those rights have been established.

Selected Decision No. 2 of 1912 does not apply to cases where the portion added to a holding is not an insignificant part of the total, and when there is nothing to show that there has not been any alteration in the rent after it came under cultivation. U. P. B. R. BABOO RAM TEWARI v. BHAGWAN BUX SINGH 653

——— ——— S. 5—'Qabzadari,' meaning of—Right of occupancy.

The word "qabzadari" in a decree made at the last Settlement is not to be invariably construed to mean right of occupancy. The meaning to be attached to the term must be ascertained from a careful consideration of the claim made before, and the judgment recorded by the Settlement Officer.

Where, therefore, the Settlement Officer's finding was that the appellant's ancestors were never the proprietors of the village but had been treated as proprietors on the strength of many years' possession of the village as lessees:

Held, that the appellant could not be deemed to possess a right of occupancy under section 5 of Oudh Rent Act. U. P. B. R. RAM DIAL v. BISHNATH SINGH 653

——— ——— S. 32 (1)—Application for appraisement of produce—Notice not issued, effect of—Award by amin, legality of.

Where a Court receiving an application for the appraisement of produce ordered the kurk amin to appraise the crops without issuing to the opposite party the notice required by section 32 (1) of the Oudh Rent Act:

Oudh Rent Act—(1886)—contd.

Held, that the order of appraisement was illegal and consequently the award by the amin was null and void. U. P. B. R. MAHABIR v. RAMESHWAR BURE SINGH 475

——— ——— ——— ss. 33, 79—Tenant holding under a heritable, non-transferable lease—Enhancement or alteration of rent.

Where a tenant holds a lease of sir land under a heritable but non-transferable lease, the rent of such a tenant cannot be enhanced under section 33 of the Oudh Rent Act, but it can be altered under section 79 of the Land Revenue Act at the time of Settlement. U. P. B. R. INDARDAWAN SINGH v. JAGDUTT SINGH 571

——— ——— ——— s. 55—Notice of ejectment—Proper rent not specified—Court-fee paid sufficient—Land from which ejectment sought, not specified—Notice, if defective.

Where a notice of ejectment issued under section 55, Oudh Rent Act, 1886, did not specify the proper rent payable for the holding, but the Court-fee paid in respect thereof was sufficient to cover the proper and actual rent:

Held, that the notice was not defective, inasmuch as section 55 only requires that the notice shall specify the land from which the tenant is to be ejected. U. P. B. R. UDIT MISIR v. MUHAMMAD MEHDI ALI KHAN, 2 O. L. J. 298 656

——— ——— s. 79 571

——— ——— ——— s. 107A, applicabililty of—Land held at favourable rate of rent—Grant.

Section 107A of the Oudh Rent Act does not apply to such lands as are held not under a grant, but in which the rate of rent is accidentally favourable to the tenant. U. P. B. R. RAGHUBAR v. THAKUR DIN 510

——— ——— ——— s. 107B — Rent-free grant—Judicial decision—Assessment of revenue.

In a suit for assessment of revenue on a holding held rent-free in consideration of the surrender by the grantee of the previous proprietary rights there were upon record the judgments of 1865 of the Assistant Settlement Officer and Settlement Officer finding that the grantee was entitled to be maintained in rent-free possession of the land without payment of revenue:

Held, that the judgments were judicial decisions within the meaning of section 107B of the Oudh Rent Act, and that the grantee was entitled to hold the land rent-free. U. P. B. R. ZAIN ALI v. TASADDUQ RASUL KHAN 552

——— ——— ——— s. 107E (b)—Notice to resume land—Specific service not mentioned—Notice, defective, effect of.

In a notice issued under section 107E (b), it is essential that the specific service which the proprietor no longer requires should be specifically mentioned, otherwise, the notice is defective and invalid. U. P. B. R. MAHARAJA OF BALRAMPUR v. PIRTHIPAL 547

——— ——— ——— s. 108 (5)—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 209—Agent—Accounts, suit for—Representative of deceased landlord, when can sue—Jurisdiction of Civil and Revenue Court.

The representative of a deceased landlord can sue the agent employed by the former when alive for rendition of accounts of the period of his agency, and such a suit is cognizable by a Revenue Court. U. P. B. R. RAM SINGH v. INDER BAHÁDUR SINGH 679

Oudh Rent Act—(1886)—concld.

——— ——— ——— ss. 108 (8), 126 (1) 297

——— ——— ——— s. 126 (1)—Lambardar collecting rent—Right to eject.

Where there is no specific and definite evidence on record to show that any co-sharer other than the lambardar collects rent of a definite portion of a holding, Selected Decision No. 2 of 1910 will not apply and the lambardar alone will be entitled to eject tenants by notice. U. P. B. R. BABU RAM v. JALPA SINGH 569

——— ——— ——— s. 129—Mortgage of sir before 1901—Sale of equity of redemption in 1905—Mortgagors minors—Ex-proprietary rights claimed by mother of minors—Mother's claim wrongly disallowed—No appeal preferred—Subsequent suit for declaration of ex-proprietary rights.

The sir land in dispute was mortgaged before the passing of the Tenancy Act. In 1905 its equity of redemption was sold to one D, who applied for mutation in his favour. The mortgagors were four minor brothers and their mother on their behalf claimed ex-proprietary rights in the course of mutation proceedings. The Tahsildar rejected the claim in 1906, but his order was not objected to or appealed against and after that most of the land then claimed passed out of the possession of the four brothers. In 1913, two of the brothers on their own behalf as well as on behalf of the other two brothers who were still minors sued for a declaration of their ex-proprietary rights in the whole land:

Held, that inasmuch as the ex-proprietary rights arose in 1905 at the time of the sale of the equity of redemption and on their being disallowed by the Tahsildar, though wrongly, his order was not appealed against, the present claim was barred by section 129 of the Oudh Rent Act.

Obiter dictum.—Section 36 (3) is not very clear when it says that a case shall be referred to the Collector when ex-proprietary rights have been created, not where they have been claimed. U. P. B. R. PITAM SINGH v. DEBI PRASAD 675

Partition. See HINDU LAW.

——— ——— Common land—Tirni or grazing dues payment of, by person not proprietor paying land revenue—Proprietary right, if conferred.

The payment of tirni (grazing dues) by a person who is not a proprietor paying land revenue does not confer upon him any right to share in the shamilat or common land of a patti. P. C. BAGGA v. SALEH, 19 C. W. N. 1023; 29 M. L. J. 137; 2 L. W. 706 1005

——— ——— Co-parceners—One co-parcener in possession of house site—Proper decree 183

——— ——— Co-tenancy—Subordinate interest, acquisition of, by one co-tenant, effect of—Partition, meaning of.

Where A and B are in joint possession as joint owners, each is ordinarily entitled to claim partition against the other, and it is no valid answer to a claim for partition by A that B has acquired a subordinate interest over the whole property.

Partition—concld.

Property held in co-tenancy may be partitioned by suit and the only essential is that the property sought to be partitioned is held in co-tenancy.

Partition is the process by which property held by two or more persons in co-tenancy is converted into estates in severalty and thereby divided among them, with the result that the land which before partition was held and enjoyed jointly, is after partition held and enjoyed by the different parties according to the allotments made by Court. C. KALI CHURN v. MOHANANDA DATTA 467

———, entries made in course of, binding effect of—Meaning of 'ghair maurusi 13 years' and 'khud kasht 19 years'.

The parties to a partition are bound by the entries made in the course of partition. The entry 'ghair maurusi 13 years' would not mean an occupancy tenure but a non-occupancy one as the emphasis is on the nature of the tenure. Similarly, 'khudkasht 19 years' means a non-occupancy tenure and cannot mean an ex-proprietary tenure. U. P. B. R. MAR ASRA CHAUDHRI v. BISHAN CHAUDHRI 559 ———, suit for—Collection of rent by one of defendants subsequent to suit—Account—Procedure—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908*), s.* 47 (2).

Where in a partition suit it is alleged that one of the defendants collected rents of houses, the subject of suit, subsequent to the suit and the application is made to include that amount in the accounts between the parties, the proper course is not to treat the application as one for execution of the partition decree, but to treat it as a suit under section 47 (2) of the Code of Civil Procedure and to levy additional Court-fee thereon and to direct the parties to submit a true and correct account of the rents and profits collected. M. GOVINDA CHETTY v. DORAISWAMI CHETTY 905

——— decree—Execution—Division by casting lots, legality of—Equitable rule 245

Partnership. See CONTRACT.

——— Contribution, suit for—Co-partners, liability of, for debts—Contract Act (IX of 1872*), s.* 43*—Second appeal—New defence, if can be set up.*

Though partners are jointly liable to third persons a partner who pays more than his share of the partnership debt, whether voluntarily or not, is entitled to contribution from his co-partners.

Where the plaintiff and the defendants, members of a partnership firm, borrowed money in their individual capacity and were sued as such by their creditor and the decree obtained by the latter was executed not against the partnership property, but against the private property of the plaintiff alone:

Held, that the payment by the plaintiff to the decree-holder really signified that he had in substance been called upon to supply the entire capital, although the initial arrangement between the parties was that the capital should be furnished by all the share-holders in equal proportion, and that, therefore, a suit for contribution was maintainable.

In second appeal a defendant cannot be permitted to make a new case which involves the investigation of facts. C. LABAN SARDAR v. CHOYEN MALLICK, 19 C. W. N. 768 811

Partnership—concld.

———, dissolution of—Receiver, appointment of—Purpose.

The usual way of guarding the divergent interests of the partners when they fall out is by appointing a Receiver and ordering the good-will of the business and stock-in-trade to be sold, the partners being at liberty to bid at the sale. L. B. DOVER, E. F. v. DOVER, E. S., 8 BUR. L. T. 57 684

———Sale of excisable articles—Contract, legality of 480

——— firm—Acknowledgment of debt—Receiver, acknowledgment by, how far affords starting date for fresh period of limitation—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 19 27

Party—Mortgage—Representation—Mitakshara family—Redemption, equity of, member of Mitakshara family having interest in—Failure to produce that member before Court, effect of—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 85, scope of 752

Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911), ss. 26, 28—Petition for revocation of patent—Burden of proof.

In a petition under section 26 of the Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911) for revocation of a patent, the onus lies heavily on the petitioner to show that the respondent is not the true and first inventor of the invention. P. THAKAR DAS v. SHAH DIN, 74 P. W. R. 1915; 148 P. L. R. 1915 904

——— s. 28 904

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 59 826

——— ss. 75, 59—Sentence—Transportation for life or for ten years.

Under section 75 of the Indian Penal Code, the Court, if it awards a sentence of transportation, must sentence the convict to transportation for life.

In lieu, however, of such sentence it may sentence the convict to imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years, and under the provisions of section 59 of the Code, it may, in every case in which the offender is punishable with imprisonment for a term of seven years or upwards, instead of awarding sentence of imprisonment, sentence the offender to transportation for a term not less than seven years, and not exceeding the term for which under the Code such offender is liable to imprisonment. P. MUHAMMAD SHARIF v. EMPEROR, 14 P. R 1915 CR.; 16 CR. L. J. 554; 29 P. W. R. 1915 CR. 826

——— ss. 99, 141, 149—Right to defend immoveable property—Person in possession, whether can use force—Test of criminality—Resistance to aggressor, right of.

Every person has a right, subject to the restrictions contained in section 99, Indian Penal Code, to defend his immoveable property.

Once a man is in possession of his own property, he is entitled to use force to defend it.

In cases where a free fight has taken place for the possession of certain property between two parties, the test of criminality is—was accused in possession or not in possession at the time when the alleged offence was committed.

Penal Code—contd.

It is no offence under section 149, Indian Penal Code, to resist an aggressor unless the aggression be in execution of the law or of some legal process.

Where the accused and his party were entitled to enter upon certain land and to reap the crop and the complainant with his party came upon the scene to remonstrate and (presumably also) to prevent them from reaping the crop, and a fight took place in which persons on both sides were injured:

Held, that the primary object of the accused party having been to retain possession of the land and to reap the crop, and not to obtain possession of any property or "to enforce any right or supposed right," they were not guilty of committing any criminal offence by the mere entry on the land or by defending the accused's property against aggression. S. LASHKARI KHAN v. EMPEROR, 8 S. L. R. 34"; 16 CR. L. J. 536 664

——— ss. 109, 352—Inducing others to beat without taking part—Abetment.

A person who merely says "beat" but does not take any part himself, can only be convicted of abetment of an offence under section 352 of the Penal Code. M. MIR HYDER SAHEB, In re, 16 CR. L. J. 456 88

——— ss. 120A, 120B—Criminal conspiracy, person when guilty of.

Sections 120A and 120B did not find a place in the Indian Penal Code, before the 27th March 1913, when Act VIII of 1913 became law; and, therefore, persons accused under section 120B cannot be convicted, unless the prosecution establishes that the accused were members of a conspiracy after the 27th March 1913. C. AMRIT LAL HAZRA v. EMPEROR, 21 C. L. J. 331; 19 C. W. N. 676; 16 CR. L. J. 497 513

——— s. 120B 513

——— s. 141 664

——— ss. 148, 149—Members of unlawful assembly—Only one member possessed of gun—Persons not in possession of any gun, offence committed by—Several offences—Acquittal of some of them—Sentence, reduction of.

Where of the several persons charged with rioting armed with a deadly weapon only one is proved to have been possessed of a gun, it is illegal to convict others who had no such dangerous weapon of an offence under section 149 of the Indian Penal Code.

Where there has been an acquittal of the accused of some of the offences of which they were convicted, there must be a proportionate reduction in the sentences also. M. CHOITANO RANTO, In re, 16 CR. L. J. 446 78

——— ss. 149 78, 664

——— ss. 149, 302—Assault—Death caused by assault—Common object—Offence.

In an attempt to rescue certain cattle from being driven to the pound one of the persons of the accused party ordered the others to use their lathis and beat the other party. The lathis were at once used with the result that one of the opponents died:

Held, that the offence was committed in furtherance of the common object of the party and each one of the accused was guilty of an offence under section 302 of the Penal Code. A. RASUL KHAN v. EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 470; 16 CR. L. J. 459 91

Penal Code—contd.

——— s. 182 89

——— s. 189 109

——— s. 209 71

——— s. 215—Cow lost from grazing ground—Taking money and promising to return cow, whether constitutes offence.

In order to constitute an offence under section 215, Indian Penal Code, it is necessary that the moveable property in question should have been taken out of the possession of some person by means of an offence punishable under the Code.

Where, therefore, the complainant's cow was lost from the grazing ground and the accused took Rs. 12 from him and promised to return the cow in ten days' time, but did not do so and subsequently refused to return either the cow or the money:

Held, that as there was no proof that any offence had been committed in respect of the cow, the accused could not be convicted under section 215, Indian Penal Code. P. SHARFA v. EMPEROR, 9 P. R. 1915 CR.; 16 CR. L. J. 541 669

——— ss. 217, 411—Police Officer retaining property found in search for theft—Property not part of stolen property—Offence—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 523—Failure to report.

A Police constable, who retained for himself a piece of gold found in a search for stolen property but not proved to be part of the stolen property and failed to report his possession to his superior officers under section 523 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, is guilty of an offence under section 217 of the Penal Code. M. B. DASAPPA, In re, 16 CR. L. J. 453 85

——— s 283—Obstruction left on public road—Obstruction likely to be caused—Inference—Individual obstruction, proof of, necessity of.

Where a prabha left lying in a public road could not fail to cause obstruction to any person who had occasion to pass along that road:

Held, that though obstruction to any individual was not expressly proved, it was a matter of necessary inference. M. VENKAPPA, In re, 38 M. 305; 16 CR. L. J. 560 832

——— ss 299, 300 (3), 304—Murder, culpable homicide not amounting to—Injuries inflicted not sufficient but likely to cause death—Offence.

Where the injuries proved to have been inflicted were found not sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, but quite likely to have produced death:

Held, that the offence committed did not amount to murder, but only to culpable homicide not amounting to murder. S. DARHOON v. EMPEROR, 8 S. L. R. 337; 16 CR. L. J. 472 104

——— s. 300 (3) 104

——— s. 300 (3)—Murder—Medical opinion based on misconception of facts, value of—Injury likely to cause death.

A Medical Officer's opinion that the injuries inflicted were not serious, which is based upon a misconception

Penal Code—contd.

of facts, should be disregarded when the evidence shows that the injuries inflicted were one inch deep and they pierced the pleura, which, in the ordinary course of events, is sufficient to cause death. M. PUBLIC PROSECUTOR v. THANDAVAN CHETTY, 16 CR. L. J. 543 671

——— ——— s. 302 91

——— ——— s. 304 104

——— ——— s. 307—Discharging loaded gun from short distance—Causing injuries which might have proved fatal—Offence.

A person intentionally discharging a loaded gun at another from a short distance inflicting injuries which might have proved fatal is guilty of an offence under section 307 of the Indian Penal Code, and not merely of causing grievous hurt. M. PUBLIC PROSECUTOR v. KOLANGARET IMBICHIKUTTAM, 16 CR. L. J. 543 670

——— ——— s. 307—Infliction of many incised wounds on head—Inference—Murderous intent—Benefit of doubt.

A culprit who inflicts 10 incised wounds on the body of a person, most of which are aimed at his head, must be credited with murderous intent.

Where several persons profess to be eye-witnesses standing at a short distance from the scene of the crime but fail to explain satisfactorily why none of them did not come to the rescue of the injured man, the probability is that they did not see the assault. In such a case the evidence of the complainant should be accepted with reservations and the benefit of the doubt should be given to those against whom it is not sufficiently corroborated. P. GAYAN SINGH v. EMPEROR, 13 P. W. R. 1915; 132 P. L. R. 1915 94

——— ——— ss. 323, 332—Excise Inspector searching house—Irregularities—Public servant—Discharge of duty—Hurt caused to Inspector—Offence.

An Excise Inspector in searching the house of the applicant on the suspicion that he might find there cocaine committed a number of irregularities in conducting this search. He had no warrant authorizing him to make the search. He brought with him only one search witness and directed a constable to scale the outer wall of the house. The accused caused hurt to the Inspector and the constables:

Held, that the Inspector and the constables were not acting in the discharge of their duties as public servants and that, therefore, the accused were not guilty under section 332 but only under section 323 of the Penal Code. A. MUKHTAR AHMAD v. EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 439; 37 A. 353; 16 CR. L. J. 495 335

——— ——— s. 332 335

——— ——— ss. 337, 338—Hakim performing operation on eyelids—Ordinary precautions not taken—Acting rashly and negligently—Hurt—Offence—Hakim giving himself out as skilled operator, liability of.

The accused, a Hakim, performed an operation on the outer side of the upper lid of the right eye of the complainant. The instruments used were a pair of scissors and a needle, which would be ordinarily used by a tailor and not by an eye-surgeon. The wound was sutured with an ordinary thread. The most ordinary precautions were entirely neglected. The operation was needless and was not in accordance with any recognized Indian method:

Held, that the accused acted so rashly and negligently as to endanger human life or the personal safety of another; that as there was not the permanent privation of the sight of either eye in consequence of the operation the accused was guilty of an offence under section 337, Indian Penal Code, and not under section 338, Indian Penal Code.

Where a Hakim gives out that he is a skilled operator and charges considerable fees, the public are entitled to the ordinary precautions which surgical knowledge regards as imperative. B GULAM HYDER PANJABI v. EMPEROR, 17 BOM. L. R. 384; 16 CR. L. J. 437 69

——— ——— s. 338 69

——— ——— s. 352 88

——— ——— ss. 378, ills. (a), 425—Theft—Trees, cutting of, to annoy—Offence—Mischief.

Theft of trees will be committed only when they were cut to remove them from the possession of the owner, and not when the cutting was merely to annoy him. The act will amount only to mischief. M. In re, KUTTIATH ODAYOTH VEETIL KOMAR NAMBIAR, 16 CR. L. J. 544 672

——— ——— s. 379—Accused found in possession of skin of missing goat—Charge of theft—Identification doubtful—Verdict of Jury, when can be set aside—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 307 (3).

When the accused was found in possession of two freshly flayed skins of a goat and kid within 24 hours of the theft and was charged under section 379 of the Penal Code:

Held (Spencer, J., dissenting), (1) that it was absolutely necessary for the prosecution to establish that the skins found on the accused were those of the goats recently stolen;

(2) that as the prosecution witnesses had not seen the skins for more than three weeks after the theft, the Jury were not wrong in holding that the identification was suspicious;

(3) that the accused was entitled to the benefit of the doubt and ought to be acquitted.

It is not necessary to show that the verdict of a Jury is perverse and manifestly unreasonable before the High Court can set it aside, but as the Jury are Judges of fact, before their verdict is set aside, it must be established that the conclusion come to by them does not follow from the evidence recorded in the case. M. In re IRULA SADAYAN, 16 CR. L. J. 440 72

——— ——— s. 405 671

——— ——— s. 409—Managing Director of Bank borrowing money in his own name—Subsequent transfer of liability to Bank, whether amounts to criminal breach of trust—Adequacy of motive.

The accused, the Managing Director of the Hindustan Bank, executed in favour of the Amritsar Bank, four hundis for an aggregate sum of Rs. 5,000 payable six months after date and after deducting the discount he received the balance Rs: 4,772-11 and got it credited in his floating account with the Hindustan Bank. Some months before due date the accused caused entries to be made in the books of the Hindustan Bank by which the liability for re-payment on the date of maturity of the hundis was transferred from himself to the Hindustan Bank:

Penal Code—contd.

Held, (1) that the prosecution had failed to prove that the accused was guilty of the offence of criminal breach of trust;

(2) that the motive for the crime was under the circumstances of the case wholly inadequate;

(3) that the evidence on the record led to the inference that the loan was contracted ab initio for the Hindustan Bank for meeting immediate or prospective demands. P DAULAT RAI v. EMPEROR, 24 P. W. R. 1915 CR; 162 P. L. R. 1915; 16 CR. L. J. 54 86

——— — ss. 409, 477A—Debtor executing hundi in favour of Bank—Managing Director paying off his own debt in discounting hundi, whether amounts to criminal misappropriation—Falsification of document.

A debtor of the Hindustan Bank executed in its avour certain hundis for Rs. 30,000 payable after six months. The Bank being in need of ready money the Managing Director, the accused in the case, asked the Co-operative Bank to discount the hundis. But the Bank refused to do so unless the Director cleared his own account with it. In order to secure ready money the accused brought forward his own son, who put in an application for a loan from the Hindustan Bank for the exact amount of the accused's debt to the Co-operative Bank. The accused sanctioned the loan as agent on the security of his own moneys in the hands of the Hindustan Bank and then cleared his debit balance with the Co-operative Bank. This transaction formed the subject of the charges under sections 409 and 477A of the Penal Code:

Held, (1) that the prosecution had failed to establish the charge of criminal misappropriation inasmuch as the accused, in his anxiety to secure ready money for his Bank, chose a method which could not be said to have injured it;

(2) that the prosecution had failed to prove that the application of the accused's son for loan and the accused's order thereon of sanction were really ante-dated and the charge of falsification of documents could not, therefore, be sustained. P. DAULAT RAI v. EMPEROR, 25 P. W. R. 1915 CR.; 164 P. L. R. 1915; 16 CR. L. J. 443 75

——— ss. 409, 477A—Managing Director of Bank deceiving share-holders as to the real profits—Wrongful personal gain—Falsification of balance sheet—Balance sheet, whether a "writing" within the meaning of the section—Compensation to share-holders—Companies Act (VI of 1882), s. 214.

Where the accused, the Managing Director of the Hindustan Bank, wishing the Bank to make a better show than the real facts of its working would warrant, in order to maintain the confidence of the share-holders and the public and so to make possible a project for increasing largely the Bank's capital, on the 17th December 1912 got his son to present a pro-note for Rs. 3,000 to the Bank, treated this Rs. 3,000 as a pro tanto addition to the profits for 1912 by reducing on paper to that extent his remuneration account for Rs. 4,050, which he had actually drawn, to Rs. 1,050 and thus deceiving the share-holders at their general meeting in the following March as to the real profits, induced them to declare a dividend of 6 per cent. instead of some 3 per cent. which would otherwise have been the most possible:

Held, (1) that the accused was guilty under section 409 of the Penal Code, because being entrusted with the property of the Bank, he dishonestly used and disposed of some of that property contrary to the Bank's Articles of Association causing the share-holders to declare a dividend larger than the profits warranted;

(2) that both the Managing Director and the Manager of the Head Office were guilty under section 477A of the Penal Code as they had "falsified" the balance sheet of 1912 and the books of the Bank by showing as profits Rs. 3,000 which were not profits, the falsification being nontheless complete because they had first manufactured pro-notes, etc., in order to give to the falsified balance sheet and books an appearance of correctness;

(3) that a Bank's balance sheet is a paper or writing belonging to the Bank; and

(4) that the Director was guilty of "misfeasance" "and breach of trust" and by inducing the share-holders to pay a dividend partly out of what was really capital he "misapplied" the Company's money and, therefore, could be compelled by the Court to contribute a reasonable sum by way of compensation. P. DAULAT RAI v. EMPEROR, 23 P. W. R. 1915 CR.; 167 P. L. R. 1915; 16 CR. L. J. 473 105

——— ——— s. 411 85

——— ——— s. 415 65

——— ——— ——— ss. 420, 467—Current coin title to—Proceeds of cheating paid in satisfaction of debt—Right of creditors to retain money—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 517.

Title to money which is current coin of the realm passes by mere delivery to a person who receives it in satisfaction of a lawful debt due to him.

Where, therefore, during the Police investigation of a case under sections 420 and 467 of the Penal Code, it appeared that the accused had delivered over a sum of Rs. 1,168 to his creditors, this money being part of the proceeds of cheating, and the Police recovered it from the creditors:

Held, that the creditors were entitled to the money and that it must be returned to them. P. EMPEROR v. BAIJ NATH, 1 P. R. 1915 CR.; 165 P. L. R. 1915; 16 CR. L. J. 460 92

——— ——— s. 425 672

——— ——— ——— s. 430—Intention to cause wrongful loss essential—Sessions Judge dismissing appeal on reasons given in a theft case—Irregularity.

Where an accused is charged with an offence punishable under section 430, Indian Penal Code, his intention to cause wrongful loss is the essential element to be considered.

Where the Sessions Judge dismissed an appeal against a conviction under section 340 by referring to the reason given in the judgment in a connected case, in which the accused's conviction was upheld under section 379;

Penal Code—concld.

Held, that the Sessions Judge had acted irregularly in not taking into consideraton the intention requisite for constituting an offence under section 430. M. INDRA TALAVAR v. NARASIMHA RAU, 16 CR. L. J. 542 670

——— s. 456—Lurking house trespass—Criminal intent—Burden of proof.

The accused who was a complete stranger was found inside the complainant's house at 2 A. M. in the morning, having entered the house by a door which the complainant had taken care to secure at night. When arrested, the accused said that he had gone inside the house in connection with an illegal intimacy with the complainant's aunt, who was a widow:

Held, that the accused was guilty under section 456 of the Penal Code.

Held, further, that as the intent with which he went inside was a matter within the knowledge of the accused, the burden of proving that his intention was an honest intention lay on him. A MULLA v. EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 625; 37 A. 395; 16 CR. L. J. 435 67

——— s. 467 92

——— ——— s. 477A 75, 105

——— ——— s. 500—Defamatory statement—Publication of libel.

The accused made certain defamatory statements against a Government Official in her petition to the Lieutenant-Governor, and on inquiry she repeated the same statements before two Magistrates on different occasions:

Held, that the statements made before the two Magistrates were the publication of the original defamatory statements made in the memorial to the Lieutenant-Governor and the accused was guilty of three separate publications of the libel. A. JAI DEBI KUAR v. EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 681; 16 CR. L. J. 482 322

——— ——— s. 504 109

Pension rules—Civil Service Regulations, Articles 458, 464, interpretation of—Officer removed from Government service, whether entitled to pension under Article 458 252

Pensions Act (XXIII of 1871), ss. 4, 6—Assignment of Government revenue—Declaration—Power of Civil Court—Jurisdiction.

A Civil Court is precluded from making any declaration that would in any way directly or indirectly affect the liability of Government to pay a grant of Government revenue to any person. A. SECRETARY OF STATE v. JWAHIR LAL, 13 A. L. J. 460; 37 A. 338 146

Permanent lease, grant of, by shebait—Legal necessity—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 134, scope of—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 30, applicability of—Usufructuary mortgage by shebait, effect of.

The grant of a permanent lease without legal necessity is in excess of the powers of the shebait who grants the lease.

Article 134 of the second Schedule to the Limitation Act of 1877 only applies to the purchase of an absolute interest and not to the grant of a permanent lease.

Permanent lease—concld.

In the Limitation Act IX of 1908 the word "transferred" was deliberately inserted in place of the word "purchased", in view of the decisions on the meaning of the word "purchased" in Article 134, Schedule II, of the Limitation Act of 1877.

The grant of a permanent lease at a considerable annual rent is a transfer for valuable consideration.

Section 30 of the Limitation Act, 1908, only applies where there is a period of limitation "prescribed," both by the Act of 1877 and the Act of 1908. Where the plaintiff cannot bring his case under section 30 the suit is barred by limitation under Article 134 of the first Schedule to the Limitation Act of 1908.

In a usufructuary mortgage of a debuttar property in favour of the Raja of Pachete the validity of the mortgage was not questioned:

Held, that it was not open to the shebait to determine, without the Raja's consent, the lease to the defendants, the benefit of which had been expressly assigned by the shebait to the Raja in the usufructuary mortgage to him, and the receipt of rent by the Raja after the institution of the suit proved the existence of the lease at least in the mind of the Raja. C. RAMESHWAR MALIA v. JIU THAKUR, 19 C. W. N. 1082 337

Perpetuities, rule against. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 14.

Plaint, once admitted, whether can be rejected subsequently 410

———, valid presentation of—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 4—Officer authorized to receive plaints absent from head-quarters—Court, whether closed Madras Civil Rules of Practice, r. 14, applicability of 449

Pleadings Adverse possession and tenancy together pleaded—Inconsistent 655

———, amendment of 223

———Fraud, coercion, misrepresentation and undue influence should be separately and specifically pleaded—General allegations insufficient 639

——— Inconsistent with title alleged in complaint, if allowed 865

——— Plea not raised in lower Courts, if allowed in further appeal 761

Possession, constructive, if applies to wrongdoer 156

———, recovery of, suit for—Purchaser's duty to inquire—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 66, scope and meaning of—Benami purchases—Benamidar's position and title - Real owner's powers.

It is bad law to hold that though a purchaser is not bound to inquire whether his vendor is the benamidar for another man, he is bound to ascertain whether or not he is the benamidar of a woman.

Section 66 of the Civil Procedure Code is clearly aimed at benami purchases at execution-sales.

A real purchaser cannot base a suit against his benamidar on the fact of possession.

The clear intention of section 66 of the Code is to stop benami purchases by making it impossible for the real owner to question the benamidar's title. C., HANUMAN PERSAD THAKUR v. JADUNANDAN THAKUR 78

Possession—concld.

— — — — — , recovery of, suit for—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. IX, rr. 8 and 9, scope of —Former dismissal of suit, when bar to future suit.

Where the dismissal of a suit takes place under the provisions of section 102 of the old Code (Order IX, rule 8, of the new Code), the plaintiffs are precluded under Order IX, rule 9, (section 103 of the old Code) from bringing a fresh suit on the same cause of action. C. KALYAN SINGH v. RAM GULAM SINGH 902 — — — — , suit for—Party interested in the equity of redemption not made party in suit on mortgage, right of—Decree to be conditional on payment of mortgage-money.

Where, in a suit for recovery of possession by the plaintiffs, it appeared that they, being interested in the equity of redemption in the property, were omitted from the previous suit whereby the defendants enforced their mortgage:

Held, that the defendants were not entitled to so omit the plaintiffs but that the plaintiffs could not get a decree for possession without any provision as to payment of what may be due under the mortgage to the defendants. C. MOHESH CHANDRA MUKHERJEE v. UMESH CHANDRA GHOSAL 742

— — — , suit for, by person purchasing from one who had no right to sell—Judgment-debtor, right of, to remain in possession until legally evicted.

A person in possession of land is entitled to retain possession of it until some one who can show that he has a good title sues him and gets a decree.

A judgment-debtor whose land has been sold in execution can continue in possession of it until removed by due process of law in execution of the decree. L. B. MOUNG TE v. MOUNG OH, 8 BUR. L. T. 127 894

Practice—Criminal proceedings—Application for special leave to appeal—Staying execution of sentence of death—Jurisdiction.

As the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is not a Court of Criminal Appeal, the tendering of advice to His Majesty as to the exercise of his prerogative of pardon is a matter for the Executive Government and is outside the province of the Judicial Committee.

Their Lordships were, therefore, unable to make any order on an application to stay execution of a sentence of death while an appeal to the Board was pending. The Executive Government, if notified, would, said their Lordships, no doubt, give due weight to the fact that such an appeal was pending, and consider the circumstances, but the Board would express no opinion as to whether the sentence ought to be suspended. P C. BAL MOKUND v. EMPEROR, 19 C. W. N. 674; 17 M. L. T. 441; 21 C. L. J. 522; 17 BOM. L. R. 487; 2 L. W. 602; 16 CR. L. J. 494 334

— — Duty of lower Court to follow decision of High Court 617

Order by a Judge—Successor of Judge, if bound by that order.

An order made by a Judge is binding on his successor till set aside in due course of law. C. Mohunt GOPAL DAS v. RAMESWAR SINGH, 21 C. L. J. 571 966

— — — Subordinate Court, duty of, to follow rulings of its Superior Court 709

Pre-emption—Finding of fact on evidence—Saharanpur District—Language of wajib-ul-arz—Second appeal.

The entries in a wajib-ul-arz are prima facie to be regarded as referring to customs rather than to agreements. But this does not preclude the Court from taking into consideration, when considering the evidence as a whole, the language which is used in the wajib-ul-arz along with other evidence. If on a consideration of the entire evidence the Court is not satisfied that a custom exists, the finding is a finding of fact and the High Court cannot interfere in second appeal.

The High Court has never decided that a custom of pre-emption cannot exist in the Saharanpur District or that the wajib-ul-araiz in Saharanpur are not evidence of a custom. A. BARU MAL v. TANSUKH RAI, 13 A. L. J. 717 1001

— — — — Limitation—Starting point of prescribed period—Land in possession of vendee at date of sale—Mutation of names 146

— — — Muhammadan Law—Demand—When second demand unnecessary—Sale in lieu of dower-debt—Consideration.

Where at the time when the sale came to the knowledge of the pre-emptor, the vendee as well as the witnesses were present, and the pre-emptor at once claimed his right of pre-emption invoking the witnesses:

Held, that it was not necessary under Muhammadan Law for the pre-emptor to make the second demand.

A right of pre-emption arises under the Muhammadan Law even where property is transferred by a husband to his wife in consideration of dower-debt. A. Musammat NATHU v. SHADI, 13 A. L. J. 714 495 — — Recorded co-sharer, meaning of.

Where a person has been a recorded co-sharer in possession of a property by virtue of a sale-deed and no steps have been taken for three years to set aside the sale, or to oust him from possession, he must be regarded as a co-sharer for the purposes of a pre-emption suit. A. MUNNA LAL v. RAM GULAM SINGH 549

— — Right given by Wajib-ul-arz on rehan, simple mortgage, whether rehan.

Where a clause in the Wajib-ul-arz of 1875 gave a right of pre-emption in the case of "rehan" (mortgage):

Held, that the right could not be exercised if the transacion was a simple mortgage as defined in the Transfer of Property Act of 1882. A. MARRAM KHAN v. SAKHAWAT KHAN 554

— — — Right of pre-emption mentioned in Wajib-ul-arz—No incidents given—Muhammadan Law.

Where a wajib-ul-arz provided that a right of pre-emption existed among the owners of the khalsa separately and among the owners of the milak separately but gave no incidents of the custom of pre-emption:

Held, that the right was co-extensive with that given by the Muhammadan Law. A. ZAMIR AHMAD v. ABDUL RAZZAK, 13 A. L. J. 704; 37 A. 472 993

— — — — , suit for, maintainability of—Vendor's title—Whole property not pre-empted, effect of.

A pre-emptor is not entitled in a pre-emption suit to put the vendor on proof of his title to the property which he purports to sell. The principle of pre-emption is substitution. A pre-emptor is bound to take the title which the vendee was ready to take.

Pre-emption—concld.

A suit for pre-emption is not maintainable where the pre-emptor does not seek to pre-empt the entire property. A. SAHODRA BIBI v. BAGESHRI SINGH, 13 A. L. J. 711 1000

———————Wajib-ul-arz, construction of—Rights inter se—Preferential claim.

The wajib-ul-arz of 1833 of a village recorded the mere fact that the co-sharers had a right of pre-emption.

The wajib-ul-araiz of 1860 and 1869 recorded that a near co-sharer had a right of pre-emption, after him the co-sharer in the same thok and after him the co-sharers in other thoks:

Held, that the co-sharer in the same thok as the vendor had a preferential claim as against the vendee who was a co-sharer in a different thok. A. AUDH BIHARI PANDE v. JADUBANS MISIR 485

———————Wajib-ul-arz—Rights inter se—Construction—Ek-jaddi co-sharer—Preferential right.

Where a wajib-ul-arz provided: "The right of purchase of the price, which a stranger may give, shall be prior in favour of the ek-jaddi co-sharer, after that with the co-sharers in the mahal, after they refuse the property may be sold to a stranger":

Held, that the ek-jaddi co-sharer had a preferential claim over a co-sharer in a the mahal. A. MUNNA LAL v. KALIKA BAKHSH SINGH 425

———————Wajib-ul-arz—Partition after preparation of Wajib-ul-arz—Co-sharer in one mahal, whether can pre-empt property in another mahal.

A wajib-ul-arz gave right of pre-emption first to own brothers and nephews, and then to cousins who were co-sharers, then to co-sharers in the patti and then to co-sharers in the village. At the time the wajib-ul-arz was prepared the village was not partitioned into several mahals, but subsequently it was so partitioned. A co-sharer in one mahal sued to pre-empt property in another mahal where he was not a co-sharer:

Held, that he had no right to pre-empt. A. KHAYALI RAM v. KALI CHARAN, 13 A. L. J. 712 1000

———————decree—Vendee applying to withdraw money, whether estopped from appealing—Appeal.

In a pre-emption suit decree was passed in favour of the plaintiff. The plaintiff deposited the money to be paid to the vendee in Court. The vendee applied to withdraw the money so deposited but did not, as a matter of fact, withdraw it:

Held, that by making the application to withdraw, the vendee did not lose his right to appeal. A. KHELAWAN KOERI v. ABDUL RAHIM, 13 A. L. J. 677 452

Preliminary decree, suit, if continued till final decree after passing of—Suit by executors on mortgage in favour of estate of deceased testator—Death of executors—Right of widows to be brought on record as legal representatives of deceased testator—Application under O. XXII, r. 3—Order, whether appealable 142

Prescription—Right to ply boat—Crown grant—Ferry 692

Presidency Banks Act (XI of 1876), s. 37, scope of—Third parties cannot take advantage—Directors, whether agents or trustees—Security to cover future advances, whether void—Provision merely directory.

Section 37 of the Presidency Banks Act XI of 1876, must be regarded as containing instructions for the guidance and governance of the Directors and as defining the powers exercisable by them. If the Directors of a Presidency Bank act in disregard of those powers they render themselves liable to the Bank for any loss that it may sustain by unauthorised acts. The section does not enable third parties, with whom contracts have been entered into, to deny their liability to the Bank if the Bank chooses to act upon the contract of its Directors. The action of the Directors under such circumstances will not be malum prohibitum.

The Directors are not identical with the Bank. They fill a double character, (1) as agents of the Bank, (2) as trustees for shareholders of the power committed to them. Whatever may be the extent of liability inter se between the Directors and the Bank or the trustee and cestui que trust, it does not affect transactions with outsiders so as to enable the latter to claim exemption from the performance of their obligations.

The action of the Directors in taking the security to cover future advances, although it may be in excess of their powers, is not void ab initio. It is open to the Bank to have accepted such contract.

If a prohibition is in the interest of the shareholders and is based on considerations of public policy it must be regarded as malum prohibitum.

Under the Presidency Banks Act it is not the Bank that is prohibited from taking security in regard to future advances in the shape of immoveable property, but only the Directors. Section 37 only contains instructions to the Directors as to how they should manage the business of banking.

It is well settled that where there are provisions in an Act which are only directory and not mandatory, any disregard of those provisions will not make the transaction void altogether. Section 37 is only directory of the powers of the Directors. M. NAGAR DAMODAR v GUDLIMAR RAMA RAO, 28 M. L. J. 444; 17 M. L. T. 326; (1915) M. W. N. 316 192

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), s. 19 (s) 908

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909)—Entrustment of sovereigns and gold to jeweller—Conversion—Insolvency of jeweller—Relationship between parties constituted by transaction, nature of—Person entrusting, whether entitled to preferential payment or to rank pari passu with general body of creditors—Trust property, following of—Tracing and quasi-charge, doctrines of, if applicable.

Where a jeweller, who was entrusted by the claimant with sovereigns and gold to be made into a jewel for him converted the same into cash and subsequently became bankrupt and after the Official Assignee took charge of his estate, the owner of the sovereigns and gold put forward a claim that he was entitled to a preferential treatment and to get out of the estate the full value of the sovereigns and gold entrusted by him to the bankrupt:

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act —concld.

Held, that the transaction between the claimant and the jeweller amounted to a bailment and the jeweller became, in consequence, a trustee for the claimant in respect of the sovereigns and gold entrusted to him.

Held, further, that inasmuch as there was no evidence that the sovereigns and gold formed a portion of the estate taken possession of by the Official Assignee and as there was nothing to identify the same, the claimant was not entitled to the benefit of the doctrines of tracing and quasi-charge and, therefore, to any preferential payment, but was only entitled to rank pari passu with other creditors of the insolvent. M. MULRAZZU LAKSHMI v. OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE, 2 L. W. 312; 17 M. L. T. 247; (1915) M. W. N. 262; 28 M. L. J. 403 37

——— ——— ——— ss. 52, 56—Sale by insolvent of stock-in-trade a few days before his insolvency—Possession of goods with insolvent—Sale, validity of—Fraudulent and void transaction.

Where the goods sold by an insolvent prior to his insolvency are allowed to remain in the shops of the insolvent, until the date of his insolvency, they are "in the possession, order and disposition" of the insolvent within the meaning of section 52 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act.

Where the sale by an insolvent is to a thick friend of his, only a few days before his insolvency and consideration for the sale consists of moneys borrowed both by the insolvent and the vendee from a third person, the transaction must be looked upon with great suspicion, and where the goods sold are not removed from the insolvent's premises till the date of the insolvency, the sale must be deemed to be fraudulent and void under section 56 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act. The fact that there were other sales by the insolvent prior to the insolvency is immaterial.

Quære.—Where the sale by an insolvent is for a sum already due to the vendee, whether the vendee could rank as a secured creditor? M. AHMED ALLY AND CO. v. OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE OF MADRAS 947

——— —— ——— ——— s. 56 947

——— ——— ——— s. 56—Vendee in good faith, when not—Sale, validity of—Official Assignee.

Where a sale was made for a price appreciably lower than the real value of the property and the vendee was actuated by the intention to get a much larger benefit for himself than he was fairly entitled to as a diligent creditor and where he conspired with the vendor to assist the vendor to defraud or delay other creditors:

Held, that the vendee was not a vendee in good faith within the meaning of section 56 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act; that the sale was void as against the Official Assignee. M. OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE v. BANGY ABDUL RAZACK SAHIB, (1915) M. W. N. 332 204

Press Act (I of 1910), ss. 4 (1), Expl. II, 20—Particular passages, whether to be specified in notice—Evidence—Proof—Other articles in paper, admissibility of—Disaffection to be excited must be against Indian Government—Relevancy of disaffection excited against other authorities.

The particular passage objected to in an article need not be specified in a notice issued under section 4 (1) of the Indian Press Act, 1910.

Explanation II to section 4 of the Act does not apply to a case where the gravamen of the charge made by Government against the article is not so much that it contains 'comments' on the acts of the authorities, as that it consists of an account of certain events so inaccurate, so misleading and so unfair to those authorities as to be likely, apart from all 'comments', to excite the feelings mentioned in the notice.

Other articles from other issues of the paper containing the article in question are admissible for the purpose specified in section 20 of the Act alone, i. e., 'in aid of the proof of the nature or tendency' of the said article.

The hatred and contempt and disaffection likely to be excited must be shown to be against the Indian Government, and not against the Canadian authorities or the Governor of Hong Kong, is true in a sense, but where the article complained of in giving an account of the voyage and adventures of the "Komagata Maru" and of the Budge Budge riot, aimed at literary effect and worked up to a climax by narrating the alleged oppressive conduct of Canada and Hong Kong and distinctly leaving the impression of a massacre by the Police in India of a number of unarmed and helpless man, the inaccurate and unfair statement of that conduct becomes relevant. P. AMAR SINGH v. EMPEROR, 15 P. R. 1915 CR.; 16 CR. L. J. 555; 33 P. W. R. 1915 CR. 827

Presumption. See AGRA TENANCY ACT, s. 201; BURMESE BUDDHIST LAW.

——— ——— Divorced woman remains unmarried until proved to be married 194

——— ——— Encroachment of land by tenant 216

——— — — Inheritance—Burden of proof 7

——— ——— Jungle and uncultivated land, owner of 634

——— ——— Land under water for certain period —Possession during such period 278

——— ——— Open village sites—Title of Government 51

——— ——— Possession by illegal order, effect of 10

——— ——— Possession by tenant of parti land for tying cattle and other agricultural property 264

——— ——— Submerged lands, possession of 156

——— ——— Tanks in villages, ownership in—Entry in papers on basis of possession—Evidence of permission to make tanks—Burden of proof 11

——— — Tenant goes away on pilgrimage—Cousin cultivates and manages holding—Tenant does not return—Presumption of death—Co-sharing explained — Co-sharing possible, though tenant absent 427

——— — Will not produced 807

Primogeniture, law of—Oudh taluqa 651

Principal and agent—Joint property of brothers—Some brothers taking management of property—Relation created—Managers, duty of—Government Revenue, payment of, if for upkeep of estate.

Where by agreement two of the five brothers agreed to take over the management of their joint property for a period of five years for the improvement and upkeep of the estate:

Held, that the relationship of principal and agent created by the agreement must not be overlooked and that the managers are under a legal duty to exercise reasonable care and diligence in the management of the estate.

A payment on account of the Government revenue of an estate is a payment for the upkeep of the estate. C. AMBICA CHARAN DAS v. HARINATH DAS 905

——— Kabuliat hypothecating property for defalcation executed by agent—Dismissal of agent—Re-appointment, defalcation after—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 89, applicability of.

In a suit for accounts by the principal against his agent, a kabuliat was executed in 1305 B. S. by an agent in favour of his principal to the effect that certain immoveable property hypothecated therein would be answerable for any defalcation made by the agent or any damages suffered by the principal through his negligence. The agent was dismissed in 1306 but he was re-appointed in 1307:

Held, that his position in 1307 was not governed by the kabuliat of 1305 but that by the ordinary rules applicable between the principal and the agent, and that Article 89, Schedule I, of the Limitation Act, applied to the suit. C. BEHARI LAL ROY v. HARA KUMAR DUTTA, 21 C. L. J. 458 748

——— ——— Receipt of money after termination of agency—Money had and received 986

——— ——— Suit for accounts—Agreement—Immoveable property, hypothecation of—Transfer to wife—Re-transfer—Agent manager of properties—No demand—Suit within three years—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 89—Principal, right of.

Where an agency was created on the 24th May 1896, for the management of a certain immoveable property, and in 1897 the principal transferred the property to his wife and two years later the wife re-transferred it to her husband, but the agent, continued to manage it as if no transfer had been effected and the agency was finally terminated in 1910, and the present suit was commenced on the 22nd March 1911 for accounts in respect of the years 1306 to 1317:

Held, that Article 89, Schedule I, of the Limitation Act, was applicable to the suit and that in the absence of any demand and refusal during the continuance of the agency as the suit was instituted within three years from the date of the termination of the agency, the plaintiff was entitled to the accounts claimed. C. SURES KANTA BANERJEE, v. NAWAB ALI SIKDAR, 21 C. L. J. 462 848

Privy Council appeal. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, S. 110; LEAVE TO APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL.

Probate—Partial revocation, when allowable—Co-executor appropriating large portion of sale-proceeds of property—Liquidation of testator's debts—Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), s. 50.

The fact that a co-executor appropriated as legatee the whole or major portion of the sale-proceeds of a part of the estate before liquidating the testator's debts as provided in the Will is not sufficient to a partial revocation of the Probate as regards one of the executors, where the remaining assets far exceed the liabilities and particularly where none of the creditors has come forward to object to the acts of the said co-executor. P. ISHWAR SINGH v. HARKISHEN LAL, 84 P. W. R. 1915; 179 P. L. R. 1915 754

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), s. 4 139

——— ——— ——— s. 50 754

——— ——— ——— s. 50—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 114, 151—Inherent power of Court to set aside order made under Probate and Administration Act—Procedure—Notice—Person interested in estate of deceased—Zemindar, right of.

An order granting Letters of Administration to a particular person should not be cancelled without giving him notice.

It is open to a District Judge to re-consider an order granting Letters of Administration, whether under the provisions of section 114 or under the inherent powers of the Court recognized by section 151 of the Code of Civil Procedure, apart altogether from the provisions of section 50 of the Probate and Administration Act itself.

A Court ought never to grant Letters of Administration to the estate of a deceased person without having good prima facie evidence that the applicant has such an interest in the estate of the deceased as would entitle him to a grant of Letters of Administration. A person who satisfies the Court that he is the heir or one of the heirs of the deceased, has such an interest. A creditor also has an interest. A. PARMA v. NEK RAM, 13 A. L. J. 441; 37 A. 380 133

——— ——— ——— s. 58—Application for Letters of Administration with Will annexed—Heirs in existence—Government, whether has locus standi to oppose grant—Confidential proceedings, legality of.

An application for Letters of Administration with the Will annexed was filed before the District Delegate and upon an objection being made by a third party, the case was sent up to the District Judge and taken up as a contested case. In the meantime the Chairman of the local Municipality made a report to the Sub-Divisional Officer that the Will was forged, whereupon the latter took some "confidential" proceedings and sent the record to the Collector asking him to oppose the grant of the Probate, who did so on behalf of Government:

Held, (1) that the "confidential" proceedings of the Sub-Divisional Officer were not in accordance with law;

(2) that at the inception of the proceedings the Government had a locus standi in the matter but that as soon as it appeared that there were "heirs" in existence, the Government ought to have retired. C. RAMA NATH CHAKRAVARTI v. COLLECTOR OF KHULNA 682

——— ——— s. 92 139

Probate and Administration Act—concld.

——————— S. 92—Provision in Will that majority of executors should act—Contract by some executors, whether binds estate.

Section 92 of the Probate and Letters of Administration Act has no application, where a Will overrides it and provides that it is only the opinion of the majority of the executors appointed under it that should bind the estate.

A contract, in such a case, entered into by some of the executors only without reference to the others will not, therefore, bind the estate of a deceased testator. M. ERA DODDA BASAPPA v. RAMA REDDI, 505

Procedure. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, O. IX, r. 8.

——————Execution sale—Occupancy holding not saleable—Sale held before application of objection heard—Irregularity—Proper procedure 616

——————Ex parte decree, setting aside of—Application made after five years—Jurisdiction—Revision 975

——————Mistake or oversight in procedure 17

——————Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 58—Mortgage-decree—Attachment of property—Claims, investigation of 941

——————Mortgage-deed not attested by two witnesses—Invalidity of mortgage—Pleas raised in course of trial but not in pleadings—Court, duty of 991

——————Order under section 146, Criminal Procedure Code, without taking evidence, if final 66

——————Partition, suit for—Collection of rent by one of defendants subsequent to suit—Account 905

——————Special procedure, when overrides general procedure 79

——————Summons case tried together with warrant case—Procedure to be followed—Warrant case dismissed during trial—Summons case proceeded with—Right of accused to re-call and cross-examine prosecution witnesses—Right to re-call and cross-examine—Right refused—Prejudice—Burden of proof 668

Proceedings, revival of, after death of complainant 98

Process-server, right of, to enter any house without permission 109

Professional ethics—Counsel appearing in a cause—Propriety of his giving evidence.

Though it is no doubt desirable that Counsel ought not to appear in a case where it is probable that his evidence would be material, there is no inflexible rule that his evidence ought not to be taken, if at any stage of the suit, it becomes necessary to do so. To lay down such a hard and fast rule would often defeat the ends of justice. M. LODD GOVINDOSS v. RUKMANI BHAI, 17 M. L. T. 382 135

Promissory note, maker of, liability of—Continuing security — Indorsements, effect of—Fraud, person liable for 936

——————, sale of—Purchaser bound to make enquiries of executant—Caveat emptor.

A person buying a promissory note must know that he is buying a mere claim and must make enquiries before buying. P. KISHEN SARUP v. TARA CHAND, 76 P. W. R. 1915; 150 P. L. R. 1915 887

Promissory note—concld.

——————suit on—Amount claimed not found to have been actually advanced—Suit, if to be decreed for amount found.

In a suit for recovery of the sum of Rs. 40 alleged to have been advanced on a hand-note with interest, the Judge found that the sum of Rs. 30, and not Rs. 40, was really advanced by the plaintiff to the defendant, but dismissed the suit on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to prove the advance of Rs. 40 claimed:

Held, that judgment ought to have been entered in favour of the plaintiff for the amount found to have been actually advanced. C. BENODE BEHARI PATRA v. JANKI KALWAR 468

Proprietary title, question of—Issue not decided—Appeal, whether lies to District Judge—Onus on wrong party—Finding based on no evidence—Revision, grounds for.

Where an issue which affected the claim to proprietary right under section 158 was decided neither by the Assistant Collector nor by the Commissioner:

Held, that no appeal lay in the case to the District Judge.

The mistaken view that the burden of proof is on the defendant to show that the land should not be resumed and a finding arrived at without any evidence to support it constitute a gross and palpable error of law in justifying interference in revision. U. P. B. R. NARAIN DAS v. MIR KHAN 61

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), S. 4 (b)—Collusive suit—Subsequent withdrawal—Act of insolvency.

A collusive suit and subsequent withdrawal from or compromising of the same, with the express object of putting another party in possession of immoveable property, amounts to a transfer of property by an insolvent within the meaning of clause (b) of section 4 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907. A. PURAN NATH v. ATWARGIR, 13 A. L. J. 434 217

——————S. 15 (1), scope of—Petition presented by the debtor—Dismissal on the ground of bad faith—Material irregularity.

The concluding portion of sub-section (1) of section 15 of the Provincial Insolvency Act of 1907 refers only to cases in which the application has been made by the creditor and is opposed by the debtor.

Where, therefore, an insolvency petition presented by a debtor was dismissed under section 15 (1) of the Act, on the ground that the petitioner had been guilty of bad faith in having given undue preference to some of his creditors over others:

Held, that the District Judge acted with material irregularity in the exercise of his jurisdiction in dismissing the petition upon that ground. P. RATTAN MALIK v. TIRATH RAM, 28 P. R. 1915 361

——————S. 16 (2) b) 30

——————SS. 20, 22—Sale held by Receiver—Conditions of sale changed just before sale—Application to Court by creditor to set aside sale—Power of Court to set aside sale—'Person aggrieved,' meaning of.

Provincial Insolvency Act—contd.

An Official Receiver, in whom the property of an insolvent vested under an order of adjudication, issued a proclamation for sale of certain properties, subject to two mortgages subsisting thereon. On the date fixed for the sale he varied the sale proclamation by noting that the properties would be sold free of the mortgages, and sold the properties accordingly. The respondent, a creditor of the insolvent, put in an application to the District Court to set aside the sale, on the ground that the action of the Receiver in varying the sale proclamation was irregular and that by reason of the irregularity the properties had fetched a very low price:

Held, that the Court had jurisdiction to set aside the sale inasmuch as under section 22 of the Provincial Insolvency Act it had an unfettered discretion to set aside any order passed by an Official Receiver.

Though a Court does not ordinarily interfere with an order passed by a Receiver in the exercise of his discretion, it will do so where proper reasons are shown that the action of the Receiver was irregular and has prejudiced the interests of the creditors.

Any person who is entitled to demand a decision of the Court in respect of the property of an insolvent and would be damnified if the decision goes against him, is a person aggrieved within the meaning of section 22 of the Insolvency Act. M. THIRUVENKATA CHARIAR v. THANGAYI AMMAL, 17 M. L. T. 432 294

——— S. 22 294

——— S. 31—Secured creditor, meaning of—Agreement appointing creditor sole agent for sale of debtor's goods—Sale-proceeds to be paid to creditor.

Where an agreement was entered into between a debtor and his creditor whereby the latter was appointed the sole agent for the sale of all books already published or thereafter to be published by the debtor with a condition that the sale-proceeds, after deducting the commission, was to be credited towards the discharge of the debt:

Held, that the creditor was entitled to be regarded as a secured creditor.

Secured creditor means a person holding a mortgage, charge, or lien upon property of the debtor or any part thereof as security for the debt due to him from the debtor. A. ALLAHABAD TRADING AND BANKING CORPORATION v. GHULAM MUHAMMAD, 13 A. L. J. 521; 37 A. 383 263

——— S. 34—Property attached but not sold before adjudication, effect of—Receiver, powers of.

Section 34 of the Provincial Insolvency Act was intended to put creditors of an insolvent, who have not actually attached the property before the date of the order of adjudication in at least as good a position as creditors of the insolvent who, but for his insolvency, would have been entitled to claim a rateable distribution of the assets received on an execution sale.

A creditor instituted a suit against his debtor and attached his property before judgment. Subsequently the debtor was adjudicated insolvent. After the order of adjudication, the creditor who had attached the property proceeded to sell the property in execution of his decree. The Receiver objected and claimed the property for the general body of creditors:

Held, that the property not having been sold before adjudication was still the property of his insolvents and as such was available to the general body of creditors. A. KASHI NATH v. KANHAIYA LAL SHARMA, 13 A. L. J. 700; 37 A. 452 990

——— S. 36—Burden of proof—Transferee to prove good faith and valuable consideration.

Section 36 of the Provincial Insolvency Act lays the onus upon the transferee to prove that the transfer made by an insolvent was made in good faith and for valuable consideration. C. NILMONI CHOWDHURI v. BASANTA KUMAR BANERJEE, 19 C. W. N. 865 814

——— S. 37 (1), scope of—Transfer of property or any interest therein—Preference, fraudulent—Burden of proof—Dominant view—Proper test—Disposition, voluntary—Debtor's state of mind—Good faith no protection to creditor.

Before a transfer by a debtor of any interest in his property is avoided under section 37 (1) of the Provincial Insolvency Act, four conditions must be fulfilled, namely first, the debtor must, at the date of the transaction, be unable to pay from his own money his debts as they fall due; secondly, the transaction must be in favour of a creditor or of some person in trust for a creditor; thirdly, the debtor must have acted with the view of giving such creditor a preference over his other creditors; and fourthly, the debtor must be adjudged an insolvent on an insolvency petition presented within three months after the date of the transaction sought to be impeached.

Where an act is impeached as a fraudulent preference, the onus of proof lies on the Receiver, even if the debtor was insolvent at the time of the payment and knew himself to be so.

In the determination of the question whether a person is able or unable to pay his debts, as they become due, from his own money, the fact that he has money locked up which, at a later period, may be available for the payment of his debts, is immaterial.

A particular transaction in favour of a creditor may be set aside as a fraudulent preference only if it is proved that it was carried out with the substantial or dominant view of giving the creditor a preference over the other creditors.

The proper test to ascertain the dominant view is the question, "was the act done voluntarily"?

A voluntary disposition is an act moving from the debtor spontaneously.

The use of the word "preference" implies an act of free will, so that there can be no preference where the act is the result of pressure.

In every case the state of mind of the debtor is the paramount consideration.

Under section 37 of the Provincial Insolvency Act (which is substantially identical with section 48 of 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), good faith on the part of the creditor affords him no protection where the intention of the debtor to give him a preference is established, although sub-section (2) of section 37 protects a person who, in good faith and for valuable consideration, has acquired a title through or under a creditor of the insolvent. C. NRIPENDRO NATH v. ASHUTOSH GHOSH, 19 C. W. N. 157; 21 C. L. J. 167 128

Provincial Insolvency Act—contd.

——— ——— ——— s. 42—Annulment of adjudication, when and when not allowed.

An adjudication can be annulled only under section 42 of the Provincial Insolvency Act when the conditions mentioned therein are fulfilled.

A Court while annulling an adjudication must find that the adjudication could not legally or properly have been made on the facts as existing at the time of the adjudication. Subsequent misconduct on the part of a petitioner should not lead to annulment of the adjudication.

An adjudication cannot be annulled because:

(i) the petitioner could subsequently pay his debts in full out of his assets;

(ii) a part of his property is subject to the Alienation of Land Act;

(iii) the debtor since his adjudication has not been giving any produce of his lands to the Receiver, or

(iv) he has not made over all his assets to the Receiver. P. JAM KHAN v. DEVI DITTA, 77 P. W. R. 1915; 152 P. L. R. 1915 888

——— ——— ——— s. 43—Receiver's report as to fraud of insolvent, admissibility of, in evidence.

The report of a Receiver of an insolvent's property to the effect that the insolvent had fraudulently transferred his property to his wife before declaration of insolvency, is not admissible in evidence to convict the insolvent under section 43 of the Insolvency Act. A NAND KISHORE v. SURAJ MAL, 13 A. L. J. 642; 37 A. 429 998

——— ——— ——— Sch. II, art. 42 247

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), s. 25 846

——— ——— ——— s. 25—Jurisdiction—No objection taken before lower Court—High Court, discretion of, to interfere.

A revision application based mainly on the ground that the Small Cause Court had no jurisdiction to try the suit, an objection which was never taken in the lower Court, has no merits and the High Court will not interfere. C. NATIONAL INSURANCE AND BANKING CO. v. BISWAMBAR CHOWDHURY 566

——— ——— ——— s. 37—Small Cause suit—Transfer of case to regular side—Decision—Appeal, maintainability of.

A suit of a Small Cause Court nature was filed before a Munsif, who had the powers of a Small Cause Court Judge, and was registered as a Small Cause Court suit. Subsequently the Munsif was succeeded by an officer who had no Small Cause Court powers. The latter officer ordered the case to be transferred to the regular side and tried it as a regular suit. An appeal against his decision was dismissed on the ground that no appeal lay:

Held, that an appeal did lie. A. SARJU PRASAD v. MAHADEO PANDE, 13 A. L. J. 639; 37 A. 450 996

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act—contd.

——— ——— ——— Sch. II, art. 13—Suit by malguzar to recover value of manure under — Wajib-ul-arz— Small Cause—Second appeal, if competent.

The plaintiffs, malguzars of a certain mauza, sued to recover from the defendant a sum of Rs. 34, on account of the wrongful removal of manure to which they set up title under a clause of the Wajib-ul-arz, which ran as follows:—

'In this village the malguzar takes according to long custom the manure of those who have no fields of their own: in return he shall allow them free grazing and nistar:

Held, that a second appeal in this case was barred under section 102 of the Code of Civil Procedure, as the suit was of a nature cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, because

(a) it was one for damages consequent on the wrongful removal of manure to which the plaintiffs were entitled, and not for delivery of that manure, or

(b) even if the claim were regarded as one for the manure itself as a 'due' within the meaning of that term as used in Article 13 of the second Schedule to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887 that 'due' was not payable to the plaintiffs by reason of their interest in immoveable property.

The dues contemplated by Article 13 are payments to which a person is entitled as representing his interest in certain immoveable property, and not because he possesses some interest in immoveable property. N. JAIRAM v. DOMA, 11 N. L. R. 100 815

——— ——— ——— Sch. II, arts. 15, 16—Suit for recovery of balance of mortgage-money, whether maintainable in Small Cause Court—Damages for breach of contract.

A suit by a mortgagor for the recovery of the balance of the mortgage-money not paid to him, being a suit for the specific performance of so much of an agreement as has not already been performed, does not lie.

Such a suit or a suit for the rectification of the instrument is not cognizable by a Court of Small Causes.

It is, however, open in such circumstances to the plaintiff to sue in the Small Cause Court for damages for breach of contract provided the damages are within the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court. C SHAIK GALIM v. SADARIJAN BIBI, 21 C. L. J. 532; 19 C. W. N. 1332 621

——— ——— ——— art. 16 621

——— ——— ——— arts. 41, 42—Decree on mortgage—Payment by one co-mortgagor—Suit for contribution—Jurisdiction.

A suit by one co-mortgagor against the other co-mortgagors for contribution in respect of money paid by him to discharge a decree obtained on their joint mortgage is not cognizable by a Small Cause Court. A. TALAIMAND SINGH v. GOBIND SINGH, 13 A. L. J. 694 247

——— ——— ——— art. 42—Suit for compensation—Jurisdiction.

M and R mortgaged a property belonging to H for their own purposes. The mortgagee obtained a decree. H paid off the decree to save his property and subsequently sued R alone to recover the money:

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act—concld.

Held, that the suit was for compensation for an impudent wrong committed against H by M and R and was cognizable by a Small Cause Court.

Held, further, that M was not a necessary party to the suit, as each of the two executants of the mortgage was jointly and severally responsible to recompense the plaintiff. A. RAZA HUSAIN v. HASAN JAN, 13 A. L. J. 632 245

Public highway, right of user of—Religious procession, carrying of—Civil right—Special damages if necessary to maintain action—Injunction, grant of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. I, r. 8—Amendment.

Every citizen has an inherent right to conduct religious processions through the public streets. This natural right may be restricted in the interests of public safety or its exercise may be limited, so that it may not infringe rights of property possessed by others, and the burden lies upon those who claim to impose fetters upon the exercise of such rights to establish the limitation.

The right of every citizen to pass through public streets in procession is a civil right.

Where the suit is by a headman to declare the right of his community to pass through public streets in procession and where that right is denied, he can maintain a suit without alleging special damage to himself.

An original defect in the plaint can be cured by a subsequent order of amendment.

Where an injury is of such a character that pecuniary compensation will not afford sufficient relief or where it is necessary to avoid multiplicity of judicial proceedings, an injunction will be granted.

In cases where an actual offence is threatened, it is not necessary that recourse must be had to the Criminal Courts before seeking redress in the Civil Courts. M. ANDI MOOPAN v. MUTHUVIRAMA REDDY, 17 M. L. T. 453; 29 M. L. J. 91 248

Punjab Alienation of Land Act (XIII of 1900), s. 3 751

——————— s. 9 (2), (3)—Mortgage by way of conditional sale—Mortgagor denying execution or pleading payment—Deputy Commissioner, whether can decide question of currency of mortgage.

Where a holder of a mortgage by conditional sale applies direct to the Deputy Commissioner under section 9 (2) of the Punjab Land Alienation Act or where a mortgage by way of conditional sale is referred to a Deputy Commissioner by a Civil Court under section 9 (3) of the Punjab Land Alienation Act and the mortgagor on appearing before the Deputy Commissioner denies execution of the mortgage or pleads payment of the mortgage-debt, the Deputy Commissioner must decline to exercise the power conferred on him by section 9 (2) of the Act. P. LAKHMI DAS v. HAYAT, 2 P. R. 1915 REV.; 3 P. W. R. 1915 REV. 502

Punjab Courts Act (IV of 1912), s. 41 (1) (a) 801

——————— s. 41 (1) (c)—Second appeal—Finding of fact—Substantial error in procedure—Court overlooking material evidence—Consideration—Legal necessity.

A finding of fact arrived at by a lower Appellate Court can be assailed on second appeal only where it appears that in giving its decision the lower Appellate Court has not taken into consideration material evidence on the record and other material circumstances connected with the case.

In cases of old mortgages, where mortgagors have had subsequent opportunities of asserting want of consideration but expressly and impliedly admitted receipt of it in full, Courts will not expect mortgagees to give the same precise proof of payment and 'necessity' as in cases in which the transactions are of recent date. P. RANZOR SINGH v. GAYAN, 114 P. L. R. 1915 785

Punjab Courts Act (III of 1914), s. 41 (1) (c) 901

Punjab Government Tenants Act (III of 1893)—Re-grant of lapsed occupancy tenancy by Revenue Officer—Civil Court, whether can interfere.

The Civil Courts have no jurisdiction to interfere with the arrangements made by the Revenue authorities in the matter of the re-grant of a lapsed occupancy tenancy which is covered by the Government Tenants Act, III of 1893. P. KESAR SINGH v. Musammat DAYALI, 38 P. R. 1915; 102 P. W. R. 1915 570

Punjab Land Revenue Act (XVII of 1887), ss. 115, 116—Wajib-ul-arz prohibiting partition of shamilat, whether operates as a bar—Revenue Officer, duty of, to decide.

An entry in the Wajib-ul-arz prohibiting the partition of shamilat lands does not necessarily operate as a bar, it being the duty of the Revenue Officer dealing with the partition to decide whether such a clause should prevail or not.

Where the Wajib-ul-arz of a village was drawn up to suit a time when the land was valued only for its pasture, but the land had since been broken up for cultivation and there had been a considerable reduction in the number of cattle kept by the community:

Held, that as the conditions had changed and a large section of the community contested the Wajib-ul-arz, the Revenue Officer was justified in sanctioning partition. P. LAKHI v. DOST MOHAMMAD KHAN, 1 P. R. 1915 REV. 498

——————— s. 116 498

Punjab Municipal Act (XX of 1891), s. 195—Building erected in contravention of sanction—Notice to demolish building—Injunction against Municipality—Right of Court to interfere.

The plaintiff sued for an injunction against the Municipality to restrain them from interfering with the chabutra erected by the plaintiff. The chabutra was admittedly constructed by the plaintiff in contravention of the sanction of the Municipality. It was argued for the plaintiff that the building as erected was in point of fact more advantageous to the public than would be the building as sanctioned. The contention was disallowed and the suit was dismissed:

Punjab Municipal Act—concld.

Held, that no second appeal lay in the case and the Courts were not competent to entertain the contention of the plaintiff. P. HARJI MAL v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, DELHI, 107 P. L. R. 1915; 67 P. W. R. 1915 766

Punjab Pre-emption Act (II of 1905), ss. 10, 19—Money deposited in Court by plaintiff-pre-emptor, attachment of—Liability of plaintiff to pay up deficiency.

The plaintiff-pre-emptor deposited Rs. 400 in Court under section 19 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act of 1905, but during the pendency of the suit Rs. 297 were, without the knowledge of the parties to the suit, withdrawn under an attachment at the instance of a person who had a decree against the plaintiff. The suit being decreed in favour of the plaintiff, he paid in the balance of the price fixed over and above Rs. 400, but was ordered to pay Rs. 297 more before getting possession:

Held, that under section 10 of the Act the money deposited by the plaintiff could not be attached, but as he had presumably benefited by Rs. 297 being paid over to one of his creditors, he was in equity bound to make good the deficiency. P. PANNA LAL v. NATHA SINGH, 27 P. R. 1915 354

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 19 354

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 22 (2), proviso, applicability of.

The proviso to sub-section (2) of section 22 of Act II of 1905 is not applicable to a case, in which the price does not consist mainly of a debt greatly exceeding in amount the market-value of the property. P. FATEH CHAND v. GANDA MAL, 72 P. L. R. 1915; 94 P. W. R 1915 150

Punjab Tenancy Act (XVI of 1887), ss 77, 100—Punjab Tenancy (Amendment) Act (III of 1912)—Jurisdiction of Civil and Revenue Courts—Panahi tenant, right of, to establish occupancy right.

Act III of 1912 does not set up any bar to action under section 100 of the Tenancy Act.

A panahi tenant (protected for a term of years) is not debarred from establishing occupancy rights under the Tenancy Act, 1886. P. WADHAWA v. Musammat HASSI, 111 P. L. R. 1915; 64 P. W. R. 1915 778

——— ——— ——— s. 100 778

Punjab Tenancy (Amendment) Act (III of 1912) 778

Railway—Goods consigned—Indemnity bond—Risk note form A—Goods, shortage of—Liability of Railway Company—Right of consignee.

Where the sender of goods through a Railway Company signs "risk note form A", he indemnifies the Company and makes it free from all responsibility for the condition into which the goods may be delivered to the consignee at destination and for any loss arising from the same. The consignee, however, is entitled to have the consignment weighed on the spot in the presence of some respectable servant of the Railway Company and it is the duty of the Railway servants responsible for the delivery of the goods to offer reasonable facilities for this operation. If the Railway servants do not allow the consignee to have the goods weighed at the time of delivery and thus let them remain lying in the Railway go-down to the detriment of the consignee, the Company is liable in damages.

Railway—concld.

A risk note in form A is simply an indemnity bond by the sender for the benefit of the Company. It cannot in itself affect the rights of the consignee who is entitled to receive the consignment as ordered by him and to claim compensation in the event of the consignment suffering loss or damage. A. ROHILKHAND AND KUMAUN RAILWAY CO. v. ISMAIL KHAN, 13 A. L. J. 417 207

Railways Act (IX of 1890), ss. 47 (1) (f), 72—R. (2) of rules framed under s. 47—"Delivery to be carried by Railway", meaning of—Commencement of Company's liability, whether dependent upon issue of receipt.

A "delivery to be carried by Railway" means something more than a mere depositing of goods on the Railway premises; it means some sort of acceptance by the Railway, a taking as well as a giving.

The commencement of the liability of a Railway Company for goods delivered to be carried under section 72 is in no way dependent upon the fact of a receipt having been granted and must be determined on the evidence in the case quite independently of rule 2 under section 47, sub-section (1), clause (f). B. RAMACHANDRA NATHA v. GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY, 17 BOM. L. R. 496; 39 B. 485 545

——— ——— s. 72 545

Rateable distribution. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 73.

Receiver, appointment of—Grounds—Poverty or insolvency, if grounds—Civil Court, jurisdiction of, to interfere in Magisterial proceedings under s. 145, Criminal Procedure Code—Management or malversation—Discretion of lower Court—Appellate Court, power of, to interfere.

A Civil Court has jurisdiction to come to a different conclusion from that of a Magistrate under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code, but it has no right to sit in judgment over the finding of fact arrived at by the Magistrate, by a review of the evidence produced before the latter.

Poverty or insolvency of the defendant is no ground for the appointment of a Receiver unless there be in addition some danger to the estate.

Where no specific acts of mismanagement or malversation are proved against a defendant in possession, the Courts must be very slow to displace a party rightfully in possession by the appointment of a Receiver.

Where prima facie the title to the property in dispute is in him who is in possession of the property, his possession cannot be displaced by the appointment of a Receiver pending a suit before a Court.

As a rule, an Appellate Court will not interfere with the discretion of the lower Court ordering the appointment of a Receiver; but where the lower Court has based its order on a wrong view of the facts, it is the duty of the Appellate Court to interfere and set it right. M. SIVAJI RAJA SAHIB v. AISWARIYANANDAJI SAHIB, 29 M. L. J. 209; 18 M. L. T. 155 485

Receiver—concld.

——— ———, appointment of—Partnership, dissolution of—Purpose 684

——— ———, order providing for appointment of—Appeal 504

Recorded co-sharer. See AGRA TENANCY ACT, s. 201.

Rectification of sale-deed. See SALE-DEED.

Redemption. See AGRA TENANCY ACT, s. 158; MORTGAGE.

Reference. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 439.

Registration—Receipt containing agreement to accept rent-deed, whether compulsorily registrable.

A document which, besides being a receipt for money paid, contains an agreement to accept a rent-deed is an agreement to lease and is inadmissible in evidence without registration. M. SREEKISAN PITTY v. KOTA NAMALWARAYYA 246

Registration Act (XVI of 1908)—Deed in possession of mediators—One of the parties capable of presenting it for registration—Other party, when liable.

Where a document is in the possession of mediators and could have been obtained and presented for registration by one of the parties, he cannot hold the other party liable unless the non registration was not due to any default on his part M. PONNUSAWMY MUDALIAR v. MUTHUSAWMY MUDALIAR 585

——— ——— ——— s. 17 (2) (i)—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXIII, r. 3—Compromise of suit—Razinama, if requires registration—Evidence, admissibility of razinama in.

A razinama presented to a Court setting forth the terms on which the parties had come to terms does not require registration and is as such admissible in evidence. P. Musammat JEO v. JAIMAL SINGH, 90 P. W. R. 1915 311

Registration law, fraud on—Sale by registered instrument or by delivery of possession—Bond, where to be registered—Intention to sell or mortgage, want of 413

Regulation XI of 1825, s. 4—By gradual, slow and imperceptible means—Burden of proof—Small villages—Small river—Large accretions, if by gradual, slow and imperceptible means—Adverse possession—Land under water for certain period—Vis major—Possession during such period—Presumption.

Where the question is of the manner in which land has been cut away from one village and thrown up on the other side of the river, the burden of proof is on the party who claims the accretion to show that the accretion to his tenure has been of the nature contemplated by the law as laid down in Regulation XI of 1825 and unless he can prove this satisfactorily, he cannot be said to have proved his title.

Where the villages are small in area and their common boundary but short in length and where there is a small river, shallow and fordable, which at one season of the year is liable to sudden floods cutting away a portion from the small estates;

Regulation—(XI of 1825)—concld.

Held, that under the circumstances the accretions of a few bighas per annum can hardly be said to be by gradual, slow and imperceptible means as contemplated by the Regulation.

A person cannot be said to have acquired a title by prescription to a land which remains covered with the flood water of a river for a certain period every year, as he must be deemed to have been dispossessed by vis major during the time of flood and as under law the possession during flood time is in the person who has title. A. BALDEO THAKURAI v. UGRA NATH 278

Religious procession. See PUBLIC HIGHWAY.

Rent, suit for—Kabuliat, construction of—Enhancement, no question of.

Where on the face of a document which was to have effect for three years, it appeared that the rent fixed was a certain amount but that the landlord allowed a certain amount to be held in abeyance for three years, and for those three years, year by year a certain amount was to be paid by the defendant according to the instalments mentioned, and where the landlord sued for the arrears:

Held, that what the plaintiff sued for was not enhancement, no more than if a landlord gave a receipt for half the rent for the first year, half the rent for the second year, and half the rent for the third year, and subsequently sued for the whole rent. C. ROMESH CHANDRA BISWAS v. GHULAM NABI FAKIR, 19 C. W. N. 867 807

Res judicata. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 11.

——— ——— Estoppel—Test—Burden of proof—Demise questioned—Original ownership and derivative tenure admitted—Nature of proof required—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 90, presumption in, whether applicable to copies 386

——— ——— Hindu widow, suit by, for maintenance—Subsequent suit by her for residence in family house, whether barred 25

——— ——— Suit for ejectment of tenant—Previous suit for arrears of rent—Relationship of landlord and tenant not found to exist.

A mahant of a temple brought a suit for ejectment, on the ground that he was a muafidar of the land in question and the defendant his tenant paying him a cash rent. Defendant alleged that he was the pujari and held the land as such and had never paid rent. In a previous suit between the parties for arrears of rent, the Collector had decided that the relationship of landlord and tenant did not exist between the parties, as an agreement under which the defendant was alleged to have agreed to pay rent was not proved:

Held, that the former decision operated as res judicata. U. P. B. R. RAMANUJ DAS v. JANKI DAS 415

——— ——— ——— Suit for mesne profits of land—Subsequent suit for possession of the same land, if maintainable 939

Restitution See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1882, s. 583; CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 144.

Resumption. See AGRA TENANCY ACT, ss. 50, 154, 154 (b).

Re-trial—Enhancement of sentence, whether a fit ground for ordering re-trial 65

Reversioner. See HINDU LAW.

———— ————, suit by 6

Review. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O. XLVII, R. 1.

—— —— Final judgment—Application for reception of new evidence—Sufficient reason not shown—Rejection of application, propriety of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 114, O. XLVII, r. 1.

Where an application for the reception of new evidence was made to a High Court in a case which had lasted for over three years after a final judgment had been made in the case by that Court and no sufficient reason was shown why the proposed new evidence was not timeously submitted, and the High Court rejected that application:

Held, that the rejection of the application by the High Court was correct. P. C. SHIVALINGAPPA BASAPPA SHINTRE v. REVAPPA, 17 C. W. N. 762 717

Revision. See AGRA TENANCY ACT, s. 185; CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 115; U. P. LAND REVENUE ACT, s. 185.

—— ——Accidental slip—Error, correction of—Jurisdiction 50

———— , if allowed where appeal lies—Revision application treated as appeal.

Where an appeal lies a revision application will not be entertained, but it may be treated as an appeal. U. P. B. R. SUNDAR SINGH v. SITAL PRASAD 678

—— Letters Patent (Madras), cl. 15—Criminal trial—Appeal, if competent 96

—— — , grounds for—Finding based on no evidence 61

———— Service of summons—Defendant not found—Summons served by being affixed on defendant's door, whether sufficient service 564

Right of way, suit for establishment of—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 23, applicability of Watercourse and way distinguished, obstruction to Continuing nuisance.

The obstructions which interfere with the flow of water are in the nature of continuing nuisances, as to which the cause of action is renewed de die in diem so long as the obstructions causing such interference are allowed to continue.

There is no distinction between an obstruction to a water-course and one to a way, and wrongful interference with a right of way constitutes a nuisance.

Obstructions to easements other than water-courses may be treated as continuing nuisances. C. NAZIMULLA v. WAZIDULLA, 21 C. L. J. 640 385

Risk note, Form A. See RAILWAY.

Rules of Supreme Court, O. XLV, rr. 5, 6, scope of—Inherent power of Court 580

Sale. See CUSTOM.

—— Consideration—Kobala containing recital of payment of consideration—Benami, onus of proving—Defendant in possession—Presumption, whether arises—Admission of first evidence.

In a suit for possession on the basis of a sale-deed the plaintiff (vendee) has to prove his title where the defendant (vendor) in possession pleads that he is only a benamidar but he shows a prima facie title by producing and proving his conveyance which contains a recital of receipt of the consideration.

In such a case the onus is upon the defendant (vendor) to show the non-payment of consideration.

Where after the close of evidence on both sides, the plaintiff applied to the Court to be allowed to adduce further evidence but the application having been disallowed, he applied to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit but the order granting this latter application was set aside on revision, and the plaintiff then applied for summons on certain persons to prove a certain part of his case, but the defendants objecting, the Court did not allow these persons to be produced, though present:

Held, that under the circumstances the plaintiff ought to have been allowed to tender further evidence. C. DURGA CHARAN CHANDRA v. KHORDA COMPANY, LIMITED 696

——Execution against wrong representative—Property in hands of usufructuary mortgagee—Reversioner, suit by—Decree-holder purchaser, whether protected 6

Irregularity—Question relating to title or some interest in land—Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O. XXI, r. 90 203

— Mortgagee selling mortgaged land—Covenant to transfer another land if vendee dispossessed by redemption—Statutory prohibition of transfer of land—Vendee, right of—Damages—Punjab Alienation of Land Act (XIII of 1900), s. 3—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 2, cl. (g), 65

The defendant sold certain mortgaged lands to the plaintiff under the impression that the mortgagor would not redeem it, and covenanted that in the event of the plaintiff losing the plot by redemption at the instance of the mortgagor, he would transfer to the plaintiff an equal area out of his own proprietary holdings. The mortgagor sued for redemption and recovered possession of the land from the plaintiff. The plaintiff sued the defendant for possession of an equal area and in the alternative for damages:

Held, that the covenant to transfer other land in lieu of the mortgaged property did not amount to an alienation in præsenti, but constituted an agreement to transfer in future the property specified therein on the happening of a certain contingency.

Held, further, that as the plaintiff was precluded by the Punjab Alienation of Land Act since coming into force from obtaining the land in suit in pursuance of the contract, the agreement became void, but that they were entitled to compensation. P. FAKIRA MAL v. NABBU, 83 P. W. R. 1915; 166 P. L. R. 1915 751

———, oral—Receipt of earnest money—Out-and-out sale—Incorrect entry of mortgage amount on that property, effect of—Failure of prompt execution and registration of sale-deed, effect of—Purchaser of property under registered deed with notice of prior oral sale, right of—Mortgage—Equity of redemption, sale of—Purchaser, right of, to redeem.

Where a receipt of earnest money for the sale of equity of redemption of a house distinctly mentions an out-and-out sale as having been effected, the mere fact that it goes on to say that a sale-deed will be drawn up does not show that the sale contract is incomplete, nor is an incorrect entry of the amount of a mortgage on that property an indication of the incompleteness of the sale.

Sale—concld.

The fact that such a receipt is not promptly followed by the execution and registration of a formal sale-deed is not sufficient to warrant a finding that the intention of the parties was that title should not pass until the consideration money had been paid in full.

A subsequent purchaser of the equity of redemption of a mortgage under a registered deed, having notice of a prior oral sale of the same property, acquires no title and has no right to redeem the mortgage. P. HARDIT SINGH v. BEHARI LAL, 104 P W. R. 1915 305

Sale-deed, rectification of 588

Sanction. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 195.

Search. See PENAL CODE, s. 323.

Security bond executed in favour of Court—No transfer of interest Document, whether creates charge or mortgage Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 31 (2) 605

Second Appeal. See APPEAL.

Service of summons—Defendant not found—Summons served by being affixed on defendant's door, whether sufficient service—Revision.

In a suit for ejectment, the process-server, not meeting with the defendant, affixed the summons on his door:

Held, that this was not a good service, that it was the duty of the process-server to make reasonable endeavours and reasonable search for the defendant and that if the defendant was merely temporarily absent from his house it should not have been noted that he could not be found (vide rule 12, Board's Circular 2-11 .

Held, further, that under the circumstances of this case to hold the service on the defendant to be a sufficient service was gross and palpable error of law which caused substantial injustice and that this was a ground for interference in revision. U. P. B. R. LONHAR TIWARI v. JAGTOO TIWARI 564

Settlement Records and jamabandis—Presumption of correctness Gift of produce for charitable purposes—Impropriety of inventing technical names—Malguzar.

In the absence of satisfactory evidence to the contrary entries in the Settlement Records and the annual jamabandis must be accepted as correct.

Where, therefore, the ancestors of the plaintiffs who were originally the absolute owners of the land in dispute made a gift of half the produce of the land to the ancestors of the defendants with the object of charitably supplying them with means of livelihood:

Held, that the plaintiffs having been in physical possession for a very long time and there being no intention of transferring ownership or possession to the defendants, the latter had no right to possession of the land.

Settlement Records—concld.

Where the rights and liabilities of the parties are perfectly well defined and both the parties have acted in accordance therewith for a long time, it is unnecessary for the Court to invent a legal expression by which the relationship existing between the parties should be described. P MILKHI MAL v. GULAB SINGH, 79 P. W. R 1915; 154 P. L. R. 1915 853

Sir Land. See MORTGAGE.

———— Co-sharers—Share of one co-sharer sold—No separation—Exproprietary right— Sir, character of.

S sold his share of 7 pies out of a 5 annas and 9 pies share in the mahal to the plaintiff long ago, but S neither claimed exproprietary rights in the sir to the extent of his 7 pies share out of the sir of the 5 annas 9 pies co-sharers, nor was this portion of land separated from the rest. The plaintiff brought the present suit for the ejectment of the tenant who claimed occupancy rights. The Courts below held that in consequence of this sale, the land lost its character of sir to the extent of 7 pies share and that the respondent who was the tenant of the sir land held partly as occupancy tenant and partly as sub-tenant and could not be ejected:

Held, that had the portion of the land, corresponding to S's share, been divided off, it would have ceased to be sir, but this not having been done, it still retained its character as sir. U P B. R. KAMAL-UD-DIN v RAMZAN ALI 64

Siyeeba. See MUHAMMADAN LAW.

Specific performance—One contract alleged and different contract proved—Damages.

Where a plaintiff has alleged a contract of which he seeks specific performance but fails to establish it, the Court will not make a decree for specific performance of a different contract.

Where there is a contract of which specific performance would not be decreed by the Court of Equity the plaintiff is entitled, owing to the wrongful repudiation of that contract by the defendant, to treat the contract itself as at an end and to recover damages for the loss of it, in addition to damages in respect of those breaches of it which may have been committed before repudiation.

To make a decree for damages for the breach of a contract which is not the subject-matter of the litigation, would be to assume that there has been a breach of that contract which has never been attempted to be specifically enforced.

The principle upon which the Court refuses specific performance of a contract not the subject-matter of the suit, is equally applicable to the claim for damages for breach of that contract. C. NILKANTA ROY v. LALIT MOHAN BANERJEE, 19 C. W. N. 933 989

Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 9—Suit for possession based on possessory title—Defence—Defendant's right to set up title.

A suit in ejectment on the basis of possessory title is maintainable against any person who cannot show title in himself, apart altogether from the provisions of section 9 of the Specific Relief Act. The difference is that in a suit under the Specific Relief Act, the defendant will not be allowed to plead or to prove title in himself; whereas in a suit upon possessory title brought independently of the provisions of the Specific Relief Act, or even after the period of limitation prescribed for a suit under section 9 of that Act has expired, the defendant will be allowed to plead his title and to prove it, if he wants to do so. If he fails to do so, the plaintiff can get a decree, even though he has been able to prove nothing more than possession by himself of the property in suit up to the date of his wrongful ejectment by the defendants. A. MAKHDOOM BAKHSH SHAH v. HASHIM ALI 210

Specific Relief Act—concld.

——— ——— ——— ss 15, 16—Contract to sell whole house—Vendor possessing only half share—Specific performance.

The defendant No. 1 on behalf of himself and as agent of the defendant No. 2 agreed to sell a house, in which each of the two defendants had one-half share, to the plaintiff. Defendant No. 1 had no authority to sell the half share of defendant No. 2. The plaintiff sued for specific performance of the contract:

Held, that the plaintiff was only entitled to a decree for specific performance for half the house on condition of paying the full price agreed upon for the entire house. A. MAHMUD ALI v. YAWAR BEG, 13 A. L. J. 739 628

——— ——— s. 16 628

——— ——— s. 26 (e) 449

——— ——— s. 31 588

——— ——— ss. 38, 41 804

——— s. 41 — Discretion — Minor's mortgage, cancellation of, suit for—Decree—Consideration paid, if to be allowed.

The discretion conferred upon the Court by section 41 of the Specific Relief Act must be so interpreted and exercised as only to impose upon a plaintiff seeking relief by way of cancellation of an instrument such conditions as the law would impose upon him if the position of the parties were reversed and he were the defendant in a suit brought to enforce the instrument according to its terms.

Where the plaintiff brought a suit for setting aside a mortgage-deed executed by him while he was a minor and his mother, who was his certificated guardian, and a decree was passed conditional on his paying the full consideration of the deed in suit:

Held, that as a minor's contract was void the plaintiff's suit should have been decreed as brought. A. GAYA PRASAD v. SARFARAZ CHAUDHRI 972

——— ——— s 42 53

——— ——— s. 42—Fraudulent decree, suit to set aside, when maintainable—Consequential relief, necessity of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. VI, r. 17—Amendment of plaint, when not permitted.

A suit to declare that a decree is fraudulent and void will not lie unless followed up by a prayer for consequential relief, such as an injunction restraining the decree-holder from executing the decree.

A Court should not exercise its wide powers of amendment under Order VI, rule 17, of the Civil Procedure Code when the plaintiff has not availed himself of the other remedies open to him. M. RAMANADHAN CHETTIAR v. ANNAMALAI CHETTY 132

Stamp Act (II of 1899), s. 14 602

——— ——— ss. 33, 35—Instrument insufficiently stamped, examination of, optional—Stamped instrument admitted in evidence does not apply to criminal proceedings—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 405—Breach of trust—Conversion, evidence of.

Under section 33 of the Stamp Act it is optional to the Magistrate to examine or impound the instrument if it appears to be insufficiently stamped.

But the prohibition contained in the first part of section 35 that no instrument chargeable with duty shall be admitted in evidence for any purpose or acted upon unless it be duly stamped, does not apply to proceedings in a Criminal Court.

Where it is proved that the two accused or either of them were in fact entrusted with certain property as servants, and they set up a claim that it belongs to them, and refuse to return it, that in itself is evidence of conversion to justify a conviction under section 405, Indian Penal Code. C. JAGANNATH RAHATGIR v. DEOKINANDAN, 16 CR. L. J. 543 671

——— ——— s. 35 671

——— ——— Sch. I, Art. 1—Account book entries, if required to be stamped—Admissible in evidence.

The account book entries are not liable to stamp duty and are admissible in evidence for what they are worth. L. B. RAMDAYAL v. KUMAR GANGADHAR BOGLA 943

Statute, construction of 325

Stridhanam. See HINDU LAW.

Subrogation. See MORTGAGE.

——— ——— , right of. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 53.

Succession. See AGRA TENANCY ACT, s. 22; CUSTOM.

Succession Act (X of 1865), s. 50—Will—Valid execution, what is.

Where the respondent applied for Probate of a Will and it appeared that the Will was wholly in the handwriting of the deceased and bore his signatures on the various pages thereof, and alongside his signature on the top left-hand corner of the 1st page were the signatures of four witnesses and on each of the other three pages the signatures of two out of those four persons:

Held, (1) that the signature of the testator on the first page was the operative signature by which he intended to make the document an effective one;

(2) that the witnesses put their signatures animo attestandi and the Will was properly executed by the deceased in the manner required by the Indian Succession Act. C. SABITRI THAKURAIN v. F. A. SAIN, 19 C. W. N. 1297 743

Suit on a lost bond—Admission of execution—Plea of payment—Burden of proof.

Where a suit was brought on a lost bond and the defendant admitted its execution but pleaded payment:

Held, that the question of loss of the document was not material and that it was for the defendant to prove payment. A. JHANDU MAL v. KARAN SINGH, 13 A. L. J. 567; 37 A. 426 606

Suit—concld.

—— to recover possession of trust properties—Management of temple transferred under agreement—Agreement found to be void—Suit to recover possession—Suit to set aside agreement, whether to be brought within three years 1

Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1887), s. 11, rules under—Jurisdiction of Court—Waiver—Consent—Valuation of suit.

The valuation of a suit, for a declaration that the plaintiff is the owner of a certain land assessed with land revenue for purposes of jurisdiction is governed by rules framed under the Suits Valuation Act, and the plaintiff cannot fix an arbitrary valuation and make the suit cognizable by a Court of a particular grade.

Neither waiver nor consent of parties can confer upon a Court jurisdiction to entertain a suit which is beyond its pecuniary limits. The fact that the defendant did not object to the jurisdiction of the Court does not validate the proceedings. P. GHULAM AKBAR KHAN v. Musammat BAKHAT BIBI, 116 P. L. R. 1915 796

Summons, service of, when complete 109

Surety. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 122.

——, when liable 149

——, qualifications of 825

Survey records, admissibility in evidence of 154

Tenant goes away on pilgrimage—Cousin cultivates and manages holding—Tenant does not return—Presumption of death—Co-sharing explained—Co-sharing possible, though tenant absent.

An occupancy tenant went away on a pilgrimage after arranging with his cousin for the cultivation of his holding and the payment of rent. During the absence of the tenant the cousin collected rent for the portion held in sub-tenancy and cultivated the remainder of the holding himself:

Held, that these facts amounted to a sharing with the tenant (though he was not present in the village), whose death must be presumed after a lapse of seven years from his leaving the village.

Sharing does not necessarily imply cultivation by two or more persons. U. P. B. R. DORI SINGH v. LOCHAN 427 ——Mortgagee—Rent-paying grove mortgaged—Suit for arrears of rent against mortgagor—Mortgagee not made party—Ejectment of mortgagee.

A rent-paying grove-holder mortgaged his grove with possession. After the mortgage the zemindar, without impleading the mortgagee as a defendant, sued the mortgagor for arrears of rent, obtained a decree and ejected him for its non-payment. Then he sued to eject the mortgagee as a tenant from year to year, the mortgagor's rights having been extinguished:

Held, that the mortgage being with possession, the mortgagee was a necessary party to the suit for arrears of rent and that the landlord could not eject him so long as he did not pay up the mortgage-money or so long as the land retained the character of a grove. U. P. B. R. RISAL RAI v. NEPAL RAI 676

Theft, charge of—Identification doubtful—Verdict of Jury, when can be set aside 72

Title. See DECLARATION OF TITLE.

——Current coin, title to—Proceeds of cheating paid in satisfaction of debt—Right of creditors to retain money 92 ——, declaration of—Possession, recovery of—Mortgage, if can be questioned against a bona fide purchaser for value without notice—Estoppel—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 137, scope of.

Those who have derived title subsequent to a mortgage cannot be permitted to impeach the genuineness of that transaction to the detriment of a bona fide purchaser, for value without notice from a purchaser in a Court sale.

A bona fide transferee for value from an ostensible owner is allowed to protect himself against a claim by the real owner. C. RAM SUMNUN PROSAD v. GENDA LAL RAI 841

——Exchange of patta and muchilika, whether confers title 12

——, proof of 154

Trade-mark, infringement of—Advertisement—Publication of advertisements—Cause of action—Jurisdiction.

A trade-mark can be infringed by means of advertisement. The cause of action for such infringement arises partly where the advertisement is published and distributed. A. KHESHTRAPAL SHARMA v. PANCHAN SINGH VARMA 987

Transfer of case. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 526.

Transfer of a civil case—Judge's expression of opinion about plaintiff's paper, when not ground for transfer—Conduct of plaintiff.

An expression of opinion by a Judge as to the character of the plaintiff or of his paper, is no ground for transfer when that expression of opinion was elicited by the conduct of the plaintiff himself. M. TANGUTURU SRIRAMULU, In re 29

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 6 (a)—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 23—Agreement to sell by reversioner of an estate when it devolves upon him—Specific performance, if enforceable—Contract, validity of.

A contract by an expectant reversionary heir to an estate to sell the same if and when it devolves upon him, is not specifically enforceable. The contract is prohibited by section 6 of the Transfer of Property Act and is also void under section 23 of the Contract Act. M. KAKARALAAPUDI LAKSHMI NARAYANA v KANDUKURI VEERA SARABHA, 17 M. L. T. 419; 28 M. L. J. 650 241

—— —— —— s. 6 (a)—Transfer of spes successionis—Restraint upon alienation 549

—— —— —— ss. 6 (a), 43—Transferor representing himself to be an absolute owner when he is not—Subsequent acquisition of title by inheritance—Transfer, validity of 439

—— —— —— ss. 10, 12—Property given to widow for maintenance with no right to transfer—Condition, whether valid—Life-estate, whether property—Maintenance, right of, transfer of.

A life-interest is just as much property as an absolute interest and any condition absolutely restraining the transferee from disposing of that property is void.

Transfer of Property Act—contd.

Where the plaintiff and the defendant No. 2 came to an agreement in a former suit that certain property should be given to the latter for her maintenance but that she should not be able to alienate it:

Held, that the restriction on the defendant No. 2's right to alienate the property was contrary to sections 10 and 12 of the Transfer of Property Act and, therefore, void.

A right to maintenance cannot be transferred under section 6 (d), Transfer of Property Act, 1882, but specified property given in lieu of maintenance can be transferred. C. RAM CHANDRA v. GOPI NATH 251

——— s. 12 251

——— ss. 14, 54—Contract for sale of immoveable property, whether creates vested interest—Rule against perpetuities—Contract, whether enforceable against survivors of joint Hindu family.

Under section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act a contract for the sale of immoveable property does not by itself create any interest in the property. It does not run with the land and is not binding upon a purchaser without notice.

Nor does such a contract fall within the scope of section 14 of the Transfer of Property Act, but it is enforceable against the surviving members of a joint undivided Hindu family. M. RAJA OF KARVETNAGAR v. VELAYUDA REDDI, 18 M. L. T. 83 435

——— s. 43 439

——— s. 53—Assignments in fraud of creditors—Part payment of consideration for a previous mortgage—Right of subrogation, whether exists.

The fact that an assignment is set aside as being one in fraud of creditors under section 53, Transfer of Property Act, does not prevent the Court from declaring a charge upon the property assigned to the extent of the payment made by the assignee towards the redemption of a previous mortgage.

In the absence of any conflicting equities the mere fact that the consideration for the previous mortgage has not been paid in full does not prevent the assignee from claiming the right. M. UMMACHAKUTTI v. UMMERKUTTI HAJI 583

——— s. 53—Mortgage executed in order to defeat creditors if void—Consideration paid in part—Suit to enforce mortgage security—Lien.

Section 53 of the Transfer of Property Act does not render a transaction void, but it is only voidable at the option of any person defrauded, defeated or delayed thereby.

In order to bring a case within the scope of section 53 fraudulent intention alone is not enough, there must also be evidence to show that there were other creditors at the time of the transaction who were intended to be defrauded or defeated.

A mortgage can be enforced for so much of the consideration as is proved to have been paid by the mortgagee to the mortgagor.

Where the defendant No. 1 executed a mortgage of two properties, a parcel of land and a hut on another parcel, in favour of the plaintiff and the defendant No. 2, a creditor of the defendant No. 1, obtained a money-decree against him and in execution thereof purchased the hut; in a suit to enforce the mortgage security:

Transfer of Property Act—contd.

Held, (1) that defendant No. 2 as purchaser of the equity of redemption in the hut alone was in no way interested in the first parcel of land which belonged to the mortgagor and could not, therefore, object to the sale of that parcel by the mortgagee,

(2) that it being plain from the orders in the execution proceedings, wherein defendant No. 2 became the purchaser, that he acquired the hut subject to the lien of the plaintiff, he could get relief only on condition that he satisfied that lien. C. KRISHNA KUMAR NANDY v. JOY KRISHNA NANDY 690

——— s. 53—Right of simple mortgagee to bring suit under s. 53 of Transfer of Property Act to declare an alienation void—Creditor—Decree for sale of mortgaged property—Personal remedy if barred—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 120, 91, 95—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, r. 14.

A simple mortgagee who has obtained a decree for sale and whose right to a personal decree is not barred, is a "creditor" within the meaning of section 53 of the Transfer of Property Act and can bring a suit to set aside an alienation made in fraud of creditors.

To such a suit Article 120 and not Article 91 or 95 of Schedule I of the Limitation Act, 1908, applies. M. AUTHIKESAVALOO NAICKER v. SHAH ABDULLA, 2 L. W. 479; (1915) M. W. N. 337 62

——— s. 53—Subsequent transferee, definition of—Interest in property, existence of—Fraudulent transfer—Auction-purchaser, whether subsequent transferee.

A person, who steps in by operation of law and not by any act of the owner, is not a subsequent transferee within the meaning of section 53 of the Transfer of Property Act. He is not a person having an interest in the property within the meaning of the section which refers to interest which exists at the time of the transfer objected to.

Where, therefore, P sold his interest in a certain land to plaintiff in 1906 and in execution of a money-decree passed against P, his rights in the property were sold at a Court sale on 22nd January 1909 to the defendant, and on the defendant being placed in possession of the property, the plaintiff sued to recover possession under the sale-deed of 1906:

Held, that the sale-deed was not voidable at the option of the defendant inasmuch as he was not a transferee nor a person having interest in the property within the meaning of section 53 of the Transfer of Property Act. B. VASUDEV RAGHUNATH OKA v. JANARDAN SADASHIV APTE, 17 BOM. L. R. 522; 39 B. 507 497

——— s. 54 435, 886

——— s. 54—Sale by registered instrument or by delivery of possession—Bond, where to be registered—Intention to sell or mortgage, want of—Registration law, fraud on.

Per Sharfuddin, J.—Under section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act the sale of immoveable property of value less than Rs. 100 may be made either by a registered instrument or by delivery of the property.

Transfer of Property Act—contd.

A Registrar has no jurisdiction to register a bond where the person giving the bond has no property in the district C. UDIT NARAIN v. MATHURA PRASAD 413

s. 55 (1) (a) 394

s. 55 (2)—Knowledge of vendor's defective title, whether bar to recovery of purchase-money.

A vendee is entitled to rely on section 55 (2) of the Transfer of Property Act. His knowledge that the vendor's title was defective will not preclude him from suing for recovery of his purchase-money if he is deprived of the property sold. M. VELLAYAPPA ROWTHEN v. BAVA ROWTHEN 747

s. 55, sub-sec. (4), cl (b)—Charge, meaning of Debt and security, if can be transferred.

The charge mentioned in section 55, sub-section (4) clause (b) of the Transfer of Property Act, is not a personal right of the seller himself, and, therefore, can be transferred to an assignee. The debt itself can be transferred and also the security for it. C. SHEO NANDAN LAL v. JAINUL ABDIN, 19 C. W. N. 899 869

s. 55 (6) (b) 886

ss. 58, 100—Security bond executed in favour of Court—No transfer of interest—Document, whether creates charge or mortgage - Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 31 (2).

Where a security bond, after reciting an order of the Court made upon an application that the possession of certain immoveable property should not be delivered over to the plaintiff, stated that "we have, for a sum not exceeding Rs. 300, made the properties mentioned below security":

Held, (1) that the document did not transfer an interest in the property nor was there any existing or future debt or an engagement which might give rise to a pecuniary liability within the meaning of section 58 of the Transfer of Property Act;

(2) that it merely created a charge and did not fall within section 31 of the Limitation Act. M. RAMACHARIAR v. DORASAMI PILLAI 605

s. 59 886

s. 59—Mortgage-deed not attested by two witnesses—Invalidity of mortgage—Pleas raised in course of trial but not in pleadings—Court, duty of—Procedure.

Where in the course of the trial and not in the pleadings a defendant raises the plea that the mortgage is invalid because the signature of the mortgagor was not attested by two witnesses as required by section 59 of the Transfer of Property Act, the Court should not dismiss the suit for that reason. It is only upon a distinct and supplemental issue framed on the point and after giving both the parties an opportunity to adduce fresh evidence on it, that a Court should find for or against the invalidity of the document for that reason. M. RATNA NAIDU v. AIYANACHARIAR 991

s 76 (c) — Mortgagor bound to pay Government revenue Revenue falling into arrears —Sale of property, whether liable, to be set aside.

Transfer of Property Act—contd.

Section 76 (c) of the Transfer of Property Act does not apply where the deed of mortgage distinctly provides that the Government revenue shall be paid by the mortgagor.

Where, therefore, it was an express condition of a deed of mortgage that the Government revenue need not be paid by the mortgagee and the property was put up to sale on account of the revenue falling into arrears, on a suit for redemption brought by the assignee of the mortgagor:

Held, that as the mortgagee was not bound by law to pay the revenue, the purchaser was not guilty of any fraud and the sale could not be set aside M. OOPPATH NARAMPARAMBATH KUTTAN v. KOYAKUTTY 344

s. 82 — Contribution — Properties of two owners mortgaged to secure one debt —One owner and his property, release of, on payment of one-half of debt—Major portion of property released—Liability of other mortgagor and remaining portion of mortgaged property.

Where properties of unequal value belonging to two owners were mortgaged to secure a single debt and the mortgagee, on receiving one-half of the mortgage amount from one of the mortgagors released his portion of the mortgaged properties, which were of higher value, and sought to realise the balance of the mortgage amount from the remaining properties belonging to the other mortgagor:

Held, that he was entitled to do so and that the suit properties were liable to be sold for the whole of the balance remaining due upon the mortgage and not only to contribute rateably towards the mortgage-debt.

Per Napier, J.—A Court should not introduce such provisions as the Legislature has not thought fit to incorporate in Transfer of Property Act. M. THUVOOR VENKATASUBBA REDDY v. BAGIAMMAL, 2 L. W. 469; (1915) M. W. N. 339; 17 M. L T. 411; 29 M. L. J. 319 113

ss. 82, 101—Usufructuary and simple mortgage in favour of same person —Mortgagee purchasing some of mortgaged property —Suit on simple mortgage—Liability of property purchased to rateable contribution.

The defendant No. 1 and another mortgaged certain properties to the plaintiff with possession. Later on defendants Nos. 1 and 2 executed a simple mortgage in respect of the same lands as well as a house and a house site in favour of the plaintiff. The plaintiff then purchased the lands, the sale-deed expressly stating that the debt secured by the simple mortgage should stand. In a suit to enforce the mortgage security under the second mortgage:

Held, (1) that the plaintiff took the lands subject to all the incidental liabilities which attached to them by reason of their having been previously mortgaged under the simple mortgage and which were, therefore, liable to contribute to the debt secured by it;

(2) that the plaintiff's liability to contribute out of the value of the lands purchased by him arose not by reason of his position of usufructuary mortgagee but by his purchase of the mortgagors' equity of redemption.

Transfer of Property Act—concld.

Held, (per Napier, J., dissenting), that the plaintiff mortgagee was entitled to enforce his claim for the whole amount of his mortgage against the property. M. ARUNAGIRI MUDALIAR v. KUPPUSAMI PILLAI 124

——— s. 83 929

——— s. 83 -- Conditional deposit of mortgage money in Court—Condition requiring return of documents to which mortgagor not entitled, effect of — Tender conditional, whether valid.

A condition requiring a return of certain documents to which the mortgagor is not entitled attached to a deposit by the mortgagor under section 83 of the Transfer of Property Act vitiates the tender. M. In re ACHATH SANKARAN 586 ——— ss. 83, 84—Deposit of mortgage amount, when valid—Interest, when ceases to run.

It is only the actual payment of the full mortgage amount into Court that makes interest on the mortgage amount cease to run under section 84 of the Transfer of Property Act, and not a mere presentation of a petition for that purpose under section 83 of the Act. M. MUSALIUM VEETIL THEYATHIL MAHAMMADUNNI v. KUDUMPALATH PADINHARA PARAMBIL BAVA, 2 L. W. 408 145

——— s. 84 145

——— s. 85 752

——— ss. 88, 89 237

——— s. 101 124, 916

——— s. 106 605

——— s. 107 797

Trespass—Ejectment, suit in—Tenant-in-common, right of one to sue alone 60

Trust - Expenditure incurred by de facto trustee during management, whether ground for retaining possession until payment of expenses 1

— property, following of—Tracing and quasi-charge, doctrine of, if applicable 37

Trusts Act (II of 1882), ss. 20, 23—Agreement by lessee to deposit one year's rent with lessor—Lessor, whether trustee—Deposit of money by lessor in Bank at lessee's request—Failure of Bank—Lessor, whether liable for loss.

Where a lessee deposited an amount equivalent to one year's rent with his lessor till the expiry of the lease or its cancellation and at his request the lessor deposited the money in a certain Bank and paid its interest to the lessee, but the Bank failed and the lessor's assignee sued the lessee for rent:

Held, that even if the lessor be assumed to be in the position of a trustee, he was not liable for the loss of the money and his assignee was entitled to sue for the rent. M. RAJARAM ROW v. VENKATACHELA CHETTIAR 997

——— s. 23 997

U. P. General Clauses Act (I of 1904), s 4 (23) 16

U. . Land Revenue Act (III of 1901), ss 106, 110, 111, 112, applicability of—Imperfect partition—Proprietary title—Civil Court, jurisdiction of.

Sections 110, 1 1, 112 of the Land Revenue Act do apply to imperfect partitions and, therefore, the rule to the effect that a party to a partition proceeding who has had the opportunity of pleading a question of title and has not availed himself of that opportunity, cannot maintain a suit in the Civil Court for the relief which he might have claimed in the partition proceedings, does apply to proceedings taken for imperfect partition. A. RAGUBIR v. TULSHI RAM, 13 A. L. J. 548 222

——— ——— ——— ss. 110, 111, 112 222

——— ——— ——— s. 172—Mango trees—Standing timber—Sale whether can be set aside by deposit—U. P. General Clauses Act (I of 1904), s. 4 (23)—Immoveable property - Standing timber.

The mango trees when sold with the intention that they should be cut down and taken away by the purchaser are standing timber. Under section 4, clause 23 of the United Provinces General Clauses Act immoveable property does not include standing timber and, therefore, a sale of them cannot be set aside by deposit of money under section 172 of the Land Revenue Act. U. P. B. R. JATA SHANKAR v. RAM DAT 16

——— ——— s. 185—Revision, power of—Suit for profits—Claim admitted—Plaintiff absent—Suit dismissed—Order, legality of.

Where in a suit for profits the plaintiff was absent on the date of hearing and the defendant who was present, admitted part of the claim but the Court dismissed the suit in toto:

Held, that the order was glaringly illegal and that the Board had jurisdiction under section 185 of the Land Revenue Act to set aside the order. U. P. B. R. RAFIULLAH v. AHMAD SALEH 33

U. P. (Local) Government Rules under s. 70, Civil Procedure Code, rr. 30, 31, 32 89

Upper Burma Land and Revenue Regulation, s. 53 (2) (ii), whether ultra vires—Suit regarding State lands between private individuals—Jurisdiction of Civil Courts

Section 53 (2) (ii) of the Upper Burma Land and Revenue Regulation is ultra vires of the Legislature, even in respect of suits regarding State lands between private individuals

Consequently a suit for a decree declaring that a house situate on Government land is not liable to be sold in execution is cognizable by a Civil Court. U. B. MAHOMED AMIN v. NACHIAPPA CHETTY, 8 BUR. L. T. 45 736

Vendor and purchaser—Court auction-purchaser—Mortgage, existence of, undisclosed—Liability to pay, if non-existent—Purchaser from such purchaser compelled to pay mortgage amount—Liability of auction-purchaser to indemnify private purchaser.

Where a person purchases certain immoveable property at a Court sale in execution of a money decree, in ignorance of the existence of a mortgage Vendor and purchaser—concld.

upon the same, and subsequently sells it privately to a third party who also purchases without the knowledge of the existence of the mortgage, and where the mortgage is afterwards disclosed and the private purchaser is compelled to pay the amount thereof, the latter is not entitled to claim compensation from his vendor, as the purchaser of property in a Court sale takes it not only with all benefits but also subject to all liabilities. M. MUTHUSWAMY PILLAY v. MUTHUVEERAM PILLAY, 2 L. W. 517 392

———————Obligation to secure quiet and peaceful enjoyment—Signing of sale-deed, if sufficient—Contract of sale and delivery of possession —Defence against ejectment—Specific performance—Claim for mesne profits, essence of.

Per Spencer, J.—It is the duty of every seller of immoveable property to secure his purchaser in quiet and peaceable enjoyment of the subject of the sale. This obligation cannot be considered as discharged by the mere signing of the sale-deed, but will continue until the purchaser has got an indefeasible title to the property which the seller purported to convey.

A contract of sale followed by delivery of possession cannot be pleaded in defence to an action for ejectment where there is no registered sale-deed, but the defendant can avoid the difficulty by suing for specific performance and getting the action in ejectment postponed pending the result of the suit.

Per Coutts-Trotter, J.—A vendor is under no obligation to register the document he had given.

The essence of a claim for mesne profits is that it rests upon an agreement implied in law that when one person occupies property of another, he must be deemed to have tacitly assented to the condition that he is liable for an occupation rent in respect of that occupation. M. MANIYAM KUPPANNA v. KUPPANA GOUNDEN, (1915) M. W. N. 319 195

———————Sale of land—Deficiency in extent—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 55 (a)—Covenant for title, meaning of—Compensation for breach of contract—Claim made after execution of conveyance.

A covenant for title is only a contract with the buyer that the interest which the seller professes to transfer to the buyer subsists and that the seller has power to transfer the same.

A suit to recover compensation for deficiency in the extent of land purchased is not a suit for damages for breach of a convenant for title, but one for part failure of consideration and for compensation for failure to perform the vendor's part of the contract in full.

Where under the contract the part unperformed bears only a small proportion to the whole of its value, a suit for specific performance with a claim for compensation would lie for the unperformed part.

The same rule also holds good even where the mistake as to the extent is discovered after the execution of the conveyance, as the vendee before that date has no right to inspect the land except with the vendor's permission. M. JANGA VENKATAREDDY v. JAMAL AHMED SAHEB, (1915) M. W. N. 422; 29 M. L. J. 122 394

Village sites. See WASTE LAND.

Waiver, omission to sue, whether amounts to 854

Wajib-ul-arz. See INTERPRETATION OF WAJIB-UL-ARZ; PRE-EMPTION.

————————, construction of 425, 485

Wakf property. See MUHAMMADAN LAW.

Waste land—Title — Evidence — Possession — Quantum of evidence necessary—Bombay Land Revenue Code (Bom. Act V of 1879), s. 37—Open village sites, title of Government—Presumption.

Section 37 of the Land Revenue Code does not confer title on Government and there is no presumption of title in favour of Government even as to open village sites.

Where there is already title in one party, the law is slow to infer that the physical acts of user were done with the intention of defeating that title or of laying claim to land already vested in another, but the same acts of user which do not suffice as evidence of actual possession might be adequate proof of possession when the title to the land is in doubt.

In such cases the quantum of evidence depends upon the character of the land and although in the case of waste lands, the Court would seize upon the slightest evidence of occupation, the occupation or the acts of user must be such as to indicate the intention to hold for oneself, for without such intention there is no possession. S. SULTAN MUHAMMAD v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 8 S. L. R. 331 51

Widow. See HINDU LAW.

Wild Birds Protection Act (X of 1887)—Wild Birds and Animals Protection Act (VIII of 1912), s. 3—Rules framed under Act of 1887 not superseded by new rules under Act (VIII of 1912)—Old rules to be interpreted by sections of later Act—Burden of proof.

Though the rules framed under the Wild Birds Protection Act of 1887 have not been superseded by the rules framed under Act VIII of 1912, they are to be interpreted by the sections of the later Act.

The burden of proving that the egrets whose feathers were alleged to have been imported into Monywa Municipality were captured or killed during the close season contrary to the rules lies on the prosecution and it is illegal to lay it on the accused. U. B. MAHOMED JAMAL v. EMPEROR, 8 BUR. L. T. 20; 16 CR. L. J. 550 822

Wild Birds and Animals Protection Act (VIII of 1912), s. 3 822

Will. See HINDU LAW.

———*Application for Letters of Administration—Institution of subsequent suit to contest validity of Will —Probate Court, if to stay proceedings—*Factum of Will—Judgment in rem*—Oral evidence as to execution of Will—Improbabilities.*

A Probate Court is bound to determine whether a Will was as a matter of fact made, and it cannot stay its proceedings and wait indefinitely for the decision of a suit subsequently instituted in regard to validity of the Will which decision may or may not be in favour of the caveator. The possibilit of a finding as to the invalidity of a Will, which finding can only be binding upon the parties to the suit, does not constitute a sufficient justification for a Probate Court to postpone its decision as to its due execution, more especially as the decision of the Probate Court on the point operates as a judgment in rem.

Will—contd.

In order to conclude whether a Will is genuine, internal evidence is no doubt of great importance. But an improbability to prevail against direct evidence of disinterested witnesses must be clear and cogent. The incidents mentioned by a Court for raising a presumption of probability or improbability are of no value if they are either wrong on facts or capable of explanation by reference to other considerations which have been lost sight of by that Court. P. MAYA RAM v. MALAN DEVI, 66 P. W. R. 1915; 145 P. L. R. 1915 687

——— Custom—Gulfarosh Arains of Lahore City 382

——— not produced—Presumption—Secondary evidence, admissibility of—Estoppel.

The rule of law that "when a Will is traced to the possession of the deceased and is not forthcoming at his death the presumption is that he has destroyed it", must be applied with considerable caution in India in view of the habits and condition of the people.

A Hindu Jat in 1884 executed a Will under which his surviving sons and a grandson whose father had died were to take equal shares. In 1898 he revoked that Will and executed another by which he excluded two of his sons. After his death mutation was made in accordance with the Will of 1884. The devisees under the second Will, except two of the grandsons, sued for the shares in respect of which the two excluded sons had been recorded as owners. Before the trial of the suit the parties agreed to refer the dispute to arbitration. Thearbitrators made an award and in accordance therewith the suit was dismissed. The plaintiffs applied for revision of the order and one of the plaintiff's thereafter applied to withdraw his application for revision. The Chief Court reversed the order of dismissal and remanded the case for trial. At the trial the original Will of 1898 was not forthcoming but a copy of that Will was obtained from the Registrar's Office and admitted in evidence without any objection:

Held, that the Will was admissible in evidence as the reasonable presumption was that the Will was mislaid and lost or else stolen by one of the defendants after the death of the testator.

Held, further, that the plaintiff who had withdrawn his revision petition was not estopped from claiming his share nor were those who had not joined in the suit. P. C. PADMAN v. HANWANTA, 19 C. W. N. 929; 13 A. L. J. 801; 17 BOM. L. R. 609; 18 M. L. T. 54; 2 L. W. 645; (1915) M. W. N. 500; 22 C. L. J. 172; 110 P. W. R. 1915; 29 M. L. J. 307 807

Will—concld.

——— Probate and Letters of Administration Act (V of 1881), s. 92—Provision in Will that majority of executors should act—Contract by some executors, whether binds estate 505

———Valid execution, what is 743

Words and Phrases—adjustment of suit in section 372, Civil Procedure Code, 1882 838

bona fide 680

charge in section 55, Transfer of Property Act, 1882 869

costs of suit 766

costs to abide and follow the result 203

delivery to be carried by railway 545

ghair maurusi 13 years 559

heir next in succession 500

intention of the legislature 325

kabzadari 653

kayemi 461

khud kasht 13 years 559

local area 885

matters in controversy 393

money 883

permanent 236

person aggrieved 294

prevailing rate 880

prostitute 178

recorded co-sharer 549

same transaction 513

secured creditor 263

sharing in cultivation 22

small quit-rent 365

sthayee karsha kabulyat 461

strict proof 282

sub-letting 36

thekadar in section 22, Agra Tenancy Act, 1901 649

unlawfully and maliciously 513

Written statement, in criminal cases, value of 513

wrongful dispossession. See AGRA TENANCY ACT, s. 79.

UNIVERSITY LIBRARY LAW COLLEGE